The Verona correspondent said in last week's paper that the mad dog scare was about over in that place. On last Saturday Mr. Chas. Slater, of this place, was in Verona and was at Marshall Whitson's, who had five cows that had been bit by the dog. He saw one of them that was raving with the disease and says it was the most pitiable sight he ever saw. Asking Mr. Whitson why he did not kill her and end her misery, he said that a number of dogs had also been bitten and the people would not kill them and he kept the cow so that any one might see the case for himself. The animal has since that time died.

There is probably one of the meanest, lowest down species of petty stealing carried on here that ever cast the shadow of disgrace on any civilized community. Many persons show their respect and affection for their dead relatives by decorating with and planting flowers on their graves. The decorations have not only been carried away but rare plants have been lifted in a great many instances by sneaking pilferers and used probably to adorn their own premises. How very cheerful and solacing must be their reflections when the stolen property is being admired. They can say to themselves, "yes, they are very pretty though I did steal them from so and so's grave Being dead they have no use for them."

Moses Bruner, from the extreme N. W. corner of Colorado, has been the welcome guest of his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. John Bollnton, having been away for 25 years. His observations about agriculture in that part of the country were interesting and instructive. He told of 160 acres of ground in his neighborhood on which wheat had been raised for the past 20 years, and year before last the yield on this patch was 70 bushels to the acre for which 80 cents was paid on the spot. The cultivation of the ground is by means of irrigation. Farmers buy water rights of the U. S. Government, receiving therefor a patent deed for so many inches of water, and this right can never be taken from them by any course of that abominable inquity called law. He told a good one of a Boone county farmer who bought a right for a superior piece of land and then sold out the whole business saying, "no man had any business to interfere in God's affairs." Queer ideas some men have of God and his works! They call to mind the celebrated saying of Donn Piatt that, "A just God is the noblest work of man."

Sheriff Beall has bought the property owned and occupied by the late Mrs. Julia Clore here in town. Price $1,850.

The American Baptist Year Book for 1900 is out. The regular Baptists have in the United States 1,655 district associations, 43,427 churches, 29,473 ordained ministers and 4,181,686 members. During the year there were 184,845 baptisms—an average of over 500 for every day in the year. The aggregate of our contributions is $12,348,527. The value of church property (house of worship) is $86,648,982. We have 7 theological seminaries with 68 teachers, 1,012 students, property estimated at $2,444,051, and endowments aggregating $2,586,065 more. We have 104 universities and colleges, with 1,754 teachers, 26,126 students, with $12,249,005 in property, and $14,442,807 in endowment. We have 84 academies and institutes with 634 teachers, 10,882 pupils, $3,497,938 in property and $1,414,473 in endowment. We have 124 Baptist periodicals in the land.—Western Recorder.

Mt. Sterling Sentinel Democrat: Col. A. W. Hamilton bought 52 yearling cattle in Woodford county weighing 700 pounds, at 5c. This is probably the lanciest lot of yearlings that have been seen in Montgomery county in 10 years.

Col. Bennett H. Young, of Louisville, has bought of Ison & Dodd, of Harrodsburg, a fine saddle horse to be ridden by Gen. Gordon at the reunion of the Confederate Veterans at Louisville in May. Price $250.

Ashland, Ky., has a cow insurance company. The company is subdivided into circles of 25 members to a circle. Whenever a member's cow dies each member of his circle is assessed a dollar, and owner of the cow is paid the $24 thus collected. Were railroads not in the market for all the cows in the country, this would be the best means yet devised for getting a good price for them.—Bardstown Record.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, MAY 16, 1900. NO. 36

THE United States Supreme Court did not hand down an opinion in the Kentucky election case at its session, Monday. An opinion is confidently expected next Monday.

THE carpet-bag rule that prevails in Cuba has the same features that were so pronounced with that rule in the South during the reconstruction period. Nothing that is loose is safe from being carried off.

THAT Populist convention at Sioux Falls, South Dakota, last Thursday, was not a Sunday school affair by any means. For a while it had more the appearance of an assemblage for the purpose of a prize fight.

ELSEWHERE appears the announcement of Hon. D. Linn Gooch, of Covington, as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress. He has been a faithful worker and a liberal contributor as one of "the boys in the trenches," and if the party honors him by making him its standard bearer, he will carry to his office that zealous and energetic character that has marked his successful career in private life. Those who know Mr. Gooch are loud in their praise of him as a man worthy of the confidence of the public.

IN this impression appears the announcement of John H. Westover, of Williamstown, Grant county, as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress. Mr. Westover is a Democrat who has been actively engaged in party work for many years, always in the front ranks where the battle was the strongest. His private and political record is spotless, and those who know him delight in honoring so worthy a man. If nominated and elected to Congress Mr. Westover will never tire in looking after the interest of the people he will represent.

THE reunion in Louisville will bring together many of the old Confederates who have not met since the stars and bars went down in defeat. The scenes enacted on the field of many a hard fought battle will be recalled by the participants who at the time were young and full of fight but who are now bent with age and of tottering steps. There are a great many old Confdes. in this county, nearly all of whom expect to attend the reunion to see as many as possible of their old comrades in arms again before the final bugle call. The RECORDER will take pleasure in publishing from week to week the names of the old Confederate soldiers of this county, who expect to attend the reunion, if they will send them in.

IN denouncing the McKinley Philippine policy, Senator Hoar, of Massachusetts derides the President's buncombe of never hauling down the flag:

"Is there any man so bold as to utter in seriousness the assertion that where the American flag has once been raised it shall never be hauled down? I have heard it said that to haul down or to propose to haul down this national emblem where it has once floated is paltroonery, Will anyone say it was poltroonery when Paul Jones landed on the northeast coast of England that he took his flag away with him when he departed? Was Scott a poltroon, or was Polk a poltroon? Was Taylor a poltroon? Was the United States a nation of poltroons when they retired from the City of Mexico or from Vera Cruz without leaving the flag behind them? Were we poltroons when we receded from Canada? If we had made the attack on the coast of Spain at one time contemplated during this very war, were we pledged to hold and govern Spain forever or be disgraced in the eyes of mankind if we failed to do it? Has England been engaged in the course of poltroonery all these years when she has retired from many a field of victory? According to this doctrine, she was bound to have held Belgium forever after the battle of Waterloo and Spain forever after Corunna and Talavera. She could not, of course, have retired with honor from Venezuela if the arbitration had not ended in her favor."

Editorial Paragraphs.

After all its talk of being progressive, New York is the only large city in the country that still uses horse cars and seems to like them.

A Missouric ongressman is catching it because he franked his dirty linen home as "public documents." Well, that is better than washing it in public.

Usually it is the lamb who gets shorn in Wall Street. If Gates has changed this custom and has suceeeded in skinning the wolves, a good many people will think that it is merely justice.

The Town boom for Vice President has not created unbounded enthusiasm in Washington. The convention will select its own standard bearers and not delegate the task to anyone. Besides, Dewey may yet take the post.

The weakness of Secretary Long appears from the fact that Admiral Crowninshield, who has charge of such matters, has dared to reward Captain Chadwick for slandering Schley before the ink on the Secretary's reprimand was dry.

The announcement of the discovery of a projectile that penetrates Krupp armor explains why Frick and Carnegie managed to get together so quickly. Who was it that said something about the cohesive force of public plunder?

Judge Lochren's decision declaring that Porto Rico is part of the United States is an appalling blow to the Administration. They will refuse to act under it, of course, but the people will take note of the opinion of the judiciary on the subject.

Now it seems that any goods sent to the United States in bond for Porto Rico must pay 115 per cent of the Dingley rates. It follows that anything bound there from Europe will go direct and that the United States will lose the shipping benefits. But the trusts will get 115 per cent protection, 15 per cent more than the monumental Dingley rates.

Imperialism is having its way in Cuba, where a trusted postal official has been arrested for robbing the mails of something less than $100,000. Perhaps the sort of honesty that cannot stand temptation is not the best kind, but it is certainly better than none at all. The question now is whether the United States will make Cuba and the Philippines honest or whether they will make the United States corrupt—and whether it is worth while to test the question.

The utterly farcical character of Captain Chadwick's reprimand for slandering Schley is found in the orders issued to him the very next day directing him to report at Newport for special duty during the coming summer. This means that he will have a pleasant summer and nothing to do. Like Eagan, who received 6 years vacation on full pay for slandering Miles, Captain Chadwick has learned that it pays to attack those out of favor with the administration.

Secretary Hay is in despair. He sprung the Turkish demand business just before the Ecumenical council met and reaped his reward. But now he must make good and doesn't know just how to do so. Abdul sits and smiles and waits. To close the American embassy would be childish and would have no effect. To send a fleet, would be to go counter to nine-tenths of the country and risk European complications into the bargain. "Splendid diplomacy" is therefore in trouble once more.

THE Kentucky Post of last Saturday stated that the RECORDER had come out strong for Hon. D. Linn Gooch for Congress, and was advocating his nomination. This is news to the RECORDER, as it has not advocated the nomination of any particular candidate.

The Assessor of one of our mountain counties called on one of the citizens in his rounds making the assessments, and, the man being absent, he left the usual blank form with a request that he fill it up, swear to it, and send it to the office. A few days afterward he received the blank filled up as follows: 'One wife with red hair, good looking, young and fair, and good natured I declare; one horse and one mare, two steers which is fair, and that's all, I swear."—Winchester Democrat.

BRYAN'S BRIGHT BRIEFS.

No nation is strong enough to do wrong.

The plea of destiny is the plea of cowardice.

Conquest means not destiny, but covetousness and temptation.

It is not the producer, but the non producer of wealth that makes the laws.

Government should be made so every citizen will be ready to die to preserve it.

No large standing army is needed. The country is safe in the hand of volunteers.

Admiral Dewey should be made to correspond with Lafayette and not with Lord Clive.

Monopolists oppose the Democracy because it is the party of the common people.

If the Republican party destroys trusts it will destroy the goose that lays the golden egg.

If the people do not get the trust question in their heads, they will get it in their necks.

God does not inspire one man to govern another, and inspire the other to die for independence.

So long as the farmer let the monopolists make the laws, they will not meet at summer resorts.

The Democratic party is now built from the voter up; heretofore it was built from the financier down.

If the people wish to extinguish trusts they must take the extinguisher out of the hands of the monopolists.

The Republican party is borrowing from England all that is bad, but will not take the income tax, which is good.

No king on earth would have the unlimited power of the President—if the people approve the Porto Rican tariff bill.

Any person or persons, or corporation as aforesaid, who shall or may have land as aforesaid in this Commonwealth: and who shall knowingly neglect or refuse to comply with the provisions of this act, shall forfeit and pay a fine of five dollars, recoverable before any justice of the peace, or by indictment in the circuit courts of the State.

§ 201. Right of aggrieved person to enter and cut thistles—notice costs of cutting. If any person or persons, or corporation, so holding land as aforesaid on which thistles or the weeds commonly known as such, shall be growing and likely to ripen seed thereon, shall knowingly neglect or refuse to cut and destroy the same so as to prevent the seed thereof from ripening, it shall and may be lawful for any person or persons, who may consider themselves aggrieved or about to be injured by such neglect or refusal, to give five days notice in writing to such person or persons, or corporation, to cut and destroy such weeds or thistles, and on their neglect or refusal to cut and destroy the same at the end of five days, it shall and may be lawful for any person or persons so aggrieved, or believing themselves about to be injured thereby, to enter upon or hire other persons to enter upon such lands or premises, and cut down and destroy such Canada thistles. A Woman's Awful Peril.

There is only one chance to save your life and that is through an operation" were the startling words heard by Mrs. I. B. A little black bug has done considerable damage to tobacco plants in Scott county.

One of the most important deals in range cattle lately consummated is reported from Texas. A large land and cattle company sold 6,000 head to a private purchaser for $108,000.

There are in Nebraska about a million acres of winter wheat reported to be in fine condition. This means only 6,000,000 acres of corn against 7,000,000 last season, when the winter wheat was mostly winter killed and the land replanted in corn.

A farmer says the best, cheapest and easiest way to protect apple trees from the borers is to tie a bag of tobacco around the tree just below the first fork. Pour on water enough to cause a dripping. The rains will usually keep the bag saturated and the juice will continue to trickle down the trunk for a day or so after each rain and the tree retain the smell until the rain washes it off.

At the Shorthorn sale of W. T. Mills & Sons and L. L. Moorman and others held at Winchester, Ind., the great attraction, of course, was the well-known show cow Sallie Girl. She was started at $500 and quickly went to $1,500 during a three cornered fight between Mr. Meredith, E. B. Mitchel & Sons J. E. Robbins bidding for W. O. Minor. From here on it was a fight between Mitchel and Minor, the latter securing her on a bid of $1,700. Milers' 14 females brought $5,250, an average of $375; 4 bulls brought $960, an average of $240 18 head brought $6,210, an average of $345.

There were a number of good horses on the market Monday county court day, to change hands at good prices. Among the sales reported to us were as follows: Geo. P. Snyder, of Gertrude, Bracken county, sold a match team of 5-year old bay geldings to a Pennsylvania gentleman for $200. A. F. Aulick sold to the same party a brown gelding for $90. Young Mr Grimes sold a bay gelding to Dick Wills for $70. J. R. Earle sold his carriage horse to Smith & Turney, of Cynthiana, for $100. Charles Dougherty sold a brown gelding to Ed Renaker, of Dry Ridge, for $45.—Pendletonian.

The prospect for a large yield of fruit in this county is good at present and it is scarcely likely that the fruit will suffer any fatal injury at this late date. The peach trees are in full bloom and if the quantity of bloom is any indication, the yield will be large. Other fruits seem to have escaped the vigors of winter and early spring and all kinds of fruit including the smaller varieties, present a promising outlook for a big crop. In most of the orchards the Smock, Salway and Gold Drop are too full and may have to be thinned in order to save the trees. However, none will be pulloff green unless it is absolutely necessary. Strawberries are in full bloom and it will not be long until this delicious fruit will be on the market. And then comes the raspberry.—Milton News.

John K. Hendricks, of Paducah, who is a member of the Reward Commission which is engaged in bringing to justice the murderers of Gov. Goebel, says that the charges made by the inflammatory press that a large amount of the reward money has been expended to buy witnesses for the prosecution is "a lie out of the whole cloth," and he wishes to brand it as such. He says that only $2,110 of the money has been spent, and that has been used to defray the expenses of the commission and to bring about the arrest of persons for whom warrants have been issued. "Not one cent of the money has been paid to witnesses," says Mr. Hendrick, "and none will get a penny; neither will confessions be paid for. If we were going to use this money for bribery purposes, as has been intimated, we would certainly not attempt to use it on the Republican officials."

Men are hunting timber in Kentucky and Tennessee as religiously as the mining prospector seeks gold. The most novel lumbering in this section is the walnut loggings at Reelfoot Lake. Several dozen men are engaged in the business of locating the big walnut logs in the lake and dragging them out for sale. They locate walnut because it is harder than other timber. As is well known, black walnut is very scarce and valuable, and these men are well repaid for their work. The industry has become a regular business at the lake.

"A curious Manual of Mustn'ts could be compiled from recent legislation throughout the country," remarked a lawyer of this city the the other day. "Each state in the Union has its own queer little collection of specially prohibited acts and usually adds a few at every session of the Legislature. The consequence is that no man alive can say just where or how he may put his foot in it on unfamiliar territory. Some of the prohibitions strike an outsider as very quaint. Here are a few, collected at random: In Massachusetts debt collectors mustn't wear red hats. In Arkansas nurses mustn't tell the secrets of patients. In Wisconsin one mustn't make cigars in a basement. In Delaware a doctor mustn't get drunk, as his license is revoked. In California papers mustn't print pictures of private individuals without their consent. In Minnesota one mustn't dock horses' tails or build city fences over six feet high. In Indiana minors mustn't run elevators. In Missouri bakers mustn't work over six days a week and in Connecticut bakeries mustn't be located in cellars. In Illinois side shows mustn't exhibit deformed people. In Florida one mustn't fire a gun from a moving train. In South Dakota hello girls mustn't blab about phone messages they overhear. In Pennsylvania dealers mustn't sell goods in secondhand bottles. In North Dakota religious corporations mustn't own more than $100,000 worth of real estate. In New York one mustn't wear a secret society badge if one is not a member. In South Carolina one mustn't stamp a palmetto tree on any bottle, and in North Carolina one mustn't make a contract with a trust. All these prohibited things are punishable by fine and imprisonment, and none of the enactments are over 12 months old. If I went back five or six years I could fill a volumn with oddities."

THE NEW JERUSALEM

Dr. Talmage Lifts the Curtain from Eternal Felicities.

The Glories of Heaven Surpass the Comprehension of the Finite Mind—There Will Be No Parting There.

[Copyright, 1900, by Louis Klopsch.]

In this discourse Dr. Talmage lifts the curtain from eternal felicities and in an unusual way treats of the Heavenly world. Text, I. Corinthians, 2:9: "Eye hath not seen nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love Him."

The city of Corinth has been called "the Paris of antiquity." Indeed, for splendor the world holds no such wonder to-day. It stood on an isthmus washed by two seas, the one sea bringing the commerce of Europe, the other sea bringing the commerce of Asia. From her wharfs, in the construction of which whole kingdoms had been absorbed, war galleys with three banks of oars pushed out and confounded the navy yards of all the world. Huge-handed machinery, such as modern invention cannot equal, lifted ships from the sea on one side and transported them on trucks across the isthmus and set them down in the sea on the other side.

The revenue officers of the city went down through the olive groves that lined the beach to collect a tariff from all nations. The mirth of all people sported in her isthmian games, and the beauty of all lands sat in her theaters, walked her porticoes and threw itself on the altar of her stupendous dissipations. Column and statue and temple bewildered the beholder. There were white marble fountains into which from aperture at the side there rushed waters everywhere known for health-giving qualities. Around these basins, twisted into wreaths of stone, there were all the beauties of sculpture and architecture, while standing, as if to guard the costly display, was a statue of Hercules of burnished Corinthian brass. Vases of terra cotta adorned the cemeteries of the dead—vases so costly that Julius Caesar was not satisfied until he had captured them for Rome. Armed officials, the Corintharii, paced up and down to see that no stone was defaced, no pedestal overthrown, no bas relief touched. From the edge of the city a hill arose, with its magnificent burden of columns, towers and temples (1,000 slaves waiting at one shrine), and a citadel so thoroughly impregnable that Gibraltar is a heap of sand compared with it. Amid all that strength and magnificence Corinth stood and defied the world.

Oh, it was not to rustics, who had never seen anything grand, that Paul uttered this text. They had heard the best music that had come from the best instruments in all the world; they had heard songs floating from morning porticoes and melting in evening groves; they had passed their whole lives among pictures and sculpture and architecture and Corinthian brass, which had been molded and shaped until there was no chariot wheel in which it had not speed, and no tower in which it had not glittered, and no gateway that it had not adorned. Ah, it was a bold thing for Paul to stand there amid all that and say: "All this is nothing. These sounds that come from the temple of Neptune are not music compared with the harmonies of which I speak. These waters rushing in the basin of Pyrene are not pure. The statues of Bacchus and Mercury are not exquisite. Your citadel of Acrocorinthus is not strong compared with that which I offer to the poorest slave that puts down his burden at that brazen gate. You Corinthians think this is a splendid city. You think you have heard all sweet sounds and seen all beautiful sights, but I tell you eye hath not seen nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love Him."

You see, my text sets forth the idea that, however exalted our ideas of Heaven, they come far short of the reality. Some wise men have been calculating how many furlongs long and wide is the new Jerusalem, and they have calculated how many inhabitants there are on the earth, how long the earth will probably stand, and then they come to this estimate: That after all the nations have been gathered to Heaven there will be room for each soul, a room 16 feet long and 15 feet wide. It would not be large enough for you. It would not be large enough for me. I am glad to know that no human estimate is sufficient to take the dimensions. "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard," nor arithmeticians calculated.

I first remark that we can get no idea of the health of Heaven. When you were a child, and you went out in the morning, how you bounded along the road or street—you had never felt sorrow or sickness. Perhaps later you felt a glow in your cheek and a spring in your step and an exuberance of spirits and a clearness of eye that made you thank God you were permitted to live. The nerves were harp strings and the sunlight was a doxology, and the rustling leaves were the rustling of the robes of a great crowd rising up to praise the Lord. You thought that you knew what it was to be well, but there is no perfect health on earth. The diseases of past generations came down to us. The airs that now float upon the earth are not like those which floated above Paradise. They are charged with impurities and distempers. The most elastic and robust health of earth, compared with that which those experience before whom the gates have been opened, is nothing but sickness and emaciation. Look at that soul standing before the throne. On earth she was a lifelong invalid. See her step now and hear her voice now. Catch, if you can, one breath of that celestial air. Health in all the pulses—health of vision, health of spirits, immortal health. No racking cough, no sharp pleurisies, no consuming fevers, no exhausting pains, no hospitals of wounded men. Health swinging in the air, health flowing in all the streams, health blooming on the banks. No headaches, no side aches, no backaches. That child that died in the agonies of croup, hear her voice now ringing in the anthem. That old man that went bowed down with the infirmities of age, see him walk now with the step of an immortal athlete—forever young again. That night when the needlewoman fainted away in the garret, a wave of the heavenly air resuscitated her forever. For everlasting years to have neither ache, nor pain, nor weakness, nor fatigue. "Eye hath not seen it, ear hath not heard it."

I remark further that we can in this world get no just idea of the splendors of Heaven. John tries to describe them. He says "the 12 gates are 12 pearls," and that "the foundations of the wall are garnished with all manner of precious stones." As we stand looking through the telescope of St. John we see a blaze of amethyst and pearl and emerald and sardonyx and chrysoprasus and sapphire, a mountain of light, a cataract of color, a sea of glass and a city like the sun. John bids us look again, and we see thrones—thrones of the patriarchs, thrones of the angels, thrones of the apostles, thrones of the martyrs, throne of Jesus—throne of God. And we turn round to see the glory, and it is thrones, thrones, thrones!

John bids us look again and see the great procession of the redeemed passing. Jesus, on a white horse, leads the march, and all the armies of Heaven follow on white horses. Infinite cavalcade passing, passing; empires pressing into line, ages following ages. Dispensation tramping after dispensation. Glory in the track of glory. Europe, Asia, Africa, North and South America pressing into lines. Islands of the sea shoulder to shoulder. Generations before the flood following generations after the flood, and as Jesus rides at the head of that great host and waves his sword in signal of victory, all crowns are lifted and all ensigns swung out and all chimes rung and all hallelujahs chanted, and some cry, "Glory to God most high!" and some, "Hosanna to the son of David!" and some, "Worthy is the Lamb that was slain!"—till all exclamations of endearment and homage in the vocabulary of Heaven are exhausted, and there comes up surge after surge of "Amen! Amen! and Amen!" "Eye hath not seen it, ear hath not heard it." Skim from the summer waters the brightest sparkles, and you will get no idea of the sheen of the everlasting sea. Pile up the splendor of earthly cities, and they would not make a stepping stone by which you might mount to the city of God. Every house is a palace. Every step is a triumph. Every covering of the head a coronation. Every meal is a banquet. Every stroke from the tower is a wedding bell. Every day is a jubilee, every hour a rapture and every moment an ecstasy. "Eye hath not seen it, ear hath not heard it."

I remark further, we can get no idea of the reunions of Heaven. If you have ever been across the seas and met a friend or even an acquaintance in some strange land, you remember how your blood thrilled and how glad you were to see him. What will be our joy after we have passed the seas of death to meet in the bright city of the Lord those from whom we have long been separated. After we have been away from our friends ten or fifteen years and we come upon them we see how differently they look. Their hair has turned, and wrinkles have come in their faces, and we say: "How you have changed!" But, oh, when we stand before the throne, all cares gone from the face, all marks of sorrow disappeared and feeling the joy of that blessed land, methinks we will say to each other with an exultation we cannot now imagine: "How you have changed?"

In this world we only meet to part. It is good-by, good-by. Farewells floating in the air. We hear it at the rail car window and at the steamboat wharf—good-by. Children lisp it, and old age answers it. Sometimes we say it in a light way—"good-by" — and sometimes with anguish in which the soul breaks down—good-by! Ah, that is the word that ends the thanksgiving banquet; that is the word that comes in to close the Christmas chant. Good-by, good-by. But not so in Heaven. Welcomes in the air, welcomes at the gates, welcomes at the house of many mansions, but not good-by. That group is constantly being augmented. They are going out from our circles of earth to join it—little voices to join the anthem, little hands to take hold in the great home circle, little feet to dance in the eternal glee, little crowns to be cast down before the feet of Jesus. Our friends are in two groups—a group this side of the river and a group on the other side of the river. Now there goes one from this to that and another from this to that, and soon we will all be gone over. How many of your loved ones have already entered upon that blessed place? If I should take paper and pencil, do you think I could put them all down? Ah, my friends, the waves of Jordan roar so hoarsely we cannot hear the joy on the other side when the group is augmented.

A little child's mother had died, and they comforted her. They said: "Your mother has gone to Heaven. Don't cry." And the next day they went to the graveyard, and they laid the body of the mother down into the ground, and the little girl came up to the verge of the grave and, looking down, said: "Is this Heaven?" We have no idea what Heaven is. It is the grave here—It is darkness here—but there is merrymaking yonder. Methinks when a soul arrives some angel takes it around to show it the wonders of that blessed place. The usher angel says to the newly arrived: "These are the martyrs that perished at Piedmont; these were torn to pieces at the inquisition; this is the throne of the great Jehovah; this is Jesus." "I am going to see Jesus," said a dying boy. "I am going to see Jesus." The missionary said: "You are sure you will see Him?" "Oh, yes; that's what I want to go to Heaven for." "But," said the missionary, "suppose Jesus should go away from Heaven—what then?" "I should follow him," said the dying boy. "But if Jesus went down to hell—what then?" The dying boy thought for a moment and then said: "Where Jesus is there can be no hell!" Oh, to stand in His presence! That will be Heaven! Oh, to put our hand in that hand which was wounded for us on the cross—to go around amid the groups of the redeemed and shake hands with the prophets and apostles and martyrs and with our own dear beloved ones! That will be the great reunion. We cannot imagine it now. Our loved ones seem so far away. When we are in trouble and lonesome, they don't seem to come to us. We go on to the banks of the Jordan and call across to them, but they do not seem to hear. We say: "Is it well with the child?" is it well with the loved ones?" and we listen to hear if any voice come back over the waters. None, none!

Unbelief says: "They are dead, and they are annihilated," but blessed be God, we have a Bible that tells us different! We open it, and we find they are neither dead nor annihilated—that they never were so much alive as now—that they are only waiting for our coming and that we shall join them on the other side of the river. Oh, glorious reunion, we cannot grasp it now!

What a place of explanation it will be! I see every day profound mysteries of Providence. There is no question we ask oftener than Why? There are hundreds of graves in Greenwood and Laurel Hill that need to be explained. Hospitals for the blind and lame, asylums for the idiotic and insane, almshouses for the destitute and a world of pain and misfortune that demand more than human solution. God will clear it all up. In the light that pours from the throne no dark mystery can live. Things now utterly inscrutable will be illumined as plainly as though the answer was written on the jasper wall or sounded in the temple anthem. Bartimeus will thank God that he was blind, and Joseph that he was cast into the pit, and Daniel that he penned with the lions, and Paul that he was humpbacked, and David that he was driven from Jerusalem, and that invalid, that for 20 years he could not lift his head from the pillow, and that widow, that she had such hard work to earn bread for her children. The song will be all the grander for earth's weeping eyes and aching heads and exhausted hands and scourged backs and martyred agonies. But we can get no idea of that anthem here. We appreciate the power of secular music, but do we appreciate the power of sacred song? There is nothing more inspiring to me than a whole congregation lifted on the wave of holy melody. When we sing some of those dear old psalms and tunes, they rouse all the memories of the past. Why, some of them were cradle songs in our father's house! They are all sparkling with the morning dew of a thousand Christian Sabbaths. They were sung by brothers and sisters gone now, by voices that were aged and broken in the music, voices none the less sweet because they did tremble and break.

When I hear these old songs surge, it seems as if all the old country meeting houses joined in the chorus and city church and sailors' bethel and western cabins until the whole continent lifts the doxology and the scepters of eternity beat time in the music. Away, then, with your starveling tunes that chill the devotions of the sanctuary and make the people sit silent when Jesus is marching on to victory. When generals come back from victorious wars do we not cheer them and shout: "Huzza, huzza?" And when Jesus passes along in the conquest of the earth, shall we not have for Him one loud, ringing cheer?

All hail the power of Jesus' name!
Let angels prostrate fall.
Bring forth the royal diadem
And crown Him Lord of all.

But, my friends, if music on earth is so sweet what will it be in Heaven! They all know the tune there. All the best singers of all the ages will join it—choirs of white-robed children, choirs of patriarchs, choirs of apostles. Morning stars clapping their cymbals. Harpers with their harps. Great anthems of God roll on! roll on!—other empires joining the harmony till the thrones are all full and the nations all saved. Anthem shall touch anthem, chorus join chorus, and all the sweet sounds of earth and Heaven be poured into the ear of Christ. David of the harp will be there. Gabriel of the trumpet will be there. Germany, redeemed, will pour its rich bass voice into the song, and Africa will add to the music with her matchless voices. I wish in our closing hymn to-day we might catch an echo that slips from the gates. Who knows but that when the heavenly door opens to-day to let some soul through there may come forth the strain of the jubilant voices until we catch it? Oh, that as the song drops down from Heaven it might meet half way a song coming up from earth.

They rise for the doxology, all the multitude of the blest! Let us arise with them, and so at this hour the joys of the church on earth and the joys of the church in Heaven will mingle their chalices, and the dark apparel of our mourning will seem to whiten into the spotless raiment of the skies. God grant that through the mercy of our Lord Jesus we may all get there!

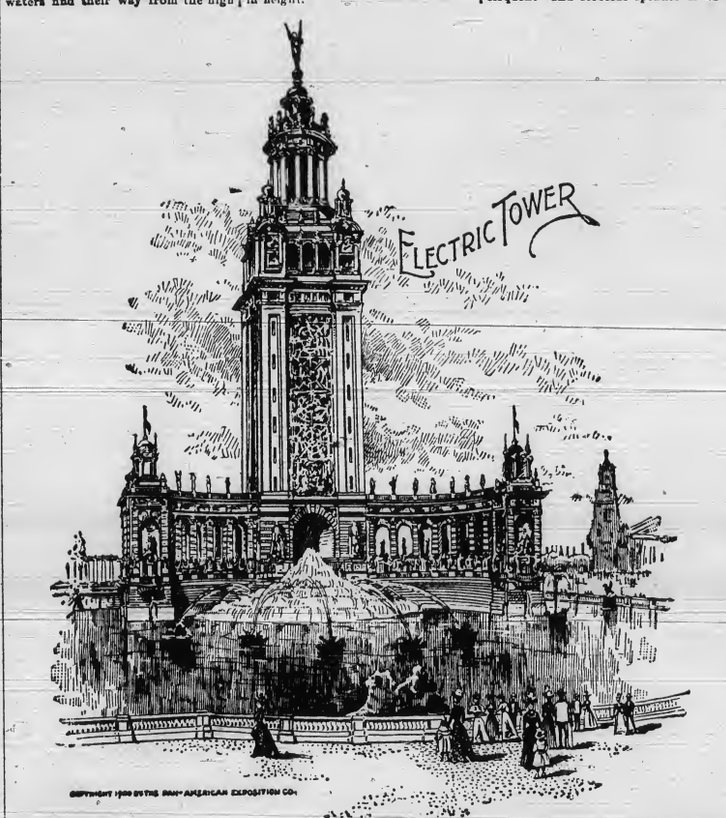
It Will be the Conspicuous Center Piece of the Exposition.

The dignified and stately beauty of the great Electric tower, which will form the conspicuous center-piece of the Pan-American exposition at Buffalo next year, will command the rapt admiration of every visitor. The genius of the architect has been taxed to preserve lines and elements of beauty in a work of such tall proportions, but the problem has been well mastered.

The height of the tower is 348 feet above the surface of the broad basin in which it stands. Its position is between the Court of the Fountains and the Plaza, on the north side of the Mall. It looks down upon the Agricultural building at the east and the Electricity building on the west. The tower proper is flanked on the east and west by long curved colonnades, which sweep to the southward and terminate in airy pavilions, forming a semi-circular space 200 feet across. Within this space and in a high niche in the main body of the tower are cascades, while all about the basin are leaping jets and countless playful figures, each with its spurt of water, combining to make a brilliant water scene. At the center of the niche is a tall geyser fountain, whose waters find their way from the high basin within the niche over successive ledges and among a multitude of vases to the level of the pool.

A VIEW IN THE EXPOSITION SITE.
The Country Club House.

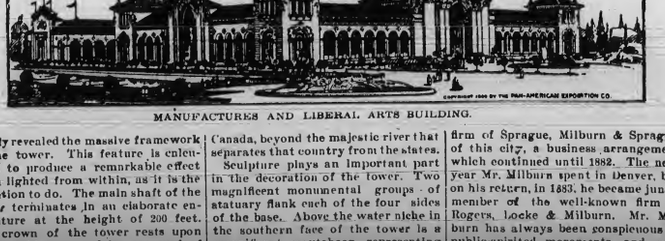


The main body of the tower is 80 feet square. From the surface of the water to the top of the colonnades is 75 feet. This portion of the structure is enriched by a system of decorative rusticated bands, which give an aspect of great solidity to the base. The shaft of the tower is treated with great simplicity. The center of each side is paneled with fantastically perforated work, through which is indistinctly revealed the massive framework of the tower. This feature is calculated to produce a remarkable effect when lighted from within, as it is the intention to do. The main shaft of the tower terminates in an elaborate entablature at the height of 200 feet. The crown of the tower rests upon this entablature, and is composed of three stories of diminishing proportions and varying design. The lower of these stories is an arcaded loggia, rich in ornamentation and having the wall surfaces brilliantly colored. Pavilionettes at the corners terminate in light fantastic cupolas. The second stage, or lantern of the tower crown, is in the form of a high, circular colonnade, entirely open, so as to allow the effect of the sky to be seen between the columns. A spiral staircase within the colonnade leads to the last stage of the tower, the cupola, over whose soaring dome is poised the superb figure of Electricity herself, thus dominating the entire exposition, which owes so much to her generously exerted power.

From the water to the feet of the figure of Electricity is a vertical distance of 331 feet. The figure is 17 feet in height.

The entrance to the tower is across an ornamented bridge from the Plaza, on the north side. Elevators will carry passengers to the various floors, which will be devoted to different purposes of the exposition, such as reception rooms, offices, restaurants, belvederes and amusement halls. A large restaurant, at a height of 200 feet, will give the diner a broad and beautiful view of the exposition and the surrounding landscape. From the cupola the eye can sweep the whole Niagara frontier, and look far into Canada, beyond the majestic river that separates that country from the states.

Sculpture plays an important part in the decoration of the tower. Two magnificent monumental groups of statuary flank each of the four sides of the base. Above the water niche in the southern face of the tower is a magnificent escutcheon, representing the arms and seal of the United States. In the spandrels of the arch above the niche are sculptures in high relief.



The pavilions and wings are also richly decorated with sculptures and other architectural devices. The entire exterior of the tower will be studded with myriads of electric lights, so arranged that a great variety of effects can be secured. The use of electric lights in combination with the sparkling fountains and cascades will produce scenes of fantastic beauty.

PRESIDENT MILBURN.

Head of the Exposition Is a Public Spirited Citizen.

John G. Milburn, president of the Pan-American exposition, is one of the leading members of the New York state bar, and his fame as a graceful, eloquent and forceful speaker is as wide as the nation itself. A close approach to the American ideal citizen, not only as regards his life and abilities, but in personal appearance as well, Mr. Milburn makes a picturesque and notable chief executive of the Pan-American exposition. He was born in Sunderland, England, December 14, 1851. When 18 years old he came to this country, beginning the study of law at once in the office of Wakeman & Watson, at Batavia, N. Y. He was admitted to the bar in 1874. In 1879 he became a member of the firm of Sprague, Milburn & Sprague, of this city, a business arrangement which continued until 1882. The next year Mr. Milburn spent in Denver, but on his return, in 1883, he became junior member of the well-known firm of Rogers, Locke & Milburn. Mr. Milburn has always been conspicuous in public-spirited movements, and rendered the city most valuable service as a member of the charter revision commission.

DISAPPROVAL OF THE PORTO RICAN BILL

Mark Hanna's Hand in Various Matters—McKinley's Cabinet and Secretary Root's Talk—The Proposed Subsidy Grab Will Be Nailed by the Democrats.

[Special Correspondence.]

Senator Hanna and his colleagues have returned from the recent state conventions and are in excellent humor over the "harmony" which prevailed. Senator Fairbanks is gleefully announcing that Indiana is entirely satisfied with the Porto Rican tariff bill. Hanna contemplates with pride the platforms which he and Representative Dick made and had adopted in various states. They claim that harmony has been fully restored even in Ohio—the state where factions always flourish.

In Washington there is a disposition to regard the republican harmony in such states as Ohio, Indiana, Wisconsin and Massachusetts in another light. The reaction from the storm of popular disapproval came too quickly to be altogther genuine. From the surface point of view it is conceded that Messrs. Dick and Hanna give a fine exhibition of thorough party discipline when they write the state platforms in Washington and have them adopted without a murmur.

But what has become of the opposition of the republican press? It voiced a deep and sincere protest of the people in the Porto Rican matter, and there is no indication that there has been any change of heart since the bill was passed. It seems suspiciously wonderful that state conventions can so thoroughly obey the behest of party bosses and at the same time reflect the real sentiment of the people—especially when the two were as wide apart as heaven and earth only a few weeks ago.

There is a belief in Washington that the disgusted and angry republicans are staying away from party conventions. That they are sulking in their teats now, and that they will do the same thing on election day. It is a good deal easier to impose party discipline on a convention than upon the mass of voters. It would be a more healthy indication if some of the republican indignation against the vacillating policy of the administration had broken loose in the state conventions. The harmony which prevailed savored very strongly of the harmony of the graveyard.

Hanna and Dick have practically foreshadowed the republican national platform, and they show clearly that they have no adequate grasp of the new issues that have arisen in the last four years.

They deal in justification and evasion of administration blunders, and the fulsome praise of its imperial policy is not likely to conciliate the people who believe that constitutional principles are involved and that the future of the nation depends upon their proper solution.

McKinley's Creatures.

Members of Mr. McKinley's cabinet have lately been diverting themselves and other people by attending banquets in various parts of the country. Most of their utterances are harmless enough. Of course they praise their master and take credit to themselves for various good things which they imagine they have done. But Secretary Root was more unfortunate than his colleagues when he chose the Monroe doctrine for his topic and suggested that we might yet have to fight in its defense.

He overlooked the very obvious fact that our intermeddling with matters in Pacific waters left the administration with very little reason to object if European nations chose to assume the aggressive on this continent. Surely Monroe never contemplated this nation waging a war of subjugation on the Filipinos and massing war vessels to grab a share in the Chinese partition when it comes off.

Secretary Root might have talked very instructively on the coming of the rainy season in the Philippines, which will suspend hostilities and leave the Filipinos in nearer subjugation than they were before. He might have cheered his auditors by telling them that the war department is constantly sending fresh troops and supplies to the Philippines. He might have called attention to the fact that its costs nearly a million dollars a day to carry on the war in the Philippines, and that the average exports from the United States to those islands amount to about $5,000 a day. They would be much less if we were not supplying our own army with many requirements.

He might have playfully explained how necessary it is to allow our army officers to have a free hand when it comes to Cuban revenues, so that they can live in princely magnificence and entertain lavishly.

He might have suggested that the Porto Ricans will also be obliged to pay for imperialism out of the island revenues. He should not have neglected to call attention to the democratic simplicity with which Gov. Allen handled in Porto Rico, though of course he would be excused if he passed over the chilly reception accorded the new governor by the populace.

Really there are so many interesting things that Secretary Root might tell the people. It seems a pity to go back to that Monroe doctrine, which the administration has replaced by the glittering spectacle of McKinley imperialism.

Obstruction in the Senate.

Senator Hanna is obstructing business in the senate because he can't make up his mind to drop the ship subsidy bill. He might as well, for he cannot possibly get votes enough to pass it. The vote on the Quay case marked the climax of republican discontent and disorganization in the senate.

The democrats, however, promise that congress shall stay in session all summer rather than permit the passage of the subsidy grab. Practically no business has been done in the senate for the last two weeks. The democrats are waiting for a distinct assurance that the subsidy bill will not be brought up. If that is given and a definite schedule agreed upon, the big appropriation bills and the Spooner Philippine control measure will be disposed of in time for adjournment by the middle of June.

It all rests with Senator Hanna and his friends. They will have to make up their minds very promptly if they are to have an early adjournment.

The Idaho Mining Troubles.

The investigation of the Idaho mining troubles by the house committee on military affairs is nearing a close. The actual facts disclosed show a worse state of affairs than were suggested by the resolution of investigation. It appears that in Idaho the state and military authorities conspired to evade and disregard the laws of the state and the constitution of the United States in order to enforce what is known as the "permit" system.

That is, no man could obtain work or stay in the country unless on a written permit from certain officials. The soldiers have been used to enforce this regulation. The attempt of the United States military and Idaho state authorities to divide responsibility and evade rebuke only increases the gravity of the offense.

ADOLPH PATTERSON.

STANCH AND TRUE.

Mr. Bryan Adheres Firmly to the Position He Assumed in 1896.

Democratic politicians and critics high in authority and influence have urged Mr. Bryan to abandon the silver question or at least relegate it to the rear. It has been pointed out to him that it is not and cannot be the vital issue of the coming campaign, and that with a republican senate pledged to the single gold standard the agitation at this juncture is futile and inexpedient. Mr. Bryan has been told many times that his firm adherence to the principal doctrine of the '96 campaign will cost him many votes. But he refuses to stray one inch from his convictions, even though they may interfere with his campaign. And his position, certainly a noble one, is also perfectly sound and logical. Briefly, it is this: The Man above the Dollar. The immediate problems that demand solution are the trusts and imperialism. Mr. Bryan maintains that imperialism is the offspring of the trusts and that the money trust is the father of them all.

In a presidential campaign there is bound to be more than one issue. Sometimes an issue is so great, so overwhelming in its necessities that it forces all others to the background; but this does not by any means imply retirement or the abandonment of any cause that has its foundations in the interests of the common people. The democratic party is not a party of one idea.

Mr. Bryan, having espoused a just cause, does not abandon it merely upon the ground of expediency, or to further personal ambition. Herein he differs from Mr. McKinley; and herein is one great secret of his hold on the masses. Mr. McKinley has not the same hold because he is the creature of political expediency and personal ambition. It is better to have a statesman in the white house than a politician.—Los Angeles Herald.

NEW DANGER FROM TRUSTS.

Manipulation of Stocks by Shrewd Speculators Under Trust Control.

The Springfield (Mass.) News calls attention to a new danger from the great trusts, growing out of similar operations as that of the steel trust, which recently shut down its mills, throwing 6,000 men out of work, and then, on pretense of overproduction, bearing the industrial stock market to the extent of losses running up into the millions of dollars.

"This," says the News, "is a revelation of the possibility of just such manipulations of stock by shrewd speculators in control of the trusts which is opening the eyes of the public to a hitherto too little considered danger from these enormous aggregations of capital in control of the great staples of popular consumption. Under the industrial system in vogue previous to the trust combines no one concern would dare to attempt to depress its own stock, as its competitors would at once take advantage of the opportunity to push their own interests. But under the combine system the magnates of any trust, usually unscrupulous, always greedy, can 'out' perceive the opportunities tempting them to work schemes on the stock market for their individual profit. Today its rests with a few leaders of the great trusts to precipitate a financial panic upon the nation whenever it may seem profitable to them to bear the market, and incidentally throw millions of employes out of work."

——Quay has for years corrupted the legislatures of Pennsylvania, not by direct bribery, but by yet more demoralizing methods, corrupting the republican party at the same time.—Post.

FIRST AUTOMOBILE WEDDING.

Takes Place at New York City But Is Marred by Several Accidents.

Edgar Park, 175 West Fifty-eighth street, and Miss Sue Foote, 117 West Fifty-eighth street, had the first "automobile wedding" New York has known. Unfortunately it was not unmarred by accident. Mr. Park is an attache of Jarvis Conklin and the North American Trust company. He is a grandson of the late Gen. Clinton B. Fisk, of New Jersey. His father was a prominent St. Louis doctor. His bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Derby Foote. The late Judge Horace Foote, of Cleveland, O., for many years law partner of Chief Justice Waite, was her grandfather.

When the bridal procession started from the Savillia apartment building on Tuesday there were seven "autos" in line, and they made an imposing parade down Fifth avenue. Everybody reached Grace church chantry without incident except Mrs. Clinton B. Fisk, Jr., Mr. Park's aunt. The operator of the "auto" in which she rode turned on the full current. He was unable to stop in time to avoid collision with the curb, and the "auto" brought up suddenly against the bridal awning. Mrs. Fisk was shaken up and frightened, but unhurt.

On the return trip the "auto" in which Miss Elizabeth Park was riding broke down and the electricity in another gave out. The occupants were stranded for half an hour in the street, and finally a transfer was made to carriages drawn by horses.

MESSAGE ON A CHAIR.

Government to Forward to Widow of Dr. Ruiz, the Cuban, a Sacred Relic.

The state department at Washington has notified Mrs. Ida L. Ruiz, widow of Dr. Ricardo Ruiz, who was murdered in prison at Guanabacoa, Cuba, while a captive of the Spaniards, that the chair on which he wrote his last message would be forwarded to her.

This chair came into possession of Gen. Fitzhugh Lee soon after the murder of Dr. Ruiz, which occurred February 4, 1896. Gen. Lee kept it until he left Havana, two years ago, when he gave it to the British vice consul, Mr. Jerome, who kept it until Gen. Lee's return to Havana after the war. At the request of Mrs. Ruiz he has forwarded it to Washington.

The message, which was written on the back of this chair by Dr. Ruiz, who dipped his nails in his own blood, reads: "Mercedes, Mine, Evangelgine, Ricardito, Good-bye. My children of my life, I give you my blessing. Be obedient to your mother. Good-by, Rita of my soul."

STRONG MAN FROM CHICAGO.

Charles A. Carver, Junior at Yale University, Breaks All Intercollegiate Records of Physical Power.

Yale has developed a new intercollegiate strong man. The record-breaker is Charles Andrews Carver, a member of the junior class of the academic department. He lives in Chicago. In the most phenomenal college strength exhibition ever made he registered a total of 1,731 points on the university gymnasium floor. The test was made with the judges and apparatus as required by the terms of the intercollegiate strength competition, so that it will stand as an official record. When the last intercollegiate competition was held two years ago it was won by Clarence S. Verrill, of New Haven, son of Prof. Verrill, of Yale, by the figures 1,676 points. Carver is six feet and a quarter of an inch tall and weighs 173 pounds.

THE LETTER WAS GENUINE AND CONTAINED FACTS.

A Former American Settled in Canada Flooded with Inquiries.

A short time since a letter appeared in these columns signed by Mr. W. H. Kinkade, of Alameda, Assiniboia, Western Canada, which caused that gentleman to receive a great many inquiries, most of them anxious to know if the letter was genuine. To a large number of the inquiries answers were sent, but it was impossible to reply to all. We take pleasure in submitting to our readers a specimen of replies sent by Mr. Kinkade;

"Yes, the letter dated December 22, 1899, supposed to have been written by me which you saw in your local papers was genuine and contained facts. I will say of the information received from the Canadian Government agents prior to coming here, I did not find a single untrue statement. The Canadian government is an honorable one and its agents dare not misrepresent this country or they would lose their job. There is quite a bit of land for homesteading yet, a very little close to market, but mainly from six to twenty miles from stations. The country hereabouts is a prairie, nearly level, slightly rolling, not a rough country by any means. Homestead entries cost ten dollars; on land that has been cancelled there is a five-dollar cancellation fee extra and in some cases an inspection fee of five dollars, and where the former occupant has made any substantial improvements there are small amounts to pay for improvements. This is a poor place for a poor man unless he has brains and muscle and grit and grit," with these requisites he can succeed. The population of this part of Assiniboia has doubled during the past two years. There has been as much prairie broken the past two years as was already broken previous to 1898. C. P. R. land (odd sections) joining homestead land sells at three dollars per acre. Improved quarters within four to five miles of town sell at $1,000 this spring. This is not a Garden of Eden at all. No man need think he can come here and get rich in a short time without much labor, but if he will work and be saving he can soon be an independent farmer tilling his own soil and getting good returns for his labor.

"We burn coal, which costs us $1.85 per load at the mines which are 20 miles southwest of us.

"People with stock and machinery should come in May, so as to have all June to break in. Those who expect to work for wages for the first year or two should come by the end of July to work through harvest and threshing and then go to the coalfields and work all winter, and by spring he could be ready to improve homestead.

"A quarter-section of railway land sells at three dollars per acre. The interest is all figured up and a man has about $71 to pay cash, and if he breaks at least ten acres first breaking season his $21 interest for the first year is thrown off and the second fall following purchase he has $60 to pay and then $60 to pay for eight more falls, which makes a total of $611 the quarter costs him, including all interest. Paying for a quarter of land that way is like keeping a life insurance policy paid, only it does not take so long to do it. By a man homesteading one quarter and buying another quarter gives him a chance to have a 320-acre farm all his own and have it paid for in ten years and after that he is sure of an easy living if he is any good at all.

"SIGNED) W. H. KINKADE."

Easily Done.

"How did they open the Paris exposition, George? I've lost the paper containing the account of it." "Why, it was a simple and impressive ceremony. Loeby stepped up and—" "Who is Loeby, George?" "Looby is the president of the French republic. Looby walked up and pushed away a painter's ladder, and kicked aside a plasterer's hod and a pile of bricks, and yanked a carpenter's horse out of the way, and tore down the 'Positively No Admittance' card—in French, of course—and scraped a lot of sand and gravel away from the bottom of the door, and then gave the knob a yank—and the exposition was wide open! Simple, isn't it?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Excelsior Literary Society met with Misses Emma and Elizabeth Cleek at their lovely country home near here last Friday evening. It being some of the fair members suggested, "an ideal club night," the balmy breeze wafting rich perfume from flowery fields 'neath Lunar's mellow beams, touchiug fertile minds with thoughts of sweetest literary accomplishments ever dreamed of by ingenious mortals, filling every fervent heart presaut with an anxious desire to excel in the performance of his or her assigned duty on the tastily prepared program, it could but prove as anticipated, a feast of good things. The club was called to order by the President, Rev. J. C. Bedinger, reading a chapter from the Bible and the members repeating the Lord's prayer in concert, after which followed a number of touching selections on the violin and piano by Harmon Polly and Joe Noell; Choice recitations by Miss Janie Davis and Miss Bessie Bedinger, interspersed with elegant music by the Club's trio of musical members, Tom and Jim Huey and Garfield Slater on mandolins and guitar; Recitation by Raymond Byland, then came the reading of the unique Club Paper, edited by Miss Emma Cleek and Mr. Ben Norman, which formed one of the most mirthful features of the evening's variegated entertainment. Following came the election of officers; for President, Miss Gertrude Curley, Vice Pres., Mr. John Crowe, Secretary, Mr. Jno. Delahunty; Treasurer, Miss Emma Cleek, after which more entrancing music was indulged by those musically inclined, and the president announced that the club would meet in two weeks with Miss Janie Davis at the Richwood Manse. The club then adjourned and an hour was happily spent in social conversation, all concuring in the expression that it was the most enjoyable meeting the club had realized in many months. After partaking of a refreshing repast the jolly crowd dispersed to wend their merry way to their several homes, wishing the court-ous hostesses many returns of the evening's happy event.

Kelsey played nine games, won one and two draws and quit. Bud crossed his legs and began by getting the first game. For seven months Miss Annie Aylor has conducted a school at the home of J. W. Conner. On last Thursday evening the school closed, a lengthy program was arranged and very cleverly carried out. Miss Ella Taliaferro made the opening and Miss Virginia Conner the closing address. Miss Annie Aylor has labored hard and deserves great credit for the efficient manner in which she has conducted the school. This was her first school and yet the perfect satisfaction given proves her to be a teacher of promise. Her mother and father have both conducted successful schools in Boone county during many years in the past and it seems natural for the daughter to become a successful teacher. Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Conner entered into the exercises with earnestness and made the occasion doubly interesting and pleasant by their hospitality. G. O. Cleek, a clever Beaverite, was in town one day last week, carrying one side of his head in a sling. A few days ago he was chopping some wood, when his ax was caught by a wire cloths line. The wire was carried some distance by the axe, when it drew the implement back with terrific force, the back of the axe striking Mr. Cleek on the head, knocking him completely out, and making an ugly wound.

The two large, cedar telephone poles at this end of the line came out of W. J. Rice's yard. They were planted many years ago by the late Charles Chambers as ornamental trees. Had any one suggested to Mr. Chambers when planting these two cedars that they would ultimately be used for the purpose to which they have been put, he would have had the person making the suggestiou placed in custody as insane.

THE RECORDER.

BURLINGTON. : : KENTUCKY

The Baroness Burdett-Coutts has just entered on her 86th year. Since she became the possessor of her fortune, in the year of the queen's accession, the baroness has spent in charity, it has been estimated, £1,000,000, out of the £1,800,000 she then inherited.

By last official census in Holland the number of cattle returned was 1,500,000, of pigs 1,200,000, of sheep, 680,000, and of horses 270,000. The shortage of hog products in Holland offers to the United States a profitable market, the stability of which would seem to be not only well established but on a basis of permanence.

It is said the most valuable checker board in existence is that of the late Prince Bismarck, who was a great lover of the game. The squares of the board are made of silver and gold, to represent the usual light and dark colored leather. The draughts are of silver and gold, having a diamond or ruby in the center of each.

As measured by C. C. Martin, the engineer of the Brooklyn bridge, the center is 135 feet above mean high water, as measured by the war department for the passage beneath the structure of the training ship Buffalo this distance is 122 feet. Mr. Martin claims that the bridge has been made to sag three feet by the extra weight of the trolley cars.

The British empire now has a population of 400,000,000, with a capacity of almost unlimited increase in the sparsely settled regions of her colonies in the temperate zone. Add the population of the Yang-tse valley of China, now under the British "sphere of influence," and we have an aggregate of near one-half the total population of the globe.

Great Britain is indulging in subdued comment over the fact that no notice has been taken in parliament of the attempted assassination of the prince of Wales in Belgium. In March, 1868, his brother the duke of Edinburgh (now Duke Alfred of Saxe-Coburg) was wounded by a would-be assassin in Australia and both houses of parliament adopted congratulatory addresses to the crown on his escape.

Bank notes and general lithographing work has reached a high degree of perfection in intricacy of design in late years, and while counterfeiting has not been stopped, the difficulties have been greatly increased. A paper of specially prepared fiber and chemically treated substance has been made on which it is impossible to make any change or erasure without detection. Still, even this fails sometimes.

Maj. Gen. Sir Herbert Charles Chermside, who succeeds to Gen. Gatacre's command in South Africa, is a distinguished officer. He was born in 1850, educated at Eton and entered the royal engineer corps in 1868, gradually proceeding to the rank of colonel by 1887. In 1877 he was military attache with the Turks in the Russo-Turkish war and in the following year he assisted in the delimitation of the Turkish frontier.

John D. Rockefeller said in an address before a New York Bible class the other evening: "The pursuit of riches is not a wrong thing. On the contrary, gold is one of the mightiest agents for the doing of good, and though there are bad rich men just as there are bad poor men. I believe that most wealthy persons look upon their money as a sacred trust which they hold for the good of their fellows."

Samuel Stophlet, of Kansas City, is the originator of a novel idea for the raising of the additional money necessary to rebuild the Convention hall. He suggests that the iron of the burned building shall be made into medals bearing a picture of the old hall, with the dates of its completion and destruction on one side and the date of the completion and dedication of the new structure on the reverse side, these medals to be sold at $1 each for the fund.

Away with the linen handkerchiefs, says Dr. Pfeiffer, the discoverer of the influenza bacillus. The handkerchief propogates 70 per cent, of all colds, and inflammations of the head, throat and nose, he declares. It often causes erysipelas to spread, and that influenza recovers season after season in epidemic form is directly traceable to the use, or abuse, of the linen handkerchief. The sick person, Dr. Pfeiffer says, carries a veritable arsenal of microbes in his pocket. This microbe needs nourishment, darkness, warmth and dampness.

While the diamond mines at Kimberley have been producing about $18,000,000 worth of gems a year, the industry in Brazil, formerly the most important diamond-producing country in the world, has fallen to a low ebb. It is now carried on only by individuals or small associations working in a crude manner. The yield was never much over $1,000,000 in any year, and the product is now worth annually less than $200,000; and yet the quality of the Brazil stones averages higher than that of the Kimberley output.

GOT AWAY IN SAFETY.

Boers Took All Their Guns, Etc., When They Left Kroonstad.

Many of the Correspondents at the Front Announce That the War Is Practically Over—No News From Gen. Buller.

London, May 14.—The news of the occupation of Kroonstad by Lord Roberts without resistance causes great rejoicing here. Although the troops marched 16 miles, they were in excellent form on entering the town. The union jack was hoisted in the market place by Mrs. Lockhead, the American wife of a Scotchman. The Boers are now trekking to the Vaal river, where they are entrenching. Gen. French encamped northeast of the town and dispatched a force to cut the line. The project succeeded late at night, but, unfortunately, after the departure of the last train.

The arrival of Lord Roberts was hailed with enthusiasm by all the British inhabitants. Three hundred Free Staters were anxious to surrender. The bridge to the south had not been destroyed, but the large bridge near the town had been demolished. The Irish brigade with the federals burned the goods shed. According to the town people, many of them were drunk.

It appears that the Boers had been reinforced by 3,000 men from Natal last Friday, and that altogether 10,000 men with 20 guns made an ineffectual stand at Boschrand. They had elaborate entrenchments in front of Kroonstad, which offered great facilities for a rear guard action. Their only anxiety, however, appears to have been to get away safely with all their guns and convoys, which again they have successfully accomplished. The few stores they were unable to carry away they burned.

President Steyn is represented as having been frantic and as having kicked and cuffed the burghers after vainly imploring them to continue the fight.

"The war is practically over," says the Daily Chronicle's Kroonstad correspondent, and in less definite terms this is the view to be gathered from all the correspondents. They picture the Boers as utterly demoralized and disheartened by Lord Roberts' unexpectedly rapid advance and by his facile turning of the carefully prepared positions of the Boers.

Experience has taught the critics to be chary of accepting reports of Boer demoralization. The Times says: "The signs point to military breakdown on the part of the Boers, but after experience of the past we can not accept the reports of demoralization without reserve. The game of war must be strictly played out to the end."

Lindley, the new Free State capital, is 45 miles southeast of Kroonstad, half way to Bethlehem, and was probably selected as a convenient rendezvous for the commandoes now retiring before Gen. Brabant and Gen. Rundle in the Thaba N'Chu district.

Brabant has occupied Hoopeflok, half way on the road from Thaba N'Chu to Ladybrand.

There is not a word of news regarding Gen. Buller's movements or from the far western side. Nothing is known, therefore, of the progress of the Mafeking relief column.

Masern, Basutoland, May 11.—British forces from Thaba N'Chu, under Gen. Rundle and Gen. Brabant, are reported to have advanced toward Cloeolan and Platsberg. A large commando of Boers has returned from the Korannaberg hills and is in readiness to meet the British, but the Boers are puzzled to know by which route the British will appear.

Cape Town, May 11.—At the closing of the volksraad Monday, May 7, President Kruger cried out: "God of the volksraad! Shall this be the final act? No! It shall not! God will be merciful and strengthen the right. Ours is the right!" The president added that he had documentary proofs of a "devilish conspiracy to annihilate the republics."

MINISTERIAL CRISIS.

Spain Is Greatly Excited, and the Country Is Said to Be on the Verge of a Revolution.

Madrid, May 12.—The newspapers here are discussing the existence of a ministerial crisis. Precisely at noon the stores here were closed by the proprietors, and dispatches from the provinces show that similar action was universal in the large towns. No serious disorders have thus far been cautions have been taken in the several places.

The government has called out the gendarmerie in Madrid, and police precautions have been taken in the provincial towns.

At a cabinet council Senor Silvela, the premier, declared that he wished to respect all political opinions, but to repress any attempt to disturb the tranquility of the country.

Ashantis Striving for Independence.

Accra, Gold Coast, May 12.—Serious reports are current that the Ashantis are determined to throw off the British yoke, that they have secured the cooperation of eight other tribes and that they are now able to raise 50,000 warriors.

Famine Reports Confirmed.

London, May 12.—In the house of commons the secretary of state for India, Lord George Hamilton, confirmed the reports heretofore received of the excessive famine in India and the mortality therefrom.

RICH WAS NEELY'S PARTNER.

The Man Who Confessed to Many Things in Connection with the Cuban Postal Frauds.

Havana, May 14.—Carydon Rich was the man who confessed to a knowledge of many of the transactions which, in the opinion of lawyers, tend to implicate others besides Neely in the post office defalcation. Rich was Neely's partner in a number of business enterprises in Cuba, and also holds power of attorney for him. It was through Rich that $5,000 of new-issue stamps were recovered, and he has not been arrested on account of the valuable assistance he is now giving in unraveling the plot. Further, he has agreed to give evidence when Neely is arraigned.

The amount of the defalcation, so far as discovered at present, is $36,000 during the year 1900 and $60,000 during the year 1899. Of this amount, $5,000 has been recovered, $2,000 deposited in a bank here in Neely's name has been attached, and $6,500 he had in his possession when arrested. A brickyard and a cacao grove, the value of which is undecided, the property of Neely, have been attached.

Muncie, Ind., May 14.—C. F. W. Neely was called upon at the home of his sister and the reported confession of Mr. Rich was read to him. Mr. Neely refused absolutely to make a statement further than to say there must be a mistake. Rich is one of Muncie's leading business men, a son-in-law of Joseph A. Goddard, wholesale grocer, and for several years was a traveling salesman and also was secretary of the Indiana Traveling Men's Protective association. Rich has always been an intimate friend of Neely's, and secured his appointment in the Cuban postal department through Neely. They were extensively associated together in business enterprises.

Havana, May 13.—Postage stamps to the value of $5,000 have been recovered by secret service agents as the results of information furnished by the man who has confessed to guilty knowledge of the postal frauds. It is estimated that the shortage will not be more than $100,000.

Washington, May 12.—Senator Bacon introduced a resolution in the senate on Friday calling for a thorough investigation and report to the senate of all moneys received and expended in the island of Cuba by the United States military and civil authorities until April 30, 1900.

Col. George H. Burton, of the inspector general's department, has arrived from Havana, and had a conference with war department officials Friday afternoon. Col. Burton is the officer of the inspector general's department who detected the postal frauds in the Cuban service in connection with Charles F. W. Neely, now under arrest.

Col. Burton spent half an hour in close conference with Secretary Root, and then paid his respect to Adjt. Gen. Corbin and some of the other officials of the department. He brought with him documentary evidence touching the postal frauds, and as secretary Root was not able, for lack of time, to go over the papers, he took them with him to the cabinet meeting for their consideration. Col. Burton then said that he had nothing to communicate to the press regarding the matter under investigation, and he felt that it would be improper for him to talk at this stage save to the officials of the government. I wished it understood that up to the time he left Havana the inquiry into the postal frauds had been conducted by himself and the United States postal authorities had nothing to do with it.

It is expected that the state department will take part in the extradition proceedings in the Neely case, assuming that the New York authorities are disposed to honor Gen. Wood's demand for the surrender of Neely. The actual warrant of surrender must be issued by the state department, and in some instances the department has undertaken to pass judgment upon the question as to whether a prima facie case had been established sufficient to warrant the granting of the request. In view of the official character of the investigation in Neely's case, however, it is said that the department's action will be purely formal.

Hundreds Dying Daily.

London, May 14.—The Bombay correspondent of the Times says: "The cholera continues to rage in the famine camps. There have been 400 deaths in three days at Mandivee, and so numerous are the cases at Godra that it is impossible to collect the bodies. These lie for days in the sun. The people have fled and can not be induced to return. A similar state of things prevails at Broach."

He Killed the Widow.

Sparta, Wis., May 13.—Elmer Benjamin, aged 20, shot and killed Mrs. Emma Priest, a young widow, on the street. Benjamin accused Mrs. Priest of alienating the affections of his father from his family, consisting of a wife, two daughters and himself. Benjamin surrendered to the city authorities.

American Pavilion Turned Over.

Paris, May 13.—The United States pavilion on the Rue des Nations was formally handed over to the exposition authorities Saturday afternoon. The ceremony was favored by beautiful weather and attracted a very large assemblage.

Renominated for Congress.

Kansas City, Mo., May 13.—At Independence Saturday, Hon. Wm. S. Cowherd, of Kansas City, was renominated for congress by acclamation by the democratic convention of the Fifth district.

THE CARMEN'S STRIKE

Several Disorders in Connection With the Strike in St. Louis.

Cars Run Over the City Lines Under Strong Police Protection—Suburban Cars Run With but Slight Disturbance.

St. Louis, May 11.—The feature of the day in the street railway strike, which commenced Tuesday morning it, this city by the men on the St. Louis Traction Co.'s lines refusing to work longer unless their demands for higher wages were acceded to, was the conference between Gov. Stephens, the members of the executive committee of the local street railway employes' association and the officers and attorneys of the transit company, for the purpose of ascertaining if some sort of an amicable understanding could not be arrived at. The conference lasted for several hours, but at its conclusion Gov. Stephens said that nothing had been accomplished. The strikers' officials were willing to arbitrate, provided the proposition to do so came from the railway company. The railway officials refused to entertain any such proposal, stating that they had nothing to arbitrate.

St. Louis, May 12.—Affairs in the street railway strike have not materially changed. Rioting was kept up in various parts of the city. In one instance the police fired into a crowd and in others used their clubs on those who attempted to interfere with the running of cars. The Suburban system ran all its cars under an escort of police. So close was the watch maintained by the force that practically no disturbance occurred on its lines. The Transit Co. started cars on a number of its branches, and, notwithstanding the ample police protection afforded, trouble cropped out in various directions.

St. Louis, May 13.—The California avenue division was reopened Saturday under police protection. Seven cars are running and more will be put on during the day. All clerks in the offices of the Lindell division of the transit company at Vandeventer and Park avenues, were sworn in as policemen Saturday afternoon.

St. Louis, May 14.—The sixth day of the street railway strike was especially quiet and devoid of interest. Not a wheel, except of the mail cars, was turned in the city in consequence of the decision of Chief of Police Campbell to give the men of the force, who had had but little time for rest during the past five days, a chance to recuperate for the coming week.

The management of the two street railway companies, who feared to run cars without police protection, decided to make no attempt to keep their lines open. As a result the turbulent scenes that last week marked the reopening of the different lines were not experienced, and the day passed off without serious trouble. The only police on duty were stationed at the different power houses and car sheds.

STRIKE IN KANSAS CITY.

Cars in Full Operation Owing to an Injunction Issued by the Federal Court.

Kansas City, Mo., May 14.—Every street car line in this city and Kansas City, Kan., was in full operation Sunday, and no show of violence was offered by the strikers. The injunction of the federal court, enjoining the union men from interfering with the running of cars, and the added fact that it was Sunday, combined to have a salutary effect on the strikers.

The railway officials had had applications from twice as many men as they could use, and, to be sure of no delay, placed half a dozen extra crews at the terminus of each line, paying them full wages to fill the gap that might be caused by any recruits to the strikers' ranks.

Occasionally along the line the cry of "scab" would be heard, but it was principally the act of boys who took delight in tantalizing the men. There was practically nothing to indicate that a strike was in progress. President Holmes declared that so far as his company was concerned the walkout was a matter of history, and he emphasized this fact by joining a party of friends on a jaunt to Leavenworth. The strikers, interviewed individually, however, declared they were still hopeful and that they soon would show different results.

During the afternoon the industrial council held an enthusiastic meeting and adopted resolutions sympathizing with the street car men and ordering a boycott on the railway company. The resolutions request the presidents of the different unions represented in the council to instruct their members not to ride on the cars, and urge the members of these unions working in the railway company's power houses and shops in whatever capacity to strike in sympathy with the street car men. The resolutions go so far as to request the union musicians who furnish music at the parks controlled by the company to refuse to play for the daily concerts.

Arrangements All Complete.

Chattanooga, Tenn., May 14.—The arrangements are all completed for the assembling of the southern industrial convention, which opens in this city on Tuesday. The sessions will be held in the Auditorium, which has a seating capacity of 4,500.

Labor Troubles Growing.

Tampa, Fla., May 12.—The labor troubles here have taken a turn for the worse. There is now a general strike in all the cigar factories of the Havana-American Co., in this city, and about 1,000 are out.

FIFTY-SIXTH CONGRESS.

Summary of Leading Events.

Washington, May 7.—Senate—Mr. Teller, in a lengthy speech, urged the senate to adopt his resolution extending sympathy to the Boers, but no vote was taken. The remainder of the day was taken up considering the naval appropriation bill.

House—The bill to amend the general pension laws was passed. It provides for aggregating disabilities under the act of 1890, without regard to service origin, and to increase the net income a widow may have without destroying her right to a pension from $96 to $250. The bill to increase the appropriation for the national guard from $400,000 to $1,000,000 was also passed.

Washington, May 8.—Senate—The entire session was devoted to the naval appropriation bill, the measure being completed, with the exception of that section relating to armor and armament.

House—Most of the session was devoted to the consideration of private bills recommended from the committee on claims, and ten bills were passed. The most important was one to remit the penalties imposed by the government on the Union iron works, of San Francisco, the builders of the monitor Monterey, for the failure to make contract speed. Unimportant measures occupied the remainder of the session.

Washington, May 9.—Senate—Practically the entire session was devoted to the section of the naval appropriation bill relating to armor and armament. The debate largely hinged on the proposition that the government should erect an armor plant of its own. A joint resolution making the selection of a site and the erection of a bronze statue in Washington, D. C., in honor of the late Henry Wadsworth Longfellow was passed.

House—The entire session was occupied in considering the contested election case of Pearson vs. Crawford, of the Fourth North Carolina district. The report of the majority was against the sitting member, a democrat, on the general ground that Mr. Pearson's election was prevented by fraud, intimidation, bribery and bloodshed. The minority deny all the allegations of the majority. The debate was on party lines.

Washington, May 10.—Senate—The case involving the seat of Mr. Clark, of Montana, was postponed until next Tuesday. A bill was passed to pay Mary A. Swift $12,000, one year's salary of her husband, John E. Swift, who died while serving as United States minister to Japan. The session was concluded with eulogies on the late Representative Samuel Bair, of Louisiana.

House—By the very narrow margin of two votes the house unseated Mr. Crawford, of North Carolina, a democrat, and seated in his place Mr. Pearson, of North Carolina. He is the third republican to be seated by the present house. The minority resolution declaring the sitting member entitled to the seat was defeated by one vote.

Washington, May 11.—Senate—The entire session was devoted to a discussion of the naval appropriation bill. It was decided to vote on the measure at 3 o'clock on Saturday afternoon.

House—All records were broken in passing private pension bills. There were exactly 189 passed. The principal one among them was the senate bill to pension the widow of the late Gen. Guy V. Henry at the rate of $100 per month.

Washington, May 12.—Senate—The session was entirely devoted to a consideration of the naval appropriation bill, the main feature being a defeat of the proposition to erect a government plant for the production of armor.

House—The session was brief and of no particular interest. A few bills of minor importance were passed.

PRESBYTERIAN FAITH.

It May Be Revised at the General Assembly Which Meets in St. Louis This Week.

St. Louis, May 14.—In this city on Thursday next the Presbyterian general assembly will meet in the Washington and Compton Avenue Presbyterian church. Eminent divines and laymen to the number of about 1,000 from every synod and presbytery in the United States will be present. Only once before (in 1874) has the united body met in this city. The interest of the topics on the programme and the scope and possible effects of the overtures to be presented will make this one of the most important assemblies held for the past 20 years. One of the most important matters to be brought up is the question as to whether or not the Westminster confession of faith shall be revised. This is a question that is disturbing a large part of the Presbyterian church.

Following are the sections in the confession to which, it is said, exception is taken:

"3. By the decree of God, for the manifestation of his glory, some men and angels are predestinated unto everlasting life, and others foreordained unto everlasting death.

"4. These angels and men thus predestinated and foreordained are particularly and unchangeably designed, and their number is so certain and definite that it can not be either increased or diminished."

Several presbyteries have asked specifically that the assembly should appoint a committee to consider the whole question of creed revision.

Both Sides Determined.

Houghton, Mich., May 13.—The mine managers of the district held a conference and decided to present a unified front to the demands of the men. Both sides seem determined and there are prospects of the strike lasting several weeks at the Osceola and Quincy, where 2,500 men are now out.

Fireman Killed.

Scranton, Pa., May 13.—By a collision of freight trains on the Lackawanna railroad near this city Wm. E. Schenbach, a fireman, was killed. The other trainmen escaped unhurt.

Proposed Alliance with England.

If the United States and England should form an alliance, the combined strength would be so great that there would be little chance for enemies to overcome us. In a like manner, when men and women keep up their bodily strength with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, there is little chance of attacks from disease. The old time remedy enriches the blood, builds up the muscles, steadies the nerves and increases the appetite. Try it.

Willing to Show 'Em.

An honest young man, who had escaped a great peril by an act of heroism, was much complimented for his bravery.

One lady said: "I wish I could have seen your feat."

Whereupon he blushed and stammered, and finally pointing to his pedal extremities, said: "Well, here they be, mum."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

SEE TO THE WALLS.

A Danger in Schoolrooms and How to Prevent It.

Owing to the gathering of so many different classes of persons therein, the interior walls of churches, schoolhouses, hospitals, etc., are apt to become repositories of disease germs unless preventive measures are taken. These walls should always be coated with a clean and pure cement, such as Alabastine, which is disinfectant in its nature and more convenient to renew and retint than any other wall coating. The first cost is no greater than for inferior work, while renewals are more easily and cheaply made.

Unwelcome Friendship.

"I want to say to you," roared the red-faced passenger, "that I am a friend to the Boers, all the time."

"Well," said the slim passenger, who was in a corner of the car, where he couldn't escape, "I didn't thought much about it, but if you are with them I am sorry for them myself."—Indianapolis Press.

A PEACE PLATFORM.

A Filipino Leader, Senor Buencamino, Issues a Proclamation.

He Says It is Impossible for the Inhabitants to Maintain Their Independence Without the Protection of the United States.

Manila, May 12.—Senor Buencamino, at one time a member of the so-called Filipino republican cabinet, who was recently liberated by Gen. Otis, announces that he has become reconciled to American sovereignty, and that he will devote his influence to bring about peace. He has sent a proposed peace platform for the national Filipino party to the insurgent leaders in Manilla and to the insurgent generals, including Aguinaldo, in the field. This platform declares it is impossible for the Filipinos to exist as a nation without the protection of the United States, and consequently they must recognize American sovereignty and strive to attain under a constitution the utmost liberty possible.

Continuing, Senor Buencamino argues that the Filipinos are incapable of self-government. He says:

"In our independent government the most predominant notes were abuses and immoralities, the offspring and the inherited vices of Spain, by which the Filipino regime was rendered odious to our own people."

Therefore he contends that American control is necessary to prevent civil strife. He recommends to the national Filipino party the addition of a programme embodying the following features:

"1. Recognition of the sovereignty of the United States, cessation of hostilities and co-operation of the present Filipinos in the prosecution of 'bandits who continue depredations in the name of independence.'

"2. A request for a declaration by the United States government guaranteeing to the Filipinos personal liberties and rights under a constitution.

"3. A Filipino report delegation to present to the American congress and public the desires of the Filipinos respecting their political status.

"4. The application of a part of the public funds to the maintenance of hospitals for sick and wounded Filipino soldiers and for the establishment of schools.

"5. The transfer of the insurgent funds to the American treasury.

"6. The establishment of a permanent system of Filipino representatives to the civil commission.

"7. The exclusion of friars from the administration of the parishes."

Discussing the political outlook, Senor Buencamino said:

"There are three elements in the Philippines which obstruct the attainment of peace. The first is the body of Filipino agitators in Manila who are continuously shouting for independence and who thus influence the ignorant masses. The second is the friars, who desire a prolongation of hostilities because in peace between the Filipinos and the United States they see the end of their prestige and the ultimate loss of their properties and holdings. The third element is (suppressed by the censor).

"If the civil commission brings liberal ideas and will approach Aguinaldo to-day, the idolized leader of the Filipinos, and the other leaders still fighting, in a way that will make it possible for them to surrender, and yet retain the respect and honor of their countrymen, then peace in the Philippines will be only a question of a few weeks.

"If the civil commission will guarantee protection of the Philippines, leaving the determination of our future political status to the United States congress, Aguinaldo will come in, will order a cessation of hostilities and will direct the surrender of arms.

"Your forceful sovereignty throughout the islands is unmistakable. We now crave your justice and your humanitarian, lenient policy. Gen. Otis has done much to render feasible and possible the application of the peace project upon which I am now working. To-day in Manila we see public funds expended for the benefit of the people in the construction of markets and bridges, in street repairs, in schools, in a police force. You have made a good marriage law. You have established systems of municipal government and criminal procedure more liberal and just than were contemplated by the Filipino constitution. These facts attest your good faith, and our trust in the American people is as strong as ever."

Uprising in Manila Planned.

Manila, May 12.—Rumors reached the Americans here that a rising in the city was threatened when the new commissioners arrived. An investigation was made quietly, with the result that about 100 natives were placed under arrest. It was also learned that two rebel tax collectors and recruiting agents were working here.

Urged a Repeal of the War Tax.

Washington, May 12.—The ways and means committee gave a hearing to the National Cigar Makers of America, representing the various producers of cigars, cigarettes and cheroots. A repeal of the war revenue tax on these goods was urged.

Treasury Statement.

Washington, May 12.—The statement of the treasury balances in the treasury, exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve in the division of redemption shows: Available cash balance, $141,264,724; gold, $76,258,034.

JEFFRIES STILL CHAMPION.

Jim Corbett Knocked Out in the Twenty-Third Round at the Seaside Athletic Club.

Coney Island, N. Y., May 11.—Jim Jeffries is still the heavyweight champion pugilist of the world. He defeated Jim Corbett in the 23d round of their fight at the Seaside Athletic club with a decisive knockout. The finishing blow came as a sudden and startling surprise. Corbett had been making a wonderful battle. His defense was absolutely perfect, and, while he was lacking in strength, he had more than held his own and stood an excellent chance of winning the fight had it gone the limit. He had not been badly punished and had managed to mark his man severely.

The winning punch was a short left jolt to the jaw. Corbett dropped like a weight and was clear out. Jeffries showed ability to take a punching at any distance and punched hard. He was clearly outboxed, and at times made to look like a novice. The crowd, which numbered fully 8,000, was with Corbett, and his defeat fell upon a silent crowd. There were cheers given him when he revived and left the ring, and was generally shown more consideration than the victor.

Corbett is still a factor in the pugilistic game. He has regained much of his old-time form. The battle was clean, and it is doubtful if there was a single infraction of the rules. The crowd was most orderly.

DECLARES FOR EXPANSION.

The President of the Cotton Spinners Says We Need More Markets —The "Open Door" in China.

Charleston, S. C., May 12.—The meeting of the southern cotton spinners, which is being held here, is one of the most important meetings of textile manufacturers ever held in the south. At the first meeting J. H. McAden was re-elected president and George R. Heiss secretary and treasurer.

Special cars brought into town men from the north. The most important feature was President McAden's address, in which he declared for expansion. He said we must hold the Philippines as an outlet for our great, increased production. There should also, he said, be a vigorous policy in favor of the "open door" in China.

WITHOUT ALCOHOL.

Patients Will Be Treated in a New Hospital in Boston With Non-Alcoholic Medicine.

Boston, May 12.—Boston is to have a free non-alcoholic hospital in the near future.

Mrs. H. S. Morley talked before the Massachusetts Total Abstinence Society on the need of a temperance hospital in Boston, where patients are treated without alcoholic medicines. Letters were read from Senator Lodge and congressmen Gillett and Roberts. It is proposed that the plan of treating patients without alcohol be tried here at the Deaconesses' Methodist Hospital and at the Baptist Hospital in Brooklyn. It was thought that work could be started in the denominational institutions, and later the temperance hospital will become possible.

Unwelcome Japanese.

Victoria, B. C., May 12.—There are over 400 more of the unwelcome Japanese immigrants waiting at the quarantine station, whither they have been landed from the steamer Skih. These 400 are nearly all for the United States, but only 200 will be carried through direct. A large number of the Japanese are weavers coming under a contract made with them by a Japanese firm in New York. Are they engaged to work in some New England mills?

Outcome of a Long-Standing Quarrel

Pine Bluff, Ark., May 12.—J. S. Estes shot and probably fatally wounded Dr. J. O. Cook on East Barraque street. Samuel Flies, a bystander received a wound in the leg from Estes' revolver. Estes fired six shots, three of them taking effect in Cook's body. The shooting is the result of a quarrel of long standing. Estes is a brother of Z. N. Estes, a prominent Memphis man. He was arrested and refused bail.

Ship Abandoned at Sea.

London, May 12.—The Norwegian ship Superb, Capt. Hamer, from Rio Janeiro, February 17, for Middlesborough, England, was abandoned, dismasted, on April 27, in latitude 33 north, longitude 32 west. Her crew were rescued by the British bark Seafarer, Capt. Furmer, from San Francisco, January 12, for Hull, and transferred by her to the tug Oceana, which has landed them at Portland.

Bank President Suicides.

Twelve Buildings Burned.

HILONGOS AND MAASIN.

After Heavy Loss, Filipinos Abandon the Towns to Our Troops.

The Americans Had Three Casualties. All Members of the 43d Volunteer Infantry—Rumors of a Native Uprising.

Manila, May 14.—The towns of Hilongos and Mansin, island of Leyte, have been occupied by troops of the 43d volunteer infantry. The insurgents opposed the landing of the Americans and sustained heavy losses. The Americans had three casualties.

The latest rumor of an outbreak in Manila among the natives, which was in circulation last week, was seriously discussed by some of the local papers, and attracted more general attention than has usually been the case with this sort of thing. As a matter of fact, many Filipinos did leave their American employers with the apparent intention of joining some such movement. Their action, taken in connection with the arrest of several natives for carrying concealed weapons and the dispersion of several suspicious gatherings, gave color to the reports.

The officials have been active in the matter, but are not inclined to think an uprising will be attempted. They believe the Filipinos lacking in the necessary courage, especially in view of the fact that the natives feared to attempt the demonstration at the time of Gen. Lawton's funeral, although they had made careful preparations and many insurgents had come to Manila for this express purpose.

A paper found among the captured effects of Gen. Pantaleon Garcia asserts that the United States congress has done nothing for the Filipinos, and that, therefore, all Filipinos who are working for Americans must leave their employers immediately or suffer the penalty of treason.

One report is that the Filipino junta is endeavoring to incite an outbreak in order to show the civil commission that the insurrection is still alive.

It does not seem probable that the peace proposals which Senor Buencamino, at one time a member of the so-called Filipino government, has drawn up for submission to Aguinaldo and the other insurgent leaders will have much weight with the Filipinos. Buencamino's reputation gained in former wars, is that of a man who hurries to get on the winning side. He was in disfavor with the Filipinos even before the collapse of their government, owing to a widespread suspicion of disloyalty to his colleagues.

Last week Gen. MacArthur received a large number of officials—consuls, officers and representatives of commercial bodies. To Lieut. Col. Crowder, his military secretary, he will assign many duties heretofore devolving upon the adjutant general. This step is taken in view of the increasing importance of the post of governor general. MacArthur's policy appears to involve considerable decentralization. He will give to his staff matters of detail and will devote himself largely to questions of policy.

They are the most admired visitors of the carnival, and there will be a great deal of regret over their departure Monday, when they will return to Lexington. The cadets were entertained with a brilliant ball.

Choked While Eating Pie.

Hagerstown, Md., May 13.—Mrs. Martha Pry, of Sharpsburg, while eating a piece of pie at dinner, choked. The obstruction is believed to be a pin or needle which fell into the dough. SLEPT AT HIS POST.

Engineer, Fireman and Five Tramps Killed in a Railway Wreck in Fairmount Park, Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, May 13.—Frank Lantel, a tower operator in the employ of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Co., stationed at the entrance of the tunnel under Twenty-fifth street, just outside of Fairmount park, it is claimed, slept at his post. As a result a disastrous rear-end freight collision occurred early Saturday in the tunnel, causing the death of Engineer George Loeb and Fireman George Hinchman, and it is believed five tramps were stealing a ride. Fire followed the wreck, and a dozen or more firemen were injured while fighting the flames, and are now in the hospitals.

All of the dead were still in the wreckage Saturday forenoon, and the fire department was unable to extinguish the flames, which slowly consumed the demolished cars. Operator Lantel disappeared and the police are looking for him.

The vicinity of the tunnel after the accident became the scene of wild excitement. No one could approach nearer than within 200 feet of either opening owing to the volume of flame and smoke which is issuing therefrom. The fast New York-bound express freight train of 38 cars reached the tunnel on time and slowed down so that some of the cars could be shifted. The second section of the same train, composed of 30 cars, was due about ten minutes late. It was Towerman Lantel's duty to signal the second section that the first had stopped in the tunnel. This Lantel failed to do, having, it is said, fallen asleep. The second section approached the tunnel at a rapid rate of speed and crashed with full force into the first section. Engineer Loeb and Fireman Hinchman of the second section were immediately crushed to death and the cars piled in an indiscriminate mass began to burn. Four oil cars exploded, adding to the horror of the situation and feeding the flames. A fire alarm was turned in and firemen immediately began an endeavor to extinguish the flames. No attempt was made to secure the bodies of the dead, as it was impossible to get near the point where they lay. The loss to the company is estimated at $149,000.

MANY PEOPLE HOMELESS.

A Fire in Camden, N. J., Destroyed Ten Stores and About Fifty Small Dwellings.

Camden, N. J., May 14.—Fire which broke out in the Farmers' Market house, at Fifth and Federal streets, completely destroyed that building, ten stores and about 50 small dwellings, causing a loss estimated at $125,000 and rendering homeless about 250 persons. The origin of the fire is believed to be that boys either accidentally or purposely set fire to a large pile of tarred lumber which had been stored in the market house.

The principal losses were: The Farmers' Market, $15,000; Cowgill chemical laboratory, $10,000; M. L. Mowns, florist, $3,000; J. Z. Blak, clothing, $1,500; Harry Grosscupp, dwelling, $3,000; W. Z. Gibson, grocery, $3,000, and W. H. Docker, umbrellas, $2,000.

Most of the others to suffer were small property owners. Many of the occupants of the dwellings lost all their household effects. The losses are partly covered by insurance.

THROWN AGAINST A POLE.

Two Persons Killed and Two Injured in a Runaway Accident at Knoxville, Tenn.

Knoxville, Tenn., May 12.—M. J. Condon, a railroad conductor, of Knoxville, and Mortimer E. Shea, clerk of the New York surrogate court, were killed here in a runaway. Mrs. Condon was seriously injured and Mrs. Shea slightly.

The men were thrown against a telephone pole, dying almost instantly. Shea and his wife were here on a pleasure trip and were out driving with the Condons.

Displayed Bravery and Nerve.

Jeffersonville, Ind., May 14.—Chas. A. Henthorne, 30 years old, died at his home in Otisco, Ind., above Jeffersonville. Several years ago Henthorne won a national reputation through the press by his bravery while caught under a wreck in the northern part of Indiana. For over four hours he lay under a coach and refused to be taken out until after every one else was removed from the wreck. Finally, his hands and arms being free, he took an ax and helped cut himself out. Both legs were mashed off above the knees, but he recovered.

Fatal Shooting on the Street.

Pine Bluff, Ark., May 13.—J. S. Estes shot and probably fatally wounded Dr. J. O. Cook on East Barreque street. Saxmel Flies, a bystander, received a wound in the leg from Estes' revolver. Estes fired six shots, three of them taking effect in Cook's body. The shooting is the result of a quarrel of long standing.

STATE NEWS PICK-UPS.

JIM HOWARD IN JAIL.

He Says That He Can Prove That He Had No Connection With the Assassination.

Frankfort, Ky., May 11.—Jim Howard, the feudist, who was named by Culton and other witnesses as the man who probably fired the shot which killed William Goebel, surrendered at the jail here Wednesday night. He arrived here at 6:20 in custody of Sheriff Bev White, of Clay county, and John G. White, of Winchester.

Sheriff White says that Howard told him when his name was first mentioned in connection with the assassination that he was innocent and would surrender whenever he was wanted. Mr. White said: "I received the warrant for Howard's arrest several days ago, but at the time I was busy. I knew Jim would not run off. As soon as I got time I served the warrant of arrest on him. This was on the 7th inst. He came without a word." Howard said: "I never was inside the state house square in my life until the afternoon following the assassination of Goebel. I am innocent and can prove by testimony which will not be doubted that I was not at the state house when Mr. Goebel was killed."

The reward commission in charge of the board for apprehension of the assassin held a meeting, but did nothing more than to approve a few accounts. A member of the commission stated that all of the expenses of that body up to date does not aggregate $2,500.

Frankfort, Ky., May 11.—Sheriff White, who arrested Feudist Jim Howard, who is charged with having shot William Goebel, declined to accept the $250 reward offered by the Goebel brothers for the arrest of Howard.

Middlesboro, Ky., May 11.—Barry Howard will surrender to Sheriff Broughton in a few days and go to Frankfort. He says he had no connection whatever with the alleged Goebel conspiracy.

Was a Winner Again.

Louisville, Ky., May 12.—Just a week ago Lieutenant Gibson galloped home an easy winner of the Kentucky Derby, and his share of the stake was $5,600. He made Owner C. H. Smith, of Chicago, $3,500 richer by winning for him the Clark stakes at one and one-eighth miles. He had to carry 127 pounds—a lot of weight for a three-old this early in the season—but he did it and did it like a race horse. His performance was all the more creditable in that he equaled the track record for the distance—1:54 flat—which has been held by Pearl Jennings, 4 years old, with 75 pounds up, since 1893.

Released on Beckham's Pardon.

Frankfort, Ky., May 14.—John Dugan, serving 21 years, charged with the murder of County Judge John C. Colson at Middlesboro four years ago, was released from the penitentiary on a pardon signed by Beckham. Dugan always professed innocence. He maintained that the shooting was done by another party, and that he and Colson were fast friends. Colson was a brother of ex-Congressman David Colson, and at the time of his death was county judge of Bell county. Dugan left for Nashville, where he will reside.

Gold in Caser County.

Danville, Ky., May 13.—Considerable excitement has been caused in the vicinity of Rush Branch, Casey county, by the discovery of what is believed to be a gold mine of considerable value on the land of James Adams. The government expert at Charlottesville, N. C., has assayed the ore and returned a most promising assay report.

Collier and Ballard.

Nicholasville, Ky., May 11.—The republicans of the Eighth congressional district held an enthusiastic convention here and elected Gen. Barn Struck By Lightning.

Cynthiana, Ky., May 13.—John Keller's barn, containing his crop of tobacco, was struck by lightning and totally destroyed by fire. Many houses, barns and fences were damaged, and there is considerable injury to crops due to the storms.

Changed the Place.

Paris, Ky., May 12.—On account of the smallpox scare in this city, the fifth annual council of the Lexington diocese of the Episcopal church has been changed to Lexington. The date, May 30, remains unchanged.

RELEASED, BUT WANTED.

The Suspicious Character Leaves Lexington Just in Time to Prevent Being Arrested Again.

Lexington, Ky., May 13.—J. F. Wilbert, of San Francisco, arrested while attempting to pawn $9,000 worth of diamonds on suspicion of being wanted in some large cities, was released by the authorities. They wired his description to large cities, but receiving no reply Wilbert was released. He immediately left the city.

After Wilbert had left Lexington Chief of Detectives L. P. Colleran, of Chicago, wired for a description of the man and goods, having seen a telegram in morning papers. The descriptions asked for were wired by Chief of Police Ross. Colleran wired back at once to hold Wilbert until a Chicago officer could come to Lexington. Ross wired back that Wilbert had been released, where upon Colleran asked by wire that he be rearrested. Chicago has had a recent diamond robbery, and Colleran's telegrams are taken by local officers to indicate that the Chicago officers believe from the description that Wilbert is the guilty party. Wilbert had gone when the telegram reached here.

FEMALE PRISONER SHOT.

She, With Others, Was Trying to Escape From the Workhouse at Owensboro, Ky.

Owensboro, Ky., May 14.—Cora Yewit, colored female prisoner, was shot and mortally wounded by Workhouse Keeper Julius Mount. Mount was taking the female prisoners their dinner when they made a rush to escape. The Yewit woman struck Mount over the head with a stove leg and then knocked him down with a quart bottle filled with oil of sassafras. The oil got in Mount's eyes and almost blinded him, causing him the most intense pain.

Before he could get up another rush was made on him, and he fired. The ball struck Cora Yewit in the forehead, fatally injuring her. Mount's injuries are severe, but not dangerous.

Commercial Club Formed.

Somerset, Ky., May 14.—The business men met and organized a commercial club. Geo. W. Wait, president, of the Somerset Banking Co., was selected as chairman of the meeting and F. J. Campbell as secretary. Wednesday a permanent organization will be effected. Several large concerns are in correspondence with the citizens with a view of locating here. Canton (O.) capitalists have looked over the ground and will build a street car line here as soon as they can get a franchise from the city. The Cincinnati Southern road has contracted for a large freight house here.

Three Prisoners Escape.

Lancaster, Ky., May 12.—Three prisoners confined in the county jail succeeded in making their escape with saws. They cut two bars of the cell, which let them into the main hall, thence into the woman's department, out of which they gained their liberty. They are Allen Preston, white, charged with housebreaking; Robert Carrier, white, horse stealing, and Walter Simpson, stealing coal. Jailer Ross is in search of the fugitives.

Military Company Indicted.

Eminence, Ky., May 14.—Garnett Ripley and all the members of his military company, which he raised at the instance of W. S. Taylor the past winter, were indicted by the Henry county grand jury for raising an armed force in violation of the form of the law.

New Telephone Line.

Williamstown, Ky., May 13.—The Williamstown and Owenton Telephone Co. has incorporated with a capital stock of $25,000. The line is being run to Falmouth, Gardnersville, Crittenden, Mt. Zion, Verona and Warsaw, and will probably be run to Burlington.

First Oil Shipment.

Louisa, Ky., May 14.—The first 100 barrels of oil ever marketed from the Big Sandy field is being shipped from this place. It is a very high quality of lubricating oil and comes from the Kentucky Union Oil Co.'s well at Blaine.

May Try Youtsey First.

Frankfort, Ky., May 11.—It is said here that the attorneys for the prosecution have decided to elect to try the indictment against Youtsey first among the cases taken to Scott county on a change of venue and set for trial there July 5.

Ready for the Silver.

Louisville, Ky., May 13.—Capt. Chester, of the battle ship Kentucky, has written to the board of trade that the battle ship will be ready to receive its silver service from the people of Kentucky on June 6.

The Monument Fund in Grant.

Williamstown, Ky., May 13.—The Goebel monument fund, which is being raised by the women of Grant county, has reached nearly $300, and it is thought it will exceed that amount before the subscription books close.

School Bonds Sold.

Hopkinsville, Ky., May 13.—The trustees of the Pembroke graded school have floated their new school bonds, amounting to $7,500. They were taken by the Pembroke Deposit bank.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

Hamilton.

Mrs. Kent has 200 little chickens.

Mrs. Mary L. Ryle, has over 100 chickens.

Nearly all the farmers are done planting corn.

The rain last week was of great advantage to vegetation.

Miss Sallie Allen was the guest of Miss Mattie Ryle, Sunday.

Miss Ruby Williams was the guest of Edith Ryle, Friday and Saturday.

Mr. Stewart, of Covington, is teaching the spring school. He boards at J. R. Ryle's.

Kenneth Aylor and wife of Huntington, West Virginia, were guests of Perry Johnson and wife a few days ago.

Verona.

The mad dog epidemic still prevails, and the owners of live stock in this neighborhood are considerably worked up over the matter, not knowing to what extent their cattle, horses and hogs have been bitten. The first case of hydrophobia to develop was that of a cow belonging to Marshall Whitson and was reported last week. The cow has since died and two more have had well defined cases of rabbies, one of them dying, while the other can live but a short time. Other cows belonging to Mr. Whitson were bitten and are being closely watched. A sow belonging to Frank Cleek went mad the other day, and Mr. Cleek killed her and all her young pigs. He has other hogs that were bitten. The dog that did all this damage was a stranger, and from whence it came or whither it went is unknown.

Hebron.

Allen Clutterbuck will build a barn.

John Poston's best milch cow died of milk fever.

Thomas B. Aylor is being treated by the doctor for grippe.

The mercury stood at 87 in the shade here Sunday, and at 89 Monday.

J. H. Clore is adding to the looks of his new farm by building wire fence.

Owen Aylor, who has been on the sick list for more than two weeks, is some better.

John Aylor wears an elongated smile. It is a 10 pound boy and was born on the 10th.

The crust that formed on the ground after the rain, last week, has prevented some corn from coming up.

A great many are shearing their sheep this week. About all the wool around here has been sold at 25 cents a pound.

Francesville.

Most every body is through planting corn.

Abraham Wainscott is still a great sufferer from dropsy.

Joseph Graves and wife entertained some of their married children on Sunday.

Clint Riddell was out Sunday afternoon in his new buggy, with his best girl.

George McGlasson will begin digging a cistern this week. William Batterson will do the stonemason's work.

Charley Scothorn's large straw stack below the village burned Saturday night about 9 o'clock. It was the work of an incendiary, probably.

Mrs. Dunsberry, of New Richmond, Ohio, mother of Harry Kilgour and Mrs. Manlius Goodridge, is quite sick at the home of the latter.

Mrs. Markland, of Taylorsport, mother of Mr. Ed Markland, of this place, had a severe attack of heart trouble last Thursday night, but was much better Sunday.

Walton.

There is a profusion of bloom on the black locust trees and it is regarded as a harbinger of abundant crops especially of corn and tobacco.

Lawrence Ryan and Eddie Farrell have two very fine crops of tobacco in the Verona District, and both of them are well aware of the fact.

Do not forget that the declamatory contest of the pupils of the Academy will take place at the Christian church in the evening of the 17th inst.

"The Dragg" (What a name for a club of young ladies and gentlemen!) met at Miss Ethel Waltz's on Saturday night.

James Stapleton has sold the crop of tobacco that was hung in Tomlin's ware house to Noah Glasscock, and it is now being put into hogsheads for shipment, and will be on the market this week.

Messrs. Raymond Byland, Garfield Slater, Willie Norman, John M. Crowe, Misses Mary Veruon Jones, Myrtle Jones, Lottie Holder and Gertrude A. Curley attended the Presbyterian church at Crittenden Sunday evening.

Walton society was not astounded at the marriage of Mr. Frank Curley to Miss Mabel Edwards, daughter of S. L. Edwards, the hardware merchant of this place. Mr. Curley is the son of T. F. Curley, one of Walton's oldest merchants and is a very promising young attorney, meeting with a good share of business. The RECORDER is most happy in congratulating the young couple on the event.

Miss Pearl Byrd's Art Exhibition will be held in the class room of the Walton Academy in the afternoon of May 23 and 24, commencing at 2 p. m. Our citizens will find the exhibition very interesting, not only on account of the merits of the works themselves but from the fact that the young artists have attained in such a short time such a knowledge of art and such a facility in handling the brush as to be able to submit to the public such really good paintings as will be on exhibition on that occasion.

The convenience of the Mayhugh Planing mill is appreciated, the steam from which is being used to get the article in just the proper case. Glasscock and his foreman, Chas. Mattox, understand their business. The tobacco was bought at the price, Mr. Stapleton asked for it when it was put in the barn some six or eight weeks ago. Mr. Glasscock has been asked by the friends of Martin Bailey and Patrick Code, which of them raised the best crop of tobacco, but he says that for the life of him he is unable to give a decision. They are two of the best crops that have been bought by him at this place.

The town council, for a wonder, got a move on itself and actually introduced an ordinance taxing dogs. There was danger that the town would be overrun with them, and the mad dog excitement at Verona quickened matters up a little. There is no telling how soon we may have one here. The very same dog that was at Verona was seen to make at Wesley Dixon on the Southern R. R track near the depot. He kicked it over on the Short Line, and its head being towards Verona, it kept on the same way. It was a yellowish shepherd with a white ring around its neck, and was afterwards seen going down Mud Lick. There are so many black boys in town, we keep dogs that a tax is absolutely necessary.

The many friends of Mrs. John Booth, of this place, were deeply grieved because of her death on Tuesday, May 8th, after a short illness. Mrs. Booth was one of those rare ones whose lives are as an open book of love and truth, and her life was crowned by a death in which through faith she looked beyond the grave and saw the resting place of those "whom love of God hath blessed." Mrs. Booth was an honored member of the Christian church, and the Ladies' Aid Society of that church, and her death will be felt keenly, not only by her family, but by the church as well. The interment took place at the cemetery here, after an exceedingly able and eloquent address by the Rev. Geo. Miller, of Covington. Many beautiful flowers were presented by sympathizing friends and relatives. The family have the sympathy of the entire community in their bereavement.

"It is with a good deal of pleasure and satisfaction that I recommend Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Druggist A. W. Sawtelle, of Hartford, Conn. "A lady customer, seeing the remedy exposed for sale on my show case, said to me: 'I really believe that medicine saved my life the past summer while at the shore,' and she became so enthusiastic over its merits that I at once made up my mind to recommend it in the future. Recently a gentleman came into my store so overcome with colic pains that he sank at once to the floor. I gave him a dose of this remedy which helped him. I repeated the dose and in fifteen minutes he left my store smilingly informing me that he felt as well as ever." Sold by W. F. McKim, Burlington; Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg, C. S. Balsly, Bullittsville, O. N. Grant, Bellevne.

Electioneer still heads the list of trotting sires, with 157 performers to his credit in the 2:30 list. But when pacers as well as trotters are considered, Nutwood 2:18¾, is now the leading sire, the great son of Belmont and Miss Russell having to his credit 128 trotters and 32 pacers, as against 157 trotters and 2 pacers for the son of Rysdyk's Hambletonian and Green Mountain Maid. Those two sires were of nearly the same age and they were taken to California almost simultaneously, gaining their prominence there. When the first Year Book was compiled, Electioneer had 12 trotters to his credit in the 2:30 list, while Nutwood's list comprised 9 trotters and 1 pacer. At that time the old broken-legged Indiana pacer Blue Bull stood at the head of the list, having to his credit 47 trotters as against 41 for George Wilkes.

The Hessian fly problem has been solved, according to newspaper reports. A farmer in the central part of the State thinks he has discovered how to keep the fly out of his wheat at a moderate expense. Just as wheat was coming up last fall, he scattered common salt over hall a field, leaving the other half without any. He used about a bushel of salt to the acre. He says it worked like a charm. The part of the field salted has a good stand of wheat, entirely free from fly, while the other half is badly damaged. Another man says he prevented damage from fly by sowing a barrel of air slacked lime on fifteen acres as soon as the wheat came up, repeating the process at intervals of a few days.

The farmers of Daviess county are going more largely into the raising of Burley this year than for many years past, says the Owensboro Messenger. They say that the Burleys have been out-selling the Pryors for several years, and they want the tobacco that pays best. A prominent local dealer says that many of the farmers are not going to make a success of Burley, as the soil of Daviess county is not adapted to the successful cultivation of that variety of tobacco. He says that the farmers of Daviess county can raise Pryor tobacco more successfully than Burley, and when it comes to selling both domestic and export, dealers want Pryor, but only the domestic buyers want Burley. The dealers say that the Daviess county farmer who stick to Pryor, going in for both body and color, is one who will get most out of tobacco raising, as that kind of tobacco makes the best strips, and the competition is more active on strips than any other grade of tobacco put on the Owensboro market. However, some exporters buy Burley for strips when they can get it at Pryor prices.

Senator Clark, of Montana, resigned and was immediately appointed by the Governor.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, MAY 23, 1900. NO. 31

THE Owenton Herald came to hand last week in a six column quorto form, greatly improved in appearance and in contents. Bro. Newlon is to be congratulated on the decided improvement in his paper.

COL. D. G. COLSON, who, a few weeks ago was acquitted of the charge of the murder of Ethelbert Scott, at Frankfort, is said to aspire to the Appellate Judgship in his district. The election is two years hence.

THAT Cuban postal scandal will not down, but will provide another job for a committee of investigation. Never before in the history of this or anyother country was it necessary for an administration to have so many investigations in order to square itself with the public.

RICHARD KNOTT, of the Louisville Post, was addressing the party to which he belongs when he made his speech in the Republican State convention at Louisville, last Thursday. He has been masquerading as a Democrat for some time, but his political preferences have now asserted themselves in a way that renders it impossible for him to longer deceive people.

THE Carrollton News is anxious that the Congressional District Committee meet and take action in regard to nominating the Democratic candidate for Congress. As yet there has been no disposition shown on the part of the committee to hold a meeting, and the trend of things now indicates that the convention or primary election will not be called for earlier than usual.

THE next newspaper shake-up announced for Louisville is the consolidation of the Dispatch and the Commercial. W. C. P. Breckinridge, an eloquent illustration of high morals, it is said will be given the editorship of the combine. The Commercial has been a Republican paper from its birth and with the Dispatch and Breckinridge additions it will seek to extend its acquaintance in Kentucky.

THE recent controversy between Senator Foraker and Rev. Baker in regard to local option legislation attempted in the last Ohio legislature, proves that great men are as prone to indulge in disgusting personalities when engaged in a newspaper controversy as are those who are not supposed to be endowed with the dignity of a United States Senator or a follower of the meek and lowly one.

IN administration circles one scandal follows quickly upon the heels of another. The Havana, Cuba, postoffice scandal is the second one developed in that island in the last few months, and there is no telling how many are yet successfully concealed. Cuba is a prolific field for the dishonest carpet-bagger to cultivate, and the indications are a considerable force of that class is at work there.

DEWEY, who is a candidate for the Democratic Presidential nomination has made a tour of the South, and says that section does not want Bryan as the nominee. The Admiral saw a great many people while in the South, and, no doubt, a great many told him they are "for him," but not enough so expressed themselves to warrant the assertion he has made. He came in contact with a very small per cent. of the southern voters, and his conclusions are the convictions he entertained when he started on his tour.

SENATOR HALE, of Maine, in a speech in the Senate on Cuban affairs, the other day said:

"The whole system down in Cuba is wrong from beginning to end. Responsibility can not be fixed, subordinates are difficult to manage and corruption and scandal are the natural outcome of the recent departure of the United States Government. It is a situation to be deplored, and one that causes Americans to blush."

If this was the only occasion of recent date that caused Americans to blush, it could be overlooked to some extent, but the frequent recurrence of like troubles has become almost monotonous.

QUITE a number of the counties will hold Democratic primary elections this year for nominating candidates to be voted for for county offices in 1901.

THE Boston Transcript suggests to Neely the plea of "benevolent assimilation," when called upon to account for the disappearance of the Cuban postal funds.

THE Louisville convention set down hard on the Hambrick faction the Republican party in Louisville, and read the law to the Hambrickites in a way that they can no longer mistake their party standing, and they may as well fold their tents.

THE opposition to the nomination of W. J. Bryan for the Presidency is making headway very slowly, and so far all the States that have spoken on the subject, have instructed their delegates for him. Bryan is now as good as nominated. McKinley, ditto.

THE only remarkable thing about the platform adopted by the Republican State convention at Louisville, last week, is its intense silence on the Civil Service question. Where were the Boone county delegates? But they seem to have been silent members of the body.

AN exchange says, "Secretary Gage is astonished to find that there is $400,000,000 less gold in this country than he had been estimating all along," and the discovery that the Secretary was so dreadfully wrong in his estimates astonishes the entire country, and proves that he is only a wild guesser.

THE editor of the Omaha, Nebraska, Bee, has gotten himself into trouble with the Supreme Court of his State. He criticised severely the court's action in a case, and has been called by that tribunal to answer for contempt. It would seem that the Bee has been doing some stinging.

IN several counties of the State rabid dogs have appeared recently, and in several instances considerable stock is known to have been bitten. There are a great many people who do not believe there is any such thing as hydrophobia resulting from the bite of dog, but the Verona people are thoroughly convinced there is.

THE ex-Confederates in this part of the State may never have another opportunity to meet and mingle with their comrades in arms, like that which will be afforded them at Louisville now in a few days, and everyone that can possibly do so ought to attend. Every arrangement has been made for their entertainment during the reunion, and they will be made welcome.

THE dispute between Ernst and Comingore as to which is "it" in the Republican party in Kenton county was submitted to the State Convention at Louisville, last week, and Colonel Richard P. Ernst won out in great shape, and Comingore and his faction are now camping on bitter creek, and sharpening their political cutlery for use on the Ernestites at the first opportunity.

THERE were 903 postoffices in 1800; today we have 75,000—that is in America alone. It took a letter sixteen days to go from Philadelphia to Lexington, Ky; twenty-two days to Nashville, Tenn. The cheapest letter postage was eight cents, and to send a letter more than 100 miles cost a shilling. Three million letters and papers were sent in a year; at the present time the postoffice handles about thirty million pieces of mail in a single day. Somewhat of an increase.

BRO. NEEDHAM, of the Williamstown Courier, has been laying awake 'o nights studying how to gain admission to the reunion as an ex-Confederate in good standing, and it has at last occurred to him that he helped Lyon burn a railroad bridge at Elizabethtown, and he will go to Louisville with his grip full of affidavits to that effect, and expects to be received into full fellowship with the old Confeds. and partake of the good things provided for them while in the Falls City.

ALL the testimony as to the conspiracy to kill Goebel and others, comes from Republicans who enjoyed the confidence of those in power in their party.

IT begins to look like the Boers are about whipped. England made better progress with her war in South Africa than this country has made with her Philippine scrap.

THE confessions being made in regard to the stealing of the money belonging to the postal service in Cuba cannot be charged to that $100,000 appropriation made by the last legislature in this State.

THE soldiers who had been guarding the State buildings and the Executive Mansion at Frankfort for several months, were sent home as soon as the Supreme Court was heard from, and Taylor went immediately to Indianapolis.

W. A. GAINES, colored, of Covington, one of the leading negro politicians of the State will attend the Philadelphia national Republican convention as a delegate-at-large from Kentucky. White, of Louisville, the other negro who was a candidate for the position says he was cheated out of it by the convention.

As the result of an old grudge H. S. Devoid, a jeweler, and J. Frank Hutcheson, editor of the Guthrie Graphic, had a shooting scrape in which Devoid shot Hutcheson twice through the lungs and once in the arm. Virgil Marshall, the L. and N. Railroad's agent, was a witness to the affray, He was shot through the bladder. Both men will die.

THE Supreme Court of the United States handed down its decision, Monday, in the Kentucky election case, deciding it had no jurisdiction of the matter in controversy. The contest has now been before nineteen judges, seventeen of whom have sustained the Democratic contention as to what is the law of the case. Of the nineteen judges ten of them are Republicans, and eight of the ten have sustained the contentions of the Democrats.

THE Democratic State Executive and State Central Committees will meet in Frankfort, to-day, to select the place and fix the time for holding the State convention for appointing delegates to the national convention at Kansas City, and to arrange for holding a convention to nominate a candidate for Governor. It seems to be the opinion of the Democrats in this part of the State that only one State convention should be called, and it should nominate a Governor and select the delegates to the national Convention.

THE law in regard to the Canada Thistle is being published in the RECORDER by Golden Grange, of Union, for the period of four weeks in order that land owners may acquaint themselves with the provisions of the law enacted for the destruction of that obnoxious weed, which is a great nuisance to the farmer, and which is becoming more annoying year by year, because of no effort on the part of land owners to exterminate it. The aim of the law is to give those desiring to rid the country of this weed power to have it destroyed, and no doubt there are those in this county who will begin an enforcement of its provisions at an early date if it is necessary.

THE Luther League Convention meets in Cincinnati, this week. The Lutheran denomination, it is claimed, represents more than 50,000,000 people, about 30,000,000 speak German, 2,000,000 Danish, 2,000,000 Norwegian 4,600,000 Swedish, 2,048,000 Finish, 624,972 Livonian, 48,144 the language of Courland, 272,875 Esthonian, 100,000 French, 48,000 Bohemian and 110,000 Hungarian, besides thousands speaking Russian, Polish, Icelandic, English and other tongues. The Lutheran Church in America is composed of four general bodies and 15 independent synods, having 6,670 ministers, 10,908 congregations and 1,607,407 communicants. The various branches have one common confession, the Augsburg, the original Protestant creed.

Editorial Paragraphs.

What the country really wants to know is who is behind Neeley?

For "middle of the road" men the Cincinnati Populists seem to come a good deal into collision with the Democrats and into collusion with the Republicans.

Why doesn't Teddy get out an injunction against the convention forbidding it to nominate him for Vice President? Some Judges will enjoin anybody from doing anything.

Congress should speedily consider the claim of Mr. Roberts of Utah, for his expenses in being turned out of Congress. Roberts has a large and growing family to support.

It now seems that the circulation of the United States is only abont $20 per capita instead of $26. It's lucky that Cleveland was a gold bug and kept this knowledge from the country during the last election.

If the Boer women really take the field, even as policemen or home guards, the British will find it is no joke, Such action will practically double the fighting force of the Boers. And the woman will not use hat pins, either.

Mark Hanna stood to his guns, but the other Republican members of the Senate Committee on Interoceanic canals weakened the other day and permitted the Democrats to report the Nicaraguan bill favorably to the Senate. Now Senator Morgan says that he will force it through at this session. It is to be hoped that he will.

It's quite a joke to read the protest of the Republican papers against the paper trust. That organization isn't any worse and isn't any more favored by the tariff than any other trust, but it hits the Republican papers and consequently they are demanding that Congress shall repeal the duties on paper. It certainly does make a difference whose ox is gored.

The Administration is treating Mr. Rathbone with eminent consideration. Naturally! Rathbone was mixed up in the Dudley "blocks of five" scandal under Harrison and Hanna's agent when the latter was elected to the Senate. Afterwards he fled the State to avoid testifying in the bribery investigation that followed. He was appointed to office as a reward for this, and naturally did what he could for himself.

IT is not best to have too many soldiers on duty on election days.

An exchange says: "Speaking of old-time pacers there is one running out on a farm near Chicago that most horsemen supposed no doubt was dead and buried long ago. The horse I am talking about is old Westmont that paced a mile in 2:10¼ with a running mate back in 1884." Westmont's record with a running mate was 2:01¾, instead of 2:10¼, and this was the fastest of the old time records made with the old wheel, whether trotting or pacing, with or without a running mate. It antedated by many years the famous records of Joe Patchen, John R. Gentry and Star Pointer. It was precisely twelve seconds faster than Westmont's record to "harness," and shows that as an accelerater of speed a running mate may greatly surpass the bike sulky and the kite-shape track. It is a little noteworthy, however, that almost as marked reduction of speed attended a trotting effort with a running mate by H. B. Winship, whose record in harness was 2:20¼, and who trotted with a running mate (also in 1884) in 2:09¾. It would be a little curious now to make the same sort of a trial with a bike wagon drawn by one of the crack trotters of the day and another drawn by one of the best pacers, each accompanied by a running mate. Whether a considerable reduction of speed would result would be purely a matter of experiment. Both the bike wheel and the running mate relieve the performer of weight, and this is the principal office of each as a speed reducer, though doubtless the spirit of rivalry excited by a running mate has more or less effect.

The Old Darling Distillery at Prestonville started up and made its first mash Tuesday. We know of no other city or town in this part of the country where begging is permitted by the city authorites except this town, and we think that some steps should be taken by the city council to put a stop to this nuisance. During the last month or two there have been several great big strapping fellows systematically taking in our business houses and accosting every one upon the streets asking for money and each time these same beggars have tanked up on mean whisky and hung around for several days getting over the spree that some of our charitably disposed citizens were the indirect cause of producing.

Henry Welch, near Hesler, was in town last Saturday and told a wonderful cut worm story, and he is not given to that sort of thing, either. He had not then learned in what way the new brood was to be employed.

Quite an excitement was created by the burning of the home of Mr. Marcus Gentry, of New Liberty, which occurred Friday evening from a lamp in a very peculiar way. A portion of the household effects were saved in a damaged condition. No insurance.

Lord Beauchamp, the governor of New South Wales, while visiting the collieries of New Castle recently, was entertained at a banquet 300 feet under ground. The output of oil in California has increased from 1,215,123 barrels in 1895 to 2,222,122 barrels in 1899. The prospect is that the output for the present year will be much larger than that of 1899. California now ranks fourth among the states in the union in petroleum production. Indications of petroleum are found in all the counties of the state from San Diego to Siskiyou.

Princess Victoria of Wales, granddaughter of Queen Victoria, decided some time ago to learn a trade, and selected bookbinding as the one which best suited her abilities. A curious spectacle is afforded travelers on the Monon railroad at Monon, Ind., the junction of the main line and the Indianapolis division. Two of the through trains, carrying dining cars, meet there, and the dining cars are set out. There is not a chicken within a half mile that does not recognize the whistles of the engines pulling the passenger trains.

A deal has just been closed whereby a St. Louis brewing association purchases about 480,000 pounds of corks. The deal represents $160,000. In two years this company will deliver to the company upwards of 100,000,000 corks. This is said to be one of the biggest deals in corks ever made. These 100,000,000 corks in bulk, weighing 480,000 pounds, would support 240,000 men on top of water were they to be thrown overboard, each with a single life preserver on.

THE FIELD OF LABOR

Timely Discourse of Dr. Talmage on Industrial Troubles.

Sermon Aimed to Bring About More Friendly Relations Between Employer and Employe—Duty of the Former.

At a time when in various districts labor troubles are existing or impending the effort Dr. Talmage makes in this discourse to bring about a better feeling between both sides of this difficult question is well timed; texts, Galatians 5:15: "But if ye bite and devour one another take heed that ye be not consumed one of another," and Philippians 2:4: "Look not every man on his own things, but every man also on the things of others."

About every six months there is a great labor agitation. There are violent questions now in discussion between employers and employes. The present "strikes" will go into the past. Of course, the damage done cannot immediately be repaired. Wages will not be so high as they were. Spasmodically they may be higher, but they will drop lower. Strikes, whether right or wrong, always injure laborers as well as capitalists. You will see this in the starvation of next winter. Boycotting and violence and murder never pay. They are different stages of anarchy. God never blessed murder. The worst use you can put a man to is to kill him. Blow up to-morrow all the country seats on the banks of the Hudson and the Rhine and all the fine houses on Madison square and Beacon street, and all the bricks and timber and stones will just fall back on the bare hands of American and European labor.

The worst enemies of the working classes in the United States and Ireland are their demented coadjutors. Years ago assassination—the assassination of Lord Frederick Cavendish and Mr. Burke, in Phoenix park, Dublin, Ireland, in the attempt to avenge the wrongs of Ireland only turned away from that afflicted people millions of sympathizers. The attempts to blow up the house of commons in London had only this effect—to throw out of employment tens of thousands of innocent people in England. In this country the torch put to the factories that have discharged hands for good or bad reason, obstructions on the rail tracks, in front of midnight express trains because the offenders do not like the president of the company; strikes on shipboard the hour they were going to sail or in printing offices the hour the paper was to go to press or in the mines the day the coal was to be delivered, or on house scaffoldings so the builder fails in keeping his contract—all these are only a hard blow on the head of American labor, and cripple its arms and lame its feet and pierce its heart. Traps sprung suddenly upon employers and violence never took one knot out of the knuckles of toil or put one farthing of wages into a callous palm. Barbarism will never cure the wrongs of civilization. Mark that!

Frederick the Great admired some land near his palace at Potsdam, and he resolved to get it. It was owned by a miller. He offered the miller three times the value of the property. The miller would not take it because it was the old homestead, and he felt about as Naboth felt about his vineyard when Ahad wanted it. Frederick the Great was a rough and terrible man, and he ordered the miller into his presence, and the king, with a stick in his hand—a stick with which he sometimes struck the officers of state—said to the miller: "Now, I have offered you three times the value of that property, and if you won't sell it I'll take it anyhow." The miller said: "Your majesty, you won't." "Yes," said the king, "I will take it." "Then," said the miller, "if your majesty does take it I will sue you in the chancery court." At that threat Frederick the Great yielded his infamous demand. And the most imperious outrage against the working classes will yet cower before the law. Violence and defiance of the law will never accomplish anything; but righteousness and submission to the law will accomplish it.

But gradually the damages done the laborer by the strikes will be repaired, and some important things ought now to be said. The whole tendency of our times, as you have noticed, is to make the chasm between employer and employe wider and wider. In olden times the head man of the factory, the master builder, the capitalist, the head man of the firm, worked side by side with their employes, working sometimes at the same bench, dining at the same table, and there are those here who can remember the time when the clerks of large commercial establishments were accustomed to board with the head men of the firm.

All that is changed, and the tendency is to make the distance between employer and employe wider and wider. The tendency is to make the employe feel that he is wronged by the excess of the capitalist, and to make the capitalist feel: "Now, my laborers are only beasts of burden; I must give them so much money for so much drudgery, just so many pieces of silver for so many heads of sweat." In other words, the bridge of sympathy is broken down at both ends. That feeling was well described by Thomas Carlyle when he said: "Pigsties of 8's. Lolly Tudershot, lineaneerlike, lives to his men: 'Noble pioneers, this 20 miles hath 30,000 thousand we have gained, wherein I mean to dwell and plant my vineyards. The 4,000 is mine, the daily wage was yours. Adieu, noble spanners! Drink by health with this great cash, which I give you over and above.'" Now, what we want is to rebuild that bridge of sympathy, and I put the trowel to one of the abutments to-day, and I preach more especially to employers as such, although what I have to say will be appropriate to both employers and employes.

The behavior of a multitude of laborers toward their employers during the last three months may have induced some employers to neglect the real Christian duties that they owe to those whom they employ. Therefore I want to say to you whom I confront face to face and those to whom these words may come that all shipowners, all capitalists, all commercial firms, all master builders, all housewives, are bound to be interested in the entire welfare of their subordinates. Years ago someone gave three prescriptions for becoming a millionnaire: "First, spend your life in getting and keeping the earnings of other people; secondly, have no anxiety about the worriments, the losses, the disappointments of others; thirdly, do not mind the fact that your vast wealth implies the poverty of a great many people." Now, there is not a man here who would consent to go into life with those three principles to earn a fortune [illegible] sire to do your whole duty to the men and women in your service.

First of all, then, pay as large wages as are reasonable and as your business will afford—not necessarily what others pay, certainly not what your hired help say you must pay, for that is tyranny on the part of labor unbearable. The right of a laborer to tell his employer what he must pay implies the right of an employer to compel a man into a service whether he will or not, and either of those ideas is despicable. When any employer allows a laborer to say what he must do or have his business ruined and the employer submits to it, he does every business man in the United States a wrong and yields to the principle which, carried out, would dissolve society. Look over your affairs and put yourselves in imagination in your laborer's place.

"God bless yous" are well in their place, but they do not buy coal nor pay house rent nor get shoes for the children. At the same time you, the employer, ought to remember through what straits and strains you get the fortune by which you built your store or run the factory. You are to remember that you take all the risks and the employe takes none or scarcely any. You are to remember that there may be reverses in fortune and that some new style of machinery may make your machinery valueless or some new style of tariff set your business back hopelessly and forever. You must take all that into consideration, and then pay what is reasonable.

Do not be too ready to cut down wages. As far as possible, pay all, and pay promptly. There is a great deal of Bible teaching on this subject. Malachi: "I will be a swift witness against all sorcerers and against all adulterers and against those who oppose the hireling in his wages." Leviticus: "Thou shalt not keep the wages of the hireling all night unto the morning." Colossians: "Masters, give unto your servants that which is just and equal, knowing that ye also have a Master in Heaven." So you see it is not a question between you and your employe so much as it is a question between you and God.

Do not say to your employes: "Now, if you don't like this place get another," when you know they cannot get another. As far as possible, once a year visit at their homes your clerks and your workmen. That is the only way you can become acquainted with their wants. You will by such process find out that there is a blind parent or a sick sister being supported. You will find some of your young men in rooms without any fire in winter, and in summer sweltering in illventilated apartments. You will find out how much depends on the wages you pay or withhold.

Moreover, it is your duty as employer, as far as possible, to mold the welfare of the employe. You ought to advise him about investments, about life insurance, about savings banks. You ought to give him the benefit of your experience. There are hundreds and thousands of employers. I am glad to say, who are settling in the very best possible way the destiny of their employes.

Sir Titus Salt had wealth which was beyond computation, and at Saltaire, England, he had a church and a chapel built and supported by himself—the church for those who preferred the Episcopal service, and the chapel for those who preferred the Methodist service. At the opening of one of his factories he gave a great dinner, and there were 3,500 people present, and in his after dinner speech he said to these people gathered: "I cannot look around me and see this vast assemblage of friends and work people without being moved. I feel greatly honored by the presence of the nobleman at my side, and I am especially delighted at the presence of my work people. I hope to draw around me a population that will enjoy the beauties of this neighborhood—a population of well paid, contented, happy operatives. I have given instructions to my architects that nothing is to be spared to render the dwellings of the operatives a pattern to the country, and if my life is spared by Divine Providence I hope to see contentment, satisfaction and happiness around me."

That is Christian character demonstrated. There are others in this country and in other lands on a smaller scale doing their best for their employes. They have not forgotten their own early struggles. They remember how they were discouraged, how hungry they were and how cold and how tired they were, and, though they may be 60 or 70 years of age, they know just how a boy feels between 16 and 21, and how a young man feels between 21 and 25. They have not forgotten it. Those wealthy employers were not originally let down out of heaven with pulleys of silk in a wicker basket satin lined, fanned by cherubic wings. They started in roughest cradle, on whose rocker misfortune put her violent foot and tipped them into sore cold world. Those old men are sympathetic with boys.

But you are not only to be kind to those who are under you—Christianly kind—but you are also to see that your boss workman and your head clerks and your agents and your overseers in stores are kind to those under them. Sometimes a man will get a little brief authority in a store or in a factory, and, while they are very courteous to you, the capitalist, or to you, the head man of the firm, they are most brutal in their treatment of those under them. God only knows what some of the lads suffer in the cellars and in the lofts of some of our great establishments. They have no one to appeal to. The time will come when their arm will be strong and they can defend themselves, but not now. Alas for some of the cashboys and the messenger boys and the boys that sweep the store! Alas for some of them! Now, you capitalist, you the head man of the firm, must look over [illegible] see those all around you investigate all beneath you.

And then I charge you not to put unnecessary temptation in the way of your young men. Do not keep large sums of money lying around unguarded. Know how much money there is in the till. Do not have the account books loosely kept. There are temptations inevitable to young men, and enough of them, without your putting any unnecessary temptations in their way. Men in Wall street, having 30 years of reputation for honesty, have dropped into Sing Sing and perdition, and you must be careful how you try a lad of 15. And if he do wrong do not pounce on him like a hyena. If he proves himself unworthy of your confidence, do not call in the police, but take him home. Tell why you dismissed him to those who will give him another chance. Many a young man has done wrong once who will never do wrong again. Oh, my friends, I think we can afford to give every body another chance when God knows we should all have been in perdition if He had not given us 10,000 chances.

Then, if in moving around your factory or mill or barn or store, you are inexorable with young men God will remember it. Some day the wheel of fortune will turn, and you will be a pauper, and your daughter will go to the workhouse, and your son will die on the scaffold. If in moving among your young men you see one with an ominous pallor of check or you hear him coughing behind the counter, say to him: "Stay home a day or two and rest or go out and breathe the breath of the hills." If his mother die, do not demand that on the day after the funeral he be in the store. Give him at least a week to get over that which he will never get over.

Employers, urge upon your employes, above all, a religious life. So far from that, how is it, young men? Instead of being cheered on the road to Heaven some of you are caricatured, and it is a hard thing for you to keep your Christian integrity in that store or factory where there are so many hostile to religion. Ziethen, a grave general under Frederick the Great, was a Christian. Frederick the Great was a skeptic. One day Ziethen, the venerable, white-haired general, asked to be excused from military duty that he might attend the holy sacrament. He was excused. A few days after Ziethen was dining with the king and with many notables of Prussia when Frederick the Great in a jocose way said: "Well, Ziethen, how did the sacrament of last Friday digest?" The venerable old warrior arose and said: "For your majesty I have risked my life many a time on the battlefield, and for your majesty I would be willing at any time to die; but you do wrong when you insult the Christian religion. You will forgive me if I, your old military servant, cannot bear in silence any insult to my Lord and my Saviour." Frederick the Great leaped to his feet, and he put out his hand, and he said: "Happy Ziethen! Forgive me, forgive me!"

Oh, there are many being scoffed at for their religion, and I thank God there are many men as brave as Ziethen!

One summer in California a gentleman who had just removed from the Sandwich Islands told me this incident: You know that one of the Sandwich Islands is devoted to lepers. People getting sick of the leprosy on the other islands are sent to the isle of lepers. They never come off. They are in different stages of disease, but all who die on that island die of leprosy.

On one of the islands there was a physician who always wore his hand gloved, and it was often discussed why he always had a glove on that hand under all circumstances. One day he came to the authorities, and he withdrew his glove, and he said to the officers of the law: "You see on that hand a spot of the leprosy and that I am doomed to die. I might hide this for a little while and keep away from the isle of lepers; but I am a physician, and I can go on that island and administer to the sufferings of those who are farther gone in the disease, and I should like to go now. It would be selfish in me to stay amid the luxurious surroundings when I might be of so much help to the wretched. Send me to the isle of lepers." They, seeing the spot of leprosy, of course took the man into custody. He bade farewell to his family and friends. It was an agonizing farewell. He could never see them again. He was taken to the isle of the lepers and there wrought among the sick until prostrated by his own death, which at last came. Oh, that was magnificent self denial, magnificent sacrifice, only surpassed by that of Him who exiled Himself from the health of Heaven to this leprous island of a world that He might physician our wounds and weep our griefs and die our deaths, turning the isle of a leprous world into a great, blooming, glorious garden! Whether employer or employe, let us catch that spirit.

FIFTY-SIXTH CONGRESS.

Summary of Leading Events.

Washington, May 14.—Senate—The naval appropriation bill was passed. It provides $4,000,000 for a government armor plant in case armor can not be purchased for $445 per ton. Other bills passed were the "free home" bill; to survey Cleveland harbor, with a view to its further improvement; for the improvement of Snake river in Washington and Idaho; providing for a collector of customs for Hawaii.

House—The general deficiency bill was passed. It carries $3,839,021. The debate was devoted principally to political topics. The military academy appropriation bill was passed and sent to the senate. This is the last of the general appropriation measures, and the house will be ready to adjourn as soon as the senate disposes of those it has not passed and the two houses adjust the differences in conference.

Washington, May 16.—Senate—Nearly 100 bills were passed, 77 of them being private pension bills, among them being one granting $100 a month to the widow of Gen. Lawton. All the other bills were of a local nature.

House—But little was accomplished besides passing the senate bill to incorporate the American National Red Cross. No progress was made with the Alaskan code bill. The conference report on the District of Columbia appropriation bill was returned after extended debate.

Washington, May 17.—Senate—The post office appropriation bill was considered. The committee amendment for the extension of the pneumatic tube service created some debate and was under discussion when the senate adjourned.

House—A special river and harbor bill, carrying $400,000 for surveys and emergency work, was passed, and the remainder of the day was devoted to the Alaskan code bill. Four pages of the 617 pages of the bill were disposed of before adjournment.

Washington, May 18.—Senate—The entire day was devoted to the pneumatic tube system service in the post office appropriation bill. The debate at times was sharp and almost personal. The appropriation was defended by Senators Chandler, Mason, Carter and Wellington, and opposed by Senators Allison, Hale, Tillman, Lodge and Wolcott.

House—A bill was passed to pay confederate soldiers who surrendered at Appomattox for the loss of horses and other personal effects taken from them in violation of Lee's capitulation to Grant, by which officers and men of Lee's army were allowed to retain their baggage sidearms and horses. The bill originally carried $200,000, but the specific sum was stricken out and the appropriation was made indefinite. A number of private claim bills were passed.

Washington, May 19.—Senate—By a vote of 32 to 16 the whole proposition relating to the transportation of mails by the pneumatic tube system was laid on the table. The closing hours of the session were occupied in accepting from the state of Missouri statues of Benton and Blair, located in Statuary hall of the capitol, and from the Grand Army of the Republic the statue of Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, located in the capitol rotunda.

House—On account of above ceremonies in the capitol building, the house held only a short session and transacted no business.

THE AMOUNT IS KNOWN

Defalcation in the Cuban Postal Funds is About $125,000.

A Bill Introduced in Congress for the Extradition of Neely—Another Charge Made Against Him By the Authorities at Havana.

Havana, May 19.—Gen. Wood says the report from Muncie, Ind., that nearly $2,000,000 worth of stamps have been printed there and sent for distribution to Cuban post offices, can be regarded as a canard. There is nothing here to show that any such counterfeit stamps have been sent. It is believed now that the whole story is known and that the amount of the defalcations will fall between $100,000 and $125,000.

W. H. Reeves, deputy auditor of the island, has made a confession and gave up $4,500 which was given to him by Neely to perform certain services the day he left. Gen. Wood and the post office inspectors refuse to disclose the nature of the confession, barely admitting that one has been made, but those who know the situation best say that the confession of Reeves was the only link required in the chain of evidence, although the principal statements he has made will require investigation before they can be acted upon, as it is generally believed that his accusation is of such startling character as to render it unwise to proceed before being absolutely sure of other evidence to corroborate it.

Another charge against Neely is that he has defrauded the customs out of several thousand dollars' worth of duties by importing nominally for post use large quantities of paper which was afterward sold to a printing house in Havana.

The Cubans are now beginning to talk a good deal regarding postal matters, the main idea apparently being that the Americans, having found so many of their countrymen implicated, will not proceed to extremities. The Cubans do not believe that Neely will be extradited. With the confessions of Reeves and Rich supplemented by those of the stamp clerks and by the statements of the Baracoa postmaster, it is considered that the evidence against Neely is complete, especially in view of the assertion of Reeves that the stamps were not destroyed when they were supposed to be. Packages which were apparently stamps were destroyed, but it is now said that these were so many bundles of paper bits.

The newspapers now begin to ask for an investigation of the engineering department. They say that this department has been more extravagantly conducted than the postal department.

Washington, May 19.—As there seems to be no law to extradite Neely, the alleged embezzler of the Cuban postal funds, Chairman Ray, of the judiciary committee, has introduced in the house an amendment to section 5,270 of the statutes, as follows:

"Provided, that whenever any foreign country or territory or any part thereof is under the control or temporary government of the United States, and the United States, by act of congress or through its military power or otherwise, has established or authorized governmental control over the same, in whole or in part, any person who commits an offense and flees to the United States shall be surrendered to the authorities of the United States and returned and surrendered to the authorities in control of such foreign country or territory for trial under the laws recognized and in force in the place where such crime was committed."

With regard to the contention that the enactment of a law to extradite Neely would be retroactive, Judge Ray said:

"As I understand the law, it is merely a question of procedure. Congress has the power to pass a law for the extradition of persons accused of crime in Cuba since Spain surrendered sovereignty, and the United States assumed the government of the island. Such a law would not violate the theory of ex-post facto laws. It would not make a crime of anything not an offense before the passage of the law. It relates simply to procedure."

Mr. Terry, of Arkansas, the ranking minority member of the judiciary committee, said the object of the bill was to make it retroactive. "I think it can be made retroactive," said he. "A violator of the law has no vested right as to the manner in which he shall be caught. A law to extradite an accused man, in my opinion, would not come under the inhibition against ex-post facto laws."

Havana, May 18.—E. P. Thompson, the suspended Havana postmaster who was arrested in connection with the postal frauds, succeeded in having his bail reduced from $10,000 to $1,000, which was deposited in cash by the Danish consul, Herr Culmet, a wealthy merchant.

No Expert Duty on Petroleum.

St. Petersburg, May 19.—A dispatch from Mishni-Novgorod announces that the minister of finance, M. Dewitte, has refused the request of the Volga shipowners and manufacturers to introduce an expert duty on petroleum, with the view of reducing the price for consumption.

Berlin, May 19.—Tolstoi's drama, "The Power of Darkness," has been forbidden performance simultaneously by the censor in Leipsic, Stuttgart and Carlsruhe.

GEN. AGUINALDO.

He Issues a Proclamation Advising Filipinos to Still Strike for Independence and Liberty.

Manila, May 19.—A proclamation, purporting to have been issued by Aguinaldo, and dated May 4, from Pollilo island, one of the Philippine group east of Luzon, is circulating in Manila. It says the commission appointed by President McKinley was appointed without the authorization of congress, and that hence it can not treat officially. It urges the Filipinos not to surrender their arms at the investigation of the commission and on promises which congress may not ratify, and also urges the Filipinos to enthusiastically welcome the commission when it arrives in the towns and provinces, asking boldly for the form of government they most desire, as the Americans permit freedom of speech. The proclamation closes with asking the Filipinos to still strive for liberty and independence, and again warns the commission against deception.

In the Catarma fight, island of Samar, May 4, about 700 of the enemy attacked the men of the 43d Infantry. The Americans killed 209 of the rebels by actual count. Only three Americans were wounded.

Maj. John C. Gilmore and 100 men of the 43d regiment were ambushed May 6 near Pambugan, Samar. Seventy-five of the enemy were killed, and there were no American casualties.

The transport Lennox has returned here after landing four troops of the 11th cavalry to reinforce Col. J. Franklin Bell. Two troops, Maj. Hugh T. Slue commanding, were landed at Legaspi and proceeded across the country to strengthen the garrison at Liagao. They found numerous entrenchments manned by insurgents between the towns, and were two days on their way, skirmishing, dismounted constantly. Their only loss was three horses. The officers report that they killed 40 insurgents, but the natives declare 80 were killed.

A DOUBLE EXECUTION.

Walter Gordon and Beauty Ingram, Colored, Hanged at Eutaw Ala., for Murder.

Birmingham, Ala., May 19.—Walter Gordon and Beauty Ingram, colored, were hanged at Eutaw Friday for the murder of Tom Buntin, a clerk in a store at Clinton, who was murdered one night about a month ago and the place robbed. The negroes confessed to felling Buntin with a club and then cutting his throat. Both murderers were under twenty years of age. Their arrest followed the day after the crime, and their conviction took place a week later.

At Talladega, Friday, Elbert Curry, a young negro, was hanged for the murder of Pink Dobbins. The crime occurred in the town of Talladega two months ago. Dobbins was a farmer, and had come to town to sell produce. The motive was robbery. Curry narrowly escaped lynching at the time.

VACCINATION BY FORCE.

Men and Women at Union, S. C., Who Objected Were Sent to Jail by the Magistrate.

Columbia, S. C., May 19.—The state board of health is finding bitter opposition to vaccination in most of the cotton factories. A riot was almost precipitated in Union. Gov. McSweeney has issued police notice to all magistrates that they would be removed if they failed to issue warrants on the affidavits of health officers, and have persons charged with refusing vaccination arrested. Magistrates of Union, therefore, forcibly arrested men and women and took them to jail. There they were vaccinated. This has aroused a storm of protest.

Corn Kitchen Opened.

Paris, May 19.—United States Embassador Gen. Horace Porter and United States Commissioner Gen. Ferdinand W. Peck participated Friday in the exercise of turning over the agricultural exhibit, known as the American Corn Kitchen, for demonstrating the use of corn as food and for the purpose of increasing exports to the exposition authorities. The kitchen is the work of Col. Clark E. Carr, of Illinois.

Once Famous Mine Sold.

San Francisco, May 19.—Negotiations for the sale of the Rawhide mine, the once famous gold producer of Tuolumne county, to an English syndicate represented by Lafayette DeFrees, have been practically completed. The price named is $850,000. Three or four years ago the Rawhide was estimated to be worth $1,500,000, almost double the sum now offered.

RIOTING IN ST. LOUIS.

Strikers Quickly Dispersed by the Police When Called Upon.

No Steps Taken Looking Toward Another Conference, and the Strike Is as Far From Settlement as Ever.

St. Louis, May 20.—The street railway strike situation Saturday was without material change so far as the number of cars in operation is concerned. The St. Louis Transit Co. Saturday had in operation on 14 of the 22 lines composing its system about 150 cars. Before the strike the Transit Co. had 800 cars in operation. It is declared by street car officials that lack of protection of the street car lines is one cause for this condition, and another cause assigned is that the company has not enough men with which to operate more.

Because they fear a collision with the participants in the parade Saturday afternoon, the management of the St. Louis Transit Co. decided not to run any more cars on its lines after 12:30 o'clock Saturday. It is intimated that this order may extend over Sunday also.

St. Louis, May 20.—The house of delegates passed the bill to revoke the franchises of the various street railway companies in St. Louis because they failed to run their cars in compliance with the terms of the city ordinances.

St. Louis, May 21.—Cars were run Sunday on five of the lines of the St. Louis Transit Co. without any interference from the strikers or their friends. The lines which were operated were the Park, Laclede, Delmar, Page and Spaulding avenues. No attempt was made to run the cars on schedule time. They were run out of the barns down to one end of the line and back again. Sometimes they made the round trip in about three-fourths of the usual time. Sometimes it took them nearly twice as long. The officials of the company paid no attention to that, however. Every car that went out and came back unmarked was considered the net proceeds of a notable achievement, and its crew received greetings like those extended to an only son on his return from a long and weary warfare. There was no outbreak of any kind during the day. Two riot calls were sent in to the police in the afternoon, but the riots were far from being the real thing.

The first disturbance was begun by a balky horse who went on an individual strike at the corner of 18th and Chestnut streets. A large crowd gathered to watch the progress of the argument between the animal and his driver, and when the horse finally conceded the point at issue and passed on, 2,000 people were standing around the corner utterly at a loss for amusement. As a substitute for the horse the crowd turned its attention to the crews of the Laclede avenue cars, which were passing every few minutes. They showered the crews with epithets and deluged them with advice. A riot call was sent to police headquarters, and Chief of Police Campbell, taking 20 men, hurried to the spot, told everybody to "move on," saw that they did "move on," and riot No. 1 was over before it actually started.

The second disturbance occurred a few minutes later on Washington avenue, between 12th and 15th streets. A crowd of about 1,500 people lined both sides of the street for two squares and began to jeer and hoot the train crews. The few policemen on duty were utterly unable to handle the crowd, and unquestionably the crowd would have been moved to things more energetic than words if another riot call had not been turned in. Sergt. Bowen, at the head of a dozen men, came quickly to the spot, and within ten minutes he had cleared the street and restored quiet.

The most serious riot of the day took place late in the evening at the intersection of Tenth street and Washington avenue, in the course of which W. H. Steinbiss, secretary of the National Building Trades council, was placed under arrest, but released later. A switch had been thrown at the street intersection, and when a Bellefountain car loaded with passengers came along it was thrown on a dead wire and off the track as well. When the train crew started to set things to rights they were greeted with showers of stones and compelled to abandon the work until a patrol wagon loaded with police officers appeared on the ground in response to a riot call. They quickly forced the crowd to disperse, making several arrests while so doing.

President Mahan, of the Street Car Men's association, said that no steps had been taken looking to a conference between the men and the company. He was positive the men would win in the end. The Transit Co. claims to have a full complement of men, but this is denied by their own employes.

Atlanta, Ga., May 21.—The commissioners in attendance upon the general assembly of the Southern Presbyterian church occupied pulpits in the churches of the different denominations Sunday, not only in Atlanta, but in several near-by towns.

Nashville, Tenn., May 20.—Insurance Agent A. J. Shelley was arrested, charged with false pretenses. The claim is that he sent in bogus policies on which the usual commissions were paid.

GRANT STATUE UNVEILED.

It Was Presented to the Nation by the Grand Army of the Republic—Distinguished Persons Present.

Washington, May 20.—The statue of Gen. Grant, presented by the Grand Army of the Republic, to the nation, was unveiled in the great rotunda of the capitol Saturday, and elaborate ceremonies commemorative of the event were held in the hall of representatives in the presence of a vast concourse of people, who included the widow, daughter and descendants of the hero of Appomattox, hundreds of his comrades in arms, the officers and committee of the G. A. R., and many persons distinguished in military, political and social circles. The statue of the pre-eminent of the union forces in the civil war represents the contributions of thousands of his comrades of the G. A. R., none of whom was allowed to subscribe more than 15 cents, and is the result of a movement started shortly after Gen. Grant's death at Mt. McGregor, in July, 1885.

It is the work of Franklin Simmons, an American sculptor. Of marble of heroic size, it stands on a granite pedestal emblazoned with a bronze seal of the G. A. R., representing the grim old hero in the full uniform of a general equipped for the field, with top boots and gauntlets, his cloak over his left arm, and his right hand resting on the hilt of his sword. The counterfeits of statesmen, soldiers and pioneers in marble and bronze adorn the old house of representatives chamber of the capitol, now statuary hall, but these are gifts of the individual states. Grant's statue was unveiled in the rotunda as befitted the statue of one whose valiant service was for the whole nation. There it will remain with the statues of Jefferson, Hamilton and Lincoln, which also are in the rotunda, an example and an inspiration to future generations.

The hero of Appomattox stands near the western entrance, flanked on either side by the famous paintings of the "Surrender of Cornwallis" and the "Surrender of Burgoine."

The unveiling took place shortly before noon in the presence of Mrs. Grant, Mrs. Satoris, Miss Satoris, the officers of the G. A. R., Speaker Henderson and Senator Frye, president pro tem of the senate.

The fact of the unveiling was kept secret, and only a few outsiders witnessed it. There were no ceremonies. Miss Satoris, attired in white, drew the lanyard that uncovered the statue. Mrs. Grant inspected it critically and smiled her approval. The party then repaired to the hall of the house, where the ceremonies occurred.

Washington, May 20.—At 2:30 p. m. Saturday the ceremony accepting the statues of Benton and Blair from Missouri began, the other business of the senate being laid aside.

UNION MEN IN JAIL.

The Word "Scab" Must Not Be Used Declares Judge Williams, of the Federal Court.

Little Rock, Ark., May 20.—In the United States district court here John A. Williams imposed a jail sentence of six months upon Guy Miller and Alden Hayes for contempt of court and interfering with the nonunion motormen who are employes of the court's receiver, now operating the street car system. It was contended by the defense that the motorman and conductor were not on duty at the time, but the court held that it made no difference, and that the receiver's employes, as such, are entitled to the protection of the court at all times. The court further declares that the term "scab," as applied to non-union employes who are under the court's protection was in itself very near contempt, and must be stopped.

Porto Rico's Secretary of State.

Washington, May 23.—Wm. H. Hunt, of Montana, has been selected to be secretary of state for the island of Porto Rico. Mr. Hunt was recently appointed agent for the United States government before the Chilean claims commission, a position which he vacates to accept this last appointment. He is a son of the late Secretary Hunt and a lawyer of high standing in his own state.

Explosion of Firedamp.

Clifton, W. Va., May 20.—There was a frightful explosion of firedamp at the Camden-Spillman mines here, by which Charles Varian was so badly injured that he died, and several others received slight injuries, painful, but not fatal. The tipple and a lot of mine cars at the entrance were demolished and sent pell-mell into a field.

At Our Doors.

San Francisco, May 20.—The board of health has adopted a resolution declaring that bubonic plague exists in San Francisco. The health authorities say that while there are no living cases here, there have been six deaths during the past three months, and they have decided to take precautions against the development and spread of the disease.

BOERS SEEKING TERMS

Gen. Dewet Will Surrender Conditionally With His Commando.

Gen. Brabant Is Reported to Have Captured 1,500 Boers at Clocolan —The Boer Forces at Mafeking Were Captured.

London, May 20.—The whole British empire has been carried off its feet by the news of the relief of Mafeking. Even the demonstrations on Ladysmith day pale before the spontaneous transports of delirium recorded in cablegrams from all parts of the world where floats the union jack. Overstrained feelings have found vent in an expression of heartfelt enthusiasm, which, starting from the various news centers, spread like prairie fire through the United Kingdom and the colonies, and converted every community into aggregations of shouting, cheering, singing, half-frantic, but for the most part orderly, humanity.

London, May 21.—Displayed in the most conspicuous style in the Daily Express is the dominant war news of the morning: "We have the best reason for stating that in the last 24 hours a telegram has been received at the foreign office addressed personally to the prime minister from President Kruger, proposing terms of peace. The exact terms of the message can not be stated, but we believe it is couched in an exceedingly humble strain.

"It is inconceivable, of course, that Lord Salisbury can have sent any reply except the one that stands ready on the lip of every Briton—unconditional surrender."

Details of the relief of Mafeking are still wanting, the British military authorities being without dispatches. Lord Roberts wires that he knows of the relief only through a press agency. Lord Lansdowne, however, announces that the war office expects direct news soon.

The situation in the field has changed but little since Friday. Lord Roberts' troops are in fine form and abundantly supplied. Indications seem to point to an early movement. His cavalry, riding over several hundred square miles in a semi-circle beyond Kroonstad, have received the submission of hundreds of Free Staters.

It now appears that the Dewet who offered to surrender with 1,000 men was not the well-known Gen. Dewet, but Commandant Dewet. He stipulated that the men should be allowed to return to their farms. Lord Roberts replied that the surrender must be unconditional.

Gen. Butler is in front of Laing's Nek, hesitating to attack positions of enormous natural strength. The reports that the Boers have blown up portions of the tunnel are confirmed. Although everywhere else they are reported as retiring, outfronted, they have effected their retreats without losing their convoys or guns or prisoners to any extent. Were they disorganized they would strew the line of retreat with booty.

Gen. Colville's base is Winburg.

The Botha who was captured the other day was Philip Botha. Those surrendering are solemnly warned that if they break the oath of neutrality their houses will be burned and their farms confiscated. Such as do, yield only for protection.

The Daily Telegraph is advised that a plot has been discovered at Pretoria to depose President Kruger and to surrender the Transvaal during the present month. Progressive Dutchmen and members of the judiciary are asserted to have been parties to the movement.

A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Lorenzo Marques, dated Sunday, says: "On Thursday the entire Boer force around Mafeking, including the guns, was captured by the British."

A dispatch to the Daily Telegraph from Mcgnatling's Nek, dated May 16, says: "Gen. Brabant is reported to have captured 1,500 Boers at Cocolan."

Robbed the Strong Box.

Kansas City, Mo., May 21.—A lone highwayman entered the corridor of the Coates hotel, one of the leading hostelries here at 11:30 o'clock last night, and, forcing the strong box of the cigar stand, escaped. The box contained diamonds valued at $1,200, $250 in gold, currency and silver, and checks to the amount of $100. He held the night clerk and another employe of the hotel off at the point of a revolver and escaped on a horse that he had tied to the curbing.

Four Men Hurt in a Wreck.

Nashville, Tenn., May 20.—A bad wreck occurred near Gordonville, when a fast passenger train on the Nashville & Knoxville collided with a construction train on Lick's trestle. Four men were seriously injured. Both engines were demolished and the tender of the passenger engine and the mail and express cars telescoped. A number of passengers sustained injuries not of a serious character.

Four Persons Badly Hurt.

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 21.—A carriage containing four persons was struck by a trolley car in East Pittsburgh, and all four were badly hurt, Miss Mamie Best probably fatally. The others—Miss Jean Watkins, Edward McGinnis and Edward Woods—were badly bruised and cut.

McKinley Will Be There.

Canton, O., May 21.—President McKinley has accepted the invitation to be in Canton on July 4, when a Spanish trophy cannon is to be mounted and a patriotic demonstration held.

FIVE HUNDRED KILLED.

A Desperate Battle Fought in Colombia Just Outside of the City of Carthagena.

Kingston, Jamaica, May 21.—Advices from Colombia by the Royal Mail steamer Trent say the rebels are operating around Panama, which is full of troops, some of whom are quartered in the churches.

An engagement took place May 16 north of Panama, the rebels being driven off. Carthagena is still in possession of the government. The Trent was to have conveyed a body of troops to Carthagena, but the rebels destroyed the bridges on the night of May 13, thus preventing the troops arriving for embarkation.

On the same night a desperate engagement took place outside of Carthagena, in which the government troops were victorious. As many as 500 rebels are said to have been killed in the fighting.

The country is in a frightful state, and paper dollars bring only 5 cents each.

SHOT TWO OF THEM.

A Woman Uses a Revolver to Defend Herself From Three Brutal Coal Miners.

Memphis, Tenn., May 21.—Three men—Edward Whittington, Dennis Brogan and Thomas Coleman—said to be coal miners from West Virginia, entered the lunch house of T. F. McKenna, at the corner of Adams and Front streets, and became involved in a quarrel with the porter. McKenna and his wife interfered, and Mrs. McKenna was badly beaten with a club in the hands of Whittington.

She ran behind a counter and, procuring a revolver, shot Whittington through the back of his neck, killing him instantly. Brogan then advanced menacingly toward her, and received a bullet in the face, which the physicians say will prove fatal. Coleman escaped without injury.

THE FEUD AT AN END.

Rev. John C. Rexrod, One of the Principals, Agrees to Sell His Land and Leave County.

Weston, W. Va., May 20.—The Hatfield-McCoy feud, known in this county as the Rexrod-Simons and Taft feud, terminated by Rev. John C. Rexrod, the chief factor in the imbroglio, selling his land and agreeing to leave the county. The origin of this trouble dates back many years, during which time many desperate conflicts have occurred. The last attempt was made when Alex. Rexrod, son of Rev. John Rexrod, it is charged, fired upon his grandfather, Henry Rexrod, and S. R. Taft, one of the insurgents, with a Winchester. One of the balls grazed Taft's neck, the other two shots going wild. A warrant for young Rexrod was issued, but he had fled.

AMERICANS AMBUSHED.

Battle With the Insurgents Near Aquasan in the Northern Part of Mindanao.

Manila, May 21.—Fiver hundred insurgents, half of whom were armed with rifles, ambushed 80 scouts of the 40th volunteer infantry in the hills near Aquasan, in the northern part of Mindanao.

The Americans routed the natives, killing 51.

The American casualties were two killed and three wounded.

To Be Received as Individuals.

Washington, May 20.—At the cabinet meeting the question of the reception of the Boer envoys was discussed. It is understood that they probably will be presented to the president by the secretary of state. They will be received with every courtesy, but only as private citizens and not in any diplomatic capacity whatever.

Dagger in Her Breast.

Boston, May 21.—Miss Butler, 23 years old and said to have been married, was found dead in bed at the residence of Mrs. A. E. Wright in Roxbury early Sunday morning with a dagger in her breast, and Edwin T. Wright, son of Mrs. Wright, is under arrest on suspicion of having murdered her. There is little evidence against him, however.

Two Men Sentenced to Death.

Wheeling, W. Va., May 20.—John Mooney and Frank Friday, convicted of the murder, March 1, of James Hervey, were denied a new trial. They were sentenced to be hanged on Friday, July 13. The prisoners took the sentence with extreme nonchalance, Mooney chewing tobacco and spitting vigorously.

To Prevent Plague Spreading.

Chicago, May 20.—Assistant Surgeon A. S. Lloyd, of the United States Marine hospital here, has been ordered to San Francisco to assist in the work of preventing the spread of the bubonic plague. Assistant Surgeon Amesse, of Detroit, it was given out here Saturday, has left Detroit for Honolulu on a similar mission.

Neighborhood News.

Union.

Ask B. L. Norman why he ate so much.

In some tobacco beds plants are large enough to set.

Miss Lizzie Aylor was seriously ill, last week, with bronchitis.

The road workers have been hustling the past week in earnest.

The blackberry crop promises to be a large one, if reports be correct.

Fee Norman has been very sick for several days, but is much better.

Lee Busby is having his residence decorated with a couple coats of paint.

Mrs. James Riley was taken sudden and dangerously ill, Wednesday night.

Rev. Rachal preached Sunday morning and evening at the Presbyterian church.

We suggest the idea that sheep dip will kill potato bugs. It's cheap and harmless.

Golden Grange has purchased between 50 and 75 volumes as a foundation for a library.

Col. Elsy Garrison has promised us a ride in that new, rubber-tired buggy he is to get right soon.

James A. Huey has added 5 Herford heifers to his herd. They came from Kansas City, and are beauties.

Miss Marietta Riley was compelled to dismiss her school at Grange Hall on account of an aggravated case of sore eyes that attacked her some ten days ago.

J. W. Williams, Burkett Bros. and Hedge Bros., have been hauling hay on an extensive scale, the past month or so to Covington, and prices have been good.

J. H. Aylor sold one fleece of wool, this year, that weighed 21 pounds, and a few years ago he sold one that tipped the scales at 32 pounds. He has sheep that cost him $100 per head.

Uncle William Tanner says that the first cooking stove brought into Boone county was purchased by Mrs. Abraham Stansifer, and the first buggy, by Elder Morris Lassing, father of Dr. and L. W. Lassing.

Messrs. Ben Surface and Spencer Smith have bought a number of farmers' wool who prefer to stick to them, even if they could not pay 25c. Talk about confidence, but this is the real article and no mistake.

Uncle Ras Stephens says, "Mrs. Stephens has bought him a swing to rest in these hot summer days for fear he will work himself to death plowing that large corn crop he has planted"—four and one-half acres.

J. W. Kennedy was in Frankfort, last week, and viewed the situation. The soldiers were there and flourished their swords and bayonets when he wanted to enter the capital grounds but he went on in just the same.

We are pleased to hear that our friend, Lee Cleek, will take the census in this and Beaver precincts. In this case "the workman is worthy of his hire" for Lee is a worthy good fellow and deserves lots of pie.

Mr. Doyle, of Louisville, received a large quantity of wool here, Thursday, at 25 cents per pound. Messrs. Jas. L. Huey and Thomas Garrison delivered the largest crops, and J. W. Taliaferro was entitled to a prize for best handled crop.

Miss Nannie Burkett has sold millinery to ladies in Erlanger, Burlington, Florence and in fact to ladies from most all over the county this spring, and it certainly is quite a compliment to her taste and ability for her designing, making hats and bonnets.

They do say cutworms are abundant and industriously working to destroy all the corn and potatoes in sight. Corn is coming up badly and needs all the chances, while potatoes would do all right if let alone—so cutworms and potato bugs (which Mr. John L. Rouse says are very numerous) could be dispensed with very well.

Supt. Voshell employed two expert shearers to clip his crop (21 pounds) of wool, and one half of it had to be taken from a large buck of the battering ram variety. The two experts went at the job with great courage and much determination to do or to die, and in a few minutes they discovered that they had to do or die sure enough, and commenced climbing trees, fences, &c. The professor now proposes to reduce his flock by selling ½ to J. W. Conner.

Invitations worded as follows were received by many in this neighborhood last week;

Miss Nannie D. Bristow and Miss Lillian Corbin,
at Home,
Saturday, May, Nineteen Hundred,
From Four to Seven
To meet Mrs. A. S. Rachal
At Miss Bristow's.

A delightful time was anticipated by the recipients of the above, but never were kings more royally entertained. The contrast between the evening (it being dark and gloomy) and the interior of the home, tended to enhance the latter's loveliness. If some fairy had touched each and everything with her magic wand it couldn't have been more dainty and beautiful. Cut flowers and potted plants, handsome matrons and lovely girls greeted you at every side. Misses Ella Norman, Stella Myers and Jean Chambers served the refreshments, and they were most delightful, consisting of sherbet, cake and marsh-mallows. The evening will be long remembered by those present as a very happy, social success. Those present were Mesdames A. S. Rachal, Ann Bristow, Lida Conner, H. C. Lassing, Robert Chambers, W. H. Davis, J. A. Huey, B. L. Cleek, J. W. Taliferro, N. S. Bristow, Cora Bristow, Julius Bristow, W. M. Rachal, M. J. Crouch, John Garrison, Joseph Myers, Sam C. Hick; Misses Mary Norman, Hattie Gatson, Mary Hedges, Lou Williams, Jean Chambers, Ella Norman, Stella Myers, Marretta Riley, Nannie D. Bristow, Lillian Corbin.

Walton.

The examination of the pupils of the Walton Academy resulted as follows: Myrtle Jones won the spelling contest; Mary Jones, Mattie Hudson, Hattie Taylor and Charles Chambers won the contest for head-marks; Zella Mayhugh won in the second class. In arithmetic, Mary Jones received 100; Chas. Chambers, Joseph Huey and Harvey Diers each received 95.5; Lillie Hammond, Gertrude Curley, Louise Greer, Katie Bentz, John DeJarnette, Queenie Tillman, Ralph Edwards and Hattie Taylor won high marks for faithful work. The palm was conceded to "B" arithmetic class—Zella Mayhugh, Emma Ambrose, Gladys Wilson, Clifton Botts, Leslie Jones, Dannie Blackburn, and Richard Lavin all distinguished themselves. In Literature and Geology Blanche Dyas received the highest honors. The Rhetoric class passed the best of oral examinations.

The declamatory contest which took place at the Christian church on the evening of the 17th was an ovation to Mrs. Myers The church was densely packed long before the time set for the exercises to commence. It was beautifully decorated with the fresh, green leaves and lovely flowers of May under the superintendence of Miss Pearl Byrd and two of her "Art Class"—Madge Holder and Lydia Taylor, ably assisted by Miss Ada Lermond. The arch of locust bloom diffusing its rich, fragrant perfume throughout the building, was only in keeping with the intellectual combat which followed. The first prize contest was won by Boyd Hudson over Miss Gertrude Curley. Some of the most competent Judges of elocution in our community thought Miss Curley should have had the award as she delivered her piece as an impersonator and had chosen one which demanded the very highest style of tragic art; and they claim that she met all the requisitions, but her voice gave out owing to the fact that she had completely lost her own identity in the part she represented. Boyd Hudson did remarkably well and delivered his piece most excellently, and it is not a detraction from him that Miss Curley's admirers make their claims. It only shows that his effort had a wonderful amount of merit. Miss Queenie Tillman gained the prize in the second class and Cleveland Hedges in the third

Little Mary Dyas brought down the house, as she always does, with her song. This little lady is a great favorite in Walton and her efforts never fail to please. One of our lady dress makers was so greatly delighted with the entertainment that her husband inquired why she took such an interest in it. "Why shouldn't I when I made five of the dresses for the performers and they are acknowledged to be the handsomest in the house?" she replied.

Edward Stamler has completed the piano and specifications for the Craven school house. He has also the contract to build the church at Bank Lick, and a dwelling for M. Conner at Richwood.

Mrs. H. C. Diers sold her crop of spring chickens at 20 cents per pound. As they averaged 2 pounds she seems to have been paid for her trouble in raising them.

Uncle Ben S Johnson, the oldest native born resident of Walton district, has been very low with the grippe and is not expected to live many days.

Hoover, last Wednesday afternoon, at the Baptist church in the presence of a large number of the relatives and friends of the bride. The groom is a popular young man at his home, while the bride is a general favorite in this community. She is the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Rogers. The shadows of sadness that have recently spread over the countenance of our usually happy M. D. in this vicinity, are begiuuing to vanish as June approaches, for then you remember one of our pleasant teachers, who has been absent attending Normal school, will return therebouts. But, alas! the sadness scarcely leaves the countenance of our worthy M. D., than it attacks that of our genial Postmaster, and one of our lovely young ladies anticipates going to Saline county, Mo., in the near future to be absent several months and he fears longer.

Sam Mannin and wife, of near Bright, Indiana, stopped over a few days, last week, with Enoch Mannin. They havegone on an extended visit among friends in the eastern part of the State, and expect to be gone all summer. They had their own conveyance and Sam said he expected to hunt and fish along the way and have a good time generally.

The other day a lot of us bee men were discussing what a harvest the bees were having gathering black locust honey, when Lige Tanner spoke up and said that his bives were full now, and the way he came to discover it he was passing around his smoke house, when he noticed a puddle of what he took to be oil that had leaked out of a barrel in the house. On a closer examination he found it to be honey that was running over the top of a hive near by and wasting.

Noticing an article in your valuable paper, last week, where Supt. Voshell was cultivating a new variety of corn, calls to mind the fact that our Dick Tanner is also cultivating a novelty in corn. His, however, is pop corn. He procured the seed somewhere in Central America, last winter, and his description of it is that while growing it resembles sorghum, the ear or ears of which there are many grow in clusters or bunches on the tassels; while maturing a pink husk forms around each bunch, and when fully matured the bunch has rolled up, the sun has popped it, and it hangs in balls ready for use.

Some one informed Jacob Crigler that an application of Hellebore on his currant and gooseberry bushes would destroy the worms, that it seems were especially created to destroy them. The result of his experience was he purchased a nickles worth of the preparation and applied it to 20 bushes—in order to see whether it would kill them he placed a board 2 feet long by 1 foot wide under one side of a bush, in about 20 minutes he counted 224 dead worms on the board; now each bush has four sides and 20 bushes would have 80 sides, and, counting 224 to the side would make the grand total number 17,920 dead worms for a nickle.

Wednesday afternoon as J. J. Lillard and John Hogan were coming over to town from Conner & Hogan's tobacco house, the animal attached to the buggy became frightened near the corner at W. E. Vesel's, and began running and kicking. The men held to the lines and turned the mare south on Union street at Attorney Hughes' office, and at the southeast corner of the jail yard she collided with the chain between the hitching posts, and after some gymnastic performance the shafts were broken from the buggy and she was released. Hogan was thrown or pulled from the buggy but he held to the lines until assistance arrived. He was somewhat brulsed by his fall. Mr. Lillard remained in the buggy from which the dashboard had been kicked, and was fortunate in receiving but one slight bruise, that near the elbow of one arm, and was made by the mare's foot while she was kicking. The harness was badly broken, and buggy shafts reduced to kindling. It is not known what caused the mare to kick, as she was considered very gentle. It was a rough ride and a narrow escape for the Messrs. Lillard and Hogan.

THE PAN-AMERICAN EXPOSITION of the YEAR 1901

Buffalo Is Arranging for a Magnificent Display of the Products of the Three Americas for Next Year—Elaborate Floral, Horticultural and Electrical Features

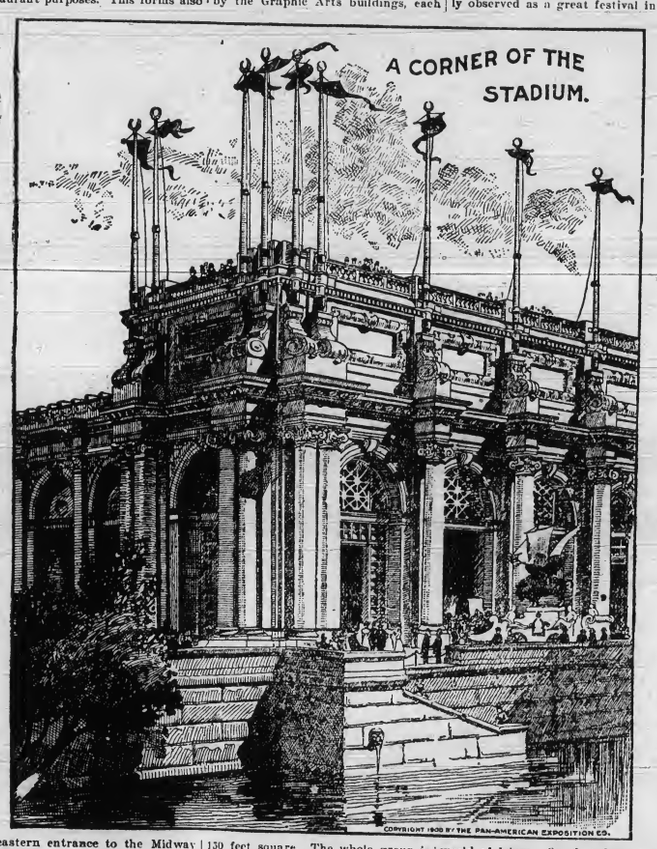
THE BEAUTIFUL PLAZA.

Around It Will Center Much of the Exposition.

Standing at the great electric tower and looking to the north, the visitor will have before him the Plaza or square, a beautiful open space 350 by 800 feet. On the opposite, or north, side of the Plaza, will be the Propylaea or monumental entrances, connected by a curved colonnade 280 feet long. These form an architectural screen of exceptional beauty, shutting out the steam and trolley railway station at the northern end of the exposition grounds.

A large building at the left, 341 feet long and 52 feet wide, with towers 164 feet high, will be used for restaurant purposes. This forms also the eastern entrance to the Midway or pleasure ground, where the visitor may find a collection of novel entertainments that will astonish the most cosmopolitan traveler.

Directly across the Plaza from the restaurant building is a companion structure of the same dimensions, forming the entrance to the Stadium.



THE PLAZA.

vast court in the shape of an inverted letter T, the horizontal, or transverse court, lying east and west. At the extreme west end of this horizontal are the Horticultural, Graphic Arts and Forestry and Mines buildings. The Horticultural building, 220 feet square, in flanked on the south by the Forestry and Mines, and on the north by the Graphic Arts buildings, each 130 feet square. The whole group is connected with arcades, forming a semi-circular court, in which will stand the "Fountain of the Seasons."

The Horticultural building will have a central lantern 240 feet high at the intersection of the four arms of a Greek cross, which includes in its angles four small domes. Deeply recessed arched entrances are features of each facade.

The Graphic Arts and Forestry and Mines buildings are companion structures of the same size and style, having four corner towers. On the east facades are vaulted loggias of three arches each, which form the main entrances. Colored bas reliefs will ornament the broad white walls, while the pilasters of the facades and arcades will be decorated with arabesques of twining vines, fruit, flowers, birds and children. The colored decorations will be confined chiefly to the vaulted ceilings of the loggias.

Two colored compositions will adorn the space above the eastern entrance of the Horticultural building. These will represent Ceres, goddess of the harvest, bearing in her arms a sheaf of golden wheat. Three lions, led by Flora and Primavera, will draw her chariot.

Mohammedan New Year.

The Mohammedan New Year, which is due on Tuesday, May 1, is generally observed as a great festival in the world of Islam. On that day, says a London exchange, the Lascars and other Moslem sailors on the various Indian steamships in the London docks organize a procession. They receive special pay for the day, deck themselves out in the gaudiest of oriental raiment and march round the quays in solemn procession, bearing delicately constructed models of shrines.

ISSUES ARE CRYSTALLIZING.

Discussion Among Republicans Beckons Democrats on to Victory.

Great strides have been made during the past week towards eliminating the side shoots of national political issues and the reduction of the latter to the three clear, simple issues so often and so positively declared by Mr. Bryan to be the absorbing issues for the coming presidential campaign.

The republicans themselves, in their recent state conventions, have made the questions of money, trusts and imperialism the dominant issues. Upon money and imperialism they have proudly as well as defiantly ratified and approved all of the uncertain, unconstitutional and un-American acts of Mr. McKinley's administration and of his subservient congress.

The issue of trusts is glossed over with so thin a veneering of disinclination to solve the problem that nobody can possibly be deceived, as happened [illegible] when the republican party accepted the doctrine of bimetallism and when in power shifted to the absolute gold standard.

Senator Hanna, the chief manager of the republican machine, in giving out his first authoritative statement of the campaign to the Cleveland Leader of the 30th ult., is not certain that the victory will rest with the republican party, his opinion being predicated upon a conditional "if." He says: "The price of the victory will be much harder, and more constant effort be required from the time the campaign opens until election day. The republicans should make the same kind of a fight that they did in 1896. * * * Their application and attention to the details of the campaign must be steady and unceasing. * * * There is no way of figuring how the republicans can lose in the coming contest if they put their shoulders to the wheel and are not imbued with a spirit of overconfidence in the success of the ticket."

Senator Jones, however, and other leaders of the democratic party are of the opinion that the republican party has furnished an abundance of campaign material which will operate against its success. Kentucky, this year, is considered doubtful by Mr. Hanna, and Maryland creates merely a faint hope of republican success in the mind of Mr. Hanna.

It would be more logical and certainly more in accordance with the indications to believe that Kansas, South Dakota and Washington will remain in the democratic column than to believe Mr. Hanna's prediction that they will go republican; and, further, the indications are still stronger that Idaho and Montana will fall into the democratic ranks, regardless of the opinion of Senators Shoup and Carter.

It is certain, from all of the indications, that the republican party is losing instead of gaining ground, and that the democracy is gaining in such states as Connecticut, New York, Delaware and Maryland, as well as elsewhere, and it is difficult to conceive how this democratic gain is to be prevented, since the republican party and the McKinley administration have assumed a dangerous position whence they cannot retreat.

OPINIONS AND POINTERS.

——Mr. McKinley needs an American for secretary of state.—Chicago Chronicle.

——To get outside the constitution and inside the treasury appears to be the idea of the present administration.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

——It is not to be maintained in reason that President McKinley this year will be nearly as strong a candidate as he was in 1896.—N. Y. Press (Rep.).

——When the Nebraska republican platform "points with pride" to the results of "the remodeling of our tariff laws" it entirely fails to enumerate among those results the trusts.—St. Louis Republic.

——Perhaps the gentleman who is to capitalize the republican campaign this year would be wise to spend more of the money in the party treasury to keep up the production of the steel and wire trust.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

——If Quay really wants to get even with Hanna, why doesn't he help pass the ship subsidy bill? Would not its passage, and the necessity of defending it in the campaign, be the last straw on the overloaded Hanna-McKinley elephant's back?—Albany Argus.

——Carpetbaggery may be administered in homeopathic doses to Porto Rico until after the election, but if William McKinley is again chosen president the island will be stuffed full of it. Carpetbaggery is as inevitable a corollary of imperialism as pustules are of smallpox.—Kansas City Times.

——Senator Jones has notified Hanna that congress will have to remain in session until August if the $9,000,000-a-year ship subsidy bill is to be passed. Hanna and McKinley must give up the measure if to pass it will "take all summer." They have other business on hand.—Chicago Chronicle.

——The children in the Manila schools daily salute the stars and stripes and take a pledge of allegiance to it. Then they sing "My Country 'Tis of Thee, Sweet Land of Liberty." What does the administration mean by teaching these little ones to lie so? They have not any country. They have no flag.—Washington Times.

——By retaining Mr. McKinley and his congress in power the people of this country will be enabled to accustom themselves to an object lesson in genuine imperialism, exhibited in Porto Rico, the Philippines and possibly in Cuba, which will prepare them for receiving the same beneficent yoke upon their shoulders when the trusts shall have completed their plans for turning the republic, both in form and in fact, into a moneyed oligarchy.—Kansas City Times.

GROWING AGGRESSIVE.

The Democracy Is Lining Up for a Vigorous Attack Upon Imperialism.

The indications are growing stronger that the coming campaign will be one of aggression on the part of the democratic party. Taking the cue from the republican state conventions recently held in Ohio, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin and Indiana, the issues delineated in the respective platforms are without exception a mere indorsement of McKinley and the ratification of his policy of imperialism. With the exception of Wisconsin, however, which, while declining to indorse his policy, demanded his renomination, the fact is that, so far as the republican party is concerned, it has no issues to present to the people. It merely presents itself to the public as a party of imperialism, a party of trusts and a party which has foisted upon the nation the most infamous currency bill ever accepted by any nation in the world. Under such circumstances what can the democratic party do but be aggressive? Mr. Bryan, the great leader of the democracy, insists that the issues are money, trusts and imperialism. In spite of the fact that Mr. Bryan is misquoted and misinterpreted on all occasions, his last utterances to the public are to the effect that money, trusts and imperialism will form the issues to be fought in the national campaign. The republicans make no issue upon the trusts, it having been determined all along by Mr. McKinley and Mark Hanna that nothing whatever would be done to injure them. So far as Imperialism is concerned and the utter and absolute violation of the organic law expressed in the constitution, they are proud of it. Even Senator Hoar, with all his learning and fear that such a policy will destroy the republic, will stand by his party in continuing the destructive policy of imperialism should McKinley be reelected.

The money question is all the more absorbing and essential because it is, so to speak, the base of the issues of imperialism and trusts. Take from the bankers of the country, who represent the money power, the absolute control of the money of the people, and the problem of the trusts and that of imperialism would soon be solved. The people are beginning to understand that by giving up to the money power the one great essential in their personal and social affairs, to-wit, the creation and control of their money, they have saddled themselves with the other two branches of the question. Hence it is that the money question is all important, and this is the reason why Mr. Bryan has often indicated that he could not abandon it even if he would. It is immaterial whether the money question be called "the silver issue" or not; it is still the same question, control of the circulating medium by the government and the creation of money for the benefit of the people and not for the enrichment of a special class.

DESECRATERS OF THE FLAG.

Old Glory Trampled in the Mud of Militarism by Republicans.

There is a society in these United States, styling itself "American Flag Association," and it is afflicted with spasms of the repeated desecrations of the flag which the association is incorporated to preserve it against.

"Twenty-two years have passed," it says, reproachfully, "since the first effort was made in congress to obtain legislation to protect the United States flag from desecration.—Flag bills are now lying in the pigeon holes of the judiciary committee rooms under the dust of neglect: In the Tacon theater in Havana, it is hissed, and elsewhere spat upon, and it is abused in Porto Rico, Cuba, Honolulu and Manila."

Of course it is, and it may be also said that it is the most infamously abused in Sulu. Moreover the Turks, Chinese and other foreigners are not stuck on it. This society of good people do not seem to be aware that none of the places mentioned are subject to the constitution of the United States, and according to Mr. Oxnard and the trust managers of the republican party, it has no business there against their interests. If the flag adorers would begin a crusade against the desecrations, saliva and contumely heaped upon the American flag by the McKinley administration and haul it out of the mud where it has been trampled by the republican party, they might restore some veneration for the flag of our country.

In Hiding.

The Indiana republican state convention has made up its mind not to mention the Porto Rico matter in its platform. It indorses criminal aggression, imperialism, McKinley, Hanna and the trusts, including a resolution against trusts and a declaration that silver is a dead issue. In like manner the New Hampshire republican state convention dodges the Porto Rico and Cuba problems. It indorses the reign of the trusts, passes an anti-trust resolution, denounces silver as a mere wandering ghost and elects a conspicuous democrat as a national delegate.

——The republicans may "resoloot till the cows come home"—they may appoint no end of committees to "investigate" trusts—they may introduce constitutional amendments and bills galore against monopolies; it will not do them any good. The true test of the sincerity of their professed opposition is this: Will they repeal or suspend during the existence of a trust or other monopoly all tariff duties upon the articles made and controlled by such monopoly? This is the only proof of sincerity that informed and determined voters will accept.—N. Y. World.

The Pinkham Remedies

WANDERING IN DREAMLAND.

How an Absent-Minded Woman Created a Laugh in a Street Car.

The young woman's mind was probably way off in the land of cut-on-the-bias, and yokes and flarings, and plaitings, and appliqué, and ruffles, and things like that, whatever they may mean, says the Washington Post.

Anyhow, when she got on an uptown Ninth street car the other afternoon, she dreamily opened her pocketbook when the conductor came around for her fare, stuck a gloved finger and thumb into one of the compartments of the same, extracted a couple of foulard samples and, with that faraway expression still in her eyes, handed them to the conductor. The conductor was a middle-aged man. He smiled and waited for the young woman to come out of her trance. But she held the foulard samples out to him with her eyes on vacancy, until the conductor, still grinning, had to fetch her back to earth.

"Yes, they're pretty, miss," he said, "and I'd like to get my wife a dress off that piece on top, but she's—"

The young woman blushed like a red-hot stove lid, dug into another compartment of her pocketbook for a car ticket, and she looked real embarrassed when the brutal male persons across the car aisle grinned, so she did.

Matter of Memory.

The man who was attempting suicide was not sinking for the third time.

Of course, it was necessary hereupon that he recall everything in his past life in the space of one instant.

This he failed to do.

"Again my cursed memory!" he hissed, and he waded ashore in much chagrin, which was in nowise lessened by the derisive laughter of the spectators.—Detroit Journal.

STATE ITEMS OF INTEREST.

KENTUCKY'S BIG FOUR.

W. S. Taylor, W. O. Bradley, George Denny and W. A. Gaines Are Selected as Delegates.

Louisville, Ky., May 19.—The republican state convention was called to order at 2 o'clock by Chairman C. M. Barnett, of the state central committee. The Auditorium was decorated with the usual flags and bunting, while pictures of President McKinley, ex-Gov. Bradley and W. S. Taylor adorned the stage. Capt. N. S. Erwin, republican candidate for congress from the Louisville district, was elected, without opposition, temporary chairman of the convention, he having been nominated by the state central committee. Chairman Irwin talked at considerable length in accepting the nomination, confining his remarks to state and national affairs. Members of the various committees were then named, Hon. John M. Yerkes, of Danville, national committeeman for Kentucky, being appointed chairman of the committee on resolutions.

While the committees were preparing their reports there were loud calls for Taylor, Bradley and other party leaders. Taylor responded first and reviewed the condition of affairs in the state. He was followed by ex-Gov. Bradley. The unusual spectacle of democrats addressing a republican convention then followed when Judge W. H. Yost and Richard W. Knott, editor of the Evening Post, of Louisville, lifelong democrats and supporters of ex-Gov. Brown, were called for and spoke. After several other speeches the convention adjourned until 8 p. m.

Chairman Irwin called the evening session to order at 8:15, and the committee on rules recommended the usual order of business. The committee on credentials next made its report. The committee on permanent organization recommended Senator Deboe for permanent chairman and J. C. Woods, of Montgomery, for permanent secretary. The report was unanimously adopted, and a committee headed by W. O. Bradley escorted the permanent chairman to the chair.

Senator Deboe thanked the convention for the honor. He spoke briefly, and his remarks were received with moderate enthusiasm. Chairman John W. Yerkes then made the report of the committee on resolutions. As they were read the enthusiasm was intensified and they were adopted by a rising vote.

The resolutions dealt briefly with national affairs. They indorsed President McKinley and his administration and instructed the Kentucky delegation to the national convention for McKinley. They cited the importance of state affairs and set forth the party duty "to restore the right of suffrage to the people of this commonwealth."

They demanded the unconditional repeal of the present election law, which was denounced at length. The course of the democratic majority in the late legislature was denounced. The course of Taylor, Marshall and all republican officials was indorsed.

The independent voters of Kentucky who had sided with the republicans were thanked. The positions of Senator Deboe and Congressmen Pugh and Boreing were indorsed. Public recognition was made of the service rendered by ex-Gov. Bradley and his legal confreres in the recent contests in the courts. The resolutions concluded by requesting ex-Gov. Bradley to allow the republicans of Kentucky to present his name at the coming national convention for vice president.

Nominations for delegates from the state at large to the Philadelphia convention were then called for, and John W. Throckmorton, of Lexington, presented the name of Judge George Denny, of Louisville. J. L. Earlywine, of Bourbon county, nominated ex-Gov. W. O. Bradley. Senator Nat Howard nominated W. S. Taylor. A colored delegate from the First district nominated Albert White, of Louisville, and a Sixth district delegate named W. A. Gaines, colored, of Covington. Judge W. H. Holt, of Frankfort, nominated Congressman Vincent Boreing, of the Eleventh.

It was moved that the election of Taylor and Bradley as delegates to the national convention be made by acclamation. This was carried, and they were named.

It was then decided that the convention select two delegates from Boreing, Denny, White and Gaines, and the call of counties was ordered. The ballot resulted as follows: Denny, 1,896; Gaines, 1,283; White, 611; Boreing, 284. Denny and Gaines were declared elected.

Marmaduke Bowden and Ed Parker, of London, were elected presidential electors by acclamation.

The following alternates were elected: John R. Keiday, of Jefferson; Wm. F. Morrow, of Bullitt; Chas. R. Logan, of Bullitt; Geo. W. Wallace, of Estill.

The convention then adjourned.

Free Ice at Owensboro.

Owensboro, Ky., May 19.—Owensboro is enjoying the luxury of a free ice distribution. The large plant just completed at the L. and N. and Texas railroad crossing, has not received its delivery wagons, and for a week past has been donating its entire output to all who applied.

Three Men Instantly Killed.

Hodgenville, Ky., May 18.—While blasting on the main line of the L. & N. railroad a few miles south, W. R. Scott and two other men were killed by an explosion of dynamite.

COMMITTEE ORGANIZED.

The New Republican State Central Committee Has a Harmonious Meeting in Louisville.

Louisville, Ky., May 19.—The new republican state central committee met at the Willard hotel to organize for the coming four years. Eight of the committeemen were present in person, and Committeeman Lieberth was represented by Postmaster Baker, who held his proxy.

Retiring Secretary K. J. Hampton, who was not eligible to succeed himself because he has accepted an appointment in the [illegible] meeting to order.

Postmaster Baker nominated C. M. Barnett, of Ohio county, for re-election, and he was chosen unanimously. R. L. Gwathmey was elected secretary without opposition. Judge Tinsley, of Barbourville, was elected vice president without opposition. W. S. Taylor proposed Col. James Buckner, jr., of Louisville, for re-election as treasurer, and there was no opposition. The treasurer is not necessarily a member of the committee.

Maj. A. T. Wood suggested that the Kenton county contest be brought up, but the party law was quoted to show that the contest must first go before the district chairman in the form of affidavits, and that either party, if not satisfied, would have the right of appeal to the state central committee. Richard P. Ernst and C. F. Striger, representing both factions, were called before the committee and so advised.

Mr. Ernst said that his committee was eager for harmony, and that in its interests he was willing to compromise and give the other committee a one-half vote in all proceedings, the two committees to come together and act as one. He said this proposition had been formally made and rejected. Mr. Striger said that talk of a compromise was useless. He said the republicans were stirred up over the matter and would not listen to a compromise, but that he was willing for the state central committee to decide.

The case will probably go before that body at an early date.

MEETING OF IMPORTANCE.

Democratic State Central Committee May Take Some Action in the Gubernatorial Affair.

Frankfort, Ky., May 19.—The meeting of the democratic state central committee here next Thursday promises to be one of considerable importance, because by that time the supreme court will have passed on the gubernatorial contest, and if the democrats win, the committee will likely take some action regarding the calling of a convention to nominate a candidate for governor.

Of course, the prime object of the committee meeting is to fix the time and place for the convention to send delegates to Kansas City, but the other matter can be easily brought up and disposed of, and the same convention that selects the Kansas City delegates could also name a candidate for governor.

KNIGHTS TEMPLARS.

The Fifty-Third Annual Conclave in Session at Cynthiana Is Well Attended.

Cynthiana, Ky., May 18.—The Knights Templars began their 53d annual conclave in this city with more than 250 knights in attendance from Maysville, Covington, Louisville, Lexington and other points in the state. Divine services were held at the Baptist church at 10 o clock, then a march made to the opera house, where A. P. Gooding made a speech, Sir Knight Ornsdorf, deputy grand commander, responding.

In the afternoon the knights were entertained by the Eks and Knights of Pythias, five bands from different parts of the state furnishing music. The regimental band of Ft. Thomas, Ky., carried off the honors for being the best band in attendance. There are now 23 commanderies and a total membership of 2,287 in the state.

Mr. Smith said that he bars no horse in the world.

CARTER MEDICINE CO. WINS.

Obtains Injunction in Case Involving Simulation of Labels.

Brent Good, president of the Carter Medicine Company, yesterday received a telegram from his lawyers in Chicago, informing him that a final injunction, with costs, had been granted against the Chicago Label and Box Company. This company makes a specialty of manufacturing labels, boxes, etc., for druggists. The Carter Company has been following them through the courts for two years on the complaint that the label company was making simulations of the labels of Carter's Little Liver Pills. They have now obtained a final injunction, with costs, and the costs are very large, as the case has been submitted to a Master in Chancery for a final accounting.

The Carter Medicine Company has been the first and only one to prosecute printers or engravers who have prepared such labels and wrappers. It marks a new departure in infringement cases, and their victory is one of great importance to the whole "proprietary trade," and also of interest to retail druggists.—N. Y. Press, May 2, 1900.

"Mit Lots of Feddars."

Robert Frank, the well-known artist, is a self-made man, and not until he become self-supporting did he have a chance to pursue the regular studies which most people have in earlier life, says the Philadelphia Post. When he began drawing for a living its workmanship was so exquisite that he had no difficulty in securing orders. One day he delivered some sketches to an employer, who, like the boy, Frank, I want a picture drawn in a great hurry. It is a novel thing, a boxing kangaroo."

"Ja wohl," answered the artist, "I will have it ready to-morrow for you."

"You know what a kangaroo is, of course."

Frank must have been thinking of an ostrich, because he answered with a complacent smile:

"Ja, gewisslich. It is a long, tall thing mit lots of feddars." And "Feddars" has been his nickname ever since.

BARBER GOT IT MIXED.

In Relating a Little Joke He, After the Manner of His Kind, Turned It Upon Himself.

Henry Lamm, an attorney of Sedalia, told a story at the reception to the Missouri Bar association recently which caused a great laugh, says the Kansas City Star. Mr. Lamm was called on to make an impromptu speech. He said:

"This is taking an unfair advantage of me. I have a paper in my pocket which I am to read at the meeting to-morrow. It is a very dry paper and it will take me an hour to read it. If I am given the slightest encouragement I will read it right now. That would be one on you, wouldn't it?

"And that reminds me. I was in Texas recently and there they have a new joke. A man asks you: 'Have you heard the story about the two dirty collars?' You are supposed to answer: 'No.' And then the man says: 'That's one on you.'

"A Dutch barber who had been sold on this joke concluded to try it on the next customer who came into his shop. So as he was getting ready to shave the next caller he asked him:

"'Haf you heard dot story about the two dirty collars?'

"'No,' answered the customer.

"'Vell, dot's one you got on.'"

Historic Improbability.

It was during the performance of "Quo Vadis" at Eureka, and Vinicius was begging Petronius to forget his reproaches, saying, tearfully:

"Ah, how can you ever forgive me?"

"Vinicius," replied Petronius, with great earnestness, "then art my only sister's dead child."

Whereupon the audience, which was not dead, but only bored, burst into huge laughter.—Kansas City Journal.

A Different Declaration.

"She is very proud of the fact that she has an ancestor who was one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence."

"That's nothing to be proud of. There's a divorce in our family, too."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

The new Elsmere Common Graded School House was formerly dedicated last Saturday evening by an entertainment given by the scholars of the district, under the management of the teachers, Misses S. E. Spicer and Ida Reed. It was heartily enjoyed by the parents and friends who attended.

Last Sunday about 2,500 people assembled for the corner stone laying of the New St. Henry's Catholic church on Garvey Ave. and Lexington pike. At 3 o'clock Right Rev. C. P. Maes, Bishop of this Diocese, assisted by six priests, commenced the ceremony by a parade of the Catholic Knights of St. John, and the school children of St. Henry's school. All marched over to the platform erected for laying the corner stone at the northeast corner, after which Bishop Maes made an address in English and Rev. Tappert, of Covington, spoke in German to the people assembled. Refreshments were served and a handsome collection was raised for the benefit of the new church.

"It is with a good deal of pleasure and satisfaction that I recommend Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Druggist A. W. Sawtelle, of Hartford, Conn. "A lady customer, seeing the remedy exposed for sale on my show case, said to me: 'I really believe that medicine saved my life the past summer while at the shore,' and she became so enthusiastic over its merits that I at once made up my mind to recommend it in the future. Recently a gentleman came into my store so overcome with colic pains that he sank at once to the floor. I gave him a dose of this remedy which helped him. I repeated the dose and in fifteen minutes he left my store smilingly informing me that he felt as well as ever." Sold by W. F. McKim, Burlington; Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg, C. S. Balsly, Bullittsville, O. N. Grant, Bellevue.

James H. Lawell, of Bellevue, has planted his corn the second time on account of the work of the cutworms, and the other day he found 125 worms, actual count, around one weed in his corn field.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, MAY 30, 1900. NO. 32

If the weather at Louisville is like that which prevails here, the "Johnnies" are having a damp time for their reunion.

The Senatorial plum is ripe again, and the politicians can go after it in as large numbers as desire contesting for the honor.

By his action refusing to honor Gov. Beckham's requisition for Chas. Finley, Gov. Mount, of Indiana, has been the recipient of hot shots from some of the leading Republican papers in the country.

The Boers, poor fellows, are very much on the ragged edge, and in a few weeks there will be one less republic among the nations. It is an old but true saying, "the big fish devour the small ones."

Fearing an investigation of the Cuban postal scandal, the powers that be at Washington will not permit the investigation until Congress meets again. This is giving the Democrats more campaign material.

Many of the battles of the rebellion are being fought over at Louisville, this week. "Johnnies"-are there from everywhere, and many a tear will be shed when comrades of the trying times in the sixties meet.

Until the two State conventions has been held very little will be done in the Congressional campaign in this district, but after these two political events, then you may look for animated times with the politicians in the district, who are considerably divided on the question of the nomination.

If Jim Howard's voluntary surrender to the authorities is to be accepted as conclusive evidence of his innocence of complicity in the assassination of Senator Goebel, the flight of Fniley and Taylor to Indiana must be accepted as conclusive evidence as to what as regards them?

It begins to look very much like the Tamany Democrats of New York City are in line for Bryan for President. Richard Croker, one of the leaders of that organization, in a long interview declares that he is for Bryan with all his heart, and advances many strong reasons why he believes in his success at the polls, this fall.

In the death of Benjamin S. Johnson, of Walton, this county loses one of her pioneer citizens whose long and honorable life is worthy the emulation of all. He was a kind and unassuming gentleman, but firm in his convictions and always recognized in his fellow man the right to entertain convictions of his own. Few men reach the ripe old age attained by Mr. Johnson with as spotless a record. He was endeared to all, and all will miss the good old man.

The calls for two Democratic State conventions are published in this issue. The convention to select delegates to attend the national convention to be held July 4th at Kansas City, Missouri, will be held in Louisville, June 14th, and the convention to nominate a candidate for Governor will be held in Lexington, July 19th. In making these calls the party leaders have done what they think is best for the party, and it is hoped party harmony will be restored and an old time victory achieved in Kentucky this fall.

There is now a vacancy in the office of State Senator in this district, and under the resolution adopted by the last Senatorial convention, Boone will be permitted to name Senator Furnish's successor for the remainder of the term. The question as to whom should be nominated by the Democrats to supply the vacancy in the office of State Senator in the event Dr. Furnish became Superintendent of the Lakeland Asylum, has been generally discussed, and in that connection the names of only two persons have been thus far mentioned—Hon. N. S. Walton and Attorney S. W. Tolin, the nomination of either of whom will insure to the district an eminent representative in the upper branch of the General Assembly.

CONVENTIONS CALLED.

For National Delegates and to Nominate Gubernatorial Candidate.

At a meeting of the Democratic State Executive Committee of Kentucky, held at Frankfort, Ky., May 24, 1900, all of the members being present in person or by proxy, the following calls for State conventions were ordered: It is ordered that a State Convention be held in the city of Louisville on Thursday, June 14, 1900, for the purpose of selecting delegates to the Democratic National Convention at Kansas City on the 4th day of July, 1900. Said convention shall be called to order at 2 o'clock p. m., Standard time. Delegates to said State Convention shall be chosen at county mass-Conventions, to be held at the various county courthouses, in counties having but one legislative district, of which due notice shall be given by the various county chairmen. In counties having more than one legislative district there shall be a convention for each legislative district, to be held at some convenient point to be indicated by the chairman of the Legislative Dirtrict Committee, who shall advertise in the local papers the location for said convention at least 10 days prior to the date fixed by this committee. Said county and legislative district conventions shall be held at 2 p. m., Standard time, on Saturday, June 9, 1900. Said conventions shall be called to order by the chairman of the respective County or Legislative District Committees. The basis of representation of each county to the said convention shall be one delegate for each 200 hundred votes and fraction consisting of one hundred or more votes, cast for the head of the Democratic electoral ticket at the presidential election in 1896, provided that each county shall have at least one delegate vote. All persons who will at the November election, 1900, be legal voters in this State, who are devoted to the principles of the Democratic party and desire to see those principles succeed, and who by participating in the mass-meetings will feel in honor bound to support the nominees of the Democratic National Convention, shall have the right and are hereby invited to participate in the said meetings.

The Democrats of Kentucky are a law-abiding and a peace loving people. They would welcome, not repel, from their association those Kentuckians who love liberty and justice and who hate crime. Under Republican rule the civil arm of the State Government was struck down, and military usurpation was set up in its place. Under Republican rule murder was made a weapon of party warfare, and Republican officials obstructed and defied the courts in their effort to discover and punish its authors. In view of these things, we invite every Kentuckian who remains a true Kentuckian and without regard to former political affiliations to join with us in stamping out their possible recurrence, and to share with us the glory of redeeming the honor of the State and reviving the memory of the patriots and sages, who, in its better days, made it prosperous, illustrious and happy.

GUBERNATORIAL CONVENTION.

It is further ordered that, on Saturday, July 14, at 2 p. m., standard time, there shall be held at each voting precinct in the various counties and legislative districts of the State of Kentucky, or the usual voting places, a precinct convention for the purpose of appointing delegates to a county or legislative district convention on Monday, July 16, at 2 p. m., at which county or legislative district conventions shall in turn appoint delegates to a State Convention, to be held in Lexington, Ky., on Thursday, July 19, 1900, for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Governor to be voted for at the November election, 1900. Provided, that in the counties of Campbell, Kenton, Fayette and Jefferson legislative district conventions only shall be held in lieu of precinct conventions. The basis of representation for precinct delegates shall be one vote for each fifty votes and fraction over twenty-five cast for the Bryan Electors in 1896. The basis of representation for county delegates and the qualifications of voters shall be the same as provided for in the State Convention above ordered for June 14, 1900.

ALLIE W. YOUNG, Chairman.
PERCY HALY, Secretary.

The count of the people in the United States will begin in all parts of the country June 1, and end in the cities two weeks later and the rest of the country before the close of the month. The people are to be counted at their places of residence, but as many persons and families will be away from their homes during June there is some danger that such persons will not be counted. If they are not counted, the locality in which they live will be misrepresented to that extent, and in some cases this misrepresentation may be enough to affect the representation in Congress of the State from which they come. Local pride and state pride, therefore, should influence all such absentees to take reasonable precautions against being omitted from enumeration in their places of resideuce. Such omissions are most likely to occur in the large cities where families close their homes and go elsewhere for the summer. The occurrence of the Paris exposition this year is likely to increase the number absent from the country.

In all cases of contemplated absence the head of the family is requested by the Census Office to communicate with the supervisor of the district in which he lives. He is also requested to leave information regarding his answers to the questions which are to be asked with some responsible neighbor who will agree to see that it reaches the enumerator on his rounds. Such information might better be left as a memorandum in writing, as in that case it is less likely to be overlooked. The questions to which answers are desired apply primarily to the population, but also to all farms and manufacturing establishments. They are being published from time to time in the press of the country.

By taking this trouble the absent citizen will do justice to his locality and his state, and materially aid the Census Office in the performance of its duties.

Fish and Snake Story.

[Harrodsburg Democrat.]

Warren Allin and W. W. Poteet were fishing at Finnell's mill Saturday, and observed a small snake glide under a large flat rock. Warren has great antipathy to creeping things, and told Will that he could not fish in peace, knowing that he was in six yards of a snake, for he couldn't watch the rock and his line at the same time; so he asked Will to turn the rock over and dispatch the cause of his fears. "Oh, no, I won't do a thing to it," remarked Will, as he obligingly bent all his energies to overturning the stone. At this point Warren had a nibble, and was too intently eying his "cork" to hear the other's exclamation of "Jiminicriminy!" as the stone went over, and was just fixing to "draw in" a bass, when his attention was attracted by the cries of warning from his companion, and when he did look around, Will was on the hill fifty yards away, while a hissing mass of squirming snakes of all kinds, sizes and colors, entwined together in a wall, was in six feet of him, and some that had disentangled themselves were darting about in every direction. Although chilled to the marrow, Warren sailed away to safety, tiptoeing over several reptiles in doing so, his gait being like that of one who walks on broken glass. The snakes numbered fully 200, and had scooped out a large hollow under the rock, and no doubt had wintered there. The fishermen failed to return to the spot to see what disposition the serpents made of themselves.

A Woman's Awful Peril.

There is only one chance to save your life and that is through an operation" were the startling words heard by Mrs. I. B. Salt is being used by some of our tobacco growers as a means of getting rid of cut-worms. They either sow the salt broadcast or place it about the tobacco plant. The remedy is said to be quite effective.—Pendletonian.

The Thistle Law.

§ 200. Duty of owner to cut and prevent thistles from going to seed—penalty. It shall be the duty of every person or persons, and of every corporation holding lands in this Commonwealth, either by lease or otherwise, on which any Canada thistles, or weed commonly known as Canada thistles, may be growing to cut the same, so as to prevent such weeds or thistles from going to seed and the seed of the same from ripening. Any person or persons, or corporation as aforesaid, who shall or may have land as aforesaid in this Commonwealth: and who shall knowingly neglect or refuse to comply with the provisions of this act, shall forfeit and pay a fine of five dollars, recoverable before any justice of the peace, or by indictment in the circuit courts of the State.

§ 201. Right of aggrieved person to enter and cut thistles—notice costs of cutting. If any person or persons, or corporation, so holding land as aforesaid on which thistles or the weeds commonly known as such, shall be growing and likely to ripen seed thereon, shall knowingly neglect or refuse to cut and destroy the same so as to prevent the seed thereof from ripening, it shall and may be lawful for any person or persons, who may consider themselves aggrieved or about to be injured by such neglect or refusal, to give five days notice in writing to such person or persons, or corporation, to cut and destroy such weeds or thistles, and on their neglect or refusal to cut and destroy the same at the end of five days, it shall and may be lawful for any person or persons so aggrieved, or believing themselves about to be injured thereby, to enter upon or hire other persons to enter upon such lands or premises, and cut down and destroy such Canada thistles. And the person or persons so employed shall be entitled to recover from such person or persons, or corporation, owning or holding such lands, compensation at the rate of one dollar per day, to be recovered as debt of like amount in any court of this Commonwealth of competent jurisdiction.

Senator Blackburn has the following to say in regard to Kentucky affairs, and the election law:

To assume that the Democratic party would enact or keep on the statute books an election law, without proper amendment, after it had been demonstrated that such law was inadequate for the purpose designed, is to assume that the party, either by reason of the men it nominates for office, or of the principles it advocates, is afraid of the people and can not and should not expect their support. The Democratic party has no such fear. Its long and honest dealings with the people have fully demonstrated its ability to fairly and economically administer their affairs. The present election law was passed to prevent Republican frauds through the mediation of the County Judges and other election officers appointed by them, not, as some charge, to enable the Democrats to steal the election. It has failed of its purpose, as is shown by the vote on final count at the last election. Is anyone so bigoted that he would refuse to amend a law because the original framer could not fully anticipate all the schemes and wiles of the ever-active agencies of force and fraud? Election laws are never perfect and must be constantly changed to meet emergencies as they arise.

The convention should, therefore, declare for an amendment to the present election law, so as to give to each of the two leading political parties majority and minority representation upon both the State and County Boards of Election Commissioners, and an equal division of election officers in each voting precinct, such precinct officers to be chosen and appointed by the County Boards of Election Commissioners from a list to be furnished by each respective party, and the law should be so safeguarded with fines, penalties and otherwise as to protect both the election officers and the voter from force, fraud, corruption and intimidation by corporation and employers of labor, as also the militia of the State, the police forces of cities and towns, and all other public functionaries, with adequate penalties to compel all persons upon whom any duties are enjoined relative to the casting, counting and certifying of the vote to honestly, faithfully fairly and promptly discharge the same. As auxiliary to this and in order that the members of the party, who are the people, may be satisfied with the action taken by its representatives, for the purposes of local self-government of the party organization in the various voting precincts, the convention should provide that party laws be adopted authorizing and empowering the members of the organization in each precinct to select and elect their own committeemen, chairman and other officers and change and remove the same at pleasure. This brings the party organization as near the people as it is possible to get it. It puts them in control and makes the people responsible for the conduct of these officers, who are likewise responsible back to the people. It prevents all centralization of power in a governing committee and applies to our party organization the fundamental principles of our government—a government of the people; the power of the people to govern and control. We must build from the people up if we would succeed.

Crop and Stock.

A number of milch cows have died in the Payne's Depot neighborhood from some unknown malady.—Georgetown Times.

W. B. Kidd has bought 450 export cattle at Frankfort for delivery June 1st, at 4 80. They are now on slop.—Winchester Democrat.

At Miller & Son's sale of short horns at Winchester Ind., last week one cow brought $1,700; 14 cows sold for an average of $375 and 4 bulls at an average of $250.

In Madison, there is an epidemic of pink eye among the horses of Richmond, hog cholera prevalent in several parts of the county, and cut worms are playing havoc with the corn crop.

The Harrodsburg Democrat notes the following sales: 36 hogs, 200 pounds at 6c; several lots of wool at 25c; several crops of old wheat at 68 to 70 cents per bushel; 30 choice mare mules at $50 to $75 each; 15,000 bushels of wheat growing crop at 60 cents.

The Roland Morrill peach orchard at Benton Harbor, Mich., is without doubt the greatest peach farm in the world. The orchard comprises 100 acres and the crop last year was larger than ever before. Last season Mr. Morrill marketed about 12,000 bushels of peaches and the capacity of the orchard for next year will be 25,000 bushel. The crop last year brought returns to the amount of $25,000.

The government crop bulletin, under date of Tuesday, refers to Kentucky crops as follows: "Wheat is still in fine condition, except in a few localities where it has been injured by the Hessian fly; so far, this injury is not enough to effect the crop as a whole. Corn almost all planted, much of it is up, and some worked for the first time. It made very slow growth during the week, owing to cool weather. Tobacco plants are generally small, but in fairly good condition and plentiful. The fruit crop still promises a good yield."

The report of the State Commissioner of Agriculture makes this encouraging comment:

Fruit prospects have improved during the past month, and we are now assured of a liberal supply of all classes of fruits grown in the State, providing no harm comes in the way of late frosts.

Some complaint is made of scant apple bloom, and it is generally considered that the condition of the peach trees, resulting from the severe winter of 1898-9, will prevent a large crop of this fruit.

The prospects as compared with this date of average years is: For apples 94, peaches 79, pears 81, cherries 92, grapes 93, strawberries 95. On this date of 1899 the prospect was: For apples 91, peaches 2, pears 69, cherries 68, grapes 71, strawberries 85.

As indicative of what may be regarded as the price of the growing crop of wheat deducted from the probabilities presented to the dealers in that article, the contracts making in some parts of the State are given. A Danville firm, Anderson & Spillman, have closed a contract for the product of 2,500 acres of the growing wheat from Boyle county growers, for which they are to pay 60 cents per bushel. In Mercer county another firm has contracted to pay the same price for growing wheat, supposed to have on it when threshed 15,000 bushels. Whether these figures have been accurately adjusted to the probabilities or not is a matter for the next few weeks to decide, though the price must be along the line of what the present outlook would suggest, as buyers and sellers seem to have settled on that price. It may be well enough to remember that estimates are generally exaggerated in summing up the probable yields of almost all crops.

There was a good sized acreage of tobacco set out last Saturday and Thursday of this week after the very favorable rains. The plants are small but will grow nicely. There is considerable complaint about the cut worms working on the tobacco set out, especially in sod land, where it is said at least one-third of the plants have been cut down by this annoying pest.—Warsaw Independent.

While plowing Monday in a field on the James W. Craig place, near Mt. Moriah, John N. Craig turned up a bed of ninety-five Indian flints shaped something like arrow-points, and they were so placed in the bed as to indicate that they had originally been in some kind of a vessel which probably melted to dust again, as there was a peculiar clayey mold around the flints. They formed a crown-shaped circle in the earth. The land on which the discovery was made was cleared sixty or seventy years ago by a Mr. Aydelotte. Further examinations will be made there in the hope of unearthing other relics.—Clinton Democrat.

It is not generally known that within nine miles of Guthrie there is a most wonderful cave. It is on the old Starks place, near the Mac O'Brien homestead. The cave has been explored for three miles, and those who have visited it say that it is laid oft in rooms as if made by some prehistoric race. The rooms are octagonal and square shaped, and are very comfortable. A creek some fifteen feet wide runs through the cavern, and its waters are clear as crystal and as cool as ice. Beautiful stalagmites and stalactites adorn the cave, and when the light of the torch shines upon them, they sparkle and glisten like great diamonds. It is truly a wonderful cave and Guthrie people are contemplating a complete exploration within a short time.—Guthrie Graphic.

Speaking about extraordinary fish stories, ex Gov. Knott told the other day about a Marion county man who baited his line with a tap and caught a buggy wrench. Still, there is nothing so positively startling about the story when all the facts are considered. It was simply a case of remarkable coincidence. Bill Taylor, a most truthful man, was fishing in the Fork and lost his sinker. The only thing he could find in his pockets to replace it was a tap or nut of small diameter. He was fishing on the bottom and the line floated with the current. Presently Mr. Taylor got "hung" and a rather brisk jerk indicated that his line was attached to something movable. Upon drawing up he was naturally very much surprised to find that the tap had gotten fastened in a wrench lying in the bed of the stream, and that he was therefore a good wrench ahead of the game.—Danville Advocate.

Members of the family of Herman Criuze, a wealthy summer resident of Bayside, L. I., say they witnessed a remarkable phenomenon Monday afternoon while the thunder storm was in progress.

Following a flash of lightning, a meteor shot down from the sky. It made a bee line for the Criuze residence, on Broadway, and went through a window to the cellar. Then the observers declare it took an upward course, bounding out of the cellar and shooting toward the barn, which is about 50 feet distant. It whirled around the barn many times, they say.

After performing these gyrations the meteor again made for the house and landed in the cellar, where it remained. Members of the Criuze family ran down into the cellar and inspected the meteor.—New York World.

A lady named Alexander has been appointed and confirmed postmaster of Elizabethton, Carter county, Tenn. The word "postmaster" is used advisedly, for the government does not officially recognize such a title as postmistress. Miss Alexander bears the curious Christian name of Senorita.

The thousands of pilgrims who annually make [illegible] from Nashville, Tenn., to the Hermitage, where Andrew Jackson and his wife sleep, will soon have railroad accommodations for their benefit. One of the most unique laws ever passed will shortly go into effect in Winchester, W. Va. The city council of that place passed a law requesting every citizen to pour kerosene oil or every open pool and that every open rain barrel shall have the spigot at the bottom. The town is infested with mosquitoes, and the law was passed in order to make the place an attractive resort for summer boarders.

F. M. Spawn, aged 19, a school teacher at Alto Pass, Ill., has exploded all psychological theories regarding the capacity of the human stomach by eating and drinking in one evening in addition to his regular supper one can of tomatoes, one can of peas, one can of sardines, seven glasses of soda water and two quart bottles of temperance drinks. This is only one of many like achievements by which he has astonished his acquaintances.

Czar Nicholas II. has presented to the French government a mosiac map of France in precious stones which will be exhibited at the Paris exhibition. The map is one meter square and is framed in slate-colored jasper. The sea is represented in light gray marble, the departments in jasper of various colors and the rivers in platinum. The names are inlaid in gold and 106 towns are marked by gems, Paris being represented by a diamond.

George Foster Robinson, who saved the life of Secretary of State Seward when Lewis Payne, a member of the Booth gang, attempted to assassinate him at the same time that Booth shot Lincoln, is still living in Pomona, Cal. He was serving as a guard in the sick chamber of Seward when Payne, who had overpowered Seward's son, broke into the room. He received the thanks of congress and was promoted from the rank of private to that of major.

A cloud of bugs was recently responsible for the calling out of the Trenton fire department. The bugs were gathered around the steeple of the Fourth Presbyterian church in such numbers and at such a distance from the ground that a passer-by mistook them for smoke and sent in an alarm. When the fire department arrived on the scene Chief Allen, with the aid of a field glass, discovered the mistake, and the fire companies returned to their houses.

To-day the south produces on an average of 10,000,000 to 11,000,000 bales of cotton, representing, including the cotton-seed, a valuation of from $350,000,000 to $400,000,000. This enormous crop is produced on 5 per cent. of the total area of the cotton region. Of the entire cotton-growing territory of the south, only 20 per cent. is now in improved land. It is possible, with new land added to the cotton-growing area and with more scientific cultivation, to increase our cotton production to 100,000,000 bales.

The eyes of the world are turned to the Paris exposition as the great civic event of the closing century. Its progress thus far has justified the prophecy that it will be visited by seventy millions of people, representing all the nations of the earth, during the summer months. Its industrial and art exhibits, its architecture and its beauty, make it easily the first in rank of all the expositions thus far held. It is gratifying to know that the American people, aside from France, occupy the largest space.

Senator Hoar is one of the wittiest as well as one of the most learned men in public life and an inveterate punster. Not long ago he was joined in the corridor of the capitol by a former colleague in the senate, and as they approached the entrance to the senate chamber Mr. Hoar motioned his companion to pass in first. "After you," said the ex-senator, drawing back politely. "No, indeed," retorted Senator Hoar; "the Xs always go before the wise."

Work of the Chicago city directory enumerator for 1900 shows the population of Chicago is not less than 2,000,000. The directory estimate is so conservative that the national census, which commences June 1 and ends June 15, will probably show a higher figure than this by some 20,000. The increase in population between 1890 and 1900 has been practically 1,000,000, a total not surpassed by any city in the country, except New York, and her extraordinary gains were made through annexation of neighboring territory.

HE IS $400,000 SHORT.

More Charges Made Against Neely, the Alleged Embezzler.

He Is Accused of Converting to His Own Use Surcharged Stamps—Stealing Began as Soon as He Entered Upon His Duties.

New York, May 25.—Papers have arrived in New York from which will result in pressing of other charges against Chas. F. W. Neely, now confined in the Ludlow Street jail.

It is ascertained that these papers were sent from Cuba to the department at Washington, and charge the alleged defaulting postal employe with the embezzlement of a sum approximating $100,000.

This alleged embezzlement consists in the conversion into cash of the $400,000 worth of "surcharged" Cuban postage stamps, which were ordered destroyed, and which were certified as having been destroyed by the committee appointed for that purpose, of which Neely was the head.

The above information comes from Edward K. Jones, special assistant to the United States attorney general in the Neely case.

"There is a new and more serious charge to be presented against Neely," said Mr. Jones, "which involves a much larger amount than heretofore shown.

"He is charged with having converted to his own use the supposedly destroyed surcharged Cuban stamps, and instances are cited where he sold two-cent stamps to stamp collectors for as high as 20 cents each. There are evidences also that the Neely sterlings were begun almost as soon as he took office in Cuba."

Extradition Bill Passed.

Washington, May 24.—The house has passed the Neely extradition bill. The house adopted without division the resolution providing for adjournment June 6.

STORM IN CHICAGO.

Two Girls Struck By Lightning and a Man Drowned—Three Inches of Hail.

Chicago, May 28.—While returning home from a candy store during a storm Lucy Holden, 13 years old, was instantly killed by lightning, and her sister Irene, 10 years old, burned about the right side and shoulder, fell by the side of the dead girl in an unconscious condition, but will recover. The clothes of both girls were almost burned from their bodies.

Hail to the depth of three inches fell in the northwest suburbs. The storm was accompanied by a terrific electrical display. Many trees were splintered by the lightning.

On Lake Michigan, George Resch, a saloon keeper, was drowned, and his companion, Paul Kutzner, after clinging to their upturned boat for nearly an hour, was rescued by men from the revenue cutter Michigan.

The internal revenue laws go into effect in Hawaii on June 14. All deputies at the Honolulu office will be selected from citizens of Hawaii. The stocks of beer, wines, liquors, opium, cigars and tobacco now in the islands will be inspected and inventoried. After June 14 goods from the United States must be stamped before being sent to the islands.

A COMPARISON.

Average Annual Salaries per Man in the United States and Cuban Customs Service.

Washington, May 27.—The division of customs and insular affairs of the war department has just given out the statement that the average annual salary per man in the United States customs service is $1,205, while the average annual salary per man in the customs service of Cuba is $922, making a difference of $383 per man as compared with that service in the United States. Of the total employes in the Cuban customs service only seven per cent. are Americans.

THEY MAKE PROTESTS.

Japanese and Chinese Governments Object to the Serum Inoculation in San Francisco—It May Be Abated.

Washington, May 26.—Through its charge here, Mr. Keizire Nabeshima, the Japanese government has joined the Chinese government in a strong protest against the compulsory inoculation of Japanese and Chinese in San Francisco with anti-plague serum. The Japanese protest is much more energetic and forceful in terms than that lodged by the Chinese government, and conveys a very plain intimation that, while there could be no objection to a general inoculation, if such was regarded as necessary to prevent the extension of the plague, it can not be contemplated that any discrimination should be practiced against the Japanese and Chinese; the rule must be general and include Caucasian as well as yellow men. Unlike the Chinese, the Japanese have a measure of protection afforded by their most recent treaty with the United States which on its face might seem to warrant their protest against any discriminatory treatment.

The communications have been referred to the surgeon general of the marine hospital service, with directions to report the facts at once. It is understood that he has telegraphed to the officer of his service in charge of the work of stamping out the plague in San Francisco, and it is presumed that the net result will be an abatement of the rigors of the quarantine measures now being enforced there.

OFFICIAL EMBLEM OF AUTHORITY.

TAYLOR AND FINLEY SAFE.

Gov. Mount Says They Can Stay in Indiana as Long as They Choose to Remain.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 26.—Gov. Mount refused to issue a requisition on the governor of Kentucky which was asked by Lawrence county officials for the return of a man who is charged with petit larceny and has fled to Kentucky. The governor's advisers claimed it was a ruse to show Gov. Beckham's magnanimity in honoring a requisition from Gov. Mount, and thus draw an invidious comparison. The governor said the papers were incorrectly drawn.

Gov. Mount said he had not changed his mind as to Taylor and Finley, and that they were safe so long as they choose to remain in this state. Taylor and Finley spent a quiet day with friends here. They leave Sunday for Martinsville to stay several weeks.

THOROUCH INVESTIGATION.

Gen. Wood Has Ordered That Every Department in Cuba Be Overhauled.

Havana, May 26.—Mr. Bristow, acting director general of posts, abolished the solicitor's bureau, appointing in its place a law clerk, with one stenographer, and thus saving $2,700 annually.

Gen. Wood has ordered that every department of the island be thoroughly overhauled. The auditors are now dealing with the treasury and with the North American Trust Co. Later they will deal with the custom house. There is no suggestion that frauds are suspected in conection with any of these departments or institutions, but Gen. Wood feels that the public desires the most complete investigation of all Cuban accounts.

Judge Found Dead in Bed.

Nashville, Tenn., May 26.—Judge W. L. Grigsby was found dead in bed at his home in Dickson. He was well and in good spirits the night before. Judge Grigsby was 46 years old. He was judge of the Nineteenth judicial circuit from the time of its creation in 1891 until it was abolished last year, and sat as special judge of the supreme court during the winter session here.

OUR SOLDIERS BUSY.

Small Engagements Take Place Almost Daily in Luzon.

Brig. Gen. Frederick Funston Acquitted of Having Summarily Executed Two Natives in the Province of Zambales.

Manila, May 28.—Scouting, small engagements and the capture of arms and prisoners continue daily in Northern Luzon. Last week's operations by the 9th, 12th, 33d, 34th and 36th regiments resulted in the killing of 46 of the enemy, the taking of 180 prisoners and the capture of 300 rifles and a quantity of ammunition.

Col. Edward F. Gurdin, with three companies of the 29th regiment and bluejackets from the gunboat Helena, landed at Cagayan, Masbate island, under the enemy's fire, routed the insurgents and, after an engagement lasting half an hour, occupied the town without casualties.

The insurgent commander, with 20 officers and 230 men, surrendered on May 20, giving up 100 rifles. An impressive scene occurred on the plaza when the prisoners were disarmed and liberated. The islanders were found suffering from lack of food owing to the blockade, and the American authorities are endeavoring to relieve them.

Peace reigns, and no trouble is expected in Manila, although the city is crowded with people from the provinces and were leaving the unprotected hamlets in order to avoid the conscription which the insurgent leaders are enforcing, as well as robbery and outrages at the hands of roving insurgents and bandits.

The investigation of the charge against Brig Gen. Frederick Funston on having summarily executed two natives in the province of Zambales has resulted in a discontinuance of the proceedings. It developed the fact that Gen. Funston caught the natives in the act of murdering a band of Macabebe scouts, his action in view of the circumstances being regarded as justifiable.

Manila, May 27.—The government corral at Manila has been quarantined. There are four suspected cases of bubonic plague among the teamsters who are living in filthy dwellings, which will be burned.

Since the murders on board the steamer El Cano by the native crew, coastwise captains have been fearful of repetitions of the [illegible]y and have requested the authorities to furnish guards for their steamers, which has been declined. Three commercial steamers are now in the bay, their Spanish captains refusing to sail until protected, and others intend imitating them. The authorities have returned to the captains their revolvers, of which they were recently deprived.

Col. Padilla, the rebel governor of Nueva Ecija, was captured during the recent fighting at Nueva Ecija and is now in jail here.

SECRECY MAINTAINED.

Fruit Jar Manufacturers of the United States Held a Meeting at Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 23.—Fruit jar manufactures of the United States held a meeting at the Denison house here. They said they were talking over the general conditions of the business. Last winter the fruit jar men held several secret meetings here and it was given out that they intended to pool their products and sell it through Ball Bros., of Muncie, but they denied the report.

They claim now they have no association and no written agreement as to prices. Besides giving attention to trade in this country, the fruit jar men recently sent two agents to Paris to exhibit fruit jars during the exposition. The utmost secrecy as to their meeting was maintained.

BATTLE AT KUMASSI.

An Effort to Break the Investing Lines Proves Very Disastrous, Especially to the Enemy.

Accra, May 28.—It is reported that three European officers were killed and Capt. Aplin and 100 Hausers were wounded in a recent effort by the Lagos Hausers to break the investing lines of tribesmen at Kumassi.

The Ashanti loss is reported to have been great, as the Hausers had three Maxims engaged, although themselves greatly outnumbered. Three hundred Ashantis are said to have been killed in a previous action. The rising is still spreading.

Act Interfere With Work.

Washington, May 28.—Fire at the bureau of engraving and printing caused a loss of about $1,500. The damage done was mostly to outbuildings, and will cause no interference with the work of the bureau, which prints the government money and securities.

Application for Extradition.

Washington, May 27.—The state department has received from the British ambassador a formal application for the extradition of Count De Toulouse Lautrec, now under arrest in Chicago on a charge of swindling and forgery committed in Montreal.

FIFTY-SIXTH CONGRESS.

Summary of Leading Events.

Washington, May 21.—Senate—The post office appropriation bill was passed finally, the amendment to appropriate $225,000 to carry out existing contracts for the pneumatic tube service being agreed to. By a vote of 36 to 21 a resolution extending to the Boer commissioners the privileges of the floor of the senate was defeated.

House—Two important bills were passed—one to extend the eight-hour law to all laborers employed under contract on government work and the other to prohibit interstate traffic in prison-made goods by bringing them under the jurisdiction of the police powers of the state.

Washington, May 22.—Senate—Almost the entire session was taken up discussing Senator Spooner's bill providing that upon the suppression of the insurrection in the Philippines the government of the islands shall devolve upon the president until such time as congress might direct otherwise. Mr. Carter presented the credentials of Mr. Clark as a senator from Montana under the appointment of acting Gov. Spriggs, of that state. They were laid on the table.

House—The entire day was devoted to the Alaskan civil government bill. Slow progress was made, only 24 pages being disposed of.

Washington, May 23.—Senate—The day was taken up in political speeches, the Philippine question and a resolution demanding an investigation of financial affairs in Cuba furnishing the subjects.

House—An agreement was reached to adjourn on June 6. The Neely extradition bill was passed after a spirited debate, as was the bill providing for a collector of customs at Honolulu at a salary of $6,000 a year. The post office appropriation bill was sent to conference, and the ways and means committee instructed to sit during the recess.

Washington, May 24.—Senate—The duty of the United States toward its "island possessions" was the subject of a heated political discussion. No business was transacted.

House—For eight hours the members discussed the Alaskan civil government bill. But little progress was made. An amendment was adopted authorizing the secretary of war to issue permits to excavate or dredge for gold below low-water mark on the beach at Cape Nome. The conference report on the Indian appropriation bill was adopted.

Washington, May 25.—Senate—A discussion on the Spooner Philippine bill occupied most of the time. The sundry civil appropriation bill, which carries $85,812,939, or over $1,000,000 more than as it passed the house, was taken up and 137 pages disposed of.

House—Two hours were devoted to considering the Alaskan civil government bill without completing it. The remainder of the session was devoted to private pension bills. Among those favorably acted upon were the senate bills to pension the widow of the late Capt. Gridley, who commanded the Olympia in the battle of Manila, at $50 per month; the widow of the late Commodore K. W. Meade at $30 per month, and the widow of the late Gen. M. F. Force, of Ohio, at $50 per month.

Washington, May 26.—Senate—A resolution was adopted providing for a congressional investigation of the Cuban postal frauds. The credentials of Senator-elect Blackburn, signed by Gov. Beckham of Kentucky, were presented and filed. Mr. Pettigrew's resolution calling upon the secretary of war for a statement of the number of Filipinos who have been killed by United States troops in the present insurrection was agreed to.

House—The Bay resolution, calling upon the postmaster general for certain information regarding the reports of E. G. Rathbone, director of the posts in Cuba, was adopted without division. Another resolution, calling upon the secretary of war to report in detail the payments made and to whom from the revenues of Cuba and Porto Rico, was also adopted.

TURKEY MUST PAY UP.

Congress May Be Called Upon By the President to Take Action in the Matter.

Constantinople, May 25.—The United States legation, having waited four weeks for a reply to the note of April 24 regarding the American indemnity claims, Mr. Lloyd Griscom, United States charge d'affaires, has handed to Tewfik Pasha, minister of foreign affairs, a new note, couched in more precise terms and insisting upon a prompt settlement.

The note produced a great impression, as the porte thought the matter postponed, if not abandoned. It is believed that the United States will not wait so long this time for an answer America's indulgence thus far not having made a satisfactory impression upon the porte.

Washington, May 25.—Beyond the statement that the department is still earnestly prosecuting the indemnity claims against the Turkish government, the officials of the state department decline to indicate the character of the last instruction sent to Charge Griscom in relation to these claims. Therefore, it is to be assumed, that the Constantinople dispatch accurately sets out the character of the communication. It is certainly not an ultimatum, but is believed to be as strong in its representations as a diplomatic note could be made without actually becoming an ultimatum.

Mixed Emotions.

To illustrate the feeling of Ireland toward the predominant partner, an actor who has lately been touring tells the story of an old waiter in a Dublin hotel. "Wheat are you going to get home rule in Ireland, John?" was the question. "See ye here, surr," said the old man, "the only way we'll get home rule for ould Ireland will be if France—an' Russia—an' Germany—an' Austria—an' maybe Italy—if they would all join together to give those blaygards of English a rare good hiding. That's the only way we'll get home rule, annyway." Then, as he looked cautiously around, a twinkle of cunning and a smile of courtesy were added to the expression. "And the whole lot of 'em plev'r together couldn't do it," he said. "Oh—it's the grand navy we've got!"—London Chronicle.

CROSSED VAAL RIVER.

Roberts' Army Encamped on the North Bank of That Stream.

The Railway Between Mafeking and Bulawayo Has Been Repaired and Supplies Are Being Brought Into Mafeking.

London, May 28.—The war office has received the following from Lord Roberts:

"Vereeniging, Sunday, May 27, 1:15 p. m.—We crossed the Vaal this morning and are now encamped on the north bank. The advance troops, which crossed yesterday, were only just in time to save the coal mines on both this and the other side of the [illegible] destroyed. Our casualties were four.

"Baden-Powell reports that the railway between Mafeking and Bulawayo has been restored and that supplies are being brought into Mafeking. He says the Canadian artillery joined Col. Plumer from Beira with incredible rapidity.

"Lieut. Webber was taken prisoner at Heilbron a few days ago. He went there on telegraph duty. It was not known that our troops had been temporarily withdrawn."

London, May 28.—The following dispatch, dated at Grootvlei, 22 miles south of Vereeniging, Sunday, May 27, has been received:

"Lord Roberts' northern advance force steadily continues, and to-day the Transvaal hills were sighted. Gen. French has secured an excellent flanking position on the northwest. There is something irresistible about this advance. The troops have been splendidly handled, and the Boers, completely outmaneuvered, have been forced to abandon their positions at the first appearance of the British flanking force, which has made a determined resistance at the Vaal impossible. Many Transvaal burghers are now trekking homeward, and it is safe to say that the most irreconcilable Transvaalers at last recognizes the hopelessness of the struggle.

"Most of the farms in the northern part of the Free State, where the ties of blood with the Transvaal are the strongest, have been deserted. This section has been flooded with false tales of British cruelty, reports of the burning of farm houses and the eviction of women and children, in the hope of inducing the burghers to remain with their commandoes, but the evidence all points now to the existence of a permanent feeling of enmity between the Transvaalers and the Free Staters, each accusing the other of treachery and cowardice.

"It is regarded as unlikely that the Transvaal government will go to Lydenburg, where food is scarce. A body of Boers, mostly on foot, are trekking hard toward Vereeniging from the direction of Heilbron.

"The condition of the British troops continues excellent, although the cold nights are very trying. They are able to march three miles an hour.

"The Boers have destroyed every bridge and culvert. They are said to regard Klipriverberg, north of the Vaal, as a position of great strength, and talk of making themselves impregnable there.

"It is reported that the population of Johannesburg is in a high state of excitement. The Boers who are passing through northward threaten to blow up the mines, and, in view of their wanton destruction of everything else, it would not be surprising if they carried out the threat.

"The British are more interested, however, in grazing and in the water supply than in the mines."

Mafeking, May 28.—The Boers who were routed here rallied a few miles east at Polfontein, well within the British border. There is no sign of the enemy to the north. Col. Plumer's linesmen have received a wire saying that a train will arrive to-morrow. A system of daily runners to the south has been organized.

Newcastle, May 26.—The Boers in this part of the theater of war are very active, having been reinforced from various directions. Their front now extends from Laing's Nek to New Republic, where they are fortifying.

London, May 28.—President Kruger, according to a special dispatch from Newcastle, has issued a proclamation asking the Transvaal burghers to notify him whether they desire to continue the fight or to sue for peace.

Barkley West, May 25.—It is reported that the Boers have reoccupied Kuruman and that large laagers are located at Rietfontein and Daniel's Kull.

ARMY OF THE POTOMAC.

The President and Party Attended the Memorial Services Held at Fredericksburg, Va.

Fredericksburg, Va., May 28.—Fair weather favored the presidential party in their visit to the memorial services of the army of the Potomac here Friday. It was distinctly Confederate weather, however, with more gray than blue in the sky. The special train from Washington arrived at 11:10, and found the whole population of the staid old Virginia town gronped about the depot or massed along the main street with the national colors in evidence everywhere.

The special carried all the members of the cabinet except Secretary Wilson. There were also in the party Gen. Nelson A. Miles, his chief aide, Col. Miehler; Gen. Joseph Wheeler, former Adjt. Gen. Ruggles, who was colonel of the president's old regiment during the war, and the marine band.

The train was met at Quantico by a reception committee from Fredericksburg, consisting of Hon. Horace F. Crisman, Maj. T. P. Morris and Postmaster John M. Griffin, who accompanied the presidential party to Fredericksburg, where they were turned over to the hospitalities of the local committee.

The procession formed at the depot and headed by the Marine band moved at once to the courthouse, where the public exercises were held and an official welcome tendered to the Society of the Potomac. The address of welcome was delivered by St. George R. Fitzhugh, and the response was made by Gen. Martin T. E. McMahon. The oration of the day was then delivered by Gen. Daniel E. Sickles.

The exercises at the court house were followed by a luncheon served in the opera house to the members of the society, the ladies and invited guests. This was over by 2 o'clock, after which the president held a brief reception at the residence of Mr. St. George R. Fitzhugh, before the party proceeded to the National cemetery for the ceremonies incident to the cornerstone laying of the Fifth corps' monument.

The cornerstone of the monument was laid by Gen. Daniel E. Butterfield. He had prepared for the occasion a handsome silver trowel appropriately inscribed, and after the ceremony this was presented to the Masonic lodge of Fredericksburg.

DYNAMITERS SENTENCED.

Life Imprisonment for the Men Who Attempted to Wreck a Lock in the Welland Canal.

Welland, Ont., May 26.—Karl Dullman, residence unknown; John Walsh and John Nolin, of Dublin, Ireland, but latterly of Washington, D. C., and Richmond, Va., were convicted of having attempted to wreck lock 24 of the Welland canal with dynamite, and sentenced to imprisonment for life in Kingston penitentiary. Walsh and Nolin were the active participants in the crime, having lowered two valises filled with dynamite, and with fuses attached, along the lock, but, owing to a mistake in calculating the distance to the water's edge, the force of the explosion was minimized and the damage was trifling. Dullman accompanied the men to Niagara Falls and directed proceedings from there.

SHOUTED "GOOD-BY."

An Unknown Priest Dramatically Jumps Into the Whirlpool Below Niagara Falls.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., May 26.—An unknown priest, supposed to be from New York city, committed suicide at the whirlpool rapids. He descended the elevator, and, after having his picture taken, walked out on a rock, threw his hat and cane back of him and, waving his right hand dramatically, shouted "Good-by!" and leaped into the rushing water.

He ordered the pictures sent to M. J. O'Donnell, New York city, who is said to be pastor of St. Andrew's church. He has two assistants, Rev. W. J. Steward and Rev. Edward S. Leonard, and it is believed here that the suicide is one of these. The dead priest was about 50 years old.

PROTECTED BY POLICE

Street Cars Run in St. Louis Without Being Molested.

Three Weeks of Rioting and Turmoil, and the End or Settlement of the Trouble Seems as Far Away as Ever.

St. Louis, May 28.—This is the 21st day of the street railway strike, and the end seems as far away as ever, both the Transit Co. and its employes standing firm in their respective positions. Not a car on the Transit Co.'s system has been run since the strike began without police protection. In consequence of there not being enough police to guard the 800 [illegible] cars usually operated, less than a quarter of that number have been run by the company over only a part of its 22 divisions and lines.

Since May 8, when the strike began, there have been numerous collisions between the police and the strikers and the latter's sympathizers. Hardly a day during that time has passed without somebody being wounded by bullets or injured by flying missiles and police clubs. The list of casualties presents four persons shot and killed, 32 wounded by bullets and 50 or more injured in other ways.

Two of the killed were innocent bystanders, a striking motorman and an emergency policeman completing the number. Several of the wounded are in a critical condition and may die. It is estimated by the strikers that less than fifty of their number (3,325) who struck have returned to work. These, with the street car men imported from other cities, are operating the Transit Co.'s cars. It is asserted that at least 50 of the imported men have joined the strikers.

All the points of issue between the company and its striking employes have been agreed to except that of reinstating all the men who went out in their old positions. The company refuses to displace the men they have hired since the strike began, while the strikers decline to sign any agreement that does not give all the old men their places again. Several attempts have been made to bring the employers and employes together, but without success, and thus the matter stands.

A meeting of citizens has been called in the directors' room of the Merchants' exchange for the purpose of discussing plans for the amicable settlement of the street car employes' strike.

Sunday was uneventful. The first cars to run over the Transit Co.'s lines since 10 a. m. Saturday were sent out in the morning over the Delmar avenue, Page avenue, Spaulding avenue, Compton Heights, Park avenue, Laclede avenue and Olive street lines. The day being fair, the cars were crowded from early morning until 7 p. m., when they ceased running, by persons going to and coming from the parks and western suburbs. The lines mentioned run east and west, and in consequence the main dependence of those living in the north and south portions of the city was on wagons and busses or the cars of the Suburban system, which operates only in a limited area compared with that covered by the Transit Co.

As the result of an encounter last night between striking and non-striking employes of the Transit system, three men were shot, one being fatally and the others seriously wounded. As Philip Sullivan, James Sullivan and Patrick O'Connell, strikers, were passing through Lafayette park they were approached from the rear and fired upon by three men, said to be in the company's employ. One of the bullets passed through Philip Sullivan's right lung, giving him a fatal wound. James Sullivan received a ball in the left cheek, and O'Connell was shot through the right leg. Accounts of the affair differ, some bystanders claiming that it was a deliberate attempt at assassination on the part of the company's new employes, while others aver that it was a pitched battle between the two factions. A riot call was at once sounded, but the three unknown men had made their escape by the time the police arrived on the scene.

DEFIED THE LAW.

Capt. Streeter, With an Armed Force, Squatted on Valuable Land in Chicago—Ousted by the Police.

Chicago, May 27.—With an armed body of 20 men, two rapid fire guns and some barbed wire for making entanglements, Capt. George Streeter Saturday took possession of 186 acres of land here. After hoisting the United States flag, his men threw up two intrenchments and planted in each one of the rapid fire guns.

Shortly before noon blood was spilled before Capt. Streeter's stronghold. Pickets thrown out by the occupants of the trenches discovered a party approaching from Lincoln park, consisting of Park Superintendent Reilieski and Secretary Erby, reinforced by a policeman. Calls of "Halt" failed to stop the park officials, who were bent upon finding out who was "encroaching upon their ground."

A volley from the pickets' rifles quickly put to flight the investigating party, however, and one of the bullets struck a 14-year-old boy, Reuben Manley, in the right knee, inflicting a severe wound.

The park officials fled to a patrol box and turned in a riot call. A force of 20 or 30 policemen, armed with revolvers and clubs hurried to the scene from the Chicago station. When the officers in command saw the display of force, Garling guns being pointed his way over the intrenchments, he ordered a retreat.

Capt. Streeter claims to own the land, which, with the title, would be worth between thirty and fifty millions of dollars. In 1885 Capt. Streeter and his wife were stranded on a little sandbar a few yards from the shore at the foot of Superior street. The spot was not down on the maps, and the doughty navigator laid claim to the land, and declared his right, being the whole population, to elect himself to all the offices which he, in framing a constitution, deemed the territory in need of.

As the years passed by the dumping of all sorts of refuse and by the earth washed up by the lake, formed a large tract, and Capt. Streeter became a man of importance. With his importance and the increased value of the lands his troubles began. The tract became connected with the shore and owners of adjoining property resented the presence of Capt. Streeter and the retainers he had gathered about him. They carried the matter into court. The supreme court of the United States decided that the land was within the jurisdiction of the state of Illinois.

At 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon [illegible] police officers of the city of Chicago, headed by Chief Kipley, and every man bearing a repeating rifle, marched from the East Chicago avenue station, on the North Side, to the foot of Superior street, where Capt. Geo. Streeter has fortified himself.

A fire boat, with a Gatling gun aboard, was dispatched up Lake Michigan to make a demonstration from that side, and to cut off the escape of Streeter's men by means of their yacht.

At 3:15 o'clock "Brig. Gen." Nies and five of his men, perceiving the overwhelming force of police approach, climbed over the emplacements of their improvised forts and offered to surrender to the park police, providing they were protected. The surrender was accepted, and the park policemen started on foot toward the police station, followed by an immense crowd.

The remainder of Capt. Streeter's force, seeing the fate of their leader, deserted their guns and escaped in the throng. The police at once took charge of the fort with its entire store of arms and ammunition.

Capt. Streeter was not found in the forts.

STATE NEWS ITEMS.

CONFEDERATE VETERANS.

The Tenth Annual Reunion Expected to Surpass Any of the Previous Ones.

Louisville, Ky., May 28.—The tenth annual reunion of the United Confederate Veterans will meet in this city next Wednesday. It is expected, considered numerically, that the tenth annual reunion will surpass any of the nine reunions previously held, and a conservative estimate is that 150,000 visitors will be in Louisville during the week. Every arrangement has been made for entertaining such a crowd. The committees have been at work for months, and all that now remains is for Kentucky to welcome in Kentucky fashion its thousands of guests. The city is handsomely draped in bunting, the red and white of the confederacy being most prominent, while the portraits of confederate generals, whose deeds of patriotism are dear to confederate hearts, are suspended from many buildings, public and private.

The court of honor on Jefferson street, opposite the court house, where the great reviewing stands have been erected, is an imposing structure. The great white arch is surmounted on either end by eagles, while in the center stands a confederate shield. By day it can be seen in its dazzling whiteness for blocks, and by night it will be ablaze with hundreds of electric lights.

Reunion hall, built in honor of the confederate Veterans, and situated at Sixth and Water streets, where it overlooks the beautiful falls of the Ohio, has been completed. Itself will hold 5,000 chairs, with standing room for 10,000 people. A balcony extends all round the inside. On every window is the name of a battle where not less than 500 men were killed, and interspersed are the names of the beloved leaders of the confederacy. The main window is directly over the stage, and it bears this inscription: "Less than 100,000 fighting men surrendered after enduring four years of suffering. The survivors of these are here to-day, and Kentucky is proud and happy."

The advance guard of the old confederates has already begun to come in. They are mostly from the neighboring Kentucky towns, and come in small detachments, so as to be on the ground early. State headquarters have been opened for the divisions of each state represented in the United Confederate association.

The programme for the five days of the reunion has been arranged so as to provide many interesting features. The convention will assemble on Wednesday at noon in Reunion hall, and after addresses of welcome by the mayor of Louisville, representatives of the various commercial bodies of the city and the local confederate camps, a response will be made by Gen. John B. Gordon, commander-in-chief. The opening exercises will be concluded with an oration by Rev. B. M. Palmer, of New Orleans. The afternoon will be given over to a business session. At night there will be various amusements, including a concert at Library hall by the famous Stonewall Jackson Brigade Band and Glee club.

An old-fashioned basket picnic will serve to pass away pleasantly the early morning of Thursday. Various business sessions will be held in the forenoon, and in the afternoon a reception will be given by the Daughters of the Confederacy. Fireworks on the Ohio river and a grand ball at Reunion hall will claim attention in the evening.

Friday is the day of the big parade, which will take place in the afternoon. In the evening a ball will be given at the Auditorium for the officers.

The most important feature of Saturday will be the decoration of the confederate graves at Cave Hill cemetery.

Sunday afternoon special exercises will be held at Reunion hall in honor of the 92d birthday anniversary of the only president of the confederacy, Jefferson Davis. The principal oration will be delivered by Rev. J. M. Jones, of Virginia, and talks will also be made by Gen. John B. Gordon, Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner, of Kentucky, and others.

SMALL AMOUNT EXPENDED.

The Goebel Reward Commissioners End a Two Days' Session Held at Frankfort.

Frankfort, Ky., May 24.—The Goebel reward commissioners adjourned a two days' session. The commissioners say that nothing was done except to pay a few minor bills for current expenses of the commission and those working under it, aggregating about $500. Commissioner Moore, when asked if the meeting of the commissioners had any bearing on the release of suspect John Powers by County Judge Knott, of Knox county, or on the action of Gov. Mount, of Indiana, in refusing to honor Gov. Beckham's requisition for Charles Finley, said: "These matters are not within the purview of the commission and the objects for which it was created. They rest wholly with the prosecution, if with anybody, and however much the members of the commission individually may condemn the conduct of these officials, it is not a matter for our official consideration."

Mr. Moore said that, instead of the large sums which the fugitives and their friends would have the public believe are being paid out, the money so far expended was very small in amount, and had been and would continue to be expended conservatively and for legitimate purposes only. He denied all knowledge as to whether or not an indictment had been returned against former Gov. Taylor, but said if one has been returned it is now a matter for the prosecution to look after and not the commission.

TWO STATE CONVENTIONS.

Kentucky Democrats Will Hold One on June 14 and Another on July 19.

Frankfort, Ky., May 26.—The democratic state executive committee held a meeting here and issued calls for two state conventions. The first will be held at Louisville on June 14 for the purpose of selecting delegates to the democratic national convention. Gov. Beckham's friends, it is understood, favored only one convention, this to be held the last week in June, but the proposition for two conventions carried by a majority of one.

There was a great deal of discussion among the leaders as to the proposition of Blackburn and others regarding proposed changes in the state platform with reference to the election law and other things, but not enough to give a definite idea of what the state convention will do on this subject.

Your correspondent was putting some high lights on a porch for Uncle Frank Smith recently, and observed that he has one of the houses that you read about, but don't often see. It is one of the historic land marks of Boone. In fact, the house is 55 feet long, 20 feet wide, 2 stories high with walls 24 inches thick. It is built entirely of stone. A cellar extends under the entire house, with old fashioned fireplace for cooking in north end. The house was built about 1790 by a Mr. Fowler, after whom the creek running parallel with pike and is known as Fowler's Fork of Gunpowder, was named. A rough estimate puts the number of loads of rock to build it at between 500 and 1000. The corners are run up like a brick wall (perfectly straight) and show skillful stone cutters lived in those days too. The porch recently added is only 43 feet long and wide in proportion. There is no telling how many times the Indians tried the strength of this house in years gone by, but the chances are they received a hot reception and failed to destroy the occupants.

One day last week Jeff Eddins noticed a fishing worm coming out of the ground at a rate of speed he thought it impossible for a worm of that kind to attain. After landing on the surface it kept up its gait, which was accounted for when a mole popped out of the ground and took after the worm. The mole was killed and the worm spared.

The Winchester Democrat puts this pertinent question to the school trustees: Are you a trustee in your district? If so, a word with you: The time is approaching for you to employ a teacher. It is your duty to get the very best one you can pay for. You owe this to the district, to the children, to the State and to yourself. The position as school trustee is not the place to fatten your prejudice, or feed your grudge or tickle your funny bone of littleness, or satiate your partiality. Remember you are under oath. Remember that you are not acting for yourself, but for the district; remember that the lives and souls of the children are placed in your keeping. Rise up and acquit yourself like a man.

Beware of a Cough.

A cough is not a disease but a symptom of Consumption and bronchitis, which are the most dangerous and fatal diseases, have for their first indication a persistent cough, and if properly treated as soon as this cough appears are easily cured. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has proven wonderfully successful, and gained its wide reputation and extensive sale by its success in curing the diseases which cause coughing. If it is not beneficial it will not cost you a cent. For sale by W. F. McKim, Burlington; Berkshire, & McWethy, Petersburg; O. N. Grant, Bellevue, C. S. Baisly, Bullittsville.

UNION, - - - - - - - - - - KENTUCKY.

The Executive Board of the North Bend Association of Baptists met with the Erlanger church, last Friday, May 25th. The following churches were represented: Big Bone, Bullittsville, Bank Lick, Burlington, Bellevue, Beaver Lick, Madison Avenue, Third Covington, Ludlow, Dry Creek, Walton, Florence and Union. Dr. James A. Kirtley delivered a very interesting and instructive address on the Baptist Denomination 100 years ago. He was followed by Bro. B. F. Swindler, who spoke on the subject, "The Baptist Denomination of To day." His remarks were well received, and filled his audience with hope and enthusiasm for the future of our great denomination.

After a sumptuous dinner served by the ladies of Erlanger church and their friends, the Board meeting was called to order by the Chairman, Bro. Jas. A. Kirtley.

The committee on Erlanger debt reported as follows:

"The committee appointed by the Executive Board at its meeting held with the church in Union, February 23d, 1900, to act with a committee appointed by Erlanger church, to secure funds to liquidate debt on property at Erlanger, Ky., submits the following report:

Necessary to liquidate the Erlanger debt. Respectfully Submitted,
M. J. HOOVER, Committee.

It was moved and carried that the Treasurer be directed to pay the balance of the debt, $35 90, out of the District Funds, thus settling the debt on the Erlanger property.

After transacting other routine business, the Board adjourned to meet with the Third Church, Covington, September 21, 1900, in connection with the Sunday School Convention, which meets there on the 20th. Bro. J. C. Revill is chairman of the S. S. Convention, and will, with the aid of the committee, arrange a program for the convention.

After the Board adjourned the regular program was called for by the Moderator, Bro. Elmer Atwood, and brief addresses were made by brethren J. A. Lee and M. J. Hoover on "The Present Condition of Missions in the World, and Our Aims for the Coming Century." Then the pastor of the Erlanger church, Bro. Atwood, made some remarks upon the meeting of the Board, to which Bro. Lee respouded in his facetious manner.

The meeting was then adjourned with prayer by Bro. Jas. A. Kirtley.

TWINE laurels to lay o'er the Blue and the Gray, spread wreaths where our heroes rest;
Let the song of the North echo back from the South for the love that is truest and best!
Twin wreaths for the tombs of our Grant and our Lee, one anthem for Jackson and Meade.
And the flag above you is the banner for me—one people in name and in deed!

Clasp hands o'er the graves where our laureled ones lie—clasp hands o'er the Gray and the Blue;
To-day we are brothers and bound by a tie that the years shall but serve to renew:
By the side of the Northman who peacefully sleeps where tropical odors are shed
A son of the South his companionship keeps—one flag o'er the two heroes spread.

Weave tokens of love for the heroes in blue; weave wreaths for the heroes in gray;
Clasp brotherly hands o'er the graves that are new—for the love that is ours today;
A trinity given to bless, to unite—three glorious records to keep,
And a kinship that never a grievance shall sever renewed where the brave are asleep!

Spread flowers to-day o'er the Blue and the Gray—spread wreaths where our heroes rest;
Let the song of the North echo back from the South for the love that is truest and best!
Twine wreaths for the tombs of our Grant and our Lee, one hymn for your father and mine!
O the flag you adore is the banner for me and its folds our dead brothers entwine.

—S. E. Kiser, in Chicago Times-Herald.

HERE'S the flag,
Polly; ain't it a beauty?"

"Lovely! Grandpa'll be dec'rated splendid! My rosebush has two roses and three buds."

"You ain't goin' to pick the buds?"

"Didn't grandpa die for our country? Didn't we live, till mother died, on his pension? I think a whole bushel of buds wouldn't be too much!"

Jack was glad Polly did not know about the ten-cent flag he could have got; he had thought five cents enough to spare out of their scanty earnings, when making the purchase; but after that speech he felt small. What if he were but a bootblack, earning a most precarious living, and Polly, making only an odd dime now and then by scrubbing a floor or tending children for the neighbors? Jack wished he had done more for his soldier-graudfather! But a thought struck him.

"Oh, Polly! I'll tell you what I'll do."

"For to-morrow?"

"Yes! You know it'll be years before we get a monnyment for grandpa, for we must get an eddication first; and though the flag'll show it's a soldier's grave, I think folks ought to know more. Well, I've learned to print real clear, and I'll print a real nice headstone, and we'll fix it down on the grave, and folks'll see it for that day, anyway."

"That's splendid; you do it, and I'll get supper."

Jack rushed out for stiff brown paper and ink, and the kind shopkeeper, who knew the children, learning what he intended to do, gave him two large sheets of manilla paper and showed him how to use the "grease crayon," thereby saving the boy from innumerable spatters of ink. Jack purchased the ten-cent flag on the spot and returned with his prize.

"We can eat dry bread awhile," he said, as his sister looked doubtfully at the flag; "that's my budsi"

Planning to write a headstone was one thing—quite another to do it.

"We can't say 'erected,' for it's goin' to be staked down; how would you begin, Polly?"

"My teacher says" (Polly's teacher was her unfailing standard) "if you're writing, to just tell what you've got to say as short as you can."

"Let's see," and Jack printed rather crookedly, but clearly:

JOHN DOYLE
Wounded at Bull run DieD
at 42 Charles Street.

"Do you remember when he died?" Jack asked, glad to rest awhile, but delighted with his progress.

"Why, I wasn't born, Jack! But can't we say his loving grandchildren have—have—fixed this to his memory?"

"Why, Polly!" said Jack, admiringly.

"That's real tomb-stony! That's good enough for the monnyment. Let's see;" and Jack sat with pencil poised, then, slowly and laboriously printed—Polly's bright eyes watching eagerly:

This is writ by Polly and Jack Kerr in memory of Grand Pa

"Oh, Jack! it's just lovely! And—oh—oh—I've got something!" and Polly, her bright face growing sweetly solemn, stepped to the old bureau and opened her most precious possession — an old box which held her peculiar treasures.

"Here's four of mother's hairpins," she said, solemnly. "I've saved 'em, but they'll be just the thing to fasten down the headstone—better than bits of wood."

The children could hardly sleep from excitement. Bright and early they were about, stopping a moment to gaze rapturously on "the headstone," and to water the precious rosebush, which any florist would have admired, so perfect were the buds and roses. Then Jack started out to black boots and attend to one or two furnaces, while Polly washed dishes and tidied rooms for three different families, receiving five cents from each. At noon they were ready to start, the roses carefully wrapped within the headstone, lest the sun wilt them, the flags carried by Polly.

It was a long, long walk to Evergreens; but the children's rent was due in two days, and they dared not spend money on car fare. On they trudged, the thought of the honor to be done to grandpa keeping Polly's tired feet going. But before they had accomplished a quarter of the distance Jack caught sight of a great express cart coming up the hill. "Hold on, there's a fellow I know. He'll take us in—he's first-class! Mr. B——," he called, "can you give us a lift?"

"Certainly," and the good-natured expressman drew up for the children. "Going to Evergreens? Why, I'm taking a basket of plants there—I'll take you right along."

And so, much earlier than they expected, Jack and Polly had "dec'rated" the old soldier's grave. The brown paper was carefully pinned down with the long wire hairpins, Polly kissing each one before she used it—how often "mother" had used them to fasten up the long brown hair of which the children were so proud! The flags were placed at the foot, the roses at the head, and the children stood, well satisfied with the results.

"Now, let's go and see some of the other dec'rations," said Jack, "and then we'll come back again." So they wandered from place to place. It was the poorest part of E——'s poorest cemetery, yet there were some handsome gravestones, and many carefully kept plots. The children much enjoyed seeing the flowers, but agreed that "our grave" was the best of all.

"The soldiers have covered every bit of the grave," said a tall girl, in a disappointed tone. "I like them to remember grandpa, but—there is nothing for us to do, and we have so many flowers."

"I have an idea," said Aunt Mary, who always had delightful ideas, if anyone needed cheering. "Let's drive over to Evergreens; there may be some graves there that we can decorate; it is what dear grandpa would wish. You remember he often said: 'We officers get the glory, but the privates did the work.'"

"That's a splendid plan; we'll start at once."

It was a long drive, through miserable streets; but May and her aunt were used to such neighborhoods in their visits of charity. As soon as they entered Evergreens each watched for some soldier's grave.

"Oh, aunty, there's one! I see a flag! Two of them! John, John! Stop! What a queer thing! What is it?" and Mary knelt by the children's "headstone." "Aunty, Aunty! the flowers—quickly!" said the impulsive girl, her eyes overflowing. "Oh, if I could only find Polly and Jack Kerr!"

Aunt Mary came with lilies and heliotrope, hyacinths and geraniums—how would not have one other rose beside the lovely ones the children had laid there. Smilax was carefully wreathed about "the headstone," and then Mary rose, only half satisfied.

"'Forty-two Charles street'—I think we might call there, aunty."

"Not to-day, dear, we are too late already. We must hurry home."

"I'm afraid we've lost the way."

"No, there's the big cross—grandpa is just near there. I always know our grave by that. But I don't remember any other grave that was dec'rated, Polly!"

Jack could say no more, and, Polly catching sight of the wreath of flowers and smilax frame at the same moment, the children knelt, speechless with amazement.

"Do you think it was angels?" asked Polly, in an awe-struck voice.

"No," said Jack, sturdily; "it was this headstone that did it, Polly! Somebody read that!"

That was the proudest moment of Jack's life. Polly nodded her head, acquiescently, still too awe-struck for words.

"And by next year we must have a real one!"

"But the eddication!"

"We'll do it all," said the boy, with a new confidence in his powers. "Now let's take a few of these home to remember the day by."

They took a bit of heliotrope, a hyacinth and spray of smilax, and walked, with no sense of weariness, so exalted were they by what they had found, back to the rooms which had been grandpa's and mother's, one of which they had managed to keep by toil almost incredible in such mere children.

The next day seemed dull and prosy to Polly, as days do to all of us after unwonted excitement. The little girl had just settled down to study her lessons for the night school Jack and she attended, when there came a knock at the door. Polly opened it and was confronted by two ladies, one tall and slim, the other "fat and comfortable," as Polly told Jack.

"There are our flowers," exclaimed May, who had given her aunt no rest till she took her to 42 Charles street, "so you must be Polly Kerr."

"Yes, ma'am," said Polly, much surprised.

This was the first of many visits May made to the neat little room. The general's granddaughter befriended the old soldier's grandchildren, and, with her help and counsel, Jack and Polly have "a real headstone" and—an education!—Frances Harris, in N. Y. Independent.

DECORATING GRANDPA'S GRAVE.

Memorial.

A Nation's pride, a Nation's fame,
A Nation's battle-glory;
Aye, these have held an honored name
In lyric, song and story.
But more than each and more than all
A-light with heavenly splendor
The tributes o'er her dead that fall,
Their requiems low and tender.

A Nation's wealth, a Nation's power,
Her place among the nations;
Aye, these may win her for an hour
A waiting world's oblations.
But fadeless and forever fair
The record God is keeping,
Of Love that lays its tribute where
Her soldier sons are sleeping.
—Lalia Mitchell, in Good Housekeeping.

On Beautiful May Mornings.

On beautiful May mornings I often watch and wait
Where lilies of the valley grow beside the garden gate;
For when the white flowers open in fragrance and in grace,
A lovely garland I shall make for my soldier resting place.
When I lay the wreath upon his grave on Decoration day,
I shall dream of the bright May morning when the soldiers marched away.
When to all they loved so dearly they said a sad good-by,
And think how grand a thing it was for their native land to die.
—Mary F. Butts, in Youth's Companion.

LESSENING RANKS.

A little band of comrades, year by year,
Bring the red, white and blue
To plant with care upon those lonely graves;
Each year their ranks grow few.
—Mary E. Averill.

The idea of Memorial day originated among the women of Maryland, who put flowers on the graves of both federal and confederate long before the surrender of Appomattox. The women of other states soon began following the custom.

FRUITS OF VICTORY.

Dr. Talmage Discourses on the Rewards of Faithful Endeavor.

Lesson of Christ in Overcoming Obstacles Which Beset His Followers —Satisfaction in Completion of Good Work.

[Copyright, 1900, by Louis Klopsch.]

In this discourse Dr. Talmage shows in an unusual way the antagonisms that Christ overcame and finds a balsam for all wounded hearts; text, John 17: 4: "I have finished the work which Thou gavest Me to do."

There is a profound satisfaction in the completion of anything we have undertaken. We lift the capstone with exultation, while, on the other hand, there is nothing more disappointing than after having toiled in a certain direction to find that our time is wasted and our investment profitless. Christ came to throw up a highway on which the whole world might, if it chose, mount into Heaven. He did it. The foul-mouthed crew who attempted to tread on Him could not extinguish the sublime satisfaction which He expressed when He said: "I have finished the work which Thou gavest Me to do."

Alexander the Great was wounded, and the doctors could not medicate his wounds, and he seemed to be dying, and in his dream the sick man saw a plant with a peculiar flower, and he dreamed that the plant was put upon his wound and that immediately it was cured. And Alexander, waking from his dream, told this to the physician, and the physician wondered out until he found just the kind of plant which the sick man had described, brought it to him, and the wound was healed. Well, the human race has been hurt with the ghastliest of all wounds—that of sin. It was the business of Christ to bring a balm for that wound—the balm of Divine restoration. In carrying this business to a successful issue the difficulties were stupendous.

In many of our plans we have our friends to help us; some to draw a sketch of the plan, others to help us in the execution. But Christ fought every inch of His way against bitter hostility and amid circumstances all calculated to depress and defeat.

In the first place, His worldly occupation was against Him. I find that He earned His livelihood by the carpenter's trade—an occupation always to be highly regarded and respected. But you know as well as I do that in order to succeed in any employment one must give his entire time to it, and I have to declare that the fatigues of carpentry were unfavorable to the execution of a mission which required all mental and physical faculties. Through high, hard, dry, husky, insensate Judaism to hew a way for a new and glorious dispensation was a stupendous undertaking that was enough to demand all the concentrated energies even of Christ. We have a great many romantic stories about what men with physical toil have accomplished in intellectual departments, but you know that after a man has been toiling all day with adz and saw and hammer, plane and ax, about all he can do is to rest. A weary body is an unfavorable adjunct to a toiling mind. You, whose life is purely mechanical, if you were called to the upbuilding of a kingdom, or the proclamation of a new code of morals, or the starting of a revolution which should upturn all nations, could get some idea of the incoherence of Christ's occupation with His heavenly mission.

In His father's shop no more intercourse was necessary than is ordinarily necessary in bargaining with men that have work to do; yet Christ, with hands hard from use of tools of trade, was called forth to become a public speaker, to preach in the face of mobs, while some wept and some shook their fists and some gnashed upon Him with their teeth, and many wanted Him out of the way. To address orderly and respectful assemblages is not so easy as it may seem, but it requires more energy and more force and more concentration to address an exasperated mob. The village of Nazareth heard the pounding of His hammer, but all the wide reaches of eternity were to hear the stroke of His spiritual upbuilding.

So also His habit of dress and diet were against Him. The mighty men of Christ's time did not appear in apparel without trinkets and adornments. None of the Caesars would have appeared in citizen's apparel. Yet here was a man, here was a professed king, who always wore the same coat. Indeed, it was far from shabby, for after He had worn it a long while the gamblers thought it worth raffling about, but still it was far from being an imperial robe. It was a coat that any ordinary man might have worn on an ordinary occasion.

Neither was there any pretense in His diet. No cupbearer with golden chalice brought Him wine to drink. On the seashore He ate fish, first having broiled it Himself. No one fetched Him water to drink; but, bending over the well in Samaria, he begged a drink. He sat at only one banquet and that not at all sumptuous, for to relieve the awkwardness of the host one of the guests had to prepare wine for the company.

Other kings rode in a chariot; He walked. Other kings as they advance have heralds and applauding subjects behind; Christ's retinue was made up of sunburned fishermen. Other kings sleep under embroidered canopy; this one on a shelterless hill. Riding but once, as far as I now remember, on a colt—and that borrowed.

His poverty was against Him. It requires money to build great enterprises. Men of means are afraid of a penniless projector, lest a loan be demanded. It requires money to print books, to build institutions, to pay instructors. No wonder the wise men of Christ's time laughed at this penniless Christ. "Why," they said, "who is to pay for this new religion? Who is to charter the ships to carry the missionaries? Who is to pay the salaries of the teachers? Shall the wealthy, established religion be discomfited by a penniless Christ?" The consequence was that most of the people that followed Christ had nothing to lose. Affluent Joseph of Arimathea buried Christ, but he risked no social position in doing that. It is always safe to bury a dead man. Zaccheus risked no wealth or social position in following Christ, but took a position in a tree to look down as He passed. Nicodemus, wealthy Nicodemus, risked nothing of social position in following Christ, for he skulked by night to find Him.

All this was against Christ. So the fact that He was not regularly graduated was against Him. If a man comes with the diplomas of colleges and schools and theological seminaries, and he has been through foreign travel, the world is disposed to listen. But here was a man who had graduated at no college, had not in any academy by ordinary means learned the alphabet of the language He spoke, and yet He proposed to talk, to instruct in subjects which had confounded the mightiest intellects. John says: "The Jews marveled, saying: 'How hath this man letters, having never learned?'" We, in our day, have found out that a man without a diploma may know as much as a man with one, and that a college cannot transform a sluggard into a philosopher or a theological seminary teach a fool to preach. An empty head after the laying on of hands of the presbytery is empty still. But it shocked all existing prejudices in those olden times for a man with no scholastic pretensions and no graduation from a learned institution to set Himself up for a teacher. It was against Him.

So also the brevity of His life was against him. He had not come to what we call midlife. But very few men do anything before 33 years of age, and yet that was the point at which Christ's life terminated. The first 15 years you take in nursery and school. Then it will take you six years to get into your occupation or profession. That will bring you to 21 years. Then it will take you ten years at least to get established in your life work, correcting the mistakes you have made. If any man at 33 years of age gets fully established in his life work he is the exception. Yet that is the point at which Christ's life terminated.

I imagine Christ one day standing in the streets of Jerusalem. A man descended from high lineage is standing beside Him and says: "My father was a merchant prince. He had a castle on the beach in Galilee. Who was your father?" Christ answers: "Joseph, the carpenter." A man from Athens is standing there unrolling his parchment of graduation and says to Christ: "Where did you go to school?" Christ answers: "I never graduated." Alas, the idea of such an unheralded young man attempting to command the attention of the world! As well some little fishing village on Long Island shore attempt to arraign New York. Yet no sooner does He set His foot in the towns or cities of Judea than everything is in commotion. The people go out on a picnic, taking only food enough for a day, yet are so fascinated with Christ that at the risk of starving they follow Him out into the wilderness. A nobleman falls down flat before him and says: "My daughter is dead." A beggar tries to rub the dimness from his eyes, and says: "Lord, that my eyes may be opened." A poor, sick, panting woman presses through the crowd and says: "I must touch the hem of His garment." Children who love their mothers better than anyone else struggle to get into His arms, and to kiss His cheek, and to run their fingers through His hair, and for all time putting Jesus so in love with the little ones that there is hardly a nursery in Christendom from which He does not take one, saying: "I must have them. I will fill Heaven with these, for every cedar that I plant in Heaven I will have 50 white lilies. In the hour when I was a poor man in Judea they were not ashamed of Me, and now that I have come to a throne, I do not despise them. Hold it not back, O weeping mother! Lay it on my warm heart. Of such is the Kingdom of Heaven."

Again I remark there was no organization in His behalf, and that was against Him. When men propose any great work, they band together, they write letters of agreement, they take oaths of fealty, and the more complete the organization the more and complete the success. Here was one who went forth without any organization and alone. If men had a mind to join in His company, all right; if they had a mind not to join in His company, all well. If they came, they were greeted with no loud salutation; if they went away, they were sent with no bitter anathema. Peter departed, and Christ turned and looked at him, that was all.

All this was against Him. Did any one ever undertake such an enterprise amid such infinite embarrassments and by such modes? And yet I am here to say it ended in a complete triumph. Notwithstanding His worldly occupation, His poverty, His plain face, His unpretentious garb—the fact that He was schoolless, the fact that He was not accompanied by any visible organization—notwithstanding all that, in an exhilaration which shall be prolonged in everlasting chorals He declared: "I have finished the work which Thou gavest Me to do."

See Him victorious over the forces of nature. The sea is a crystal sepulcher. It swallowed the Central America, the president and the Spanish armada as easily as any fly that ever flouted on it. The inland lakes are fully as terrible in their wrath. Some of us who have sailed on it know that Lake Galilee, when aroused in a storm, is overwhelming, and yet that sea crouched in His presence and licked His feet. He knew all the waves and the wind. When He beckoned, they came. When he frowned, they fled. The heel of His foot made no indentation on the solidified water. Medical science has wrought great changes in rheumatic limbs and diseased blood, but when the muscles are entirely withered no human power can restore them, and when a limb is once dead it is dead. But here is a paralytic—his hand lifeless. Christ says to him: "Stretch forth thy hand," and he stretches it forth.

In the eye infirmary how many diseases of that delicate organ have been cured? But Jesus says to one blind, "Be open!" and the light of heaven rushes through gates that have never before been opened. The frost or an ax may kill a tree, but Jesus smites one dead with a word. Chemistry may do many wonderful things, but what chemist at a wedding when the wine gave out could change a pail of water into a cask of wine? What human voice could command a school of fish? Yet here is a voice that marshals the scaly tribes, until in a place where they had let down the net and hauled it up with no fish in it they let it down again, and the disciples lay hold and began to pull; when by reason of the multitude of fish the net broke. Nature is his servant. The flowers—he twisted them into his sermons; the winds—they were his lullaby when he slept in the boat; the rain—it hung glitteringly on the thick foliage of the parables; the star of Bethlehem—it sang a Christmas carol over his birth; the rocks—they beat a dirge at his death. Behold his victory over the grave! The hinges of the family vault become very rusty because they are never opened except to take another in. There is a knob on the outside of the door of the sepulcher, but none on the inside. Here comes the conqueror of death. He enters that realm and says: "Daughter of Jairus, sit up!" and she sits up. To Lazarus, "Come forth!" and he came forth. To the widow's son He said: "Get up from that bier!" and he goes home with his mother. Then Jesus snatched up the keys of death and hung them to his girdle and cried until all the graveyards of the earth heard Him: "O Death, I will be thy plague! O Grave, I will be thy destruction!"

My subject also reassures us of the fact that in all our struggles we have a sympathizer. You cannot tell Christ anything new about hardship. I do not think that wide ages of eternity will take the scars from His punctured side and His lacerated temples and His sore hands. You will never have a burden weighing so many pounds as that burden Christ carried up the bloody hill. You will never have any suffering worse than He endured, when with tongue hot and cracked and inflamed and swollen he moaned: "I thirst." You will never be surrounded by worse hostility than that which stood around Christ's feet, foaming, reviling, livid with rage, howling down His prayers, and snuffing up the smell of blood. O ye faint hearted, O ye troubled, O ye persecuted one, here is a heart that can sympathize with you!

Again, and lastly, I learn from all that has been said to-day that Christ was awfully in earnest. If it had not been a momentous mission He would have turned back from it disgusted and discouraged. He saw you in a captivity from which He was resolved to extricate you, though it cost Him all sweat, all tears, all blood. He came a great way to save you. He came from Bethlehem here, through the place of skulls, through the charnel house, through banishment. There was not among all the ranks of celestials one being who would do as much for you. I lay His crushed heart at your feet to-day. Let it not be told in Heaven that you deliberately put your foot on it. While it will take all the ages of eternity to celebrate Christ's triumph, I am here to make the startling announcement that because of the rejection of this mission on the part of some of you all that magnificent work of garden and cross and grave is, so far as you are concerned, a failure. Helena, the empress, went to the Holy Land to find the cross of Christ. Getting to the Holy Land there were three crosses excavated, and the question was, which of the crosses was Christ's cross. They took a dead body, tradition says, and put it upon one of the crosses, and there was no life, and they took the dead body and put it upon another cross, and there was no life. But, tradition says, when the dead body was put up against the third cross, it sprang into life. The dead man lived again. Oh, that the life giving power of the Son of God might dart your dead soul into an eternal life, beginning this day! "Awake, thou that sleepest, and rise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee life!" Live now! And live forever!

MORE REPUBLICAN CORRUPTION SHOWN.

Fraud Is Rampant in Military Control of Cuba — Senator Lodge's Pro-British Snarl at Germany—Senator Davis' Silence—Opposition to the Ship Subsidy Bill.

[Special Correspondence.]

The scandals which have come to light regarding embezzlements in the Cuban postal service are having their effect in enlightening the country as to the meaning of imperialism. Rathbone, the republican head of the postal system of Cuba, was one of Mark Hanna's political henchmen. Neely, the financial agent of the Cuban postal service, who was apprehended and is under bonds, was a political friend and protege of the first assistant postmaster general. He comes from Indiana, where, in the city of Muncie, he used to earn a daily newspaper, which he sold to Perry Heath's brother. When arrested in New York it was Perry Heath's brother's bank, the present custodian of postal funds, which furnished Neely with the $20,000 cash bail on which he was released.

The known defalcation is already over $100,000. The indications are that it will amount to half a million and involve every prominent official of the Cuban postal service. Rathbone, the head of the service, is to be suspended for not detecting the crime. It surpasses human understanding that Rathbone himself is not accused of complicity. The evidences of corruption were so flagrantly visible that a blind man could have seen them. It is a nasty mess, but exactly what might have been expected under the circumstances. There are a dozen other cases as bad as this which have so far been successfully covered up.

Military Corruption.

Cuba is supposedly under the military control of the United States. There is a branch of the army known as the inspector general's service. This branch has for its duty the investigation of accounts, the examination of work done and supplies purchased, the scrutiny of military posts and similar work. It is the official critic of the whole military branch of the government, and has for generations considered it a matter of pride and honor to do good work. Very few scandals have ever been charged up to the inspector's service and nine out of ten frauds in the army have been discovered by the inspector general's office.

When the Spanish war broke out and it became necessary to give political protection to every scalawag and crooked contractor, big and little, who had any claim on the McKinley administration, it was found necessary to blindfold, handcuff and hobble the inspector general's office. This was done through the machinery of the adjutant general's office, which ordered nearly all the inspection officers to line duty in the field, thus preventing the inspection work from being done, and then compelling the few remaining reports to be made to come directly to the adjutant general instead of to their proper head, the inspector general.

The expected result was obtained. Inspection practically ceased, and fraud has run rampant in the army to the present day.

The officers of the United States army are as a class high-minded and honorable men. It is seldom that a scandal involving their financial integrity with government funds arises. But the contractors of every description who have dealings with the army need to be watched with an eagle's eye. The treasury has been swindled of millions of dollars during the last two years through army and navy frauds, particularly in the army. The inspection service has been hampered in such a manner as to make these frauds easy of perpetration. McKinley is responsible and the people have found him out.

A Pro-British Snarl.

It is significant that Senator Lodge makes his swashbuckling attack on Germany hardly three days after Lord Salisbury made his ill-timed speech in the same direction. It is well known in international affairs that Germany has no intention of interfering in the affairs of this hemisphere. There are 600,000 Germans in Brazil. There are more than 5,000,000 Germans in the United States. The German-Americans have supported the republican party as a rule to such an extent that without them the republicans could not have carried a presidential election in 20 years. Trusts, militarism, imperialism and the pro-British attitude of the administration have driven them from the republican party. Just why Lodge should have chosen this inauspicious occasion to further offend the German-Americans goes beyond understanding. Lodge is a man of great learning and little judgment. He is ambitious to be considered the foremost statesman in the senate. But his ablest efforts seem sophomorical beside the profound learning of Senator Hoar, while Senator Davis, of Minnesota, chairman of the foreign relations committee, is an intellectual giant beside him.

Senator Davis has been singularly silent since he cast his vote in opposition to the Porto Rican tariff infamy. He is known to be in open opposition to McKinley on nearly every proposition of importance relating to international affairs. He opposed any compromise on the Alaska pan-handle and was personally responsible for the amendment to the Hay-Pauncefote treaty securing to the United States full right to fortify the Nicaragua canal. He is wise enough to see that only disaster can follow the criminal and reckless policy of McKinley and he is wisely silent.

Opposition to Ship Subsidy.

The democratic minority of the committee on merchant marine and fisheries has presented to the house a report in opposition to the ship subsidy bill. It is a splendid document. They point out that not only is our foreign trade steadily increasing but that every shipyard in the country is in full operation without the aid of the subsidy and that therefore the subsidy is unnecessary. Only about five per cent. of the total tonnage of the world is not subsidized, and it is a hopeless task to lower freight rates by such a subsidy bill as is proposed when nine-tenths of that subsidy will go to passenger and mail steamers. The unfortunate history of American ship subsidies is quoted to show the fallacy of the scheme and attention is called to the fact that no assistance whatever would be given to the navy by these subsidized vessels except on exactly the same terms that they can be bought now, by paying the ship owners exactly what they demand for the ships, far in excess of their actual worth.

ADOLPH PATTERSON.

ONE BRIGHT RAY.

The Cause of the People Has a Chance Against That of a Special Class.

It is declared by Mr. Bryan that the senate of the United States is not definitely lost to the people, and that if he should be elected in November with the almost certain democratic gains, the free silver force in the senate would certainly be considerable and in the end decisive. The St. Louis Globe-Democrat, a rabid gold standard organ, concedes this much, and that Mr. Bryan's election will be a serious breach in the gold standard intrenchments and would give prestige to further efforts to break them down completely. The majority against silver in the existing senate is not over seven. Of the 30 senators whose terms expire March 3 next, 17 are republicans, including one each from Kansas, Montana, West Virginia, Oregon, Idaho, Nebraska, Wyoming and Colorado. Two gold democrats go out at the same time. The democrats are likely to fill two of the three vacancies, those in Delaware and Utah, and Bryan's election will bring in a democratic vice president, who would vote in case of a tie. Thus far the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Still further extending the idea, the people of the western states have reached the conclusion that they are misrepresented in the senate. Colorado, Wyoming, Kansas, Montana, Idaho and Nebraska are represented by six senators, who were elected on the pretense of being bimetallists and who voted for the single gold standard, the placing of paper money in the hands of the banks and the creation of a bank trust controlling all the business of the country. There is no question that the people of each and every one of these six states are absolutely opposed to the things for which their six senators voted, and the evidence is accumulating that they are taking exceedingly great care not to permit any of the six to further misrepresent them after next March. The change of these six states alone will cut the gold majority in the senate in two, without taking into account gains that may be made in other parts of the country. Kentucky has already elected a silver man to succeed Lindsay. In Louisiana Caffrey has been defeated overwhelmingly in the primaries by a silver man. The review of the whole situation will therefore appear to be one of great hope to the democracy and to the cause of the people, and that the election of Mr. Bryan will not be, as has been so often alleged, a useless expenditure of votes and the placing of a helpless incumbent in the presidential chair. Success, however, can only be attained by constant efforts to abide by unity of purpose. There never has been a time in the history of the country when the lines have been so clearly defined between the cause of the people and that of a special class.

An Entangling Alliance.

Mr. McKinley has brought the United States nearer to "an entangling alliance" by his oriental policy than was ever the case before in America's history. Mr. Olney is a keen observer, and we have his word for it that, "Except for Great Britain's countenance, we should almost certainly never have got the Philippines—except for her continued support, our hold upon them would be likely to prove precarious, perhaps altogether unstable. It follows that we now find ourselves actually caught in an entangling alliance, forced there not by any treaty or compact of any sort, formal or informal, but by the stress of the inexorable facts of the situation." Mr. Olney speaks the truth, whatever may be said by Mr. Hay to the contrary. Such a situation cannot exist without bringing the question of Britain into our presidential politics.—Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

——Although the surplus is piling up perilously in the federal treasury, word comes from Washington that the irritating war stamp tax must stick until after election, at least, because to relieve a portion of the payers of war taxes would make an alarming amount of ill feeling among those who would still be burdened. The administration is in a peculiar predicament. If the war tax goes it is a sign that we are well out of armed strife. But if war no longer hampers us, why keep some 60,000 soldiers in the Philippines? These would be awkward questions in a presidential campaign.—Detroit Free Press.

FROM HER STANDPOINT.

She Could Write Abut Matrimony But in Practice Was Somewhat Lacking.

"Henry!"

"Yes; I'll be there in a minute."

She bit at the end of her penholder and frowned as if in deep thought. The sentence she was trying to frame in her mind would not, apparently, assume a satisfactory form. Twice she dipped her pen in the ink, and twice she hesitated, says the Chicago Times-Herald.

"Henry!" she cried again, in the sternest tones at her command.

There was a lively hustling about in the adjoining room, and Henry, after a moment's suspense, replied:

"I'm coming. I've got your dog almost washed."

She rose and walked impatiently about. She was a tall, finely-proportioned woman, with a jaw that turned at a right angle below her ear, and a chin that protruded far forward into space. Her bearing was erect, she was elegantly dressed, and she moved as one who was always obeyed.

"Henry!" she called, for the third time, stamping angrily upon the floor and clenching her plump white fists.

At that moment a little, weazened man, whose coat was threadbare, who was run down at the heels, whose whiskers looked as if about half of them had at various times been pulled out and scattered abroad, and who trembled as if in fear, presented himself.

"Well," she said, "you've got here at last, have you? Oh, how you do exasperate me sometimes! If it were not for my ever-present self-respect I should feel like taking you by the scruff of your scrawny little neck and flinging you into the alley. I suppose you think when I call you that I do it merely to hear the sound of my own voice or to develop my lung power! Where's the dog?"

"If—he's in the—"

"Don't stand there drooling like an idiot! Why don't you speak up as if you had something to say? If you didn't rub the dear little thing good and dry and he catches cold I'll never forgive you. You are such a stupid ass that it is almost criminal to allow you to care for the poor creature without being watched. Now run down to the drug store and get me ten cents' worth of lime drops. Here's the money!"

He stood on tip-toes and extended a hand for the silver piece, so as to keep his face and whiskers out of her reach. When she had permitted the dime to drop into his palm he hurried away. Then, seating herself at the desk, she resumed the writing of the tenth in her series of brilliant articles on "Successful Marriages" for the Monthly Home Jollifier.

FUNERAL MARCH LUNCHEON.

Peculiar Method of a Chicagoan of Passing Time While Awaiting His Order.

His manner is the reverse of the somber and funereal. In fact, he is round, fat, jolly and talkative. Judging from his appearance and his words, he enjoys life. As reasonably successful and has no complaint to offer. May be he is an American Mark Tapley, who really needs something heart-racking to equalize the bubbling spray of good humor. But he certainly delivered himself of a singular combination when he ordered his luncheon, says the Chicago Chronicle.

It was in one of those places where business men "bite pie" and kindred things. Rows of stools face counters, while in the middle Senegambians walk about and occasionally drop things to the floor. He blew in literally, for a nasty wind chased him when he opened the door. He was humming to himself as he dodged the street filth borne on the wings of the breeze. A little thing like that could not dampen his cheerfulness. He sailed to a stool, assembled himself on top and then grinned approval at the waiter, who got right back at him.

"What's yours to-day, sir?" asked the waiter.

"Same old bill, Sam," was the breezy retort.

"Coffee and rolls, Mr. ——?"

"Coffee and rolls, Sam. Had a good morning this morning. Been too busy to think. Nice day, isn't it?"

Sam went for the coffee and rolls, and the cheerful man looked about him and beamed on all and sundry present and accounted for. Then, as if unconsciously, he resumed his song where he had left off. His nearest neighbor stopped the mastication of a sandwich and gazed in surprise. He saw the most rotund, cheery, individual he had met in days, with his arms folded across an ample waist, gayly chanting a funeral march. The somber music, irresistibly suggestive of tears and woe, seemed to give the fat man exquisite pleasure. He sang away in a subdued voice, stuck cleverly to the score and gamboled merrily through to the dismal end. He disposed of his coffee and rolls, waved a hand and smiled brightly upon an acquaintance, picked up his check and, still singing Chopin's saddest tune, paid his bill and departed. As he went out of the door a wild gust of wind cast back into the cafe a strain from that funeral march.

Caramel Custard.

Boil one cupful sugar with half cupful water till the sugar begins to turn light brown, then pour it into six custard cups, equally divided; turn the cups on all sides, allowing the caramel to form a lining on the inside. Mix at the same time one quart milk with six eggs, four tablespoonfuls sugar, one teaspoonful vanilla extract; pour this into the six cups, set the cups in a pan of water and bake till the custard is firm. Remove and set it for several hours on ice. In serving turn each custard onto a plate and serve (the caramel forming a sauce).—Ledger Monthly

Sleep Changes the Conflict.

The jury in a recent law suit unanimously agreed upon the verdict, sealed it and went home to bed. After sleeping over it, they went home the next morning. This shows the power of sleep to strengthen the human mind. Those who are troubled with insomnia should try Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It puts the stomach in good condition and induces sweet, sound sleep. It is the best of remedies for kidney, liver and blood disorders.

The Vicious, in Boston.

"Yes," replied the Boston parent, "a boy soon acquires vicious habits if he is suffered to mingle with street boys. Once I thought otherwise, and permitted our Emerson to choose his playmates as chance should throw them in his way. It wasn't a week, sir, until that boy, in spite of his hereditary tendencies and the careful home training he had received, was asking me hypothetical questions that simply reeked with casuistry!"—Puck.

Particular About His Shoes.

A western couple who were on a visit to New York for the first time put up at the Waldorf-Astoria during their stay in this city, and what was left of their first day in New York they largely devoted to viewing the decorations of the hotel. The myrtle room, the Astor gallery and the great ball room were viewed by them, and the magnificence of the appointments and opulent decorations left them breathless. They said little, however, to comment, but that awe was one of the feelings that what they had witnessed gave rise to was evidenced by the husband, who, upon retiring for the night, when he was asked by his faithful spouse, if, according to his usual custom, he was not going to put his shoes outside to be blackened, emphatically replied: "Not much. If I did they'd gild them."—N. Y. Tribune.

Number "Sixteen."

In his history of New York, one of the classics of American authorships, Diedrich Knickerbocker (Washington Irving) wrote lovingly, yet with unctuous sarcasm, of the bounties and foibles of his loved "New Netherlands," the peaceful valley of the Hudson from Albany to Manhattan, the many legends with which the entire region abounds—notably that of Rip Van Winkle and his long sleep—and of the ancient names and families whose descendants are still a power in that locality. So far reaching were the effects of the "History" that in time the name "Knickerbocker" became the popular one for the patron saint of New York City, he usually being represented as a benignant old German of ample girth, clutching firmly the long-stemmed clay pipe which Irving immortalized and gazing over his beloved City.

Recognizing the vein of sentiment in the American people long ago a train service was inaugurated to New York from St. Louis to which Father Knickerbocker lent his name and through the efforts of the line which introduced the service the "Knickerbocker Special" has become as familiar to the average traveled American as to the residents of his own City. Leaving St. Louis at noon, the traveler is borne swiftly and safely to Father Knickerbocker's abode, traversing by daylight those scenes with which he was so familiar, arriving at New York the next day in time for a leisurely preparation for evening.

So popular has the service proven that the Big Four has started a new train as a companion, it leaving St. Louis 8:00 A. M., receiving all Western and Southwestern connections and arriving in New York at 2:45 the next day. The train is known as the New York and Boston Limited, but the wary who travels much will call it Number Sixteen in emulation of his railroad brethren and inquire if "she" is on time. A month's business has demonstrated that it is a success. The Big Four's motto is "Comfort in travel," and the train amply lives up to the motto, as a trip on it will prove to those who desire every convenience in travel. A letter to the General Office of the Big Four at Cincinnati about any of their trains will always receive a prompt and courteous reply.

Mother (sternly)—"He kissed you twice, to my knowledge, and I don't know how often after that." Daughter—"Neither do I, ma. I never was much good at mental arithmetic."—Philadelphia Press.

Would a disclosure by Major Rathbone of the corruption of the election of Mr. Hanna to the Senate amount to anything? Is not the country already perfectly aware of the Hanna methods in all sorts of elections?—St. Louis Post Dispatch.

A horse belonging to William McElfresh, of Dover, was found dead in the pasture on Walter Wilson's farm a few days ago. The animal had got its head fastened between the forks of a tree and was choked to death.—Dover Public Messenger.

The autocratic power given to Rathbone by the President's commission has had much to do with bringing on the trouble. Under his "letter of credit" he held checks signed in blank, so to speak, to be filled out and cashed at his own sweet will.—Indianapolis Press.

The work of taking the census of the United States is to begin the first of June, and in order that our readers may be ready for the enumerator when he comes around, we publish below some of the questions asked.

You will be expected to give your name, your age, and you will be expected to say whether you are white, black, mulatto, quadroon, octoroon, Chinese, Japanese, or Indian, and if you are not one of these, heaven help the enumerator in his efforts to find out just what you are.

Another query will be as to whether you are "single, married, widow or divorced." The inquisitor will demand to know whether you speak English, and "if not, the language or dialect spoken" and also whether you are "suffering from acute or chronic disease, with name of disease and length of time afflicted."

Here are some of the questions relative to the individual's pecuniary condition:

"Is the home you live in hired or is it owned by the head or a member of the family?"

"Is the home free from mortgage incumbrance?"

"If the head of the family is a farmer, is the farm which he cultivates hired, or is it owned by him or a member of the family?"—Georgetown Times.

"It is with a good deal of pleasure and satisfaction that I recommend Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Druggist A. W. Sawtelle, of Hartford, Conn. "A lady customer, seeing the remedy exposed for sale on my show case, said to me: 'I really believe that medicine saved my life the past summer while at the shore,' and she became so enthusiastic over its merits that I at once made up my mind to recommend it in the future. Recently a gentleman came into my store so overcome with colic pains that he sank at once to the floor. I gave him a dose of this remedy which helped him. I repeated the dose and in fifteen minutes he left my store smilingly informing me that he felt as well as ever." Sold by W. F. McKim, Burlington; Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg, C. S. Balsly, Bullittsville, O. N. Grant, Bellevne.

THE indications are that Boone will produce at least an average crop of tobacco this year. The growers have been given a splendid opportunity to pitch their crop, and many have put out small plants rather than to take the chances of having a season just at the proper time a little later on. These plants will surely live and continue to grow, having considerably the advantage of larger plants set at a later date.

Solon Early, of Petersburg, has been appointed Deputy County Clerk.

The Hall of the school room was tastefully decorated, and the articles so artistically arranged they all were delighted with the exhibition. Miss Byrd was highly complimented by the praise lavished upon the works of her pupils. The young ladies have worked faithfully, and Miss Byrd has developed a faculty of imparting a knowledge of the art that is very remarkable.

Benj. S. Johnson, the oldest native born resident of this district, and it is probable of Boone county, died at the mature age of 84 on the morning of the 24th inst. "Uncle Ben" was born on what is now called the Dr. Southgate place, within a mile of town the 5th day of December, 1816, and has spent his long and useful life in this neighborhood. The most of his life was devoted to agricultural pursuits, in which he was successful. He leaves a number of descendants, sons and daughters and grand children, all of whom are highly respected in the community. He was buried at the Salem Baptist church cemetery, where he owned a spacious lot. His funeral was attended by a vast concourse of relatives and friends. For some years past he has expressed his willingness to be called from this earthly life, and he met death without a murmur. Peace to his memory.

In our last edition in making mention of the death of Mr. Reuben L. Ireland, the old reliable Hatter, Madison, we should have stated that his son Robinson L. Ireland had been associated with his father for nearly 20 years in the hat business, and for several years past has had the active management of "Ireland's Hat Store" and that he will continue the business and the same honest methods that has built up this large store will be continued by him.—Trimble Banner.

The above is the first apology the RECORDER ever saw made to the surviving member of a firm because the editor failed to give him a free advertisement embodied in the death notice of his partner.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 6, 1900. NO. 33

THE discovery of a gold mine is an every day occurrence in Kentucky now. The county without its gold mine will soon be a back number in the State.

JUDGE WILSON, of Barboursville, a leading Republican of that section, is threatening to do some talking "from the shoulder," and some of his party associates are experiencing an uneasy feeling.

OF course, it is scandalous for Germany to charge that American meats are bad. The embalmed beef investigating committee disproved all allegation to that effect. The Kaiser ought to be referred to it.

W. C. P. BRECKINRIDGE is trying to dip his spoon into the Democratic pudding in the Seventh district, but the Democrats up there have long since caught on to his motives, and only smile at his brazen effrontry.

IN the matter of reporting the Confederate Reunion at Louisville, last week, the Courier-Journal was the only paper in that city that was equal to the occasion. Its daily reports covered every feature of the occasion in a perfect manner.

THE President has appointed a politician United States District Judge at Buffalo, New York, in the face of protests from the entire bench and bar of that city. The appointee is said to be thoroughly incompetent, but his great ability as a scheming politician appears to be the only qualifications the President deemed necessary.

THE rain last week gave the ground a thorough wetting and came in such a gentle manner as to not wash the land any. The oats and have crops hae been greatly benefitted, and in some fields where these crops, previous to the rain, looked like a sure failure, the indications now are that there will be a pretty good yield.

THE grand jury that adjourned at London, Kentucky, a few days ago, returned six hundred indictments, a very formidable batch of testimonials as to the law-abiding character of the community to which W. S. Taylor attempted to adjourn the General Assembly, last winter, about the time the killing off of enough Democratic members to give the Republicans a majority was contemplated.

IN the last few years this has become a government of, by and for commissions. The Taft Philippine Commission has opened up business at Manila, and it will be only a short time until a commission will be sent to Havana to investigate the carpetbag administration of the postal affairs in that city. It is believed the commission will be able to find the postoffice building, and may be some of the most cumberson furniture.

THE Democrats of Boone county are called to meet at the Court House in Burlington next Saturday to select delegates to the State convention in Louisville, on the 14th of this month to select delegates to the Democratic national convention which meets in Kansas City, Missouri, July 4th. The order under which the primaries are directed held next Saturday is a continuation of the same "open door" policy as was poclaimed by the State Committee of a year ago, and which was the subject of some adverse criticism here on the day of the mass convention in 1899.

THE seven hundred men who have been reduced to want at Muncie, Indiana, as a result of the trust closing down the American Steel and Wire Company's mills there are denouncing the party that fosters such combinations for political purposes, and the prosperity song that has been sung to them since the last Presidential election has lost its charm. Prosperity that does not bring bread to the table of the laboring man for his wife and little ones, but dwells only with the manipulators of the trusts, is not the prosperity the toiling masses are seeking. They want a prosperity that permeates the laboring world.

AFTER a while, the President may, perhaps, learn the inadvisability of appointing incompetents to office. F. W. Peck, his commissioner to the Paris show, is now the center of a nasty scandal arising out of his lack of business ability; Mr. Hazel, his political judge appointee, is accused by a Republican Congressman of having been a party to swindling the Government out of a large sum during the Spanish war while the experience with ward heelers in Cuba is too recent to require comment.

[New York World.]

The ordinary annual expenditures of the Government averaged in President Harrison's term $361,291,323.

They averaged in President Cleveland's second term $360,480,546.

They have averaged in President McKinley's term $514,480,254.

The cost of running the Government is thus seen to have been increased by nearly $154,000,000 a year ever since McKinley was inaugurated. And this is not accounted for by the extraordinary disbursements of the war, which are not included in these "ordinary expenditures."

The outlay for war is a separate matter, and it accounts for the increase of the public debt by $200,000,000 since Mr. McKinley's inauguration.

The financial record of the Administration may therefore be summed up in a sentence. It has added nearly $13,000,000 a month to the regular running expenses of the Government and added $1.79 per capita to the national burden of debt.

The Democracy of Boone county, Kentucky, will hold a mass convention in the court house in Burlington on Saturday, June 9th, 1900, at 2 o'clock p. m., standard time, for the purpose of selecting delegates to the Democratic State Convention at Louisville, June 14th, 1900, to appoint delegates to the National Democratic Convention at Kansas City, Mo., on July 4th, 1900.

The basis of representation is one delegate for every 200 votes and fractions of 100 votes, cast for the head of the Democratic electoral ticket at the Presidential election in 1896.

All persons, who will at the November election, 1900, be legal voters in this county, who are devoted to the principles of the Democratic party, and desire to see those principles succeed, and who by participating in the Mass Convention will feel in honor bound to support the nominee of the Democratic National Convention, shall have the right and are hereby invited to participate in said mass-convention.

The Party laws and usages will govern in the holding of this convention.

The Law of Gubernatorial Succession.

[Western Argus.]

The provisions relating to an election to fill a vacancy in the office of Governor are contained in the constitutions of 1799, 1850 and 1891, and are printed to enable every reader to post himself in the provisions of the constitution applicable thereto:

Constitution of 1799, article 3, section 18. In case of the impeachment of the Governor, his removal from office, death, refusal to qualify, resignation or absence from the State, the Lieutenant Governor shall exercise all the power and authority appertaining to the office of Governor, until another be duly qualified, or the Governor absent or impeached shall return or be acquitted.

Sec 19. Whenever the government shall be administered by the Lieutenant Governor, or he shall be unable to attend as Speaker of the Senate, the Senators shall elect one of their own members as Speaker for that occasion. And if, during the vacancy of the office of Governor, the Lieutenant Governor shall be impeached, removed from office, refuse to qualify, resign, die or be absent from the State, the Speaker of the Senate shall, in like manner, administer the government.

Constitution of 1850, article 3, section 17. Should the Governor be impeached, removed from office, die, refuse to qualify, resign, or be absent from the State, the Lieutenant Governor shall exercise all the power and authority appertaining to the office of Governor, until another be duly elected and qualified, or the Governor absent or impeached shall return or be acquitted.

Sec. 18. When the government shall be administered by the Lieutenant Governor, or he shall fail to attend as Speaker or the Senate, the Senators shall elect one of their own members as Speaker for that occasion. And if, during the vacancy of the office of Governor the Lieutenant Governor shall be impeached, removed from office, refuse to qualify, resign, die, or be absent from the State, the Speaker of the Senate shall, in like manner, administer the government: Provided, That whenever a vacancy shall occur in the office of Govenor before the first two years of the term shall have expired, a new election for Governor shall take place to fill such vacancy.

Constitution of 1891. Section 84. Lieutenant when to act as Governor—Trial of Governor. Should the Governor be impeached, removed from office, die, refuse to qualify, resign, be absent from the State, or be, from any cause, unable to discharge the duties of his office, the Lieutenant Governor shall exercise all the power and authority appertaining to the office of Governor until another be duly elected and qualified, or the Governor shall return or be able to discharge the duties of his office. On the trial of the Governor the Lieutenant Governor shall not act as President of the Senate, or take part in the proceedings, but the Chief Justice of the Court of Appeals shall preside during the trial.

Sec. 85. President pro tem of the Senate—Vacancy in office of Governor. A President pro tem of the Senate shall be elected by each Senate as soon after its organization as possible, the Lieutenant Governor vacating his seat as President of the Senate until such election shall be made; and as often as there is a vacancy in the office of President pro tem, another President pro tem of the Senate shall be elected by the Senate, if in session. And if, during the vacancy of the office of Governor, the Lieutenant Governor shall be impeached and removed from office, refuse to qualify, resign, die or be absent from the state, the President pro tem. of the Senate shall, in like manner, administer the government: Provided, Whenever a vacancy shall occur in the office of governor before the first two years of the term shall have expired, a new election for governor shall take place to fill such vacancy.

The construction given to the Constitution of 1799 was that the vacancy in the office of governor was filled by the succession of the lieutenant governor, and that official continued in office for the remainder of that term.

The convention then framed the Constitution of 1850, altered the language of the old Constitution, and made it identical with the provisions of the present Constitution.

Under the Constitution of 1850 Gov. John L. Helm died a few days after he was inaugurated, and Lieutenant Governor John W. Stevenson succeeded to that office, but it was conceded that the Lieut. Gov. did not continue the full term until he was elected to the governorship by the people. The provision of the old Constitution had been changed to require an election. The election was held and the lieutenant governor was elected for the remainder of the gubernatorial term. After that Gov. Stevenson was elected to the united states senate, and the Speaker of the Senate succeeded to the vacancy of the governor for the remainder of the term, the vacancy not being within the first two years of the term.

Gov. Crittenden resigned the office of governor in 1850, and the lieutenant governor succeeded to the remainder of the term of that office under the constitution of 1799, because Gov. Crittenden and his lieutenant governor were elected in 1848, and the succession was prescribed by the constitution of 1799, and not that of 1850.

Go into the matter a little further and examine the debates of the last constitutional convention. There you will find Mr. Ramsey making a motion to strike out the provision requiring an election to the office of governor where the vacancy occurs before the first two years of the term expired and it was rejected. Mr. Ramsey's motion, had it passed, would have made the lieutenant governor succeed to the governorship for the remainder of the term, no matter at what time the vacancy happened. The constitution is too plain on the subject to cause any issue on the requirement of an election to fill this vacancy next November.

Glorious News

Comes from Dr. D. B. Cargile, of Washita, I. T. He writes: "Electric Bitters has cured Mrs. Brewer of scrofula, which had caused her great suffering for years. Terrible sores would break out on her head and face, and the best doctors could give no help; but now her health is excellent." Electric Bitters is the best blood purifier known. It's the supreme remedy for eczema, tetter, salt rheum, ulcers, boils and running sores. It stimulates liver, kidneys and bowels, expels poison, helps digestion, builds up the strength. Only 50c. Sold by W. F. McKim, Burlington, M. J. Crouch, Union, or J. G. Oelsner, Florence. Guaranteed.

IT seems that some of the RECORDER'S friends over at Union are having some trouble in deciding which variety of thistle is the Canada thistle, and investigation shows that the farmers over this way are very much divided in their opinions on this thistle question. By reference to pages 264-5, "1896 Year Book of the Department of Agriculture," the following unsatisfactory description of the Canada thistle along with some other weeds is found: "Propagated from running roots. These roots often branch and form a complete network extending horizontally at a depth of 6 to 30 inches below the surface of the grouud. They have no nodes, scales, or apparent buds. They are capable of producing shoots at almost any point. * * * The only practical methods of killing roots of this class are to starve or exhaust them by preventing the growth of any shoots above ground during several successive years, and to poison them with kerosene, brine, or acids, or other chemicals." J. F. Blyth, who had some experience with Canada thistles in Illinois, where they have been legislated against, says the picture given in the Year Book is a good representation of the thistle known in Illinoias as the Canada thistle, and that there they kill them by cutting them and salting the stubs.

THE Democratic Committee in the Seventh district met yesterday and rescinded the order calling a primary election, and called precinct meetings instead. The paragraph defining the qualifications of participants was modified so as to conform to the order of the State Committee.

Hon. D. Linn Gooch the Man.

[From the Pendletonian.]

There are various reasons why we should unite on some man for our nominee for Congress and from my standpoint Hon. D. Linn Gooch from Kenton is the logical candidate for this honor. Mr. Gooch has been a life long Democrat and was one of the original free silver Democrats of Kenton. He has worked for the Democratic party for years with untiring zeal, having built up the "Jefferson Club," of Covington, until to-day it is the strongest Democratic club in the State. He has three times been elected its president (which position he holds to-day), the latter two terms without opposition—something that never happened before in the club's history—thereby showing his standing with the masses of said club. From the lips of Mr. Goebel last fall, "he is a man that is true to his friends, a shrewd business man, and well versed in the political questions of the day, and would make the people of the Sixth district a fine representative." "A man true to his constituents" means a great deal to the masses, and if he possesses that quality it is more than can be said of many of our Congressmen. Let not the Democrats condemn him as they did our beloved Governor Goebel and then see cause to regret it. Make inquiry as to his qualification and standing, not among Covington politicians, but among the masses of working people, who have acquaintance with him, and in that respect you will find he stands just where Govenor Goebel stood; or ask Mr. Alex Devezac, County Clerk of Kenton, one of the strongest, if not the strongest man in Kenton county to-day with the farmers and masses of people, whose support goes to Mr. Gooch without hesitancy. The support of such men as Governor Goebel would have given and Mr. Davezac appeals to the country Democrats and masses of the people.

We have a Democratic State, a Democratic Governor now, thank God, and let us unite on a nominee for Congress in this district that we can depend upon. We have him in the person of Mr. Gooch, who has worked with untiring energy for years for our party, always ready to help bear the expenses of both State and National campaigns, and who has never before asked an honor from the hands of the Democratic party. Now consider, when we have a candidate with such a record (there being very few of such) from a political standpoint, can we afford to turn him down? There are some other candidates for this nomination who have had more honors now probably than they deserve; and others who "want to walk before they crawl."

Name another candidate more deserving and better qualified for the position, or more deserving from within or without Kenton county in this district? And surely the Democratic voters of Pendleton county, after calm and deliberate consideration of all the candidates, will decide, as they did last June, that the Kenton county man is the deserving and logical candidate for the welfare of the masses and our party, and will instruct for D. Linn Gooch. Every man, without question, has a right to his choice; therefore, let us refrain from using false and malicious statements, regarding other candidates as has been done in former canvasses. If your choice is not nominated, your brother Democrat's choice will, then be prepared to support him with your best effort. My choice is Hon. D. Linn Gooch, but if your choice gets the nomination you can depend upon my support.

Respectfully,
L. McD. GABBARD.

We have observed that when the good people of Owenton are arrayed against an evil they are always victorious.

A notice has been issued by the Parisian police warning the public, and especially foreign visitors, that a great number of false 50-franc notes are circulating in Paris and the large French towns. The notes are cleverly engraved and blended on special paper, resembling that used by the Bank of France, and inexperienced people may be easily deceived.

A new invention that is already on the market in Germany is that of artificial stone steps. A design imitating staircase carpets of any desired color is pressed into the steps when still soft, and as the design or figures penetrate to a considerable depth they last as long as the steps. Beautiful designs can be used and have been found suitable for fine residences.

Queen Victoria's walking stick is one of great historic value, having been the property of Charles II., to whom it was presented by a citizen of Worcester. Originally it was a branch of the tree in Boscobel in which Charles I. hid when he was pursued by Cromwell's men. To the plain gold handle that it first had the queen has added a queer little Indian idol, a part of the loot from Seringapatam.

The model village of Biltmore, N. Electric cooking, says the Western Electrician, is a luxury beyond the reach of the average householder, but Mr. Vanderbilt's villagers enjoy it to the full extent of its present development.

He has worked in Africa, Australia, India, South America, Asia and in most of the islands of the South Pacific.

The woodcock seems to be rapidly nearing the end of his race. The bird is not shot in the spring, but in many states the hunters are allowed to go after him in July. Ladies' maids there receive as high as seventy pounds a year.

THE STRIKE STILL ON.

Rioting Kept Up in Connection With the Street Railway Troubles.

Six Hundred Special Deputies Were Assigned to Duty and Three Hundred Held In Reserve—Subpoenaing Kept Up.

St. Louis, June 1.—The order of the police commissioners on the sheriff of St. Louis county to swear in 1,000 special deputies was followed by another order to swear in 1,500 additional men, making 2,500 in all, for the purpose of aiding the police department in preserving peace and order. To a certain extent these orders have created consternation among men in all walks of life, as is evidenced by Sheriff Pohlman's statement that an epidemic of sickness has suddenly broken out in the city since the draft for the posse began. Nearly every man of any position, the sheriff says, who has been summoned to serve in the posse is scurrying along to get a physician's certificate that he is suffering from some chronic disease which unfits him for duty.

Albert Keenig, a union man, emptied the contents of a shotgun into the body of Police Officer Crane and was himself instantly killed by a bullet from the revolver of Officer Maher on Broadway, near the Southern electric power house, late last night.

St. Louis, June 2.—As regards riotous demonstrations and shedding of blood in connection with the strike on the St. Louis Transit system, yesterday was one of the most uneventful since the employes went out, only one name being added to the list of casualties, that of Officer Crane, who died of wounds received the day before.

Former Gov. Wm. J. Stone is preparing the answer of the street railway to the injunction proceedings instituted in the federal court some time ago. Gov. Stone in the answer contends that there is an adequate remedy at law for a settlement of the difficulty without embroiling the federal government in the matter, and states further that there is no federal statute authorizing such an injunction as is prayed for in the United States court.

The swearing in of the posse comitatus is progressing smoothly. Nearly 500 men have been secured. When 1,000 men have been sworn in the force will be organized as a regiment, and if the 2,500 called for are sworn in, two regiments will be organized. Men of known military qualifications have been selected to drill and command the various companies.

St. Louis, June 4.—A riot of small proportion, during the progress of which a boy was fatally shot and a dynamite explosion marred what would have otherwise been an uneventful Sabbath. As a car on the Inner Grove line of the St. Louis Transit Co. was passing the corner of 42th and Calhoun streets a crowd of strike sympathizers began throwing rocks at it. An unknown man leaned from one of the windows of the car and fired a shot from a revolver toward the unruly crowd. The bullet sped over the heads of the mob and found lodgment in the breast of Peter Frank, a 16-years-old boy who was sitting in the doorway of his father's house, an interested spectator of the demonstration. A detachment of police dispersed the rioters and carried young Frank to the city hospital. The physicians say the wound will prove fatal.

At a late hour in the afternoon an explosion of dynamite shattered the cable conduits and switches on the Olive street line at the intersection of Maryland and Boyle avenues. No one was injured, but traffic on that end of the line had to be suspended. There is no clew to the perpetrators.

More than the usual quota of police was furnished for the protection of passengers and crews, and as a result the number of cars on the various lines of the Transit Co. was materially increased. Cars on the following lines were operated: Delmar avenue, Page avenue, Spalding avenue, Compton Heights, Chouteau avenue, California avenue, Tower Grove, Grand avenue, Easton avenue, Cass avenue, Olive street, Broadway, Fourth street, Sixth street, Northern Central and Union lines.

At 9:40 o'clock in the morning the nucleus of the first regiment of special deputies forming Sheriff Pohlman's posse comitatus, consisting of 10 companies of 60 men each, armed with riot shotguns, were assigned to active service in preserving order in the continuance of the street car strike. Their duties consisted in patroling the streets, doing guard duty at the various power houses and car sheds. The present intention of the police commissioners is not to detail any of this force to ride upon the street cars. Such of the posse as are not doing patrol duty at the power houses, car sheds and other points where danger is imminent will be held in reserve at the station houses.

Assignment for Gen. Otis.

Yaquis Again Unruly.

Ortiz, Mex., June 2.—The Yaqui Indians have again become very annoying to the Mexican troops near Torin. Several night attacks have been made recently and a number of casualties are reported.

THE EUROPEAN STATION.

It Will Be Re-Established by Rr. Adm. Rodgers—The New Kearsarge Will Be the Flagship.

Washington, June 3.—Rr. Adm. Frederick Rodgers has been selected to re-establish the European station, according to the general understanding at the navy department, and will probably fly his pennant from the new battleship Kearsarge in the English channel before the end of August. At the final inspection of the battleship the first of this week by Adm. Rodgers this information was imparted to the officers of the ship, and they were too delighted to keep their good fortune as secret as the navy department wished for a month or two at least.

The choice of the Kearsarge as flagship of the European fleet is regarded as particularly appropriate, as she will create a good impression concerning the latest products of American naval ingenuity, including the superimposed turrets and electrical auxiliaries. Adm. Rodgers is also regarded as admirably fitted to command this important station, which was abandoned for lack of ships just before war was declared two years ago, and on which no American pennant has since been displayed except that of Adm. Dewey last year.

The other vessels of the fleet, except the Albany, which has just been commissioned in English waters, have not yet been selected, and it is possible that no others can be spared until next fall, when the admiral will naturally wish to cruise into the Mediterranean. By that time, unless the porte in the meantime pays the promised missionary indemnity, the command will be strengthened until capable of making a considerable display of force.

THE CANAL BILL.

It Was Made Special Order for Next Session—Amended General Deficiency Bill Passed.

Washington, June 3.—Soon after the senate convened Saturday, Mr. Morgan, chairman of the committee on interoceanic canals, made a request that the so-called Hepburn-Nicaragua canal bill be made the special order for consideration at 2 p. m. on Monday, December 10—the second Monday of the next session. Mr. Morgan said he realized the impossibility of obtaining consideration of the bill at this session. His request was agreed to.

When morning business was concluded the senate proceeded consideration of the general deficiency bill An amendment was offered by Mr Morgan and agreed to, appropriating $14,535 to reimburse the Maritime Canal Co., of Nicaragua, for expenditures in aid of the commission authorized by act of congress known as the Ludlow commission for inspection and survey of the Nicaragua canal. An amendment was offered, and after some discussion was agreed to, to pay an extra month's salary to employees of the senate and house of representatives. After several minor amendments had been made to the bill it was reported to the senate, the amendments agreed to and the bill passed. This is the last of the general appropriation bills.

RUSSIAN CRUISER VARIAG.

On Her Builder's Trial Trip She Developed 22 Knots an Hour, Under Natural Draft.

Philadelphia, June 3.—The Russian cruiser Variag, which left Cramp's ship yards Tuesday for her builder's trial at sea, returned to this city Saturday after having been given a satisfactory test. The big warship and her battery were tried out in every conceivable way, and not one weak spot was found in the construction of the vessel or in her engines or boilers. On her speed trial, the cruiser developed 22 knots an hour, under natural draft, and with one of her boilers out of use, and the builders are confident that she can cover fully 24 knots when put under forced draught.

The Variag will have her official trial in July, and will be ready to be placed in commission late in August.

Plot to Assassinate the Sultan.

Constantinople, May 31, via Frontier, June 3.—A plot to assassinate the sultan was discovered Monday last. The ministers of war and marine and several high palace functionaries were concerned in the conspiracy. Fearing a general uprising if the conspirators were arrested, the sultan contented himself with dismissing them from offices.

IS AGUINALDO SLAIN?

Many Filipinos Killed in Luzon and Other Islands.

Their Loss in a Few Days' Fighting in the Different Places Will Foot Up at Least Six Hundred.

Vigan, Luzon, June 4.—Maj. March, with his detachment of the 33d regiment, overtook what is believed to have been Aguinaldo's party on May 19 at La Gat, about 100 miles northeast of Vigan. The Americans killed or wounded an officer, supposed to be Aguinaldo, whose body was removed by his followers. Aguinaldo had 100 men, Maj. March 125.

Maj. March's men entered La Gat on the run. They saw the insurgents scattering into the bushes or over the plateau. A thousand yards beyond the town, on the mountain side, the figures of 25 Filipinos dressed in white, with their leader on a gray horse, were silhouetted against the sunset. The Americans fired a volley and saw the officer drop from his horse. His followers fled, carrying the body. The Americans on reaching the spot caught the horse, which was richly saddled. Blood from a badly wounded man was on the animal and on the ground. The saddlebags contained Aguinaldo's diary and some private papers, including proclamations.

Manila, P. I., May 4.—(Correspondence.)—The last two weeks have seen a general spread of rebel activity throughout Luzon and even into the other islands, which has been sharply offset by immediate retaliation. The rebels have attacked by day and by night several of the 267 towns we garrisoned. Over 300 Filipinos were killed by troops of Gen. Young's command in North Ilocos province, during three days' hard fighting last week. Over a hundred were killed down in Cumerinos province, under Gen. Bell, and at least fifty were killed in their recent attack upon Cagayan de Misamis in northern Mindanao. Five hundred dead Filipinos would be a conservative estimate of their losses during the past few days, and a number of smaller engagements that have passed unnoticed will bring the total up to at least six hundred. A remarkable feature is that during the fighting, which resulted in this heavy loss to the rebels, the American forces have not had more than six men killed and fourteen wounded.

On April 16, Lieut. Duncan, of the 34th, with eight men, met three hundred insurgents, and after a short fight, returned to Batac and reported to Col. Howse. The colonel withdrew his troops from the town, and when the insurgents entered, he surrounded the place. A fight ensued, in which 180 Filipinos were killed. The official report of Col. Howse reads:

"The attack on Batac, on April 16, was precipitated by three causes, the imprisonment of several insurgent leaders, Capt. Dodds' punishment of the rebels the day previous, when fifty-six were killed, and Lieut. Duncan's attack on the enemy that same morning. Duncan met them in the foothills, and with eight men dispersed two hundred, of whom seventy had rifles. He killed twenty-nine and captured twenty-two. He exhausted his ammunition and fell back, fighting all the way to Batac, where Capt. Rollins prepared for the insurgents.

"When the insurgents reached Batac their force had increased to six or seven hundred, who made a determined attack. It was necessary for our troops to charge the enemy in their positions, and two Americans were killed and three wounded. At times the fighting was hard to hand, and the desperation of the fanatics was shown by the enemy. By forced march, Lieut. Thaler, with twenty-five cavalrymen and ammunition, reached Batac at 2:45 p. m. At 4 p. m. the enemy withdrew, but soon were greatly reinforced. They set fire to the town, and under cover of the dense smoke fought stubbornly. At 5:30 Lieut. Haight, with troops L, of the 3d cavalry, arrived, and the enemy was soon driven off. Their losses were 108 killed and wounded, also 72 prisoners. This same day Capt. French, with 120 men, met the enemy near Vintor and killed 23."

The total number of killed in North Ilocos province in three days is given at 333. This does not include the wounded who crawled away into the brush.

Black Cancer Rash.

Newport, Vt., June 2.—An epidemic of black cancer rash prevails at West Derby, a suburb of Newport. Three deaths have occurred within a week, and in each instance the victim had been ill but two days when fatal symptoms appeared. They were buried immediately. About fifty houses have been quarantined, and schools have been closed and everything possible is being done to prevent further spread of the plague.

Ministry May Resign.

The Hague, June 3.—The first chamber has rejected, by 29 to 20 votes, the government bill to insure workmen against accidents. It is expected that the ministry will resign.

REVOLTING SCENES.

Louis Klopsch's Report on How He Found the Famine-Stricken District in India.

Bombay, June 4.—Louis Klopsch, of New York, publisher of the Christian Herald, who arrived here May 14 and started at once on a tour of the famine-stricken districts, has returned after traveling through the most sorely smitten portions of the Bombay presidency, including Gujerat and Baroda. He makes the following statement regarding his observations:

"Everywhere I met the most shocking and revolting scenes. The famine camps have been swept by cholera and smallpox. Fugitives, scattering in all directions and stricken in flight, were found dying in the fields and roadside ditches. The numbers at one relief station were increasing at the rate of 10,000 per day. At Godhera there were 5,000 deaths from cholera within four days, and at Dohad 2,500 in the same period. The hospital death rate at Godhera and Dohad was 90 per cent.

"The condition of the stricken simply beggars description. Air and water were impregnated with an intolerable stench of corpses. At Ahmedabad the death rate in the poorhouse was 10 per cent. Every day I saw new patients placed face to face with corpses. In every fourth cot there was a corpse.

"The thermometer read 115 in the shade. Millions of flies hovered around the uncleansed dysentery patients.

"I visited the smallpox and cholera wards at Viragam. All the patients were lying on the ground, there being no cots. Otherwise their condition was fair.

"I can fully verify the reports that vultures, dogs and jackals are devouring the dead. Dogs have been seen running about with children's limbs in their jaws.

"The government is doing its best, but the native officials are hopelessly and heartlessly inefficient. Between the famine, plague and cholera the condition of Bombay presidency is now worse than it has been at any previous period in the nineteenth century. Whole families have been blotted out. The spirit of the people is broken, and there may be something still worse to come when the monsoon breaks."

Chicago, June 3.—It was announced Saturday that the Chicago India relief committee has cabled £1,000 sterling to Lady Curzon, wife of the viceroy, to be used in the famine district. In a letter mailed to Lady Curzon, formerly Mary Leiter, of Chicago, it is explained that other cities aided in collecting the amount cabled. Special mention, the letter says, is due Gov. Mount, of Indiana, for his assistance.

WANTS MORE SOLDIERS.

Gen. MacArthur Makes a Special Request for Cavalry, and Three Regiments Will Be Sent.

Washington, June 2.—Gen. MacArthur has asked for more troops in the Philippines, and has made a special request that only cavalry be sent to him. He also asked that they be regulars. In a short time three regiments of cavalry will be sent to Manila. It is probable that one will be taken from Cuba. The other two, which will go from this country, will be made up of the Sixth and a regiment to be determined upon.

Spoke While the Policemen Slept.

Newmarket, Ireland, June 4.—Two hundred police were sent here Saturday evening to suppress a prohibited United Irish league meeting called for Sunday. While the police were asleep in the morning about 7 o'clock James Christopher Flynn, nationalist member of parliament for North Cork, and E. Crean, member for the Ossory division of Queens county, slipped in unobserved, addressed a meeting of 200 in the town square and burned the proclamation prohibiting the meeting. The meeting dispersed amid cheers as the police appeared on the scene.

Judgment for $16,000.

San Francisco, June 2.—A judgment for $16,000 has been rendered against Frank Van Ness, the horseman, who about five years ago, while handling the race horse Morello, converted the animal to his own use and removed him to this state. An action was commenced by the owners, J. W. Gregory and Louis Lammert, of Philadelphia, but during the proceedings the animal died, and a suit for $20,000 was brought. It was shown that Morello was a valuable horse, and the jury returned a verdict in favor of the plaintiffs. The case will probably be taken to the supreme court.

Will Meet in Raleigh Next Year.

Atlanta, Ga., June 5.—Secretary Royal Daniel, of the Cotton States association of the commissioners of agriculture there, announced Saturday morning that the next annual convention will be held in Raleigh, N. C., August 26, continuing three days. All southern states will probably be represented.

Demands of Machinists.

Philadelphia, June 4.—The union machinists of this city have decided to demand of their employers on Labor day (September 3) that they reduce the hours of labor from ten to nine a day, with a minimum of wages of 28 cents an hour.

Commerce of the World.

Washington, June 4.—Of the $18,000,000,000 worth of commerce done by all the nations of the world, England's share is 18.3 per cent, Germany's 10.8 per cent, and 9.7 per cent falls to the lot of the United States.

GAVE SOME POKER ADVICE.

How Comedian Daly "Laid Down" to His Tailor by Telephone.

There probably have been times when Dan Daly was a few cents ahead in a quiet game of draw, but nobody in the alley seems to be able to locate them. His hands never yet have become calloused dragging celluloid buttons across a green cloth. He has got so used to quietly "laying down" that any other turn of affairs, his friends are afraid, would bring about heart failure.

The other day his tailor called him up by telephone, says the Chicago Chronicle.

"Hello," says the tailor.

"Hello," says the telephone girl, soft and mellow. "Number, please."

"Umpteen hundred and steen," says the tailor.

"Well, hello," says Daly.

"Is Mr. Daly there?" asks the tailor.

"Yes. This is he."

"Oh, is that you, Mr. Daly? I didn't recognize your voice."

"Yes, Yes."

"Keep away there, central! Hello there! Hello, there! Hello, Mr. Daly!"

"Well, well, what is it?" says Daly.

"This is Mr. Taylor," says the tailor.

"Well, what do you want?"

"Hello! Is that Mr. Daly?" shrieks the tailor.

"Yes, yes, yes. What are you trying to do?"

"I've got two pairs of trousers here—" begins the tailor.

"Speak louder," says Daly.

"I've got—" begins the tailor again.

"You're too near the 'phone," says Daly. Then the tailor roars:

"I've got two pairs—"

"They're good," says Daly, and he rings off.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have seen so many letters from ladies who were cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's remedies that I thought I would ask your advice in regard to my condition. I have been doctoring for four years and have taken different patent medicines, but received very little benefit. JOHANNESBURG QUIET.

Roberts Reports That Arms and Ponies Are Being Surrendered.

Col. Spring and His Battalion of Imperial Yeomanry Attacked Between Kroonstad and Lindley —No News From Pretoria.

Lourenzo Marques, June 3.—President Kruger Friday was still at Machadodorp (about half way between Pretoria and the Portugues frontier on the railroad between the Transvaal capital and Delagoa bay). Boer commands totaling about 10,000 men, held, Thursday, all the positions and hills around Pretoria. Another large command was at Bronkhursts Spruit (about forty miles from Pretoria, on the railroad leading to Delagoa bay).

London, June 4.—Lord Lansdowne, secretary of state for war, has received the following from Lord Roberts, dated Orange Grove, June 2:

"Johannesburg is quiet. The people are surrendering arms and ponies. Only three Boer guns were left in the fort. The shops are being opened, and there seems to be a general feeling of relief at the peaceful occupation of the town.

"The Queenslanders captured May 30 a Creusot, with 11 wagons of stores and ammunition.

"Commandant Botha, of Zoutspansberg, his field cornet and 100 prisoners were taken in the fighting around Johannesburg, some belonging to the foreign contingents and the Irish brigade.

"Owing to the interruption of the telegraph lines, I only to-day received a report from Col. Spring that his battalion of imperial yeomanry was attacked between Kroonstad and Lindley on May 29. Casualties to follow.

"The proclamation announcing the annexation of the Orange Free State was made known at Bloemfontein on May 26 by Gen. Pretyman, military governor. The troops under Gen. Kelly-Kenny formed a square, the royal standard was hoisted, the troops saluted, a royal salute was fired and the queen was cheered. The name 'Orange River Colony' was well received.

"Received a report yesterday that four prisoners had escaped from Pretoria."

There is no direct news from Pretoria of later date than Thursday evening. Gen. French's cavalry were then at Irene, eight miles south of Pretoria, and firing was heard there. Lord Roberts' messages about secondary operations elsewhere and the situation at Johannesburg, dated at Orange Grove, a farm four miles northeast of Johannesburg, show that on Saturday at 9:10 p. m. he was 25 miles from Pretoria.

The correspondents with Lord Roberts have not got through a line about the operations after the occupation of Johannesburg. Official messages continue to come through, but press telegrams are held up, probably to avoid their giving a hint as to what may be the pending operations. From the other side there filters through Lourenco Marques a mass of statements, some contradictory, others obviously improbable, but all purporting to be facts.

Passengers arriving at Lourenco Marques Saturday direct from Pretoria say that the capital was preparing to surrender when they left on Thursday. The first trains were dismantled. The boer guard at Komatipoort searched all trains and turned back most of the fugitives, among them deserting foreigners who were trying to reach neutral soil.

REEVES ARRESTED.

The Confession Made by the Supposed Neely Accomplice Suspected to Be Only Half the Truth.

Havana, June 3.—A warrant was issued for the arrest of former Deputy Auditor W. H. Reeves, who was lodged in jail, his bail being fixed at $1,500. It is now believed that Reeves in his so-called "confession" only gave half the truth. Indeed, the delay in placing him behind the bars was largely due to the desire of the officials to obtain the remainder of his information regarding Neely's evolutions.

A very important feature relates to an allegation that Neely gave another man $15,000. This, if true, can only be established in the United States, and an inspector will leave Havana shortly to investigate. Reeves asserts that heavy mortgages were lifted from the property of the accused man by funds that could not have been obtained in any other way than through Neely.

Rathbone's Threat.

New York, June 3.—A Washington dispatch says Maj. Rathbone has written Assistant Postmaster General Perry Heath that if he is arrested he will make it decidedly uncomfortable for several others in a political way.

Emperor and Crazy Man.

Berlin, June 1.—Considerable excitement was caused here by the arrest of an individual in Unter der Linden as the emperor was proceeding to Potsdam station. The man's strange actions led to his arrest, and an examination of the prisoner showed him to be insane.

Indian Relief Fund.

Chicago, June 1.—The Chicago committee of the relief movement for starving India cabled $5,000 to Lady Curzon Thursday as its donation in relief of the sufferers.

FLAG CONTROVERSY.

The Sons of Confederate Veterans Will Probably Carry Only the Confederate Flag.

Louisville, Ky., June 2.—By a vote of 101 to 68 the Sons of Confederate Veterans refused to lay on the table a motion offered by W. H. McLaws, division commander of Georgia, that only the confederate flag be carried in the Sons of Veterans' division of the confederate reunion parade. Mr. McLaws said he understood the United States flag was to be carried at the head of the Sons of Veterans.

A number of delegates made speeches, and it became apparent that an unexpected issue had come before the convention. Several delegates strongly urged that the Sons of Veterans carry both the United States and the confederate flags in the parade. The part played by the south in the Spanish-American war and the recent action of President McKinley in wearing a confederate button and suggesting that the United States government treat the confederate just as it treats the union soldier were urged as reasons why the United States flag should be carried by the Sons of Veterans.

After a number of speeches had been heard there were rejoinders. The discussion was growing wider and more interesting, when it was cut off by the motion to table Mr. McLaws' motion. All the speakers said no veteran's son was to-day disloyal to the United States flag, but they regarded the confederate flag as the emblem of their organization, and thought it should lead their parade for that reason. As the discussion had prolonged considerably the session of the convention, adjournment was taken after the vote was taken.

The report of the historical committee dealt with the effort made by the Sons of Veterans to have histories of the United States which they consider just to the south taught in all the southern schools. The report said the committee had received many letters from the north commending its course, for it wanted school histories to be as fair to the north as to the south.

The report of the relief committee renewed former recommendations for care of indigent confederate veterans and the securing of state pensions.

Louisville, Ky., June 2.—The United Sons of Confederate Veterans elected Biscoe Hindman, of Louisville, commander-in-chief, and after completing their business adjourned sine die. The Sons of Veterans will meet next year in the same city that the United Veterans meet in and at the same time. The motion to have only the confederate flag in the Sons of Veterans' division of the parade did not come up, the delegates by common consent allowing the flag question to be settled by the committee of the United Veterans which has the parade arrangements in charge. There was a strong sentiment that the flag incident should be quietly closed.

DISFRANCHISEMENT.

Committee to Investigate Whether the Exclusion From Franchise of Negroes is Constitutional.

Washington, June 2.—The senate committee on privileges and elections Friday had under consideration Senator Pritchard's resolution declaring exclusion from the privileges of the franchise because of the race to be unconstitutional. The committee decided to recommend the adoption of a substitute directing the committee to investigate whether such exclusion is antagonistic to the constitution. The substitute passed the committee by a party vote, and if it is agreed to by the senate the investigation will be undertaken by the committee. The resolution is predicated on conditions in North Carolina, but considerable interest is manifested in it by the senators from all the southern states.

STRIKE IN KANSAS CITY.

All Building Trades Tied Up Except the Work on the Big Convention Hall.

Kansas City, Mo., June 2.—A general strike of all the building trades in Kansas City was ordered at a meeting of the Building Trades council. It is said that over 5,000 workmen will be involved. The strike order follows the lockout declared about two weeks ago by the Builders' club, an organization of contractors.

The contractors, after continued troubles with sympathetic strikes, announced that no members of unions affiliated with the Building Trades council would be employed. The strike order issued excepts the workmen employed on Convention hall and work for such contractors as surrender their membership in the Builders' club.

CHINA BACKS DOWN.

Marines From Six Foreign Warships Allowed to Enter Pekin.

The Chinese Foreign Office Apologizes for Having Refused the Russians and French Permission to Land—Quiet in Pekin.

Pekin, June 1.—At 2:30 a. m. yesterday the foreign envoys received the reply of the Tsung Li Yamen to their ultimatum of Wednesday calling upon the Chinese authorities to consent to the landing of a force of marines to come to Pekin to guard the legations.

The ultimatum fixed the hour of 6 a. m. as the hour at or before which the reply must be forthcoming. The Tsung Li Yamen agreed to withdraw opposition to the coming of the guards.

Tien Tsin, June 1.—A special train has started for Pekin with the following forces:

Americans—Seven officers and 56 men.

British—Three officers and 72 men.

Italians—Three officers and 39 men.

French—Three officers and 72 men.

Russian—Four officers and 71 men.

Japanese—Two officers and 24 men.

The foreign contingent also took with them five quick-firing guns. It is rumored that foreign troops will be opposed at the first gate of the Chinese capital, outside the wall.

London, June 2.—The Pekin correspondent of the Times says: "The government gave every facility for the arrival of the foreign guards. The streets were orderly. The Russians, as well as the French, were forbidden to land Wednesday, but the Tsung Li Yamen has apologized, explaining the mistake."

Shanghai, June 2.—Twenty-three warships are now at Taku—nine Russian, three British, three German, three French, two American, two Japanese and one Italian. In addition to their crews, the Russians have on board their warships 11,000 troops from Port Arthur, with field equipment. Fourteen thousand Russian troops are held in rendiness at Port Arthur.

London, June 2.—The Vienna correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says: "An active exchange of dispatches is going forward among the great powers relative to China. The colossal superiority of Russia's representation at Taku is regarded as significant. The triple alliance advocates united action by Europe to protect common interests."

Shanghai, June 2.—The detachment of over 200 international blue jackets has arrived at Pekin.

Washington, June 2.—The marines that have arrived at Pekin are for the purpose of protecting the foreign legations in that city and to check the designs of the Boxers so far as they are able and compatible. It is doubtless the party that left Taku three days ago and includes the men from the cruiser Newark that were landed at that port. It is also presumed that the party includes the Russians, Germans, French and British marines that were reported to have left Taku at the same time the men from the Newark began their march. The arrival of the marines is taken as evidence that they were not opposed by the hostile element that has arisen. It is a good three days' march from Taku to Pekin and had the blue jackets been opposed their arrival would have been delayed.

Minneapolis, Minn., June 2.—Bishop J. W. Joyce, of the Methodist church, who spent much time in China and is thoroughly familiar with the country in which the Boxer outbreak is life, believes the powers will succeed in restoring order and in putting the railroad in operation. He points out that the atrocities committed have been confined to small towns and villages without military protection. He ascribes the trouble primarily to Chinese hatred of the present Mongolian dynasty.

Pekin, June 3.—American and other foreign guards, numbering 399, arrived here in the midst of the Dragon festival. The streets were unusually crowded, and, though the people were greatly interested in the unusual spectacle, no manifestation of hostility was made.

The presence of the guards has already had a marked effect upon the bearing of the Chinese toward foreigners. The excitement in the adjacent country has been much allayed, but many Christian refugees are still flocking into the city. The "Boxers" are evidently moving afield. Unfortunately no leaders of the "Boxers" have been arrested, though their capture would have been easy. All the government has done has been to occupy the scenes of the disturbances, and no real repressive measures have been taken.

Tien Tsin, June 3.—The foreigners who escaped from Pao Ting Fu are ten miles from here. Four of the party have been killed and four are wounded. An expedition is proceeding to their relief.

Explosion of Chemicals.

Rochester, N. Y., June 2.—A heavy explosion of chemicals at Eastman Kodak works, just outside the city line Friday wrecked a portion of that building. Foreman Treacy was instantly killed and several were injured.

Surgeon Delegates to Paris.

Detroit, Mich., June 2.—The International Association of Railway Surgeons appointed Dr. W. H. Caldwell of Freeport, Ill., delegate to the international medical congress, which will meet in Paris in August.

W. S. TAYLOR INDICTED.

A Bench Warrant Has Been Issued for Him as an Accessory to the Murder of Senator Goebel.

Frankfort, Ky., June 1.—Circuit Clerk Ford received an order from Judge Cantrill Thursday morning directing him to issue a bench warrant for the arrest of former Gov. W. S. Taylor. The warrant is based on the indictment charging Mr. Taylor with being an accessory to the assassination of William Goebel. The warrant was issued and placed in the hands of Deputy Sheriff John Suter, who is acting in the absence of the regular sheriff.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 1.—W. S. Taylor, who is at Martinsville Thursday confirmed the report that a warrant had been issued for his arrest in connection with the Goebel murder. Mr. Taylor said he received private advices to this effect early Thursday. He refused to speak in detail concerning the affair, further than to state that the latest developments will have no effect on his future plans.

He will come to this city from Martinsville Friday. It is believed that an attempt will be made to serve the warrant in this city.

Martinsville, Ind., June 1.—W. S. Taylor has signed a contract with an eastern life insurance company to be its executive manager. Mr. Taylor said that it was contingent on his remaining in Indiana. Mr. Taylor said: "I may return to Kentucky within a few days, and I may not go back till after the election." He said he wrote to Chairman Barnett, of the Kentucky republican committee, suggesting that the convention be held about June 26.

NEGRO ENUMERATORS.

Census Supervisor Wheeler Can See No Reasonable Objection to Their Appointment.

Charleston, S. C., June 1.—Census Supervisor Wheeler one month ago appointed forty-two enumerators for Charleston, eighteen of whom are colored. A protest against colored enumerators because of probable incompetency was filed in Washington and referred to Supervisor Wheeler. But he sees no objection to colored enumerators, especially as there are only eighteen out of forty-two, and more especially as Charleston has a Negro population of nearly 40,000. This estimate might be wrong, he said, but he thought this census would prove it.

"If the 75,000 mark hoped be reached, there will have to be a Negro population of that number—40,000," he said.

As to how the enumerators will be treated remains to be seen. It is hardly probable that there will be any trouble, but if there is the colored census takers will be asked to resign. They have already been asked to hand in their appointments, but it is not thought that they will do so until the test has been made.

VETERANS OF THE CIVIL WAR.

They Are Dying Off at the Rate of About Three and One-Third Per Cent. Per Annum.

Washington, June 1.—Commissioner of Pensions Evans estimates that there are about 925,000 survivors of the civil war. Of this number there were on the pension rolls last year 742,467.

During the year 24,787 pensioned veterans died.

This number is slightly more than three and one-third per cent. Assuming that the death rate among those not pensioned is the same as among the pensioners, the total number of veterans who died during the year would be about 30,855.

Commissioner Evans estimates that the average age of the veterans who still survive is about 59 years.

The last survivor of the war of 1812 died last summer, 75 years after the close of that war. At the same rate there will probably be a few survivors of the civil war still living in 1940.

AN EIGHT-YEAR-OLD HERO.

He Drags His Little Sister and Brother From Burning Building —Mother and Baby Perished.

Media, Pa., June 1.—Two children were dragged from a burning house on the truck farm of T. Steer Bickstaff by their 8-year-old brother, who, driven out by the flames, left his mother and baby to perish.

His mother, carrying the baby and a lamp, fell on a stairway, the lamp setting fire to the house. The carpets, saturated with oil from the lamp, burned fiercely, and the boy, realizing that the house was doomed, dragged out a brother and sister, who were intent on rushing through the fire to their mother. Then he returned for his mother, whose arms clasped the baby. But her weight was too great for his little arms, and as the flames were closing in on him, he gave a last despairing look at the doomed woman and fled, heartbroken, to a place of safety.

STATE ODDS AND ENDS.

CAN DO NOTHING.

The Sheriff Unable to Serve the Warrant Calling for the Arrest of W. S. Taylor.

Frankfort, Ky., June 2.—The issuance of a bench warrant for the arrest of W. S. Taylor was the first official notice that an indictment had been returned naming Mr. Taylor as an accessory to the murder of William Goebel. It had been rumored for weeks that the indictment had been returned, but the officials refused to either confirm or deny it. The indictment was filed and entered of record April 19.

The bench warrant commands the sheriff or other arresting officer to arrest William S. Taylor and deliver him to the jailer of Franklin county. On the back of the indictment about 50 persons are named as witnesses for the commonwealth. The bench warrant was placed in the hands of Sheriff John Suter, who is acting in the absence of the sheriff, who is at Hot Springs. When asked what he would do with the warrant, he said: "What can I do with it? I would serve it as I could, and I could do it if Gov. Mount, of Indiana, would help me, but from all reports I guess he will not do it."

Frankfort, Ky., June 4.—There were no developments in the matter of the warrant for the arrest of W. S. Taylor. Acting Sheriff Suter spent the day at his home in the country, and at the executive office it was stated that no requisition on the governor of Indiana had yet been made.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 2.—Gov. Mount, asked if he would honor a requisition for Taylor, said: "I haven't preconceived a decision. If requisition papers are presented for Mr. Taylor, I shall decide as to granting them when they are presented, and my decision will be based upon my conscientious sense of right and justice." The governor was asked if he had any knowledge of the political complexion of the grand jury that indicted Mr. Taylor, and refused with some spirit to answer the question.

CONFERENCE WITH TAYLOR.

He Will Be Urged to Run for Governor If Beckham Is Nominated By the Democrats.

Louisville, Ky., June 4.—Dr. T. H. Baker, postmaster of Louisville; C. E. Sapp, collector of customs here, and Gen. D. G. Collier, who was adjutant general under Taylor, have gone to Indianapolis to confer with the former executive of Kentucky as to his plans for the future and to offer him aid on behalf of his friends in this state. These gentlemen stand high in republican circles in Kentucky, and it is known that just prior to his departure for Indiana to evade arrest on the charge of being an accessory to the murder of Wm. Goebel, Mr. Taylor conferred with these and other party leaders in the office of Mr. Sapp in this city.

It is being said in exclusive republican circles that these gentlemen will explain to Taylor an intention on the part of Kentucky republican leaders to renominate him for governor in the event the democrats put up Beckham, as they believe a race between these two would be easy for Taylor.

Taylor's Friends Fear Kidnaping.

Frankfort, Ky., June 3.—W. S. Taylor's friends here are divided in opinion as to whether he should attend the republican national convention, to which he is a delegate from the state at large. Some of his personal friends think it would be unsafe, as they fear an attempt might be made to kidnap him. In the event he should be arrested in either Ohio or Pennsylvania on the way to the convention, a new phase would be presented which might be turned into a political issue in those states in the campaign.

New Mineral Springs.

Lexington, Ky., June 1.—Manager Barr, of the Lexington & Eastern railroad, is preparing to have an analysis made of the mineral springs located on the road near Pineastle. Mr. Barr will also make examination of the waterfalls there. The region is one of the most picturesque in the mountains.

JEFFEERSON DAVIS' BIRTHDAY.

Last Exercises Connected With the Tenth Annual Reunion of the Confederate Veterans.

Louisville, Ky., June 4.—The last exercises connected with the tenth annual reunion of the United Confederate Veterans occurred Sunday, when the 92d anniversary of the birth of Jefferson Davis was observed at Reunion hall with services in memory of Mr. Davis, Winnie Davis, "The Daughter of the Confederacy," and the confederate dead. Although thousands of the confederate reunion visitors had left the city, 5,000 persons attended the exercises. They were largely of a religious character, but nevertheless there was applause at times from the audience.

Mrs. Hayes, the daughter of Jefferson Davis, and her daughter, Miss Varina Hayes, were on the platform. Gen. Gordon had been expected to preside and also to address the audience, but he was called away from Louisville Sunday morning, and his place was taken by Gen. Stephen D. Lee. The first speaker was Gen. Clement A. Evans, of Georgia. He was followed by ex-United States Senator Reagan, of Texas, the only surviving member of Jefferson Davis' cabinet. Gen. Stephen D. Lee then spoke.

Rev. J. William Jones, of Virginia, chaplain general of the United Confederate Veterans, preached the annual sermon. He spoke at great length on the religious life of the confederate soldiers. He said a pastor often went to the front with a majority of the male members of his church.

ANOTHER FEUD VICTIM.

Little Girl Shot and Fatally Wounded In the Burkhart and Caldwell Conflict.

Pineville, Ky., June 1.—Another outbreak between the Burkharts and Caldwells occurred when Teague Burkhart, a cousin of Wils Burkhart, who was killed by Blanton a few days ago, went to the home of King Caldwell and fired into his building. One ball struck Caldwell's 9-year-old daughter in the shoulder, inflicting a wound from which she will die.

Blanton has not been captured, and it is believed he is being concealed at the homes of the Caldwells, who are relatives of the Blantons. These families once waged a feud and fought desperately. It was in this feud that Washington Caldwell was killed.

IS 105 YEARS OLD.

An Aged Kentuckian Whose Health Is Good and His Mind Clear and Active.

Owensboro, Ky., June 4.—James Beatty Ireland, of Skillman, Hancock county, Ky., is celebrating his 105th birthday anniversary to-day. He was born in Nelson county, June 4, 1795, and has lived in Hancock county for the last 60 years. His health is good and his mind as clear and active as that of a far younger man.

When the 100th anniversary of Mr. Ireland's birth was celebrated, five years ago, it was attended by a large number of friends from every direction, but there were few of them who dared to hope that he would be living and active for several years afterward.

Mustering Out State Guards.

Frankfort, Ky., June 2.—Gov. Beckham has issued an order mustering out ten companies of the state guard. All except two of them are located in mountain towns and were among those mustered into service during the political excitement just before and immediately following the state election last fall. It is understood a number of other companies are also to be disbanded, as the governor holds that the various regiments now have double their proper quota of companies in them.

Mrs. J. W. Fullilove died suddenly on last Tuesday, May 30th, from heart trouble, aged 53. Mrs. Nancy Bagby departed this life on Saturday the 2nd inst., in the 88th year of her life. She was the sister of the Hon. R. M. The presence of Judge John H. Westover, was gladly welcomed by our citizens on last Saturday, and the voters of Union gave him, if possible, a still more hearty reception. It looks now that he will have a walk over in the south end, and that he will carry the whole. Judge Westover is popular. The rural counties are clamoring for recognition and claim that now is the time for them to name the candidate. It looks a little like the time, Mr. Editor, when yourself, Capt. Finch, Col. Wm. Watts, Ben Kinley Sleet, and the writer of this, planned and executed the successful flank movement that culminated in the nomination of the late Jo C. Hughes. We beat the Kenton and Campbell machines then and can do it again. I am of the same opinion now as then, to wit: the Congressman for the Old Sixth should be from the country.

Two wagons loaded with logs were brought as far as town.

Dr. Furnish and family left, last Saturday, for Lakeland, where they expect to remain indefinitely. Dr. Furnish came here about 20 years ago and hung out his shingle, and began the practice of his chosen profession, and success attended him from the start. His practice soon assumed a profitable proportion, and continued to increase until no physician in the county enjoyed a larger and better paying clientage. The Doctor's popularity was not only as a physician, but as a man he was held in the highest esteem by all with whom he came in contact. Several years ago he began to take a hand in local politics and that as in his profession he has been eminently successful, and to that success can be attributed the loss to this community of him and his family. Everybody here hated to see the Doctor and his wife take their final leave, and their presence in social circles will be sadly missed, as they were leading spirits in nearly all social functions. They take to their new home the best wishes of every man, woman and child, black or white, in the town.

LATER—The Doctor's wife and children will not go to Lakeland until next Saturday.

Carl Craven, from Limaburg, also, is a hustler. Carl would never go to play unless he was sure he knew his lessons.

Mabel Kirtley got the last head mark in the advanced grammar.

Much could be said in praise of many of the pupils who were in attendance the greater part of the time.

C. E. DICKEN.

The death of C. E. Dicken, son of Dr. E. N. and Mrs. L. M. Dicken, which occurred at LaSalle, Ill., May 19, 1900, was unexpected by any one till within a very short time before it occurred. "Ed" Dicken, as he was commonly called, was well known in Franklin and had many warm friends here. He was born in Russelville, Ky., and was 31 years, 6 months, and 5 days old at the time of his death. He was a graduate of Bethel College, of the class of 1888. Being a man of fine natural ability as well as a scholar, he was eminently fitted for any business vocation that he might have chosen. But being a vocalist of rare gifts and high attainments, and a great lover of the varied scenes of life, he chose to travel with a minstrel company; and in this capacity he was in every respect a success.

He was a man of commanding appearance, a fine judge of human nature and combined in a high degree all of the elements which tie men together in social life. Therefore he had many warm friends in Franklin where his parents reside, as well as in all the places where he was known. He was converted when only nine years old. He was a member of a fraternal organization known as the Elks. When he reached LaSalle, Ill., where he died so unexpectedly, he was able to make himself known as a member of that order, and when he was taken violently ill they came to his bedside with every needed help, or aid. But no human aid could save him from a speedy death. His sufferings, stomach and heart trouble, were so intense, that it was but a few hours till death set him free. And when the shadows of the death-angel began to darken around his dying bed he became calm and composed in mind; and among the last acts of his life was a fervent prayer for his parents. He was devoted to his parents upon whom this stroke was as heavy as it was unexpected. In the last letter which his father wrote him, he said: "Stick to your religion, and throw not your life away." But that father, and minister, had no idea that his son would so soon breath his last prayer for his father and mother.

His remains were accompanied to Franklin by a member of the order to which he belonged. He was interred in the Green Lawn cemetery. To his bereaved parents and brother his many friends tender their deepest sympathy.

DARK SPOTS IN REPUBLICAN LEGISLATION

Effect of Protection on Farming Interests—Volume of Trade Is Shrinking — Ohio Republicans Being Dropped by the Administration—No Sympathy for the Boers.

[Special Correspondence.]

There are strong signs that the high protective tariff party in Germany is going to fight a series of pitch battles with the German manufacturers over the question of American markets and American imports. The protective tariff party in Germany is composed almost exclusively of the farmers, who cannot stand the intense competition and low prices of American farm products. The prices of German farm lands have been forced to a high point, and the German tenant farmers are rackrented as badly as ever they are in Ireland. Naturally the landlord element don't want their rents lowered, which will be the inevitable result if American farmers are given free trade with Germany. On the other hand, the German manufacturers want cheap food products from the United States, so they can sell their excellent manufactures in their constantly growing markets all over the world.

But this situation in Germany is to be taken advantage of by the protected interests in the United States at the expense of the farming interests of this country. Already there are signs that the entire textile interests of this country will unite in a demaad for a still higher tariff against foreign goods. For instance, there are now within the United States enough knit goods factories to supply the entire American demand for knit goods with nine months' work. Instead of trying to seek a foreign market for surplus products, these concerns will strive to monopolize the American market by raising still higher the tariff wall against foreign knit goods.

The profits of knit goods are enormous, and the knit goods combine, which is practically a trust in its effects, is making millions of dollars for its owners. The labor cost in a pair of stockings, knit by machinery, is less than one cent, yet the manufacturers make a profit of ten cents on each pair of stockings retailing at 25 cents. The retail dealer makes the next ten cents, and the balance is charged up to raw material, interest, insurance, deterioration of plant, freight charges and the miscellaneous items of large businesses.

This new tariff programme which has a hundred ramifications is to be kept quiet until after the next presidential election. If McKinley wins, these protectionist interests will know they have the apostle of protection in the white house to further their aims. The enormous foreign market for American agricultural products, by far the principal material of American export trade, is to be still further ruthlessly sacrificed in the interests of these vast trade monopolies.

Shrinkage in Trade.

The shrinkage in the volume of trade within the United States is already so marked and pereceptible as to give grave concern to the administration. Its pet statisticians are burdening the newspapers with columns of figures regarding the growth of American export business. But they neglect the fact that the domestic exchanges of the United States are more than 20 times the volume of the entire foreign trade of this country. During the past 30 days the shrinkage in domestic exchanges is more than three times the volume of our foreign exchanges for the same period. All signs indicate that this shrinkage will increase, and as it increases prosperity, even of the trust variety, will disappear.

Republicans Going Down.

What is the matter with the administration congressional supporters? In Ohio five republican congressmen have thus far been defeated for renomination—Brown, Weaver, Lybraad, Phillips and Kerr have been thrown overboard. Shattuc and Bromwell are marked for slaughter, and the hoary Grosvenor had to promise on bended knees that he would retuire at the end of the next term, to secure his renomination. Such is the reward for faithfulness to a president who claims from his supporters undying fealty, but who gives nothing in return. As a matter of fact it is well recognized among republicans in congress that there is not a single bright spot in their legislative career during this congress which entitles them to the gratitude of their constituents. It is in an endeavor to save the next house from the democrats that the republicans in so many districts have been compelled to present new men to their outraged constituencies, knowing that the men who voted for the Porto Rican infamy, and who stand for such outrageous species of lobbied legislation as the Hanna ship subsidy bill, would be apt to lose their districts to the democrats, no matter how strongly they have been held by the republicans in the past.

What is true in Ohio is true in many another state. All signs point to a democratic house to be elected next November, with a larger democratic majority than any in 20 years. The popular wave which will sweep Bryan into the white house will sweep the republicans out of power, not only in the house and senate, but in states hitherto so rockribbed in their republicanism as to be considered not even fighting ground, in the coming election.

Treatment of the Boers.

The Boer envoys now in Washington are giving emphasis to the pro-British attitude of the administration and the pro-Boer sentiment of the people. They are a fine sturdy trio of brawn and intellect. Wessels, one of the three, is a farmer and ranchman, who, according to old residents of Washington, looks, acts and talks like Abraham Lincoln. At the enormous Grand opera house meeting on the night of the 20th, he made a short, simple, pathetic speech, not over ten minutes in length, which fairly took his audience off their feet. There were other able and notable speakers, among them Congressman William Sulzer, Congressman John J. Lentz, Congressman Champ Clark, Senator Wellington, Senator Mason and Bourke Cockran. Not a single administration senator, congressman or sympathizer could be induced to speak in behalf of the Boers, although wide and urgent invitations were sent to them all, from the president down, with every assurance that the meeting would be non-partisan in its character, as it was in fact. Not a word was said in hostility to the administration. But it was noticeable that the most prolonged and vigorous applause of the evening was given when Senator Wellington declared the Filipinos were entitled to their independence as much as were the Boers. The audience demonstrated their sympathies for the Boers by contributing in a few minutes about $4,000 to the Boer Red Cross fund. This was in addition to several thousand dollars which had already been raised here on the announcement of the coming of the Boer envoys.

ADOLPH PATTERSON.

PRAISE FOR BRYAN.

The Democratic Leader Is No Quitter and Remains True to His Political Faith.

The New York Sun, in a generous moment, pays the following tribute to William J. Bryan:

"The Bryan of 1900 stands before the people as a man with the boldness of honest convictions. The sincerity and courage of such an attitude are admirable, however deplorable the convictions may be. He is not a quitter. The American people hate a quitter; we have had the testimony of Hon. Samuel Fessenden that the Almighty hates a quitter, too.

"Mr. Bryan has resisted to the present time all the efforts of the timeservers to make him an accomplice in the suppression of the main issue which bore him upward to the commanding position he occupies in his party's councils. He is using his unequaled power to hold the democracy to its declared creed, notwithstanding the temptations of supposed expediency.

"It is a somewhat curious circumstance that Mr. Bryan should prove to be more stalwart for free silver than Mr. Cleveland was for tariff reform.

"Indeed, Bryan is showing in 1900 that he really possesses the moral stamina and unyielding adherence to principle which the mugwumps of ten or a dozen years ago thought they had discovered and chiefly admired in their idealized prophet.

"In the case of Mr. Bryan the part of honesty is likewise the part of political wisdom. He has been urged to alienate several millions of voters for the sake of pleasing a few hundreds of thousands."

The Cat Let Loose.

Mark Hanna, according to the New York Herald, says that four years ago we were practically a hermit nation, isolated from all world forces that promote industry, trade and commerce. The statement is absurd. We invite Mr. Hanna to the contemplation of the reports of our trade. He adds that our manufacturing capabilities and facilities were beyond our own needs. That is what the trusts think. Competition forces prices down, so they combine, close up several factories, choke down production, and then, in the scarcity thus produced and made possible in part by the tariff that protects them from world competition, raise the prices. Mr. Hanna adds that the home demand was enormous, but that manufacture for home demand does not add to general wealth. Is it so? Then it seems to us the Hon. Mark has let a very large cat out of the bag. With our high protective tariff we hand over our home markets to our home manufacturers. The market thus at their mercy is simply plucked by them. It adds to their special wealth, witness Carnegie and Frick, with their yearly millions of profits. But their enrichment, according to Mr. Hanna, is at the expense of the rest of the country.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

——The president and the party in congress must keep full faith with the people, redeem all pledges susceptible of fulfillment, and root out all scandals wherever existing. In November next they will be called to an account of their stewardship, and it behooves them to be ready for the summons. They must show a record of performances rather than of promises, particularly as full responsibility is upon the party. It has the president and both houses of congress, and the opposition is without power to block legislation.—Philadelphia Ledger.

——The insular policy of the administration is understood to meet the approval of the continental monarchies. If there was no other argument against it the argument that monarchies favor it will curse it forever with the liberty-loving people who dwell between the great oceans on the North American continent.—Toledo Blade.

EVERYDAY HEROISM.

Dr. Talmage Preaches on Common Duties and Rewards.

Words of Encouragement and Cheer for Those Who Toil and Struggle—Heroes and Heroines of Daily Life.

[Copyright, 1900, by Louis Klopsch.]

Dr. Talmage, who is now preaching to large audiences in the great cities of England and Scotland, sends this discourse, in which he shows that many who in this world pass as of little importance will in the day of final readjustment be crowned with high honor; text, II. Timothy ii., 3: "Thou therefore endure hardness."

Historians are not slow to acknowledge the merits of great military chieftains. We have the full-length portraits of the Cromwells, the Washingtons, the Napoleons and the Wellingtons of the world. History is not written in black ink, but red ink of human blood. The gods of human ambition do not drink from bowls made out of silver or gold or precious stones, but out of the bleached skulls of the fallen. But I am now to unroll before you a scroll of heroes that the world has never acknowledged—those who faced no guns, blew no bugle blast, conquered no cities, chained no captives to their chariot wheels and yet in the great day of eternity will stand higher than some of those whose names startled the nations, and seraph and rapt spirit and archangel will tell their deeds to a listening universe. I mean the heroes of common, everyday life.

In this roll, in the first place, I find all the heroes of the sick room. When Satan had failed to overcome Job, he said to God: "Put forth Thy hands and touch his bones and his flesh, and he will curse Thee to Thy face." Satan had found out that which we have all found out, that sickness is the greatest test of one's character. A man who can stand that can stand anything. To be shut in a room as fast as though it were a bastile; to be so nervous you cannot endure the tap of a child's foot; to have luscious fruit, which tempts the appetite of the robust and healthy, excite our loathing and disgust when it first appears on the platter; to have the rapier of pain strike through the side or across the temples like a razor or, to put the foot in a vise or throw the whole body into a blaze of fever, yet there have been men and women, but more women than men, who have cheerfully endured this hardness. Through years of exhausting rheumatisms and excruciating neuralgias they have gone and through bodily distress that rasped the nerves and tore the muscles and paled the cheeks and stooped the shoulders. By the dim light of the sick room taper they saw on their wall the picture of that land where the inhabitants are never sick. Through the dead silence of the night they heard the chorus of the angels.

The cancer ate away her life from week to week and day to day, and she became weaker and weaker, and every "good-night" was feebler than the "good-night" before, yet never said. The children looked up into her face and saw suffering transformed into a heavenly smile. Those who suffered on the battlefield amid shot and shell were not more heroes and heroines than those who, in the field hospital and in the asylum, had fevers which no ice could cool and no surgery cure. No shout of a comrade to cheer them, but numbness and aching and homesickness—yet willing to suffer, confident in God, hopeful of Heaven. Heroes of rheumatism. Heroes of neuralgia. Heroes of spinal complaint. Heroes of sick headache. Heroes of lifelong invalidism. Heroes and heroines! They shall reign forever and ever. Hark! I catch just one note of the eternal anthem: "There shall be no more pain!" Bless God for that!

In this roll I also find the heroes of toil who do their work uncomplainingly. It is comparatively easy to lead a regiment into battle when you know that the whole nation will applaud the victory; it is comparatively easy to doctor the sick when you know that your skill will be appreciated by a large company of friends and relatives; it is comparatively easy to address an audience when in the gleaming eyes and flushed checks you know that your sentiments are adopted. But to do sewing when you expect the employer will come and thrust his thumb through the work to show how imperfect it is or to have the whole garments thrown back on you, to be done over again; to build a wall and know there will be no one to say you did it well, but only a swearing employer howling across the scaffold to work until your eyes are dim and your back aches and your heart faints, and to know that if you stop before night your children will starve—ah, the sword has not slain so many as the needle! The great battlefields of our civil war were not Gettysburg and Shiloh and South Mountain. The great battlefields were in the arsenals and in the shops and in the attics, where women made army jackets for a sixpence. They toiled on until they died. They had no funeral eulogium, but, in the name of my God, this day, I enroll their names among those of whom the world was not worthy. Heroes of the needle! Heroes of the sewing machine! Heroes of the attic! Heroes of the cellar! Heroes and heroines! Bless God for them!

In this roll I also find the heroes who have uncomplainingly endured domestic injustices. They are men who, for their toil and anxiety, have no sympathy in their homes. Exhausting application to business gets them a livelihood, but an unfrugal wife scatters it. He is fretted at from the moment he enters the door until he comes out of it—the exasperations of business life augmented by the exasperations of domestic life. Such men are laughed at, but they have a heartbreaking trouble, and they would have long ago gone into appalling dissipation but for the grace of God.

Society to-day is strewn with the wrecks of men who, under the northeast storm of domestic infelicity, have been driven on the rocks. There are tens of thousands of drunkards to-day, made such by their wives. That is not poetry; that is prose. But the wrong is generally in the opposite direction. You would not have to go far to find a wife whose life is a perpetual martyrdom—something heavier than the stroke of a fist, unkind words, staggering home at midnight and constant maltreatment, which have left her only a wreck of what she was on that day when in the midst of a brilliant assemblage the vows were taken, and full organ played the wedding march, and the carriage rolled away with the benediction of the people. What was the burning of Latimer and Ridley at the stake compared with this? Those men soon became unconscious in the fire, but there is a 30 years' martyrdom, a 50 years' putting to death, yet uncomplaining. No bitter words when the rollicking companions at two o'clock in the morning pitch the husband dead drunk into the front entry. No bitter words when wiping from the swollen brow the blood struck out in a midnight carousal. Bending over the battered and bruised form of him who when he took her from her father's home promised love and kindness and protection, yet nothing but sympathy and prayers and forgiveness before they are asked for. No bitter words when the family Bible goes for rum and the pawnbroker's shop gets the last decent dress. Some day, desiring to evoke the story of her sorrows, you say: "Well, how are you getting along now?" and, rallying her trembling voice and quieting her quivering lip, she says: "Pretty well, I thnuk you; pretty well." She never will tell you. In the delirium of her last sickness she may tell all the other secrets of her lifetime, but she will not tell thnt. Not until the books of eternity are opened on the throne of judgment will ever he known what she has suffered. Oh, ye who are twisting a garland for the victor, put it on that pale brow! When she is dead the neighbors will beg linen to make her a shroud, and she will be carried out in a plain box, with no silver plate to tell her years, for she has lived a thousand years of trial and anguish. The gamblers and swindlers who destroyed her husband will not come to the funeral. One carriage will be enough for that funeral—one carriage to carry the orphans and the two Christian women who presided over the obsequies.

But there is a flash, and the opening of a Celestial door and a shout: "Lift up your head, ye everlasting gate, and let her come in!" And Christ will step forth and say: "Come in. Ye suffered for me on earth; be glorified with me in Heaven." What is the highest throne in Heaven? You say: "The throne of the Lord God Almighty and the Lamb." No doubt about it. What is the next highest throne in Heaven? While I speak it seems to me it will be the throne of the drunkard's wife, if she with cheerful patience endured all her earthly torture. Heroes and heroines!

I find also in this roll the heroes of Christian charity. We all admire the George Peabodys and the James Lenoxes of the earth, who give tens and hundreds of thousands of dollars to good objects. But I am speaking now of those who out of their pinched poverty help others—of such men as those Christian missionaries at the west who proclaim Christ to the people, one of them, writing to the secretary in New York, saying: "I thank you for that $25. Until yesterdny we have had no meat in our house for three months. We have suffered terribly. My children have no shoes this winter." And of those people who have only a half loaf of bread, but give a piece of it to others who are hungrier, and of those who have only a scuttle of coal, but help others to fuel, and of those who have only a dollar in their pocket and give 25 cents to somebody else, and of that father who wears a shabby coat, and of that mother who wears a faded dress, that their children may be well appareled. You call them paupers or ragamuffins or emigrants. I call them heroes and heroines. You and I may not know where they live or what their name is. God knows, and they have more angels hovering over them than you and I have, and they will have a higher seat in Heaven. They may have only a cupful of cold water to give a poor traveler or may have only picked a splinter from under the nail of a child's finger or have put only two mites into the treasury, but the Lord knows them. Considering what they had, they did more than we have ever done, and their faded dress will become a white robe, and the small room will be an eternal mansion, and the old hat will be exchanged for a coronet of victory, and all the applause of earth and all the shouting of Heaven will be drowned out when God rises up to give His reward to those humble workers in His Kingdom, and say to them: "Well done, good and faithful servant."

You have all seen or heard of the ruins of Melrose abbey. I suppose in some respects they are the most exquisite ruins on earth. And yet looking at it I was not so impressed—you may set it down to bad taste—but I was not so deeply stirred as I was at a tombstone at the foot of that abbey, the tombstone placed by Walter Scott over the grave of an old man who had served him for a good many years in his house—the inscription most insignificant, and I defy any man to stand there and read it without tears coming into his eyes—the epitaph: "Well done, good and faithful servant." Oh, when our work is over, will it be found that, because of anything we have done for God or the church or suffering humanity, that such an inscription is appropriate for us? God grant it!

Who are those who were bravest and deserved the greatest monument, Lord Claverhouse and his burly soldiers or John Brown, the Edinburgh carrier and his wife? Mr. Atkins, the persecuted minister of Jesus Christ, in Scotland was secreted by John Brown and his wife, and Claverhouse rode up one day with his armed men and shouted in front of the house. John Brown's little girl came out. He said to her: "Well, miss, is Mr. Atkins here?" She made no answer, for she could not betray the minister of the Gospel. "Ha!" Claverhouse said, "then you are a chip of the old block, are you? I have something in my pocket for you. It is a nosegay. Some people call it a thumbscrew, but I call it a nosegay." And he got off his horse and he put it on the little girl's hand and began to turn it until the bones cracked and she cried. He said: "Don't cry! don't cry! This isn't a thumbscrew, this is a nosegay." And they heard the child's cry, and the father and mother came out, and Claverhouse said: "Ha! it seems that you three have had your holy heads together, determined to die like all the rest of your hypocritical, canting, suiveling crew. Rather than give up good Mr. Atkins, pious Mr. Atkins, you would die. I have a telescope with me that will improve your vision," and he pulled out a pistol. "Now," he said, "you old pragmatic, lest you should catch cold in this cold morning of Scotland and for the honor and safety of the king, to say nothing of the glory of God and the good of our souls, I will proceed simply and in the neatest and most expeditious style possible to blow your brains out."

John Brown fell upon his knees and began to pray. "Ah," said Claverhouse, "look out, if you are going to pray; steer clear of the king, the council and Richard Cameron." "O Lord," said John Brown, "since it seems to be Thy will that I should leave this world for a world where I can love Thee better and serve Thee more, I put this poor widow woman and these helpless, fatherless children into Thy hands. We have been together in peace a good while, and now we must look forth to a better meeting in Heaven. And as for these poor creatures, blindfolded and infatuated, that stand before me, convert them before it is too late, and may they who have sat in judgment in this lonely place on this blessed morning upon me, a poor, defenseless fellow creature—may they in the last judgment find that mercy which they have refused to me, thy most unworthy but faithful servaat. Amen."

He arose and said: "Isabel, the hour has come of which I spoke to you on the morning when I proposed hand and heart to you, and are you willing now, for the love of God, to let me die?" She put her arms around him and said: "The Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away. Blessed is the name of the Lord." "Stop that snivelling," said Claverhouse. "I have had enough of it. Soldiers, do your work. Take aim! Fire!" And the head of John Brown was scattered on the ground. While the wife was gathering up in her apron the fragments of her husband's head—gathering them up for burial—Claverhouse looked into her face and said: "Now, my good woman, how do you feel now about your bonnie man?" "Oh," she said, "I always thought weel of him; he has been very good to me; I had no reason for thinking anything but weel of him, and I think better of him now." Oh, what a grand thing it will be in the last day to see God pick out his heroes and heroines. Who are those paupers of eternity trudging off from the gates of Heaven? Who are they? The Lord Claverhouses and the Herods and those who had scepters and crowns and thrones, but they lived for their own aggrandizement, and they broke the heart of nations. Heroes of earth, but paupers in eternity. I beat the drums of their eternal despair. Woe, woe, woe!

But there is great excitement in Heaven. Why those long processions? Why the booming of that great bell in the tower? It is coronation day in Heaven. Who are those rising on the thrones with crowas of eternal royalty? They must have been great people on the earth, world renowned people. No. They taught in a ragged school. Taught in a ragged school! Is that all? That is all. Who are those souls waving scepters of eternal dominion? Why, they are little children who waited on invalid mothers. That all? That is all. She was called "Little Mary" on earth. She is an empress now. Who are that great multitude on the highest thrones of Heaven? Who are they? Why, they fed the hungry; they clothed the naked; they healed the sick; they comforted the heartbroken. They never found any rest until they put their head down on the pillow of the sepulcher. God watched them. God laughed defiantly at the enemies who put their heels hard down on these, His dear children, and one day the Lord struck His hand so hard on His thigh that the Omnipotent sword rattled in the buckler as He said: "I am their God, and no weapon formed against them shall prosper."

Paternalism in Germany.

Hamburg policemen watch the street cars closely, and if they find a car which carries a single passenger more than the number allowed by law the conductor is fined 72 cents.

FIFTY-SIXTH CONGRESS.

Summary of Leading Events.

Washington, May 28.—Senate—The reading of the sundry civil appropriation bill was completed, but not all of the committee amendments have been disposed of. A lively debate was precipitated over the proposition to continue the life of the industrial commission until October 31, 1901.

House—The Alaskan civil government bill was passed. Other bills passed were: Authorizing the president to appoint ten first lieutenants of the signal corps, whose commissions shall expire June 30, 1901, and to provide six additional officers in the subsistence bureau of the war department; to ratify the agreement of the commission to the five civilized tribes and the Seminole Indians; to restore to the public domain a small tract of White mountain Apache Indian reservation, Arizona; to exchange gold bars for gold coin.

Washington, May 29.—Senate—An amendment appropriating $5,000,000 for the Louisiana purchase exposition to be held in St. Louis in 1903 was added to the sundry civil appropriation bill on condition that $10,000,000 in addition be raised by the exposition authorities. The Teller resolution expressing sympathy for the Boers was referred to the committee on foreign relations by a vote of 40 to 26.

House—The conference report on the post office appropriation bill was agreed to. It carried $223,000 for pneumatic tube service. The bill now goes to the president.

Washington, May 30.—Senate—Not in session.

House—An unsuccessful effort was made to get the anti-trust resolution before the house. One hundred and ninety private pension bills were passed.

Washington, May 31.—Senate—The sundry civil appropriation bill was passed. It carries an appropriation of $5,000,000 for the Louisiana purchase exposition to be held in St. Louis in 1903, and $200,000 for the beginning of the work on the memorial bridge between Washington and Arlington cemetery, to be erected in memory of the dead of both the union and confederate armies. The project, it is expected, will ultimately cost about $3,000,000.

House—The entire session was taken up discussing the resolution reported from the judiciary committee proposing a constitutional amendment to lodge in congress the power to "define, regulate, control, prohibit or dissolve trusts, monopolies or combinations."

Washington, June 1.—Senate—The military academy appropriation bill was passed. It carries amendments making Gen. Miles and all of the future commanders of the armies lieutenant generals and Gen. Corbin a major general. Consideration of the last of the appropriation bills, the general deficiency, was begun, but was not completed.

House—The joint resolution proposing a constitutional amendment empowering congress to regulate trusts was defeated. It requires a two-thirds vote under the constitution to adopt an amendment to the constitution. The vote stood ayes 154, nays 124. The bills to ratify the treaties made by the Dawes commission with the Cherokee and Creek Indians were passed.

Washington, June 2.—Senate—The last of the appropriation bills, the general deficiency, was passed, as was also the emergency river and harbor bill, providing for numerous surveys and for certain other public works, and the bill providing for the extradition of persons who have committed certain crimes in Cuba from the United States to the islands. The bill provides that the alleged criminal shall be punished under the laws of Cuba as administered by Cuban courts.

House—The Littlefield trust bill was amended by the democrats so as to except from the provisions of the bill all labor organizations and unions, and then the measure was passed, only one vote being cast against it.

HAVE REACHED MANILA.

The Philippine Commissioners Have at Last Reached Their Destination, All Being Well.

Manila, June 4.—The United States transport Hancock, from San Francisco, April 17, arrived here Sunday morning with the members of the Philippine commission. The members of Gen. MacArthur's staff welcomed the commissioners on board the Hancock. At noon the commissioners landed and drove to the palace, escorted by Gen. MacArtnur's staff, a band and two companies of the 26th infantry, with artillery.

At the palace the commissioners were welcomed by Gen. MacArthur in a short and forceful address. After Judge William H. Taft, president of the commission, had replied, the commissioners returned to the Hancock, where they will remain until they have selected suitable dwellings on land.

During the morning the members of the Filipino supreme court, the local editors and many of the leading merchants repaired to the transport, where they conversed with the commissioners. Rear Adm. Remy, in command of the United States naval forces on the Asiatic station, called officially during the afternoon. The family of Judge Taft will remain for a while in Japan. The families of the other commissioners arrived with them.

Robber's Sentence Commuted.

Washington, June 3.—The president has commuted to ten years the life sentence of Jefferson Harrison for robbing a mail car in Alabama in 1893 and threatening to kill the postal clerk.

CONFEDERATES MEET.

Heavy Rains Interfere With the Reunion at Louisville.

Nearly All of the Outdoor Features of the Big Meeting Have of Necessity Been Abandoned.

Louisville, Ky., May 31.—The tenth annual reunion of the confederate veterans began at 12 noon in the splendid new hall erected for this occasion by the people of Louisville. After the opening exercises Mayor Weaver and representatives of the commercial bodies of the city welcomed the veterans, and after a response by Gen. John B. Gordon the opening day oration was delivered by Rev. B. M. Palmer, of New Orleans.

Louisville, Ky., June 1.—Business was the order of the day in the second session of the confederate reunion, which convened at 10 o'clock Thursday morning in Reunion hall.

The weather has shown no signs of improvement, and the rain comes down in sheets at brief intervals. Many of the decorations have been ruined by the steady downpour, which has now continued for the greater part of three days. Nearly all of the outdoor features of the reunion have of necessity been abandoned.

Col. Packwood, of Louisiana, introduced a resolution providing for the erection in Richmond, Va., of a monument to commemorate the sacrifices and loyalty of the women of the Confederacy during the war. The resolution stated that the matter should be placed entirely in the hands of Gen. John B. Gordon.

A resolution was offered by Gen. Carr, of North Carolina, stating that the Confederate veterans recognized with friendly feeling the recent utterances of northern men regarding the army of northern Virginia, and that it was the opinion of the Confederate veterans that there is no sectionalism in the valor of the American soldier.

James Beuklins, of Louisiana, offered a resolution urging upon the president of the United States to name a naval cruiser after Miss Helen Gould in grateful recognition of her services to the country during the Spanish-American war.

Louisville, Ky., June 1.—All the officers of the United Confederate Veterans were re-elected by acclamation. The election was put through in record time, —— —— taking less than one minute. The list of officers is as follows: Gen. John B. Gordon, general commanding; Lieut. Gen. Wade Hampton, army of Northern Virginia department; Lieut. Gen. S. D. Lee, commanding army of Tennessee department; Lieut. Gen. W. L. Cabell, commanding Trans-Mississippi department.

The Confederate Veterans were called to order at 10 o'clock Friday by Gen. Gordon.

Gen. C. A. Evans, chairman of the committee on the Battle Abbey, presented the report of the body he represented. He said that the success of the committee during the past year had been more successful than had been anticipated. On May 26, 1900, the committee had on hand in cash $65,210, good subscriptions received, $59,227, making a total of $124,437. He then read letters from Charles Broadway Rouse, of New York, who promised $100,000 in cash whenever an equal sum should be raised by the members of the confederacy, saying that he was satisfied of the fulfillment of the conditions made by him authorizing the drawing of drafts upon him whenever the money was needed.

Louisville, Ky., June 2.—The tenth annual reunion of the United Confederate Veterans adjourned sine die at 6 o'clock. The meeting of 1901 will be held in Memphis. Three cities—Memphis, Jacksonville and Buffalo—were competitors for the honor of entertaining the veterans next year. The final vote showed for Memphis 1,520 votes; Jacksonville, 256; Buffalo, 26.

There was a long debate just prior to the adjournment as to whether or not there should be a parade. Gen. Poyntz, commander of the Kentucky division, announced that it was the opinion of the local committees that there should be no parade on account of rain. He was greeted with loud cries of "No!" and a vote was taken, with the result that it was decided to have the parade. After all the business of the convention had been disposed of Capt. C. W. Carnes, of Memphis, took the floor and urged a reconsideration of the vote by which it had been decided to hold a parade. He claimed that the weather was such that a march in the wet would certainly cost some of the veterans their lives and cause others to become ill. It was finally decided that no parade should be held, and the convention then adjourned sine die, subject to the call for the next meeting in Memphis.

CONTINUE CHARTING OF LAKES

Navy Department Will Investigate All Reported Obstructions to Navigation of Big Ships.

It is proposed by the navy department to continue the investigations and charting of all reported obstructions to navigation in the great lakes. This is an important work and will require a great deal of expert surveying. Since the survey of the lakes was completed the growth of commerce upon them has been unparalleled. The lake fleet alone is greater than the fleet of any foreign nation, excepting those of Great Britain and Germany. In recent years the amount of tonnage annually constructed on the great lakes has been greater than that constructed on the Atlantic, Pacific and gulf coasts combined. More than half of the best steam tonnage in the United States is owned upon the great lakes.

The vessels in these waters have increased much in size as well as in numbers, and their increased draft brings them into contact with obstructions which were not necessary to consider in a survey of a generation ago, when deep draft vessels were not employed in the navigation of the lakes. It has become necessary in some of the shoal straits and channels to use a drag to discover isolated rocks and other obstructions of small superficial area.

This work can only be done by nautical people, who understand the needs of the safe navigation of ships. All expense in connection with the lake surveys, not including, however, the ordinary expenses of the ship, are defrayed out of the appropriation for "ocean and lake surveys."

FINDS AT FORT WORTH.

Skeletons and Indian Relics Are Discovered in a Populous District.

The finding of a skeleton of an Indian buried three feet beneath the surface at Fort Worth, Tex., a day or two since led to further search, and two more skeletons, one of an Indian, the other of a white man, were unearthed. The discoveries have occasioned considerable stir among the residents of Field's addition, which is in one of the most populous portions of the city. The last two graves were found near the one discovered last week. A large number of arrow points, a package of vermillion, a shell and a stone pipe, a huge knife, the blade of which was 16 inches long, a razor blade, and flint stones used in striking fire, a quantity of small, white beads and a round looking glass set in a zinc frame were found. In all cases the metal articles were much corroded and the handle had rotted away from the knife blade. Further excavating will be prosecuted.

CLUBHOUSE ON GOLD LEDGE.

Capt. J. N. McCoy, an Assayer of Atlanta, Ga., Finds Good Ore in Heart of City.

The members of the Colonial club, one of the swell social orgnuizations of Atlanta, Ga., were astounded by the announcement of the discovery that their dwelling rests on a gold-bearing foundation of fair average value.

The find was made by Capt. J. N. McCoy, an assayer of experience, who states that, while the worth of the quartz is uncertain, the precious metal is positively present. The auriferous lode extends into adjacent property and it is probable that those residing in the neighborhood will prosecute a diligent investigation.

IT MADE A DIFFERENCE.

One Instance in Which Society and Dramatic Critics Did Not Agree.

From the Daily Grind, May 8, 1899, related by the Indianapolis Press: "Miss Violet Florida Waters, in the amateur performance by the Histrion club of 'Camille' last night displayed an ability and a marvelous command of stage technique that many a professional might envy. It is safe to predict for this gifted young lady that if she ever choose to adopt the stage as a career her name will become one of the famous ones in dramatic history."

From the Daily Grind, May 12, 1900: "The Pingalong repertoire company opened at the opera house last night in 'Camille.' Seldom has the dear old chestnut been so badly done—the worst offender being Violet Florida Waters, who punched holes in the title role and frazzled its edges in a manner that plainly showed her to need years and years of training before she will be fit to be anything better than a back row ornament in an amateur show—let alone scale the proud heights of the drama at ten-twenty-thirt. Miss Waters is a frost."

Too Frank.

A clothing merchant in lower Broadway had a big lot of clothes that he had bought at a bargain, and by putting a price of $15 on each he thought they would sell rapidly, for they were of exceptionally good value for that money. He put one of the suits on a form and set it in front of his store with a sign about its neck, which one of his smart clerks had painted on a piece of cardboard. This announced the price. Then he and his clerks prepared to do a rushing business. The hours passed and no one came in to buy the suits. This caused the merchant to wonder, and at length he determined to go out and take a look at the sample suit and sign. This is what he found on the sign: "These suits $15. They won't last long." Pedestrians passing by saw the sign and smiled at its frankness. The merchant tore down the sign from the suit, and the clerk who had designed it started out to look for another job.—N. Y. Herald.

A Resourceful Phrase.

A kind-hearted clergyman was lately compelled to dismiss a clever gardener, who used to purloin his fruit and vegetables. For the sake of his wife and family he gave him a character and this is how he worded it: "I hereby certify that A. B. has been my gardener for over two years, and that during that time he got more out of my garden than any man I ever employed."—Collier's Weekly.

It cures indigestion, dyspepsia, biliousness, liver and kidney troubles and fills the system with the vigor of health.

A SENATOR'S LETTER.

Peruna as a Nerve and Catarrh Tonic the Talk of the World.

Hon. W. V. Sullivan, U. S. Senator from Mississippi.

Hon. W. V. Sullivan, United States Senator from Mississippi, in a letter recently written to Dr. Hartman from Oxford, Miss., says the following:

"For some time I have been a sufferer from catarrh in its most incipient stage, so much so that I became alarmed as to my general health. But, hearing of Pe-ru-na as a good remedy, I gave it a fair trial and soon began to improve. Its effects were distinctly beneficial, removing the annoying symptoms, and was particularly good as a tonic.

"I take pleasure in recommending your great national catarrh cure, Pe-ru-na, as the best I have ever tried."

"W. V. Sullivan."

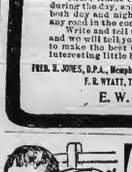
The Shortest Route to Texas



One reason why travelers to Texas go via the Cotton Belt is, that the Cotton Belt is from 25 to 100 miles shorter than other routes. This saving in distance makes a corresponding saving in time.

Those trains carry Pullman Sleepers at Night, Parlor Cafe Cars during the day, and Through Coaches and Free Reclining Chair Cars both day and night. This service compares favorably with that of any road in the country.

Write and tell us where you are going and when you will leave, and we will tell you what your ticket will cost and what train to take to make the best time and connections. We will also send you an interesting little book, "A Trip to Texas."

Ball Bros. saddle gelding, Darkness, of Woodford, was sold for $2,000 to a Massachusetts party.

Shorthorns are selling well. Kentucky had better fall in line. She once had a national reputation, and why can't she continue to have it?

About 450 cattle on the market at Winchester, last county court day, some sold for 4½; wethers $3 25, hogs $4 30. One pair of mare mules, $325.

Hibler Bros. purchased of Chas. Meng, of North Middletown, 50 head of fat sheep, at $3 50 per head. Also 18 head of 180-pound hogs of C. C. Clark, at about $4 75.—Paris Kentuckian.

At a sale at Lexington, Bob Baker three years ago bought Sophia Hardy for $25 and she foaled Lieutenant Gibson, the world-beater as a Derby racer. Bob Baker had a neighbor boy, John Gibson, who became the noted Lieutenant Gibson and hence the name of the racer.

At the sale of Shorthorns of J. C. Shropshire, of Fayette county, seven heifer calves brought an average of $105. 25 cows brought an average of $174 20; 9 bulls brought an average of $113 33; 16 bull calves brought an average of $53.75. The total amount brought by the herd was $6,970.

About 100 cattle on the market at Cynthiana, last court day, mostly yearling and 2-year-old steers of a fair quality, and sold from 4½ to 5¼c, some tops nearly 6 cents. Calves were in from $18 to $22 per head. Milch cows from $25 to $45. No mules on the market and but little doing in the horse trade.

The pork packers supply was last week 415,000 hogs, the same as the previous week. So far the summer packing is 4,500,000, which is 390, ahead of last year. Stocks of meat are not excessive, the domestic distribution has been fairly good and export clearances moderate—26,552,000 for corresponding week last year.

From two thirds to three-fourths of the tobacco crop was set in this county the past week. Some did not have all their ground in condition, while others run short of plants. Much work will be required in resetting as the cut-worms and grass-hoppers have played havoc with that set in many localities.—Carrollton News.

The New York Sun says that the great question of the State of Rhode Island is the proper solution of why Mrs. McNally's hen laid 218 eggs in thirty-eight days? Two men, to be convinced, went to see Mrs. McNally's hen and watched her lay six eggs which they were willing to swear the hen had laid in a day. Each egg was marked with the initial of the watcher together with the hour it was laid. How is this for a hen story? There is no doubt about the truth of this story.

The Mt. Sterling Advocate says: About 600 cattle on the market. The quality was not good. The market was the slowest we have ever seen here, little or no trading being done. The best steers sold at about 5 cents; yearlings at 5 cents; heifers at 3½ to 4½ cents; cows 3 to 4¼. A small crowd was present and the chief topic was the dry weather, and that was the cause of slow market. One thousand to twelve hundred sheep for sale and the trade was a little better than in cattle. Ewes and lambs brought $4.20 per cwt. A bunch of 60-lb. lambs sold for 5¼ cts.: wethers at 3 to 4 cents; bucks 2⅜ cents. No hogs on the market. We heard of some hogs being engaged for August delivery at 5 cts. Very few mules for sale and no first-class ones in the offering. Caruthers & Beard, of Lexington, bought some at $75 to $100. Horse market dull and very few sales. Among the sales mentioned are the following: Twenty 700-lb. steers at 5 cents; sixteen 600-lb. heifers at $25 each; a lot of 900-lb. cows at 3½ cents; some 1,100-lb. cows at $4 and $1 premium, and some fancy cows at 4½ cents.

Mr. W. S. Whedon, Cashier of the First National Bank of Winterset, Iowa, in a recent letter gives some experience with a carpenter in his employ, that will be of value to other mechanics. He says: "I had a carpenter working for me who was obliged to stop work for several days on account of being troubled with diarrhoea. I mentioned to him that I had been similarly troubled and that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy had cured me. He bought a bottle of it from the druggist here and informed me the first dose cured him, and he is again at his work. For sale by W. F. McKim, Burlington; Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg; C. S. Baisly, Bullittsville, O. N. Grant, Grant.

"Carpetbag" governments are notoriously corrupt, and history proves this proposition. Colonialism is but another form of "carpetbag" government, and McKinley is the champion of colonialism.—Chicago Democrat.

Miss Clara E. Rose, of Brinkley, Ark., is the guest of Mrs. W. E. Walton.

Leslie Walton, of Petersburg, was in this neighborhood, last week, trying to purchase a driving horse.

Mrs. L. Tanner and little son, of Bartow, Florida, are the guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Aylor.

Supt. Voshell has engaged Henry Streighthorst to build a fine cellar for him and the work is under way.

Granville R. Rouse and sons have been busy all spring, and have several long lines of wire fence on hand now.

Mrs. Mary Carpenter lost two valuable milch cows recently, and it will prove a very serious loss to her indeed.

Col. G. Carter Graddy, the accomplished quill pusher and fence builder, of Bullittsville, was in town, Saturday.

John Garrison is adding to the attractiveness of his home by building a nice paling fence fronting on High street.

Miss Mary Hedges returned, last week, from Carrollton, after a pleasant visit with relatives and friends in that enterprising city.

L. W. Lassing has a tin bucket that has been in use for 75 years and seems good for 75 more, under Mr. Lassing's careful handling.

Christian Bicker is beautifying his home with new walks, fences, etc. Mr. Bicker is a master boot and shoemaker and also a good citizen.

Our friend, John Crisler, has invited us to spend the day with him and promises to furnish some war history and horticultural notes for the Blade.

Richard Smith has shipped, recently, several pairs of fine pigs to Missouri and Indiana, at fancy prices, and has received letters from the parties saying they are well pleased.

We heard one housekeeper saying she was glad spreading adders had come into the country, because it made the men mow yards and keep weeds and grass cleared out around the house.

Miss Lillian Corbin closed her school Friday, at the Crisler school house, where she taught for several years and with so much success that no one need apply so long as Miss Lilly desires to teach there.

Whenever you see Spencer Smith laying off tobacco ground with a wheel barrow and seven men planting, there's business on hand, and no mistake. Lewis Richards is the inventor of the w. b.-layoffer.

Col. S. A. House brought a thistle up to Union, Friday, to find out what kind of a thistle it might be. Several farmers were called on to express their opinion, but not one was certain it was a Canada thistle. There seems to be a diversity of opinion as to what the Canada variety is, and one farmer suggested that the RECORDER describe it.

J. C. Byland, the popular insurance hustler of Walton, was in town, Saturday. We had a pleasant talk with Bro. John along the lines of insurance, bee-raising and general hustling, but finally landed on politics (this is inevitable) where we agreed in every thing except some, as Mr. Wm. Arp would say. We said, Bryan, free silver and everything else the Chicago platform of '96 has to say with two or three antis added, but Bro. John said, perhaps, it would be best to drop the free silver issue for the present—right there we differed and do differ as we have a right to differ.

Talk about spring with its etherial mildness, its drooping clouds, o'ershadowing roses, etc., as Mr. Thompson would say. Talk about summer—refulgent summer, with its scorching heat, its Saharian dryness that makes laziness abundant and stock water scarce, but coming down to every day Anglo-Franco-Philippino language, we say the woods, the fields, the yards, the gardens herein bouts look greener, the foliage seems denser, the flowers more abundant and lovelier than we have seen them for years. The corn is growing nicely, tobacco has started off without wilting, potatoes will soon be large enough to eat, raddishes, onions and lettuce are no longer luxuries—so it is we have the springtime when all is life, beauty and growth.

The Blade Club was in session Saturday evening with a fair attendance. About 2 o'clock the political editor introduced Hon. John H. Westover, of Williamstown, candidate for Congress. Mr. Westover soon convinced the boys that he was "one of them" by distributing some of Rachal's best (smokers) as a nerve tonic and pacifyer, so to speak. We had heard of Mr. Westover during the campaign of '96 and since, but this was the gentleman's first visit to Union and appearance before its leading club, so his coming was a matter of interest to the members. Of course his photograph is hung on the walls of each members memory and each one formed an opinion just as the "mental kodac" took. We were favorably impressed individually, and have a picture like this in our memory—a highly intellectual, sensitive and classic face, cultivated and refined manners and withal a perfect gentleman.

Dandy Cristo is a dark bay, 3 yrs-old, 16 hands high, heavy mane and tail, and weighs 1050 lbs.

Dandy Cristo by Black Cristo; he by Monte Cristo, 50; first dam by Black Squirrel, 55; 2d dam by Mambrino Time; 3d dam by Blue Bull.

Monte Cristo by Montrose; he by Diamond Denmark, he by Black Denmark, he by Denmark, thoroughbred, the great 4 mile race horse, he by imported Hedgeford. Monte Cristo's 1st dam by Black Williams, she by Brown's Highlander; 2d dam by Whips' thoroughbred.

Dandy Cristo's dam by Virginia Morgan and Spark's Cree Berry. Grand dam, by Black Squirrel, great-grand dam, Highlander and Blades famous saddle horse, Regulator, from Bracken county.

Remember that a fancy saddle horse commands as high price as ever, whilst common horses are too cheap to give away.

Dandy Cristo took first premium in general purpose ring at Florence Fair in 1899; has made two shows and took first Such time.

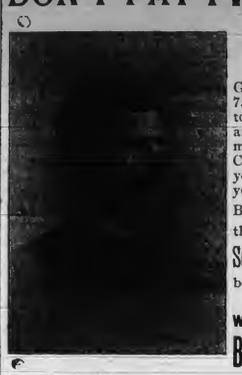
Look in Your Mirror

Do you see sparkling eyes, a healthy, tinted skin, a sweet expression and a graceful form? These attractions are the result of good health. If they are absent, there is nearly always some disorder of the distinctly feminine organs present. Healthy menstrual organs mean health and beauty everywhere.



McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

makes women beautiful and healthy. It strikes at the root of all their trouble. There is no menstrual disorder, ache or pain which it will not cure. It is for the budding girl, the busy wife and the matron approaching the change of life. At every trying crisis in a woman's life it brings health, strength and happiness. It costs $1.00 of medicine dealers.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 13, 1900. NO. 34

THE Boers claim that they have given the British a severe defeat in the last few days.

THE Boers are still harrassing the British, notwithstanding they have been on the run for a month or more.

THERE is no question about Kentucky being for Bryan. The primaries last Saturday settled that point good and strong.

J. M. LASSING left at noon today for Louisville, to mingle with the other State politicians who will there assemble to-morrow.

THERE is no doubt but what the leading Republicans in this State have given Taylor the shake, a fact that he cannot conceal by any number of his essays on civil liberty.

IT is somewhat amusing to read Roberts' dispatch asserting that one of his regiments has been captured by an "overwhelming" force of the enemy. He is careful not to say "outnumbering."

THE Senatorial Committee has called a primary election for August 11th, to nominate a candidate to supply the vacancy in the Senatorship occasioned by the resignation of Dr. Furnish. See call in another column.

HARMONY in New York means victory for the party this fall. When Hill goes to Kansas City instructed for Bryan, it is evedent that a very marked change has come over the country in regard to that gentleman.

POOR China! Russia has gone in to save her! The next thing we will hear, will be that the treacherous Chinese have rebelled against the kindly rule of the Czar, who saved them and tried to benevolently assimilate them.

THE fact that Kenton county has no contesting delegation with which to annoy the State covention at Louisville to-morrow, is a circumstance indicating that the millennium is near at hand. The county of Campbell will be there with a full quota of contestants.

THE street car strike in St. Louis does not abate, and collisions between the strikers and the police are of daily occurence. The Governor has the State militia ready to be called out, and it looks very much like he will have to put them on duty, before the trouble is settled.

IT is just as well to point out that Mr. Bryan did not declare in favor of a constitutional amendment in regard to trusts. On the contrary, he recommended action which he believes is constitutional and added that if the Supreme Court should declare that it was not so, then he would advocate an amendment to make it so. This is a very different proposition.

JUDGE WESTOVER, of Williamstown, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Cougress in this district, made a short speech here, last Saturday, at the close of the mass meeting. The audience was not large but was very attentive, and the Judge evidently made a good impression. He will be in Burlington on the first Monday in July to address the Democrats of Boone at length.

W. S. TAYLOR has issued a letter from Indianpolis saying he will not be a candidate for the Republican Gubernatorial nomination. This looks like cruelty on his part since he has been so enthusiasticaly endorsed by every Republican convention held in Kentucky this year. But then he understands he cannot very well make the race for Governor of Kentucky and remain in Indiana.

THE Republicans refuse to repeal the stamp taxes on the ground that they must retain money enough in the Treasury to meet extraordinary expenses like that for the Nicaraguan canal, for public buildings, and rivers and harbors, and the like. Yet they have authorized none of these things. But the money will come in handy all the same. It can and will be loaned out to the banks—possibly in return for campaign contributions.

DANGER IN PARIS GREEN.

As another tobacco season opens, we desire to once more call the attention of the growers to the danger in the use of Paris green on tobacco.

We have received from one of the most reliable tobacco rehandlers of this section a leaf of tobacco taken from a hogshead of tobacco opened to redry. It is indeed a striking object lesson of the evils of this pernicious practice. The entire leaf is more or less affected, and one half could not be much greener if green paint had been plentifully applied. In fact, the poison seems to have penetrated through and through the pours of the leaf and is plainly visible on the under surface.

To put it mildly, the chewer or smoker who used that leaf would in all probability eschew the use of tobacco forever afterward. The grower of the tobacco of which that leaf was a sample if known will scarcely be able to find a purchaser for his product in the future, in the rehandler above mentioned, and if this criminal practice (for certainly such indiscriminate use of a deadly poison is nothing short of a criminal) were known, he would be forced to retire from the business altogether.

The use of Paris green on growing tobacco for the destruction of insect pests can not be too strongly deprecated. We urge self-respecting growers to abandon this dangerous practice and to use some more legitimate method of protecting their crops, even if it should require a little more time and labor. In the long run it will prove the better policy.—Western Tobacco Journal.

[Baltimore Sun.]

Rev. Sam Jones spoke twice at Brantly Baptist Church, each time to a crowded audience.

In the course of his outspoken remarks very few of the "modern" institutions escaped criticism. He dwelt particularly on the liquor traffic, denouncing President McKinley for his position regarding the army canteen. He expressed disgust for the present day "club women," and very little love for "modernized girls." He stated that the followers of Spirtualism were harmless, but that they did not have any sense. Referring to Christian Science, he said:

"A man can no more tbink off the toothache than he can think off a corn on his big toe. You can't catch me with your bait."

Some of Mr. Jones's other characteristic expressions were:

"I believe in the doing fellow, I believe in effort. I believe in accomplishment. But what are we doing (the Methodists)? We are just a-trustin' in the Lord. If that's all the job we've got, we had better get out.

"God intends the Christian to be a doing, thinking man.

"How can a child of God vote the Democratic ticket? How can a child of God vote the Republican ticket—when both parties are reeking in wbisky?

"I'm going to say my say wbether a soul in Baltimore agrees with me or not. I don't want a city to agree with me that has 3,500 saloons, because if it did I'd begin to think Iwas wrong.

"Some of you folks that's so critical, if you would read your Bible you would find most of the "slang" that Sam Jones uses comes right out of the Bible."

ORIGIN OF THE MONTH'S NAMES.

"January was named after the Roman god, Janus; the deity witb two faces, one looking into the past and the other gazing forward to future," writes Clifford Howard in the June Ladies Home Journal. "February comes from the Latin word 'februo', to purify. It was customary for the Romans to observe festivals of purification during that month. March owes its name to the old god of war. Among the Saxons this month was known as Lenct, meaning spring; and this is the origin of our word Lent. April was named from the Latin 'aperio', to open, in signification of the opening of flowers. The Saxons called the month Eastre, in honor of their goddess of spring, from which comes our word Easter. May was named after the Roman goddess Maia, and June was so called in honor of Juno July was named in honor of Julius Caesar, and August gets its name from Augustus Caesar. September is from the Latin, 'septem', seven, this being the seventh month according to the old Roman calendar. October, November and December also retain the names by which they were known under the old calendar, when there were but ten months in the year—'octo', 'novem' and 'decem', eigbt nine and ten."

Glorious News

Comes from Dr. D. B. Cargile, of Washita, I. T. He writes: "Electric Bitters has cured Mrs. Brewer of scrofula, wbich had caused her great suffering for years. Terrible sores would break out on her head and face, and the best doctors could give no help; but now her health is excellent." Electric Bitters is the best blood purifier known. It's the supreme remedy for eczema, tetter, salt rheum, ulcers, boils and running sores. It stimulates liver, kidneys and bowels, expels poison, helps digestion, builds up the strength. Only 50c. Sold by W. F. McKim, Burlington, M. J. Crouch, Union, or J. G. Oelsner, Florence. Guaranteed.

Somerset is trying the experiment of sprinkling a street with coal oil to prevent dust flying. Crude oil is obtained from the tank line at about $1 50 per barrel. It is a little expensive at the start but one time's saturating a street lasts several months, and is certainly a deadener to the dust business. According to those who have seen the experiment it is better and cheaper than giving several sprinklings of water each day, and it not only gets away with dust, but also prevents mud.

Two "Missing Word" Platforms.

Political platforms, in order to be of value should say what they mean, and mean what they say. Our Republican friends are prone to take things for granted. Thus the Philadelphia Press summarizes the Republican and Democratic platforms, up to date as follows, without due regard to the consequences:

We endorse—
We rejoice—
We glory—
We heartily support—
We entrust—
We commend—
We repudiate—
We mourn—
We decry—
We are ashamed—
We condemn—
We denounce—
We disavow—

Whereupon the Boston Herald remarks: "It is scaraely necessary to say wbich is which."

Lest, however, there might be a citizen whose arduous occupation in keeping himself and family above abject want, should not have had time to solve the "missing word" puzzle, the Los Angeles Herald comes to the rescue with the following solution:

"We endorse—imperalism.
We rejoice—in the trusts.
We glory—in Hannaism.
We heartly support—a banking currency.
We entrust—the country to boss rule.
We commend—militarism.
That is the Republican platform.
We repudiate—imperalism.
We mourn—the substitution of boss rule for popular government.
We decry—the control of our money by the banks.
We are ashamed—of the war in the Phillippines.
We condemn—imperalism.
We denounce—Hannaism.
We disavow—militarism.
That is the Democratic platform.
On which do you prefer to stand?"

It is of no political importance whether Tammany sends an instructed or uninstructed delegation to Kansas City. Neither is it of any moment whether the state convention instructs, or following precedents, omits to instruct in favor of Mr. Bryan.

As an evidence of Tammanys' willingness to offer an affront to Mr. Hill and promote factional division witbin the party Mr. John F. Carroll's manifesto in favor of an instructed delegation is interesting. But it will in no way affect or influence the situation at Kansas City.

The Democratic State Committee of New York officially recognized Mr. Bryan a year ago as "the leader of the party." There is no effective organized opposition to his nomination anywhere. He will therefore be renominated for President by acclamation.

Every one admits this. Whether the platform will be a living one, broad enough for all Democrats and opponents of Mr. McKinley's policies to stand upon is the one vital thing still in doubt.—N. Y. World.

The highest price ever paid for a high-stepper for show purposes or pleasure driving was paid by Mr. Thomas W. Lawson, of Boston, when be gave Mr. William L. Elkins, of New York, $10,000 for the stallion Red Cloud. Mr. Lawson bougbt him solely for exhibition purposes, and will show the great horse and prize winner at Philadelphia, Newport, Providence, Boston, Brockton and at Madison Square Garden. Red Cloud is a Kentucky bred stallion, having been bred by John B. Wilson, of Sharpsburg, Ky., who owned his sire, a handsome chestnut horse called King, a son of Harrison Chief. Red Cloud's dam was by Red Cloud, son of Indian Chief, who got the great show mare Lady de Jarnette 2:28. Mr. Wilson sold young Red Cloud to Marsh Fleming, of Frankfort, when a colt, and Fleming sold him to Harry Stroud, of Minerva, Ky., who kept him in the stud at a fee of $10 or $15. Stroud won a number of prizes at the various fairs with him as a light harness roadster, and tben sold him to a dealer in Philadelphia for $450. Mr. Elkins afterward bought him for a small sum, had him docked and trained for the heavy harness business.

American mutton will not compete with English successfully unless we use roots. Pure water and salt in which is mixed one-fifth bulk of wood ashes should be constantly before the lambs. The large juicy mutton lamb free from lubber is in demand for export trade at long prices, and wool is booming.—Ohio Farmer.

State News.

Mrs. Sudie Drane committed suicide at Kuttuwa, by taking poison.

Pensylvania capitalists are preparing to build an oil refinery at Somerset which will cost $50,000.

Lincoln Prather, a young farmer of Mason county took refuge under a tree during a thunderstorm and was killed by lightning.

Leonard Smallwood and Hamp Gragg were convicted at London of murder, and their punishment fixed at life imprisonment.

Geneva Candill, of Letcher county, aged 13 years, attempted suicide by banging to a bed post, because her cousin, Harry Adams, aged 15, would not marry ber.

Dan Carr, aged 18 years, who killed Andrew Hunter, aged 12, in Whitley county, because be cracked his whip when he told him not to do so, was given 21 years in the penitentiary.

"Maplelawn," the beautiful country home of Mrs. Mary E. Hibler, 4 miles from Paris, on the Jackstown pike, was sold by Bishop Hibler, to P. J. Millett, of Knoxville, Tennessee. The farm contains 328 acres and is a very desirable tract of land. The price was $95 per acre.

Owen Hieronymous, of Harrodsburg, while painting a roof, fell a distance of forty feet to a stone pavement and received terrible injuries. He struck on his feet and the bones in both legs were shattered, the bones of one leg being broken in eight places. His injuries are not likely to prove fatal, but he will probably be a cripple for life.

There are about 1,900 voters in Magoffin county, and of these one seventh belong to three families. There are ninety-four Howards, of whom about half are Democrats and half Republicans; eighty seven Patricks, of whom seventy-seven are Republicans and ten Democrats; eighty-one Arnetts, of whom seventy-nine are Democrats and only two Republicans.

An attempt was made to assassinate James Butler, of Garrard county, while riding home from a visit to Miss Maggie Wilcox at night. A shotgun was fired at him from the roadside, inflicting painful wounds on Butler and putting out his horse's eyes. William Fowler, white, and Henry Hockaday, colored, have been arrested, charged with the crime. Fowler is a former rival of Butler for the hand of Miss Wilcox.

Midway envys the good fortune of Winchester. Over 250 negroes have left that place for Indiana to find work. Midway is burdened with a superfluity of trifling, worthless negroes who are a menace to the peace of the community and it would be a public blessing if they could be gotten rid of in such a way. These darkies won't work, but get their living by pilfering from the whites and the more industrious of their own race. They are a drawback to the community and we know the people are worn out seeing them around.—Clipper.

Last week Uncle James Horseman, of Washington Branch, while walking around in his yard noticed a turkey hen lying on the ground with her tail spread out. He tbought she was dead, but on stepping up to her she made a struggle and he then saw a cow snake coiled around the turkey's neck choking the life out of her. He got a hoe and killed the snake, which was about four feet long. The turkey finally came to herself. The turkey had a brood of young ones in a coop and likely had given battle with the snake when it tried to capture some of her young ones, with what would have been disastous results if Mr. Horseman hadn't come just in the nick of time.—Owensville Outlook.

Because they were too thirsty to wait until they could get a drink of real whisky Grady Montaine and Frank Williams, of Pineville, tried to provide a substitute, and paid for the folly with their lives. Both are young men and had been to Middlesboro, where they drank freely. At nightfall they started to their home. When they reached Wasioto they were thirsty and tried to get whisky, but found there was none in the town. At the store, however, they managed to secure cinnamon and "hot drops," and made a concoction of them. They drank the drugs freely and became sick. They reached home in a miserable condition and sent for a physician, but before assistance could be given they were both dead.

THE trouble will be to find a Vice-Presidential candidate.

GRANT COUNTY.

From Williamstown Courier.

John Sargent, of the Oak Ridge neighborhood, brought a bald or American eagle, to town last Friday morning, measuring seven feet from tip to tip of its wings, which his oldest brother, Luther Sargent, had shot and killed on the previous afternoon in the woods on the farm of James Kells, not more than three or four miles from town. His beak and claws were something terrible, and the mighty sweep of its outstretched wings almost incredible in its extent. The feathers on its head, breast and tail were white, on his body and wings a very dark brown.

Last week brought perhaps the best tobacco season ever seen in this locality, and every plant large enough, and every place prepared was probably used by Saturday night. Now, if the cut-worms will only let us alone we will likely have the largest crop ever grown in Grant, which means more honest debts paid, more substantial improvements made and more home comforts added. Our county is recovering from the "hard times" and the present outlook is exceedingly flattering for another good year. Let everybody go to work and stop grumbling, be grateful and vote their honest sentiments when the time comes and all will yet be well.

Crop and Stock.

The rain last week injured the wheat considerably. Many wheat fields in this locality are full of cockle.—Midway Clipper.

Walter Shropshire, of Oxford, sheared 504 pounds of wool from 42 sheep, being an average of 12 lbs., sheep.—Paris Kentuckian.

The Stanford Journal notes the sales of a lot of good calves at $22.50 each; 27 good grazing heifers at $23, a bunch of butcher cattle at 3 1-4 cents.

Mr. Breck Bonta tells us that he does not know of a wheat [illegible] that has escaped the fly, and for that reason he believes there will be about half a crop of wheat.

Salt is being used by some of our tobacco growers as a means of getting rid of cut worms. They either sow the salt broadcast or place it about the tobacco plant. The remedy is said to be quite effective.—Falmouth Pendletonian.

A Paris dispatch says: Dealers in blue-grass seed estimate that the crop this season will be fully 60 per cent. larger than any season known for many years. The largest blue-grass seed cleaning establishment in the world is located in this city.

B. F. Sanders & Co., shipped 300 lambs from Vanarsdall station, Tuesday evening, average weight 85 pounds. Price paid 5½ cents. This is said to be the finest early shipment of lambs ever sent from the county.—Harrodsburg Democrat.

Forty eight answers to postals sent out by the Lexington Roller Mills to wheat raisers, inquiring into the condition of the wheat crop, indicate a 10 to 20 per cent. greater yield per acre and a 20 per cent. greater acreage than last year.—Lexington Herald.

S. R. Selecman, one of the best cattle feeders in Missouri, at least has faith in the ability of good cattle to bring remunerative prices. Of late he bas spent upward of $30,000 on the Kansas City market for feeders, paying as bigh as $5.15 for yearling Herefords, and $5.25 for yearling Galloway grades. The latter price is the best ever paid in Kansas City for feeders of the age. The cattle were reported a very choice lot.

Mr. W. S. Whedon, Cashier of the First National Bank of Winterset, Iowa, in a recent letter gives some experience with a carpenter in his employ, that will be of value to other mechanics. He says: "I had a carpenter working for me who was obliged to stop work for several days on account of being troubled with diarrhoea. I mentioned to him that I had been similarly troubled and that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy had cured me. He bought a bottle of it from the druggist here and informed me that one dose cured him, and he is again at his work. For sale by W. F. McKim, Burlington; Berksbire & McWethy, Petersburg, C. S. Lord Roberts is one of the best swordsmen in the British army. He is also an expert with the lance and in earlier days won several prizes through these accomplishments.

An Iowa young man not long ago proposed marriage to a young woman, but, hearing that her hair was false, he declined to fulfill his engagement. She brought suit against him for breach of promise, but she was nonsuited on the ground that she had won the young man's affections under false pretenses.

First Lieut. Hugh A. Drum, of the 12th infantry, now serving on the island of Luzon, is said to be the youngest officer in the American army. His father, Capt. Drum, was killed on San Juan hill. The son fought in the same battle, and has been in several engagements in the Philippines. He has been mentioned in the dispatches several times.

The working men's insurance laws have had a very good effect in German cities in diminishing tuberculosis, by compelling the wage-earning classes to join sick clubs and thereby putting them in the way of taking better care of their health and providing them with medical attendance and nursing at an early stage when tuberculosis is not yet incurable.

Because she gazed too long at the eclipse of the sun the other day, Mrs. H. C. McAllister, of Constago Center, Pa., has been stricken blind. Mrs. McAllister was deeply interested in the solar phenomenon, and watched it steadily for a long time, both with the naked eye and through a smoked glass. Her sight became dim the following day and grad[illegible] grew worse until she became blind.

Ernest Kruger, a compositor employed in a printing office in Leipsig, Germany, has just completed his fiftieth year of service and has been occupied in setting type for one book nearly all that time. The book is Grimm's German dictionary, and the first batch of manuscript was turned over to the compositor in 1851. Thus far 32,000 pages have been printed, and the work is not yet half done.

It is not believed that any part of Capt. Oberlin M. Carter's punishment will be harder to bear than the wearing of prison garb at Leavenworth. A more fastidious dresser never lived. During his stay at Savannah he had all his civilian clothes made in London, and a leading New York haberdasher used to send him at times a trunk full of cravats, gloves, collars, etc., from which to make selections.

The printers' strike at Amsterdam has had a peculiar result in the journalistic world. From April 28 to April 30 no Amsterdam newspapers appeared, but from that date the managers of nine newspapers agreed to print a single sheet, calling it the "Extraordinary Journal," which is now being printed for a circulation of 200,000. All the subscribers of the nine papers are thus served with the news in abridged form.

What is thought to be an antileprous shrub is now under test in Honolulu. It is reputed to have cured a number of natives of this dread disease. Surgeon Carmichael, of the marine hospital service in Honolulu, has received some vials of the extract of this shrub, sent by the surgeon general at Washington for experiment. It will be a wonderful thing if it is ascertained that nature has provided a prophylactic or cure for the scourge of leprosy.

A fresh impetus will be given to the pictorial post card craze by the ingenious invention of an Italian, who has hit upon the idea of producing a card which not only depicts a scene in colors, but likewise serves as a kind of barometer. According as the atmosphere varies the colors change on the cards, and the inventor has so contrived that the colors shall be used so as to give each scene illustrated the effect that would be produced under different atmospheric conditions.

The only person now living who was at the Hermitage with Andrew Jackson during his last years is old Uncle Alfred, who was the body servant of the great Tennessean. The old cabin where he was born is still his residence, but it has recently been reshingled and daubed. He owns in his cabin many of the Jackson relics. The bed he sleeps on was one of the fine mahogany pieces bought when the house was refurnished after the fire in 1836. He has a large china urn which was bought in New Orleans. It is very quaint.

FOUGHT AT GREAT ODDS.

Thirty-One American Soldiers Held Six Hundred Insurgents at Bay for Four Days.

Washington, June 9.—Perhaps the most thrilling and picturesque incident of the entire Philippine war occurred at Cntubig, on the island of Samar, where, on April 13 last a party of 31 enlisted men of Company K, 43d volunteer infantry, held at bay a force of some 600 insurgents during four days of fierce fighting, reinforcements arriving just in the nick of time.

The war department has received reports from Capt. H. M. Day, of the 43d volunteer infantry, and First Lieut. J. T. Sweeney, of that regiment, who commanded the rescue party, giving all the details of the attack, the siege and the relief. According to these reports, the attack on the garrison at Cntubig began without warning on Sunday morning, April 15. From the hills on all sides, from every point of vantage in the town and from a deserted church directly adjoining came a rifle and cannon fire of terrible intensity. On Tuesday morning handfuls of burning hemp were thrown into the barracks from the insurgents in the church, and soon the soldiers' refuge was on fire. All efforts to subdue the fire failed, and finally the little band made a dash for the river bank. Some were killed before the bank was reached; others fell dead in a boat in which they were attempting to make the opposite shore, and when a trench finally was dug with bayonets there were only 16 of the 31 left to man it.

Here for two more days Corp. Carson, handling his men with the judgment of a veteran, held out under a terrible fire until Lieut. Sweeney's command, which had been ordered to supplement the garrison at Catubig, and was on its way up the river on the steamer Lao-Ang, arrived. Not until within a quarter of a mile of Catubig, says Lieut. Sweeney in his report, did they hear the noise of the engagement. Then he realized that he and his men were sorely needed, and he ordered the captain of the steamer to run his boat at top speed. The Lao-Ang steamed up to Catubig under a rain of Mauser bullets from both shores. The small boats were lowered, a landing effected, and the rescuers fought their way through the open to their besieged comrades in the trenches, buried the dead within reach, brought back to the boat the besieged party, numbering now only 13 men, and then steamed down the river.

Capt. Day bestows the highest commendation upon Corp. Carson as "displaying extraordinarily good judgment in the handling of his men, thereby saving the lives of the survivors and protecting the wounded until relief came." To each of the little command and their rescuers he gives the highest praise. "Their zeal and ability," he says, "were a fitting example of the worth and courage of the American soldier."

ELEPHANT STRANGLED.

Sport Died in Six Minutes—A Large Derrick Used to Hang the Animal.

Baltimore, Md., June 9.—In the presence of nearly 2,000 people Sport, the companion elephant of Jolly, who died Wednesday, was hanged here. The execution was determined upon when the attending veterinarian declared that he could not recover. Sport was injured about ten days ago by falling from his car while en route from Scranton to Newark. He fell upon his back. At the time it was necessary to lift him into a box car by means of a derrick and he was then transported to a freight yard, where he has since remained. Shortly after 6 o'clock the noose was placed about his neck, and by means of a derrick he was lifted from the car. He cried aloud when the rope tightened, but once in midair he was comparatively quiet. Twice he struggled convulsively, butted his tail slowly, and then ceased moving. The veterinarian pronounced him dead after six minutes from strangulation.

Sharkey Won Easily.

New York, June 9.—Tom Sharkey easily defeated Yank Kenny in the first round of what was to have been a 25-round bout before the Broadway Athletic club. Sharkey took the aggressive from the start and drove his antagonist all over the ring and finally ended the battle with a right-hand smash on the jaw which put the big fellow down and out. Before the men entered the ring even money was offered that Kenny would stay five rounds.

Father and Son Drowned.

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 9.—While fishing from a boat in the Ohio river near Economy, W. H. Brietenstein, aged 45, and his son George, aged 11 years, were drowned. It is believed the son fell overboard and the father, attempting to rescue him, became entangled in the fishing tackle, rendering his efforts futile. The bodies were recovered.

Swept by a Cyclone.

Dallas, Tex., June 9.—Reports reached here that a destructive cyclone swept over northwestern Arkansas and east Indian Territory, and parts of southern Kansas. The damage to property is reported to be very extensive.

Got Decision on Points.

Waterbury, Conn., June 9.—In a 25-round bout at 138 pounds between Jack Daly, of Wilmington, and "Kid" McFarland, of New York, before the Union Athletic club, the former got the decision on points.

BRITISH EMBARRASSED

Boers Tear Up 21 Miles of an Important Railway Line.

Lord Roberts Has Made No Report for Three Days or Permitted the Correspondents to Wire as to What is Going On.

Lourenzo Marques, June 9.—United States Consul Hollis, who returned here from the Transvaal by special train, had a two hours' interview in close conference with President Kruger at Machadodorp. It is stated that Mr. Hollis was the bearer of friendly dispatches from the United States government urging Mr. Kruger to treat for peace.

Washington, June 9.—Secretary Hay says in reference to the Lourenz Marques dispatch, stating that it was believed United States Consul Hollis had been negotiating with President Kruger to bring about peace, by direction of the Washington government, that Mr. Hollis had no authority whatever from the state department to make a trip into the Transvaal, and, furthermore, the state department did not know of any such intention on his part.

The consul had no right to go into foreign territory without permission from the state department, but, as it is assumed that his visit was of a purely personal character, it is not probable that notice will be taken of his reported actions.

London, June 9.—The war office has received the following dispatch from Gen. Buller:

"Yellow Boom Farm, June 8.—On June 6 Gen. Talbot Coke, with the tenth brigade and the South African light horse, seized Van Wike hill. The enemy made some resistance, and a good deal of sniping occurred. Our casualties were about four killed and 13 wounded.

"During that day and the following we got two 4.7 and two 12-po under naval guns onto Van Wike hill, and two five-inch guns onto the southwestern spur of Inkewelo. Under cover of their fire Gen. Hildyard today assaulted all the spurs of the berg between Botha's Pass and Inkewelo.

"The attack, which was well planned by Hildyard and carried out with immense dash by the troops, for whom no mountains were too steep, outflanked the enemy, who were forced to retire from their very strong position.

"I think we did not have any casualties, and I hope I have obtained a position from which I can render Lning's Nek untenable."

Lord Roberts has communicated nothing for three days, nor permitted the correspondents to wire what is going on. London's inference is that he is resting, although he is possibly disposing his army for a reach after Commandant General Botha.

London, June 10.—Gen. Forestier-Walker cables to the war office from Cape Town, under date of June 8th, as follows:

"Kelly-Kenny, at Bloemfontein, reports that the telegraph has been cut at Roodeval, north of Kroonstad, by a body of Boers estimated to 2,000 strong, with six field guns. He is sending reinforcements to Kroonstad and I am reinforcing from Cape Colony. I hope the interruption will be only temporary."

London is somewhat disgusted at the "disagreeable activity" manifested by the Boers in the Orange river colony thwarting Lord Roberts' telegraphic communication at Roodeval, north of Kroonstad. As yet there is no indication whence came the strong body of 2,000 Boers that has arrived at Roodeval, unless it is the force mentioned in a recent Boer dispatch as having started from Standerton with this very object in view. Apparently the authorities on the spot regard the situation at least as temporary serious, as they are not reenforcing the garrison at Kroonstad, but are sending up troops from the lines of communication in Cape Colony.

London, June 11.—The Boers have torn up 21 miles of Lord Roberts' vital line of railway between America Siding and Roodeval. It is a bold raid and vexatious, but it does not disquiet the military authorities as yet, for they expect Gen. Kelly-Kenny to drive off the marauders and to reopen the line.

The rapidity of the advance of Lord Roberts can not have permitted him to accumulate large reserves of stores. Therefore an interruption of the railway, even for a week, must embarrass the army and may bring the forward operations to a standstill. Nothing has been heard from Lord Roberts for three days. This raid on the railway, the strenuous opposition to Gen. Rundle and the nimble escape of Commandant Gen. Botha's division have forced the war office observers to the reluctant conclusion that the war is not yet over, although even the occasional civilian Boer sympathizer can not see how the Boers will be able to do anything to change the result.

The Seat Brought $3,000.

New York, June 10.—A cotton exchange membership certificate was sold at $3,000. The last price quoted on an actual sale was $2,300. The current advance was expected as a result of the new commission rule adopted recently.

Many Marines Ill.

Norfolk, Va., June 10.—There are 80 marines from the Norfolk navy yard at the Naval hospital, stricken with a strange disease which developed a few days ago. Doctors are unable to diagnose it.

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

Arrangements All Complete for the National Gathering at Philadelphia Next Week.

Philadelphia, June 11.—The republican convention city of 1900 has everything in readiness, practically, for the quadrennial gathering of the republicans of the United States ten days in advance of the date fixed for the opening session. On Saturday, Sunday and Monday, June 16, 17 and 18, reception committees will be at all the railroad stations and ferries to welcome the visiting clubmen. On Monday night there will be a monster torchlight parade in which 25,000 men are expected to march. Excursions have been arranged for every day to points of interest up and down the Delaware river and to historical places in and around the city.

The nights will be given up to banquets, smokers, concerts and other forms of entertainment. On Tuesday, June 19, in the evening, there will be a monster mass meeting in the Academy of Music. The best orators among the leaders in the party will be the speakers. Prominent senators will be tendered complimentary dinners. The most brilliant affair of that kind will probably be the dinner to Chairman Hanna on Saturday night, June 16.

DEMAND FOR AMERICAN COAL.

It is the Opinion That Many of the Mines in Foreign Countries Have Become Exhausted.

Philadelphia, June 10.—Owing to the great demand by foreign dealers for American bituminous coal, Greenville, Hudson county, N. J., may become the greatest coal shipping point on the coast. E. J. Berwind, of the Berwind-White Coal Co., is quoted as saying that he could ship 40,000,000 tons of bituminous coal immediately to Europe if his company had the facilities for hauling such an immense amount.

It was at first believed here that the British-Boer war was responsible in a measure for the scarcity of soft coal in Europe, but it is the opinion that many of the mines have become exhausted.

American producers were compelled to ignore innumerable requests from foreign dealers for large shipments because the demand at home was equal to the supply. Now it is understood the European market is being sought, as arrangements are under way to supply both home and foreign trade.

COLLISION OF TROLLEY CARS.

Four Person Killed and About Twenty-Five Injured, Three Fatally, at Providence, R. I.

Providence, R. I., June 11.—By a collision which occurred in Warwick, on the suburban line of the Union Railroad Co., Sunday noon, two cars striking end on, four persons were killed and about 23 injured, of whom three are probably fatally hurt.

The dead are Arthur Liscomb, Geo. W. Baker (45 months old), Lewis C. Sanborn and Ed D. B. Burroughs (motorman).

The injured are: Lieut. Gov. O. O. Kimball, Providence; C. N. Kingsley and Mrs. Kingsley, Pawtucket; Wm. Mallict, H. A. Palmer, S. B. Bragg, H. T. Palmer, Mary Tourtillot, Wm. J. Bogerdy, Owen J. Hurley, Mrs. Bogerdy and son, D. B. Allcock, Geo. Baker, Mrs. Baker, Florence Baker, Thomas Jackson, Mrs. Jackson, E. J. Fleming, Mrs. Fleming and two children, A. E. Brown, Henry Hanlon, car motorman, and Claude E. Harris, conductor, all of Providence.

TWO NEGROES LYNCHED.

Probably One of Them Was Innocent, and Possibly Both Were Not Guilty of the Crime.

Biloxi, Miss., June 11.—Two Negro men were lynched, possibly for one man's crime, early Sunday morning at Mississippi City, and it is not absolutely certain that either victim of mob law was guilty. Henry Askew and Ed Russ, held as suspects, were taken out and strung up to a tree in a thicket just behind the railroad station.

On June 2 Christine Winterstein, a 13-year-old schoolgirl, was outraged and murdered about two miles from Biloxi while on her way home from school exercises. Askew and Russ, both of whom had been in the vicinity of the place where the outrage was committed that day, were charged with the crime.

Prohibition Ticket in Colorado.

Denver, Col., June 10.—The prohibition state convention, in session here, nominated a full state ticket, headed by J. R. Wiley for governor. The platform holds the president of the United States responsible for the disgrace brought upon this country by the establishment of drunkeries in the Philippine islands and Porto Rico and Cuba. National Chairman Oliver W. Stewart, in an address to the convention, argued that the party should work for prohibition alone and not dissipate its energies in seeking many reforms.

Death of Lyman S. Emery.

Washington, June 11.—Lyman S. Emery, former president of the National Prisoners' Aid association and assistant adjutant general on the staff of W. G. Veazey when the latter was commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., died here, aged 61 years.

Treasury Statement.

Washington, June 9.—The statement of the treasury balances in the general fund, exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve in the division of redemption, shows: Available cash balance, $146,794,575; gold, $72,218,650.

FIFTY-SIXTH CONGRESS.

Summary of Leading Events.

Washington, June 4.—Senate—The senate was in session more than ten hours, nearly four hours of which were spent in executive session. The only features of the session was the speech on the Philippine question by Mr. Teller (Col.) and the effort by Mr. Pettigrew (S. D.) to obtain consideration for the anti-trust bill passed by the house last Saturday.

House—The senate amendment to the sundry civil appropriation bill appropriating $5,000,000 for the Louisiana purchase exposition at St. Louis in 1903 was agreed to; also the disputed items in the District of Columbia bill, and the bill went to the president, leaving only four appropriation bills still in dispute between the two houses.

Washington, June 5.—Senate—Most of the day was given to conference reports and odds and ends of business, preparatory to final adjournment. A night session was held which lasted until 3:30 a. m. the morning. Conference reports were acted upon and a number of private bills were passed. All the presidential nominations were confirmed except that of W. D. Byrnm as general appraiser at the port of New York and Wm. Haywood to be collector of customs for the district of Hawaii.

House—The entire time of the house was taken up in conference reports on the impassed appropriation bills and private measures. A night session was held which lasted until 2:10 in the morning.

Washington, June 6.—Senate—Inability to reach an agreement upon the naval appropriation bill forced the senate to abandon the adoption of the house resolution for final adjournment. The armor plate question was the one which caused the delay. The senate will remain in session until a settlement is finally reached.

House—The entire session was taken up in an endeavor to reach a settlement on the armor plate clause in the naval appropriation bill. A new adjournment resolution will now have to be adopted.

Washington, June 7.—Senate—No business was transacted, the sessions simply waiting for the conferees to report on the naval appropriation bill. The concluding hours were purely a social session. The customary resolution of thanks to Chairman Frye was passed, to which Mr. Frye responded in a brief and graceful speech.

House—After a long and stormy debate the senate amendment to the naval appropriation bill was agreed to and the bill passed. The bill was at once signed, and both the senate and house adjourned sine die.

DEATH OF MRS. SHERMAN.

The Venerable Wife of Ex-Secretary of State John Sherman Passed Away Early Tuesday.

Mansfield, O., June 6.—Mrs. Sherman, wife of the former secretary of state, John Sherman, died shortly after midnight Tuesday morning, aged 72 years.

Without having regained consciousness from the third stroke of paralysis, which she sustained on Sunday afternoon, Mrs. John Sherman was barely alive at a late hour Monday night, with her venerable husband at her bedside, himself in precarious health, and it is feared that he will not long survive his wife.

The Sherman family returned from Washington May 23, to spend the summer here, in hope that the change of climate and the restful manner of their lives might be of benefit to both. While Mr. and Mrs. Sherman were sitting on the piazza of their home Sunday afternoon, chatting with visitors, Mrs. Sherman sustained the shock which caused her death.

Mansfield, O., June 8.—The funeral of Mrs. Cecilia Steward Sherman, wife of Hon. John Sherman, occurred at the family residence at 11 o'clock Thursday morning. Business houses closed and the post office suspended for two hours as a mark of respect. Services were conducted by Rev. A. B. Putnam. The pallbearers were George F. Carpenter, Henry P. Davis, Dr. Wm. E. Longbridge, Lyman A. Strong, Henry M. Weaver, Capt. A. T. Cummins, W. S. Ward and Congressman W. S. Kerr. The burial was private.

Battleships Hurriedly Coaled.

Norfolk, Va., June 10.—The battleships Mussachusetts and Indiana arrived at Hampton Roads Saturday morning from League Island navy yard, and are now being hastily coaled from the colliers Lebanon and Marcellus, preparatory to sailing for Newport, R. I., to join Adm. Farquhar's squadron.

Washington, June 10.—The first installment of cavalry to be sent to the Philippines has been selected. It consists of companies A, B, C, and D, 1st battalion and companies I, K, and M, 3d battalion of the 6th cavalry. They will go via San Francisco.

Now Lieut. Gen. Miles.

Washington, June 11.—In accordance with the provisions of the military academy appropriation bill the president has issued commissions to Lieut. Gen. Nelson A. Miles, commanding the army, and Maj. Gen. H. O. Corbin, adjutant general of the army.

Liabilities and Assets.

New York, June 9.—The schedule of the insolvent banking and brokerage firm of Seymour, Johnson & Co. was filed in the supreme court. The schedule shows liabilities to be $682,730; nominal assets, $798,195; actual assets, $147,266.

Granted Leave of Absence.

Seattle, Wash., June 9.—Capt. J. B. Coghlan, who has been commander of the Puget Sound naval station for over a year, has been granted a six months' leave of absence on account of ill-health.

TOO LITTLE DEBATE.

Senator Green's Opinion of the Services Held in an Episcopal Church.

Senator Benton, of Missouri, one of the most conspicuous figures of the century in either house of congress, had a formidable antagonist in Senator James Stephen Green. Congressman Hitt, according to the Chicago Chronicle, relates this anecdote of the two gladiators:

"Senator Green was not only a man of splendid genius, but of charming manner. He boarded at the National hotel, where he was popular with men and women. The latter found out that the senator was not much of a churchgoer and insisted that he should mend his ways in that regard. One Sunday he was late for dinner. The women asked him why.

"'I have been attending divine worship,' replied the senator gravely.

"To what church did you go, senator?' asked a woman.

"'I don't know,' answered the courtly Missourian. 'I walked up the avenue, turned up Fourth street and entered a church on the left-hand side.' This was an Episcopal church.

"'How did you like the services?' asked another woman.

"'It appeared to me,' answered the senator, 'that there was too much reading of the journal and too little debate.'"

AN UNEXPECTED RESULT.

It Was the Mother and Not the Daughter Who Accepted His Compliments.

"Say," said the man with a worried look, "do you remember giving me a lot of advice on how to conduct my own love affairs about two months ago?"

"Yes," replied the man with the wise expression, relates the Baltimore American.

"Told me if I wanted to win the girl I should make love to her mother?"

"Uh-huh."

"Said if I could get the old lady on my side all I had to do was to toddle around with a ring and say: 'Will you?' to the girl."

The wise man nodded.

"Said for me to compliment the mother on her youthful appearance," continued the worried man, "and give her a jolly about how sad I was that the young ladies of the present were not to be compared with those of the past?"

"Yes. Yes. You won the girl, I suppose?"

"Yes, I did—not. The old lady has sued her husband for divorce and me for breach of promise."

THE CRISIS AT PEKIN.

All Communication Cut Off From the Capital of China.

Ten Thousand Soldiers and Marines Will Be Sent to Pekin to Back Up the Demands of the Foreign Ministers There.

London, June 11.—The Daily Mail has the following from Tien Tsin, dated Friday, June 8: "The wildest rumors are current here to the effect that Pekin is burning, but they lack confirmation."

Trouble has broken out at New Chwang. The state of anarchy around Pekin is likely to be imitated in many quarters. Asiatic artillery has been ordered from Hong Kong to Tien Tsin.

The admirals at Taku, acting in concert, are forcibly reopening the railway from Tien Tsin to Pekin. Gangs of laborers are repairing the damaged line, which is guarded by 1,500 men, composed of detachments from the foreign fleet. One hundred Americans under Capt. McCalla are among them. They have guns and armored trains for use when the line is repaired.

Ten thousand troops of all nationalities, according to a dispatch to the Daily Express from Shanghai, will be sent to Pekin to back up the demands of the ministers upon the government, or, if necessary, to suppress the Boxers themselves.

The American mission buildings at Tung Chau, 12 miles from Pekin, which were abandoned by the missionaries, have been looted and burned by the Chinese soldiery who were sent to protect them. Within three days 75 native Christians, well known men who had been trained for years by American missionaries, have been massacred near Tung Chau. Many of them were burned alive.

Shanghai, June 7.—In consequence of the representations of Japan the landing of a large Russian force at Taku is alleged to have been stopped. It is believed here that should Russia persist in sending a preponderating military force to the front a collision with Japan will inevitably result.

Tien Tsin, June 9.—It is reported from Chinese official sources that 4,000 Boxers surrounded 1,500 Chinese troops between Lofa and Yong Tsun Thursday, and, according to the latest news, fighting was still going on Friday morning.

Washington, June 9.—The following cablegram was received at the navy department Friday afternoon:

"Tong Ku, June 8, 1900. June 3rd landed forces to protect American interests with consent China; fifty-six Pekin, rest Tien Tsin. Nations sent force both cities; no injury so far. British, Russian, Chinese admirals and twenty warships here. Crops likely to fail, causing probably more trouble in the near future. Our landing force under McCalla, June 5, situation most critical. Russian force began fighting; landed fifty more men; have requested Helena be sent immediately to protect interests, or several vessels like her. Consider battalion marines necessary. Need gunboat as base inside. June 6, Tien Tsin Pekin railway cut. Will act concert naval forces other powers protect interests if necessary. Meeting foreign senior naval officers to-day. Present English, French, German, Austrian, Italian, Japanese and American; arrange for combined action to protect life and property if required. Nine hundred men ashore, 25 warships here." KEMPFF.

Tien Tsin, June 8.—In view of the conclusive confirmation of imperial connivance in the Boxer movement, furnished by an edict published today denouncing Gen. Nieh-Si-Chong for killing some of the rioters, the strongest possible action of the powers, it is asserted here, can alone remedy the situation which has assumed the gravest aspect. The edict is couched in such terms that it leaves no doubt of the deep sympathy of the throne with the Boxers, who are described as "good citizens." Besides denouncing Gen. Nieh for killing the Boxers, the edict orders him to return with his troops to Loopal, 30 miles from the scene of the disturbances. It is claimed here that the first step of the powers for the preservation of foreign life and property ought to be the assumption of control of the railroad to Pekin.

Washington, June 10.—Adm. Remey informs the navy department that the gunboat Nashville with a force of marines aboard left Cavite for Taku. She is a light draft gunboat of the same type as the Helena, and it is presumed that she is sent in place of the latter. The Monocacy, at Shanghai also, has been ordered to join Adm. Kempff at Taku.

Shanghai, June 10.—A dispatch from Tien Tsin, dated Friday, June 8, says 500 Russian troops are about to land there. The dispatch adds that Tung Chow has been burned, but that the missionaries are safe.

West Point, N. Y., June 11.—The dedication of the new Catholic church at West Point, over which there has been much controversy during the past three years, took place Sunday. The dedicatory sermon was by Rev. George Desbon.

Dr. Paul Gibier Dead.

Suffern, N. Y., June 11.—Dr. Paul Gibier, head of a sanitarium at Suffern and of the Pasteur Institute of New York city, died at midnight from the effects of injuries received in a runaway earlier in the evening.

PERISHED IN A MINE.

It is Believed That Four Miners Are Dead—A Number of Them Were Taken Out Unconscious.

Glouster, O., June 9.—By an explosion of gas in Mine No. 2, a colliery near this city, Friday, four men are reported to have lost their lives. Two hundred miners were imprisoned. One hundred and seventy-five have been rescued.

Shortly after 7 o'clock, when the mine was filling up with workers who had descended by means of the cage of No. 2 shaft, an explosion of gas occurred, which broke the timbers of the mine in every direction. The air fans were disarranged and it was some time before any progress was made toward opening the way for the rescue of the imprisoned men.

Fire Boss Joseph went down through Shaft No. 6, which connected with the one where the explosion occurred. He made his way through a connecting gangway, and, it is supposed, was overcome by the afterdamp which followed the explosion and was unable to make his way back to the fresh air.

Rescue parties were immediately organized and followed the way taken by the fire boss. They found a party of eight men lying near the connecting gangway, and carried them to the fresh air, not a moment too soon, for all were almost suffocated by the fumes of the deadly afterdamp.

The work of rescue continued for several hours, and by noon it was believed that all the imprisoned men had been released but about 20.

It was found by the rescuers that the air currents through the mine were much better than at first supposed, and this gave hope to the crowds of weeping women and children about the mouth of the shaft that all their relatives and friends would be brought to the surface in safety and little the worse for their terrible experience.

It is practically certain, however, that many of the miners are dead, for the deadly gas known as afterdamp, which follows all explosions in mine workings, had gathered in large quantities near the connection between Shafts Nos. 2 and 6, where the party of eight men were rescued.

RATHBONE'S SURETY.

The Fidelity Company Will Be Held Responsible for the Amount of His Bond.

Havana, June 9.—The troubles of Estes G. Rathbone, former director of posts, seem to be increasing. The auditor's department has thrown out $15,000 worth of vouchers, including $8,000 worth of bills which have been paid twice, most of them at Muncie, Ind. The Fidelity Co. has been notified that it will be held responsible on Mr. Rathbone's bond. Mr. Miller, the manager of the company, and Mr. Rathbone have held prolonged interviews during the last few days, but no decision has been arrived at regarding this new aspect of the situation.

The authorities contend that the Fidelity Co. is responsible. Mr. Rathbone's friends insist that Chas. F. W. Neely deceived Mr. Rathbone, who signed at Neely's request without knowing what he was signing. Coryden Rich has been placed under a $2,000 bond as a witness in the Neely case. A letter has been received here by a friend of Neely saying that, if forced to return, he will show that Rich is a liar and that the latter received as much as he (Neely) did.

Fire Loss at Virginia.

Duluth, Minn., June 9.—The total amount of the property lost in the fire that leveled Virginia Thursday is now closely estimated at $450,000. The insurance will not exceed $125,000. About 80 business houses, including 30 saloons and five hotels, were burned. Thirty residences were also consumed. A car load of food, clothing and blankets was sent to the 1,000 homeless people in the stricken city from Duluth.

Colorado Instructs for Bryan.

Denver, Col., June 9.—The democratic state convention chose Gov. Charles S. Thomas and T. J. Maloney, of Denver; A. T. Gunnell, of Colorado Springs, and Charles Henkle, of Pueblo, as delegates-at-large to the national convention, and instructed them for Bryan and the Chicago platform.

No Foundation for the Report.

London, June 9.—A special from Cairo says that it is reported on apparently good authority that the immediate addition of 7,000 troops to the British forces in Egypt has been demanded. At both the foreign office and the war office it is stated that there is not the slightest foundation to this report.

Destroyed by Lightning.

Berlin, June 7.—The weather during the Pentecost holidays was excessively hot. A number of damaging thunderstorms are reported. The army casino in Wandesbeck was struck by lightning and totally destroyed.

The little town of Stanley, in the Falkland islands, possesses the most unique school service ever known. Two traveling schoolmasters are provided by government, who visit the different families where there are children and give instruction. The length of their visit depends on the astuteness of the children, and they may spend days or weeks, as the case may be, at one house alone.

MANY ENCOUNTERS.

Blood Spilled Owing to the St. Louis Street Car Men's Strike.

Gov. Stephens Has Everything in Readiness to Call Out the Militia, but Will Wait Until the Last Moment.

St. Louis, June 9.—At union headquarters it is announced that the striking carmen are preparing for a long siege, in the belief that the settlement of the strike is not near at hand. The subscriptions which have been received are being distributed among the various divisions, and the division committees are also actively at work in providing for the needs of the strikers.

A mob of furious women and boys last night beat and denuded Lena Kuenter, a young woman who makes her living by peddling lunches among employes of the California avenue street car line. When the mob had stripped her to the waist one woman daubed her with green paint, while two others held her, the jeering boys and women of the mob applauding the outrage and throwing mud.

Two shop girls were attacked by the same mob an hour later, and they also were partly denuded before they escaped.

An organized "committee" of women began to visit the public schools, entering the school rooms, accusing the teachers of riding on the tabooed cars, and threatening them with bodily harm if they did so again. At the Mt. Pleasant school the leader of this committee seized the principal, Mrs. Rose Fanning, shook her violently and announced that she would be tarred and feathered if either she or any of her teachers rode on the cars again.

St. Louis, June 11.—Sunday was one of the most eventful and bloody days since the great strike on the St. Louis Transit began more than a month ago. There were numerous encounters between strikers and other riotous individuals and the constituted authorities, resulting in three deaths and the wounding of half a dozen more persons, mostly strikers. One of the latter will die. The dead are: C. Edward Thomas, striking conductor on the Chestnut avenue line, shot in breast by deputy sheriff; died on way to hospital.

George Rine, striking motorman on Delmar avenue line, shot in abdomen by deputy sheriff; died at city hospital.

Jefferson City, Mo., June 11.—Gov. Stephens says that everything is being put in readiness for calling out the national guard of Missouri to quell disorder in St. Louis consequent to the street railway strike, but he will not issue the call except as a last resort. It will cost, he says, $5,000 to land 2,500 men in St. Louis, and as much per day to maintain them, and as there is no appropriation for that purpose, he does not know how the legislature would view a deficiency of $100,000 for maintaining troops in St. Louis. It might require an extra session of the legislature to appropriate the money, he says.

THE CAPTURE OF GEN. PILAR.

He Was the Most Aggressive and Persistent of Filipino Leaders—Made Prisoner by Police.

Manila, June 11.—Gen. Pio del Pilar, the most aggressive and most persistent of the Filipino leaders, who was captured Friday night, as previously cabled, was made a prisoner at Guadeloupe, six miles west of Manila, by some of the Manila native police. Upon information received that Pio del Pilar was to be at a certain house, Capt. Lara and 12 policemen proceeded in a coach to Guadaloupe, where, aided by a detachment of the 21st infantry, they surrounded the house, captured the general and brought him to Manila Saturday morning, where he was positively identified before the provost marshal.

JUDGE HOLT FOR GOVERNOR.

The West Virginia Democrats Meet in Convention and Nominate a State Ticket.

Parkersburg, W. Va., June 8.—The democratic state convention, which held three sessions Wednesday and adjourned after midnight, reconvened Thursday morning. The only nomination made Wednesday night was that of Judge J. H. Holt, of Huntington, for governor, over Judge Tavenner, of Parkersburg.

For auditor of state the names of James H. Miller, C. W. Corbin, Simms Powell and Joseph C. Handlin were presented, and when it finally came to balloting Miller won easily on the first call of the counties. There was the usual second call for the counties for change of votes so that the vote as announced did not indicate anything except that the changes were all to Miller, who was declared the nominee.

The names of Robert A. Armstrong, Wilson K. Foulk and R. L. Swisher were presented for superintendent of schools. Before the result of the ballot could be announced the usual changes set in and Armstrong was nominated.

George M. McCoy was nominated for attorney general; James G. Harsh for state treasurer; supreme court judges, John W. English and U. G. Bennett.

WHEELER TO BE RETIRED.

It Will Cause a Vacancy in the Grade of Brigadier Generals for an Army Officer.

Washington, June 7.—It is said at the war department that Gen. Wheeler will be given no military assignment under his commission as brigadier general of regulars, but that he will be placed on the retired list for age within the next few days. This plan of action, it is said, is in accordance with an understanding reached between the president and Gen. Wheeler.

The retirement of Gen. Wheeler will create a vacancy in the grade of brigadier general, which will be permanently filled by the appointment of one of the officers of the army who particularly distinguished himself in action in Cuba, Porto Rico or the Philippines. Gens. Davis, Chaffee, Hughes, Wheaton, Bates and Sehwan, all of whom have rendered conspicuous service, are mentioned for preferment. They are all colonels in the regular army and brigadier generals of volunteers. There is an impression that Gen. Davis, military governor of Porto Rico, stands the best chance of securing the star.

BATTLESHIPS MOVING.

The Indiana and Massachusetts Were Made Ready for Sea Service in 48 Hours.

Philadelphia, June 8.—The battle ships Indiana and Massachusetts sailed from the League island navy yard for Hampton Roads, where they will join the North Atlantic squadron under Adm. New York, June 8.—A Washington dispatch reports that Rr. Adm. Schley and his South Atlantic squadron have been ordered from Rio Janeiro to Montevedio. His vessels are the Chicago, Montgomery and Wilmington. It is suggested that this move is made to get the squadron much nearer Cape Horn, if the Chinese situation should make it advisable to send Adm Schley to the Orient. The Wilmington and Montgomery are well adapted to service in Chinese waters.

FROM ALL OVER THE STATE.

TAYLOR ISSUES A CARD.

He Declines to Be a Candidate for the Republican Nomination for Governor.

Louisville, Ky., June 9.—W. S. Taylor sent to the Evening Post from Indianapolis the following statement, in which he declines to be a candidate for the republican nomination for governor.

"To the Republicans of Kentucky:

"At one time I thought, and so announced, that if the republican nomination for governor were tendered to me I should not feel authorized to decline it. But after mature consideration of all interests involved in the contest for civil liberty, and of my duty to myself and to my family, for whom I must provide, I feel that I should ask at your hands relief from the exactions which a nomination would impose.

"For ten long months I have borne as best I could the burdens which have attended this great struggle. How much I have endured for freedom's sake few will ever know. In spite of all this the will of the people has been overthrown and I have not only been robbed, but subjected to a merciless political persecution.

"The coming campaign is one of the profoundest importance to Kentucky. The ballot must be redeemed. The victory won last fall must again be won and the theft perpetrated by the general assembly fittingly condemned. Our only possible redress must come through an appeal to the people. The campaign must be an active, aggressive one. No point should be neglected. Every friend of the sacred cause of human rights should be enlisted.

"To the end that the appeal should be successfully made, you should select for your candidate one who may devote all his time and energies to the prosecution of the canvass. In the light of these considerations, it is therefore manifest that some other than myself should be your standard bearer.

"While I can not longer be your leader in this great battle, yet I shall gladly render whatever assistance may be within my power, for I love liberty none the less because of what I have suffered for her sake.

"W. S. Taylor."

Lexington, Ky., June 7.—The Seventh congressional district committee, in response to a storm of opposition against the recent rulings in Hon. South Trimble's favor at Frankfort, met here and amended those rulings by a vote of 6 to 4. Trimble wanted a primary. The call was amended substituting a convention for a primary, and fixed Paris as the place of holding it and July 9 as the date.

The precinct conventions will be held on July 6 to select delegates to the county conventions on July 7, these to select delegates to the district conventions. The action of the committee was a knockout also for Trimble. Col. John R. Allen, of Lexington, whom the committee's recent action forced out of the race for the nomination, will probably re-enter.

Romance of the Civil War Recalled By a Daguerreotype Exhibited at Louisville.

Harrodsburg, Ky., June 9.—While Mrs. Lucy Latta, of this county, was attending the confederate reunion in Louisville last week, she discovered a daguerreotype of herself in a store window, and thereby recalled a romance of the civil war. The picture was given by Mrs. Latta, then Miss Renfro, to Private Jones, of the 2d Kentucky infantry, C. S. A. When dying Jones gave the portrait to Lieut. Chas. H. Thomas, of his company, and it was found on Thomas' body after the battle of Hartsville. It is said that Thomas also loved the girl.

The picture fell into the hands of Chas. T. Smith, superintendent of transportation of the L. & N., who placed it in the window during the reunion, with the hope of identifying it. Mrs. Latta lives three miles from Harrodsburg.

MAD AT THE COMMISSIONERS.

The Noted Whisky Expert of Lexington Will Not Attend the Paris Exposition.

Lexington, Ky., June 7.—By reason of what he alleges was bad faith on the part of the Paris exposition commissioners, Peck, of Chicago, and Dodge, of Washington, and United States Chemist Wiley, P. J. Lanphear, the noted whisky expert of this city, will not attend the exposition as the representative of Kentucky whisky interests.

He says that after securing ideas and information from him through correspondence, Wiley has usurped the place to which he was entitled. He says the commissioners authorized him to make preparation for the exhibit, and that he spent six months in this way. He contemplates legal proceedings against them.

Midway.

There is talk of recruiting a company at Big Bone or Beaver to be in readiness should Uncle Sam need them to assist him in suppressing the rebellious Boxers in China.

M. C. Carroll and George A. Slayback, two of Midway's prosperous young farmers, drove into Covington Stock Yards, last Monday, a couple of very fine fat cows.

The grading on the new 'pike from Beaver Lick to the Springs is being rapidly pushed forward at present, the object of the contractors being to complete the road before bad weather.

Master Jim Huey came near losing his life Sunday afternoon, by falling from a young horse which began running and kicking, and only for the breaking of the girth strap, he would shortly have gone the way of the world.

Last Wednesday, Chief of Police Peel and Constable Turner, of Nicholasville, visited Big Bone Springs and captured Robert Carrier and Alfred Preston, two young men who are wanted for breaking jail at Lancaster. After securing the alleged criminals and securely handcuffing them together they left for Nicholasville.

Quite an interesting crowd of pretty belles and beaux, chaperoned by Finneil Peak and Arthur Stevenson, passed here Saturday evening, from a pleasant day's visit to the Big Bone bar. (sand bar). They were ladies and gentlemen from in and around Walton and had employed A. M. Edwards' large four-in-hand excursion rig in which they made the trip.

Weed Sleet, Joe Noell, Howe Cleek and Denton Cotton, after which the whole party went to Hamilton and passed away several happy hours boat riding and taking in the much famed sights along the grand Ohio river cliffs.

J. C. Hankins, always ready to do a kind act, kindly remembered your correspondent a few days since by presenting him with a basket of nice strawberries.

Uncle George Utz returned home from Milan, Ind., last Wednesday. He reports a very wet time out there and considerable corn not planted yet, and the crops in rather bad condition on account of the country being flooded.

The fine weather of the past few days gave the farmers an opportunity to work their crops, all of which are looking well, and with a favorable season we may expect to have good crops except wheat. There are quite a number of wheat fields that will not be worth cutting; meadows are also rather poor and will fall short, I judge, one-third compared with last year. The fruit crop is also going to be almost a failure—apples are falling off badly, while the peaches were winter killed; small fruits will be more plentiful.

We had the pleasure of attending the Sunday-school Convention at Bullittsville, last Thursday, and we are glad to report it a success in all its features. While there were several on the program that were absent, there was plenty of material present to take up the work that had been assigned those that were absent, and every subject was very ably discussed. There was a large crowd in attendance and everyone seemed to enjoy the exercises. Among other notable features was the bountiful repast that was spread and the kind reception to all by the pastor and good people of Bullittsville.

Tom Burket was visiting his friend, Pete Adams, in Indiana, not long since, and says the people over there will walk most any distance to accommodate a fellow.

Lee Cleek is getting along nicely with his census work, and hopes to have every thing up in apple pie order by the 1st of July. When Lee applied for the job he was asked this question: "Are you a free silver Democrat?" and like the fearless man everybody knows him to be, answered, "I am!"

An aged woman was taking in the country, hereabouts, last week soliciting alms for herself, mother and a daughter and ten children. She claimed they had been buried out near Bellevue, Beaver, and other points in the county, (just as she happened to remember) reducing them to absolute want. Charity may cover a multitude of faults, but we have an idea that hereditary laziness is a fault that nothing can cover.

The thistle question has been discussed at a lively rate here the past week, and so far as we can learn the farmers are in doubt yet. One farmer suggests the idea that no thistle is any good, so kill them all, and that will settle it. Suppose a farmer should be brought into court for letting Canada thistles grow on his farm and the court and jury with any of the witnesses could not tell a Canada thistle from a United States variety? what then? law is law.

Misses Mabel Bagby, Edna May Ranaler and Leon Pryor are home for vacation. Miss Ransler has been attending the Ky. University and the other two the Georgetown College.

Mrs. Nettie Northcutt, of Covington, on Thursday last, was at the home of her parents to partake of the anniversary dinner on her father's birthday. By the way, Mr. Edward Holder, her father, has it a matter of record that there is always a good tobacco setting season whenever that day, the 6th of June comes around, and he put in some good work in that line before the rain came down.

On last Tuesday night the Town Council passed the dog ordinance assessing a tax of $1 on each and every dog in the place. When the owner of a dog has paid the tax he is furnished with a collar having a plate on it and that dog is an immune. So far as the Marshal's bullets are concerned it can go capering along with impunity. Provision has been made that farmers' dogs sneaking along after them shall be taken care of. Owners of dogs are notified that the killing of unlicensed dogs will commence on the 1st of July, 1900. There is a firm determination on the part of the Trustees to strictly enforce the law.

Jacob Kipp deserves and has the thanks of the whole community for the handsome and durable cement sidewalk that John R. Craven has just finished. Mr. Kipp is never behind in anything that tends to improve and beautify his home and render the town attractive. His example has been contagious and R. M. Jones has Mr. Craven now with a force of men engaged in extending the concrete north to Johnnie Kipp's line. It is hoped the contagion will become an epidemic, and that the whole property holders may be seized with it and the old, uneven rock walks be forever obliterated and done away with as soon as possible.

It is a pleasure to announce that Mr. Noah Glasscock will probably become a permanent citizen of this place. He works for no tobacco trust and has demonstrated his ability to go it alone if necessary. Those with whom he has dealt are pleased to have such a liberal buyer in their midst. In the stubborn contest with his rivals he has often had the sympathy of those from whom he purchased—notably in the case of our friend, James Stapleton, who became very much excited lest Glasscock should lose on the purchase made from him and who was very much relieved upon learning that Noah had come out with a very small margin for his work with his crop. Credit must be given to his able assistant, Chas. Mattox, whose method of handling tobacco for the market always exhibits it in the most favorable light. Glasscock is taking in enough of the weed to keep them busy. Last week he put up the crops of J. J. Hudson and S. C. Taylor. It is convenient to the farmer to have a home buyer who will do the fair thing.

Two or three couples of our citizens seem intent upon committing matrimony in the near future. The cards are out for one that promises to be a very tony affair; the high contracting parties to which are Miss Emma Kuppin, of 648 West Ninth St., Cincinnati, a belle in Jewish society circles, and Mr. Ike Kahn, formerly of Union, the hustling merchant of Main street, this place. The wedding will take place at the Knights of Pythias Castle Hall, Walnut street near 12th, Cincinnati, Sunday evening, June 17th at half past six o'clock. The happy couple will settle down to housekeeping in the handsome residence lately occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Sam Hind.

Another couple with whom all here are well acquainted are booked to be made one on the 20th, unless something occurs, which is not likely to happen. This couple will, in all probability, begin their married life in the beautiful cottage of Mr. Thos. Walsh whose walls will be adorned with some handsome pictures, the work of the fair bride's own hands.

Another couple, Mr. A. M. Edwards, a prominent merchant of the town, and Miss Anna Neumeister were so reticent about their intentions that they were off to Cincinnati and married before the subscriber knew anything about it.

L. J. Hume's many friends are urging him to become a candidate for assessor. Mr. Hume is a staunch Democrat, and is well known all over the county, and if elected would make one of the best assessors Boone ever had. He would roll up a big vote in the county.

Small pox caused a great deal of alarm here last week. A colored man working on the section broke out with the disease. Several pest houses were notified but were all full, and the patient is still here on the switch in a boarding car and is being gaurded day and night. The doctors are all busy vaccinating and it is hoped that there will be no more cases.

Democratic Mass Meeting.

At the Democratic mass convention held at 2 p. m., in the Court House, last Saturday to select delegates to the State Convention which meets in Louisville on the 14th inst., to elect delegates to the Democratic National Convention, Hon. Benjamin Stephens was elected permanent chairman and W. L. Riddell, secretary.

On motion and second the chair appointed the following committee to select delegates to the Louisville convention, being one from each voting precinct in the county, represented in the meeting: J. M. Lassing, O. S. Watts, Chas. Schramm, Robt. Wilson, R. L. Huey, J. W. Kennedy, J. C. Bedinger, B. A. Dulaney.

The committee reported the following list of delegates and alternates, and the report was adopted:

Beaver—G. E. Carroll; Big Bone—J. D. Moore; Union—J. W. Conner; Walton—J. C. Bedinger; Verona—Geo. W. Roberts; Carlton—C. G. Riddell; Bellevue—J. J. Huey; Petersburg—Geo. R. Berkshire; Florence—J. N. Pearson; Constance—A. A. Murat; Bullittsville—John Stephens; Burlington—J. M. Lassing.

Alternates—O. S. Watts, J. W. Kennedy, J. C. Byland, C. W. Waller, R. H. Stephens, Caddy Maurer, Hubert Walton, B. A. Dulaney, Walter Gordon, A. B. Rouse, R. L. Huey, J. C. Hughes.

The following resolution offered by D. E. Castleman, was adopted:

RESOLVED, That the Democracy of Boone County, in mass convention assembled, instruct the delegates this day chosen to attend the State Convention to cast the vote of Boone county for such delegates only to the Presidential Convention as will pledge themselves to the support of William Jennings Bryan for the Democratic nomination for the Presidency.

The mass meeting then adjourned.

After the mass meeting had disposed of its business Judge John H. Westover, candidate for Congress, was introduced and made a neat speech. He was followed with brief speeches by Hon. N. S. Walton, Atty. S. W. Tolin and Dr. B. A. Dulaney.

The Union S. S. Convention.

The Boone County Sunday School Convention held its annual meeting with the Bullittsville Christian Church last Thursday. Eight schools made reports. Visiting brethren were Rev. Geo. A. Miller, of Covington, and Mr. Fox, of Louisville, Secretary of the State Sunday School Association:

Rev. H. Max Lentz, president, called the convention to order. After devotional exercises, Bro. M. J. Hoover opened the discussion on the subject, "Effect of the S. S. on Sabbath Observance." He said that the too general and growing abuse of the Christian Sabbath rendered a discussion of this subject both reasonable and necessary. Some part of our time should be used in the immediate worship of God. The right of determining the proportion of time belonged to God and he by his law had set apart one day in seven for his worship. This is the Lord's day. It is to be remembered and to be kept holy. It is not a day for business, manual labor, or pleasure, as grand excursions and other amusements, but a day for pious reading, holy meditation and worship. Bro. H. Max Lentz made some timely remarks upon the subject. He spoke of the Sunday mail at Burlington and said he heard that the citizens could not get along without the Sunday Enquirer. The time truly had come when all christians should cry out against the abuses of the Lord's day. Bro. Geo. A. Miller then discussed the subject from the standpoint of a city pastor. He spoke of city people going to the country on Sunday and said there was a little excuse for this, but there was no excuse for country people going to the city on Sunday and yet he saw many country people in the city sightseeing on the Lord's day. He also spoke of christians doing nothing for the Lord on the Sabbath, and said that often the sins of omission were as great as the sins of commission.

Bro. Fox then spoke of the cooperative work in Sunday-schools by the various denominations. He laid much emphasis upon organized effort. His remarks on the "Cradle Row" brought out some new features in Sunday-school work to those who heard him for the first time.

An excellent dinner was served by the ladies of the church and that neighborhood. It was a union meeting and a union dinner. All united around the tables which were groaning beneath the burden of good things to eat.

In the afternoon Bro. N. S. Walton delivered a well prepared address on the subject, "How to develope good citizenship." He had made a careful study of the subject and his remarks were well received. He argued that the more men learned of the Bible and its teachings, the better citizens they became. He referred to the need of good citizens and thought that the Bible gave the mother the rule to follow in bringing up the child, and that it also gave the rule for the grown up man to follow. That if all would study the Bible at home, in the Sunday-school and at church worship, we would certainly have good citizens.

Bro. Fox next spoke of teacher training. He was followed by Bros. Miller, Hoover, Harris and Jones. It was the first time the convention had enjoyed the privilege of hearing Brethren Harris and Jones. They made a good impression indeed. Bro. Harris spoke of the spiritual qualification of a teacher. Bro. Jones spoke of the importance of home training and argued that the Sunday-school must never supplant the home training, but must simply be supplementary.

In the absence of Bro. W. H. Davis, Bro. D. E. Castleman was asked by the president to open the discussion on the subject, "The Home Department and Importance of Home Training." He delivered one of the best speeches of the day. Some friend said, "Dave is like a gatling gun—always loaded."

After some general remarks by several brethren the convention adjourned sine die.

The following officers were elected: President, Jo C. Revill, Burlington; Vice President, B. F. McGlasson, Ludlow; Secretary, Mrs. W. L. Riddell, Burlington. Executive Committee.—Jo C. Bevill, Chairman ex-officio, Walter Crigler, John W. Berkshire, A. G. McConnell, C. R. Slater, Edgar Riley.

The Executive Committee is to select the time and place for the next meeting. Churches desiring the next meeting should notify Bro. Revill and he will bring their claims before the committee. The Bullittsville meeting was greatly enjoyed by all and was proof that much good has been accomplished. H.

THE ROUGH PLACES.

Dr. Talmage Indicates the Best Way of Getting Over Them.

Lesson from a Memorable Incident in the Saviour's Life—Following Christ Not Always Smooth Sailing.

[Copyright, 1900, by Louis Klopsch.]

Dr. Talmage, who is now in Europe preaching to immense congregations in the great cities, sends this sermon, in which he describes the rough places of life and indicates the best means of getting over them and shows how many people fail to understand their best blessings; text, Mark iv, 39, "And He arose and rebuked the wind and said unto the sea, Peace, be still."

Here in Capernaum, the seashore village, was the temporary home of that Christ who for the most of his life was homeless. On the site of this village, now in ruins, and all around this lake what scenes of kindness and power and glory and pathos when our Lord lived here! I can understand the feeling of the immortal Scotchman, Robert McCheyne, when, sitting on the banks of this lake, he wrote:

It is not that the wild gazelle
Comes down to drink thy tide,
But He that was pierced to save from hell
Oft wandered by thy side.

Graceful around thee the mountains meet,
Thou calm, reposing sea.
But, ah, far more the beautiful feet
Of Jesus walked o'er thee.

I can easily understand from the contour of the country that bounds this lake that storms were easily tempted to make these waters their playground. This lake, in Christ's time, lay in a scene of great luxuriance; the surrounding hills, terraced, sloped, groved; so many hanging gardens of beauty. On the shore were castles, armed towers, Roman baths, everything attractive and beautiful—all styles of vegetation in smaller space than in almost any other space in the world, from the palm tree of the forest to the trees of rigorous climate. It seemed as if the Lord had launched one wave of beauty on all the scene and it hung and swung from rock and hill and oleander. Roman gentlemen in pleasure boats sailing this lake and countrymen in fishing smacks coming down to drop their nets pass each other with nod and shout and laughter or swinging idly at their moorings. Oh, what a beautiful scene!

It seems as if we shall have a quiet night. Not a leaf quivered in the air, not a ripple disturbed the face of Gennesaret. But there seems to be a little excitement up the beach, and we hasten to see what it is, and we find it an embarkation. From the western shore a flotilla pushing out; not a squadron of deadly armament, nor clipper with valuable merchandise, nor piratic vessels ready to destroy everything they could seize, but a flotilla, bearing messengers of light and life and peace. Christ is in the stern of the boat. His disciples are in the bow and amidships. Jesus, weary with much speaking to large multitudes, is put into somnolence by the rocking of the waves. If there was any motion at all, the ship was easily righted; if the wind passed from starboard to larboard, or from larboard to starboard, the boat would rock and, by the gentleness of the motion, putting the Master asleep. And they extemporized a pillow made out of a fisherman's coat. I think no sooner is Christ prostrate and His head touched the pillow than He is sound asleep. The breezes of the lake run their fingers through the locks of the worn sleeper, and the boat rises and falls like a sleeping child on the bosom of a sleeping mother.

Calm night, starry night, beautiful night! Run up all the sails, ply all the oars, and let the large boat and the small boat glide over 'gentle Gennesaret. But the sailors say there is going to be a change of weather. And even the passengers can hear the moaning of the storm as it comes on with great stride and all the terrors of hurricane and darkness. The large boat trembles like a deer at bay among the clangor of the hounds; great patches of foam are flung into the air; the sails of the vessel loosen and in the strong wind crack like pistols; the smaller boats, like petrels, poise on the cliffs of the waves and then plunge. Overboard go cargo, tackling and masts, and the drenched disciples rush into the back part of the boat and lay hold of Christ and say unto Him: "Master, carest Thou not that we perish?"

That great personage lifts His head from the pillow of the fisherman's coat, walks to the front of the vessel and looks out into the storm. All around Him are the smaller boats, driven in the tempest, and through it comes the cry of drowning men. By the flash of the lightning I see the calm brow of Christ as the spray dropped from His beard. He has one word for the sky and another for the waves. Looking upward, He cries: "Peace!" Looking downward, He says: "Be still!" The waves fall flat on their faces, the foam melts, the extinguished stars relight their torches. The tempest falls dead, and Christ stands with His foot on the neck of the storm. And while the sailors are baling out the boats and while they are trying to untangle the cordage the disciples stand in amazement, now looking into the calm sea, then into the calm sky, then into the calm Saviour's countenance, and they cry out: "What manner of man is this, that even the winds and the sea obey Him?"

The subject, in the first place, impresses me with the fact that it is very important to have Christ in the ship; for all those boats would have gone to the bottom of Gennesaret if Christ had not been present. Oh, what a lesson for you and for me to learn! Whatever voyage we undertake, into whatever enterprise we start, let us always have Christ in the ship. All you can do with utmost tension of body, mind and soul you are bound to do; but, oh, have Christ in every enterprise!

There are men who ask God's help at the beginning of great enterprises. He has been with them in the past; no trouble can overthrow them; the storms might come down from the top of Mount Hermon and Insh Gennesaret into foam and into agony, but it could not hurt them. But here is another man who starts out in worldly enterprise, and he depends upon the uncertainties of this life. He has no God to help him. After awhile the storm comes, tosses off the masts of the ship; he puts out his lifeboat and the long boat; the sheriff and the auctioneer try to help him off; they can't help him off; he must go down; no Christ in the ship. Your life will be made up of sunshine and shadows. There may be in it arctic blasts or tropical tornadoes; I know not what is before you, but I know if you have Christ with you all shall be well. You may seem to get along without the religion of Christ while everything goes smoothly, but after awhile, when sorrow hovers over the soul, when the waves of trial dash clear over the hurricane deck and the decks are crowded with piratical disasters—oh, what would you do then without Christ in the ship? Take God for your portion, God for your guide, God for your help; then all is well; all is well for a time; all shall be well forever. Blessed is that man who puts in the Lord his trust. He shall never be confounded.

But my subject also impresses me with the fact that when people start to follow Christ they must not expect smooth sailing. These disciples got into the small boats, and I have no doubt they said: "What a beautiful day this is! How delightful is sailing in this boat! And as for the waves under the keel of the boat, why, they only make the motion of our little boat the more delightful." But when the winds swept down and the sea was tossed into wrath, then they found that following Christ was not smooth sailing. So you have found it; so I have found it.

Did you ever notice the end of the life of the apostles of Jesus Christ? You would say if ever men ought to have had a smooth life, a smooth departure, then those men, the disciples of Jesus Christ, ought to have had such a departure and such a life. St. James lost his head. St. Philip was hung to death on a pillar. St. Matthew had his life dashed out with a halbert. St. Mark was dragged to death through the streets. St. James the Less was beaten to death with a fuller's club. St. Thomas was struck through with a spear. They did not find following Christ smooth sailing. Oh, how they were all tossed in the tempest! John Huss in a fire; Hugh McKail in the hour of martyrdom; the Albigenses, the Waldenses, the Scotch Covenanters—did they find it smooth sailing? But why go into history when we can draw from our own memory illustrations of the truth of what I say?

A young man in a store trying to serve God, while his employer scoffs at Christianity; the young men in the same store, antagonistic to the Christian religion, teasing him, tormenting him about his religion, trying to get him mad. They succeed in getting him mad and say: "You're a pretty Christian!" Does that young man find it smooth sailing when he tries to follow Christ? Or you remember a Christian girl. Her father despises the Christian religion; her mother despises the Christian religion; her brothers and sisters scoff at the Christian religion; she can hardly find a quiet place in which to say her prayers. Did she find it smooth sailing when she tried to follow Jesus Christ? Oh, no! All who would live the life of the Christian religion must suffer persecution. If you do not find it in one way, you will get it in another way. But be not disheartened! Take courage. You are in a glorious companionship. God will see you through all trials, and He will deliver you.

My subject also impresses me with the fact that good people sometimes get frightened. In the tones of these disciples as they rushed into the back part of the boat I find they are frightened almost to death. They say: "Master, carest Thou not that we perish?" They had no reason to be frightened, for Christ was in the boat. I suppose if we had been there we would have been just as much affrighted. Perhaps more. In all ages very good people get very much affrighted. It is often so in our day, and men say: "Why, look at the bad lectures. Look at the various errors going over the church of God. We are going to founder. The church is going to perish. She is going down." Oh, how many good people are affrighted by iniquity in our day and think the church of Jesus Christ is going to be overthrown and are just as much affrighted as were the disciples of my text! Don't worry, don't fret, as though iniquity were going to triumph over righteousness. A lion goes into a cavern to sleep. He lies down with his shaggy mane covering the paws. Meanwhile the spiders spin a web across the mouth of the cavern and say: "We have captured him." Gossamer thread after gossamer thread until the whole front of the cavern is covered with the spider's web, and the spiders say: "The lion is done; the lion is fast." After awhile the lion has got through sleeping. He rouses himself, he shakes his mane, he walks out into the sunlight. He does not even know the spider's web is spun, and with his roar he shakes the mountain. So men come spinning their sophistries and skepticism about Jesus Christ. He seems to be sleeping. They say: "We have captured the Lord. He will never come forth again upon the nation. Christ is overcome forever. His religion will never make any conquest among men." But after awhile the Lion of the tribe of Judah will rouse Himself and come forth to shake mightily the nations. What's a spider's web to the aroused lion? Give truth and error a fair grapple, and truth will come off victor.

Do not be afraid of a great revival. Oh, that such gales from Heaven might sweep through all our churches! Oh, for such days as Richard Baxter saw in England and Robert McCheyne saw in Dundee! Oh, for such days as Jonathan Edwards saw in Northampton! I have often heard my father tell of the fact that in the early part of the century there broke out a revival at Somerville, N. J., and some people were very much agitated about it. They said: "You are going to bring too many people into the church at once," and they sent down to New Brunswick to get John Livingston to stop the revival. Well, there was no better soul in all the world than John Livingston. He went and looked at the revival. They wanted him to stop it. He stood in the pulpit on the Lord's day and looked over the solemn auditory, and he said: "This, brethren, is in reality the work of God. Beware how you stop it." And he was an old man, leaning heavily on his staff—a very old man. And he lifted that staff and took hold of the small end of that staff and began to let it fall slowly through between the finger and the thumb, and he said: "Oh, thou impenitent, thou art falling now—falling from life, falling away from peace and Heaven, falling as certainly as that cane is falling through my hand—falling certainly, though perhaps falling slowly!" And the cane kept on falling through John Livingston's hand. The religious emotion in the audience was overpowering, and men saw a type of their doom as the cane kept falling and falling, until the knob of the cane struck Mr. Livingston's hand, and he clasped it stoutly and said: "But the grace of God can stop you as I stopped that cane," and then there was gladness all through the house at the fact of pardon and peace and salvation. "Well," said the people, after the service, "I guess you had better send Livingson home. He is making the revival worse." Oh, for gales from Heaven to sweep all the continents! The danger of the church of God is not in revivals.

Again, my subject impresses me with the fact that Jesus was God and man in the same being. Here He is in the back part of the boat. Oh, how tired He looks! What sad dreams He must have! Look at His countenance; He must be thinking of the cross to come. Look at Him; He is a man—bone of our bone, flesh of our flesh. Tired, He falls asleep; He is a man. But then I find Christ at the prow of the boat; I hear Him say: "Peace, be still," and I see the storm kneeling at His feet and the tempests folding their wings in His presence; He is a God. If I have sorrow and trouble and want sympathy, I go and kneel down at the back part of the boat and say: "O Christ, weary One of Gennesaret, sympathize with all my sorrow! Man of Nazareth! Man of the Cross!" A Man, a Man! But if I want to conquer my spiritual foes, if I want to get the victory over sin, death and hell, I come to the front of the boat, and I kneel down, and I say: "O Lord Jesus Christ, Thou who didst hush the tempest, hush all my grief, hush all my temptation, hush all my sin!"

I learn once more from this subject that Christ can hush a tempest. It did seem as if everything must go to ruin. The disciples had given up the idea of managing the ship; the crew were entirely demoralized; yet Christ rises, and the storm crouches at His feet. Oh, yes; Christ can hush the tempest! You have had trouble. Perhaps it was the little child taken away from you—the sweetest child of the household, the one who asked the most curious questions and stood around you with the greatest fondness, and the spade cut down through your bleeding heart. Perhaps it was an only son, and your heart has ever since been like a desolated castle; the owls of the night hooting among the fallen arches and crumbling stairways. Or all your property swept away, you said: "I had so much bank stock; I had so many government securities; I had so many houses; I had so many farms—all gone, all gone." Why, sir, all the storms that ever trampled with their thunders, all the shipwrecks, have not been worse than this to you. Yet you have not been completely overthrown. Why? Christ says: "I have that little one in my keeping. I can care for him as well as you can, better than you can, O bereaved mother!" Hushing the tempest. When your property went away, God said: "There are treasures in Heaven in banks that never break." Jesus hushing the tempest.

There is one storm into which we will all have to run. The moment when we let go of this world and try to take hold of the next, we will want all the grace possible. Yonder I see a Christian soul rocking on the surges of death. All the powers of darkness seem let out against that soul—the swirling wave, the thunder of the sky, the shriek of the wind, all seem to unite together. But that soul is not troubled. There is no sighing, there are no tears; plenty of tears in the room at the departure, but he weeps no tears—calm, satisfied and peaceful; all is well. By the flash of the storm you see the harbor just ahead, and you are making for that harbor. All shall be well, Jesus being our pilot.

Into the harbor of Heaven now we glide;
We're home at last, home at last.
Softly we drift on the bright, silvery tide;
We're home at last.
Glory, to God, all our dangers are o'er;
We stand secure on the glorified shore!
Glory to God, we will shout evermore,
We're home at last.

ABUSE THE MARKETS.

On the Naked Plea of Overproduction Disaster Has Been Forced Upon the People.

The alarmist has a poor vocation. Men, generally speaking, who are engaged in active industries, are much given to discounting the prosperity which seems apparent to almost everyone who is not profoundly thoughtful on the conditions necessary to and the interruptions which are a constant source to the necessary conditions. Therefore it is that the honest masters of trade are constantly on the lookout for an interruption of the essential conditions which insure prosperity. Were these dependent on supply and demand it would not be difficult to gauge the relations between the producer and the consumer, and if honest principles were in control between the two forces, production and consumption, the crisis would in most instances be averted, or certainly controlled within the smallest space of the business affected.

A large, intelligent lesson has been taught in the last few weeks to those controlling the productive market. It is a notable fact that prices of stock in all the actives had sailed into the skies, and insatiate greed was doing its full part to keep them to their flight. The conservative buyers fully appreciated the situation. They felt that the speculators had taken a fearful hold on the manufacturing industries, and the result could not be anything but disastrous. They would not be losers. They could hold their holdings. They could give warnings and thus prepare the public for the slump. They could go still further. They could punish the vicious element which had assaulted prices without just cause, and who, it was claimed, were amenable under the law. Within a day the slump came. Thousands of people were ruined. A great enterprise which had involved $100,000,000 to perform a service which only required 50 per cent. of that amount ($50,000,000) was struggling with bankruptcy.

There were other means of disorder which could have assailed the "Steel and Wire trust" other than the one which did. Either of them would have been as effective in destroying the prosperity of the concern. A strike or a lock-out would have been highly injurious. Or a combination of the controlling interest in the stock and other securities of the "trust" would have worked deplorable damage. On the naked plea of overproduction this disaster was forced on the people. It could not have been so done had not its principal officers countenanced the movement, and thus gave the strength of their names to the reduction of values. It seems strange that no legislation can be enacted which will insure punishment to those commercial outlaws. That it is not reflects severely on the class of people whom the public selects for the discharge of legislative life. The lesson taught in the above described illustration is one which it is wisdom to heed. The labor, the wage-earners, are less given to the destruction of established industries than are the men who are in possession of the securities, and who speculate to illegitimate returns on the capital they have invested, even though it be of a liquid character.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

POINTS AND OPINIONS.

——"At the close of the Bryan campaign," shouts a republican, "the gold in the treasury was only $97,500,000; now it is $125,000,000." And every dollar was taken out of taxpayers' pockets—half of them democratic taxpayers.—Chicago Chronicle.

——As the trusts are already forwarding contributions to the republican campaign fund, it is not a violent presumption that they are entirely satisfied with the anti-trust resolutions of the republican conventions.—Helena (Mont.) Independent.

——The political situation in the far west may make it necessary for Mr. McKinley to again journey toward the setting sun before the summer is over. The republican campaign managers are hearing unpleasant news from the region beyond the Mississippi.—Boston Traveler.

——Had the McKinley administration observed the pledge of congress and made Cuba free and independent—withdrawn the troops and allowed the Cubans to govern themselves—it could not be charged with responsibility for the Havana postal scandals.—Grand Rapids Democrat.

——Relief from the trusts through a republican congress that openly approves every piece of legislation authorizing these commercial brigands to put their hands deeper into the people's pockets is as hopeless as trying to bale out the water from the sea with a sieve.—Kansas City Times.

——The reckless manner in which money has been squandered in the administration of Cuban affairs as well as stolen by favorites of the white house and of Hanna does not give encouragement to look forward with approval to the passage of the act turning the Philippines over to the president with a free hand for the next six months.—Boston Post.

——It is still said that the paramount issue of the presidential campaign will be the reelection of William McKinley. Is William still a saint? Have not some of the exposures of the war with Spain, and some of the more recent startling revelations, done a good deal to dim the McKinley halo? Or will the people be satisfied with the assurance that the cabinet is diurnally considering the post office frauds with great gravity and that the president is still a dear, sweet man?—Cincinnati Enquirer.

NAIL THE GUILTY ONES.

The Nation Is Responsible for the Looting of the Cuban Post Office.

Unless congress shall take in hand the Cuban post office frauds and thefts, whereby the Cuban people have been robbed of hundreds of thousands of dollars by appointees of President McKinley, and the United States has been put in the position of an unfaithful trustee, the facts of the crime are likely to be smothered in the interest of McKinley's reelection. At present the purpose of the administration seems to be to make a show of activity in dealing with one or two of the culprits, and then treat the whole subject as no longer of public concern. Then the plea will be offered that the wrongdoing was liable to occur under any administration, and that, when detected, it was vigorously prosecuted.

An answer like this, however, does not cover the case. There have been dishonest officials, it is true, under democratic as well as republican rule, although it is equally undeniable that dishonesty on the part of public men has been much more frequent in republican administrations than in democratic, and that the era of flagrant corruption came in with the advent of the republican party to power. These Cuban frauds, however, have a turpitude all their own. They belong to that most odious class of crimes—breaches of trust, and—worst of all—they constitute breaches of trust not only on the part of those immediately guilty, but of the national government. As an employer is responsible for the acts of his agents, so President McKinley is responsible, and the nation of which he is the head is responsible, for the looting of Cuba's post office treasury by knaves whom McKinley selected and appointed.

It is, in one sense, as if a minister or ambassador of the United States, admitted to a foreign court on the strength of his credentials, should steal the purse or rob the treasury of the sovereign receiving him.

The only way to clear the honor of the United States, which has been marred and tarnished by McKinley's Cuban carpet-baggers, is for congress to make an honest and exhaustive investigation, and fix the guilt and the responsibility where they belong, no matter how high the offenders. The envy of the democrats in congress should be that of Gen. Grant, when some of his trusted associates proved to be scoundrels: "Let no guilty man escape!"

THE PEOPLE APPEALED TO.

Envoys of a Nation Struggling for Freedom Ignored by the Republicans.

A Chicago McKinley organ, the Tribune, anxious, lest the Boer envoys fall into the error of appealing to the people directly, instead of through the government, expresses its fear that in so doing they are in danger at the outset of becoming the plaything of a democratic political gathering.

It is a trifle surprising that the foreign envoys of a nation struggling for freedom are not entitled to receive the sympathy of the American people or of that part of them allied to the democratic party. The suspicion is excited that if, in the beginning of the South African war, when the British were being mowed down like grass with the Boer scythe, an English deputation had appealed to the sympathy of the republican party it would have been granted with a fervor enhanced by large contributions of money. That indeed was the republican sentiment unconcealed by the republican press and official Anglomaniacs.

The real fear of the republican managers is not that the Boer envoys will fall into the hands of the democratic Philistines, but because the policy of the McKinley administration has put itself so far out of line with free government, whether abroad or at home, that it sees slipping away from the party the affections of a freedom-loving American people, and cannot avail itself of any expressed sympathy for a struggling people, to add to Mr. McKinley's chances of reelection.

Since when is it that the American people are not free to express sentiments adverse to the policy and practices of the party in power? Is not that a greater right in the people of this country than it is the right of the party in power to adopt a policy in direct opposition to the people and injurious to their interests?

We might bring on a terrible war. Perhaps, but would it not be in a better cause than bringing on an equally terrible war at the request of noncombatants to collect a few paltry thousand dollars alleged to be due from Turkey on account of highly overvalued second-hand wearing apparel?—National Democrat.

The Republican Policy.

It is melancholy in these closing weeks of a session which promised so much of solid advantage to the nation to look back and see how little has really been achieved and how much of that has been inexcusably bungled. It is so obvious as to be undeniable that in this congress the democratic minority has thus far surpassed the republican majority in the two vital qualities of skill and "sand." We have had, not perhaps a wasted, but certainly far from fruitful, session. The popular feeling toward republican congressional leadership is one of unconcealed discontent. It may easily become a feeling of disgust if affairs are not considerably bettered before adjournment. For five months the republican policy in congress has been in large part one of temporizing, compromising and surrender.—Boston Journal (Rep.).

OVERAWED THE STRIKERS.

Thompson Showed Them That He Was a Dead Shot and Violence Ceased.

"Whenever I read of strike riots," said a civil engineer recently, according to the New York Sun, "I recall a small one that I witnessed years ago which was an object lesson. This strike was ordered in a big coal yard on the lower west side of town, which was owned by a friend of mine whom I may call Thompson. Thompson was not a big man, but he was an expert revolver shot. It was his pet fad and he spent a lot of time and burned much powder to perfect himself in it. He could hit coins thrown in the air and do all the well-known tricks with a revolver. In his coal yard were employed 25 or 30 husky coal handlers and when they were ordered on strike they started in to make trouble at once.

"Thompson engaged a new gang of men and sent them round to his yard, but they were beaten off by the strikers. Several very serious assaults occurred there on the first day of the trouble and Thompson was warned to stay away if he valued his life. He sent back word that they might expect him early the next morning and that he wanted to see all of the strikers in his yard to talk to them. The gang assumed that this meant capitulation on his part and they celebrated accordingly. Thompson invited me to go to the yard with him next morning and see the fun. We found the strikers there to a man. They looked confident. Thompson told the men to stand at one side of the yard. They obeyed, wondering what he proposed to do. He stepped over to the side of a big shed and with a piece of chalk drew roughly the outlines of a man. Walking back about 50 feet he said to the strikers:

"'I understand that you have handled some men pretty roughly in this neighborhood and you threatened to do me up if I didn't yield. Now, I am not that sort of a man. You fellows have made a mistake. I came here this morning to settle this matter and I am going to do it without the aid of the police. In an hour's time I expect a new gang of men here and I will see to it that you don't interfere with them.'

"The strikers were ugly at this unexpected statement, but before they could advance Thompson pulled his revolver and fired five shots as fast as he could pull the trigger. Every shot went into the head of the man drawn with chalk. He loaded his revolver and put next five shots into the chest of the chalk man. Then reloading his revolver he turned to the strikers and said:

"'Now, you loafers, get out of here. I don't want to have to shoot you, but I will do it if you make a break at me or at any of my new men. Clear out, now, quickly.'

"They did clear out and when the new men arrived Thompson was on the walk to meet them. Not one of the strikers dared to interfere. Some of the strikers came back later, but none of them ever offered any violence to Thompson. He had made his point."

"No," declared the defendant, "I couldn't have signed that note, because I can't write."

"Not even your name?" asked the prosecuting attorney.

"No. I just make my mark."

"Well, let's see you do that on this piece of paper." The defendant took the pen and made a crude X. Then above it he wrote "his" and below it "mark."—Philadelphia Press.

NOTES FROM WASHINGTON

Items of General Interest from the National Center of Legislation.

REPUBLICANS PLAYING A SHAM GAME.

Failure of Congress to Legislate Against Trusts—The Cuban Steel and Mining Troubles—Imperialism Gaining Ground—Hanna's Fund Short.

[Special Correspondence.]

The republicans are in a blue funk because they realize that the country is already sitting in judgment on the failure of their congress to legislate in restraint of trusts. Their alleged constitutional amendment fell so flat that it became imperatively necessary to construct something else that could be used for a campaign scarecrow.

The ways and means committee is holding night sessions and calling in the best legal talent to aid it in drawing up what the republicans advertise as a "real anti-trust bill."

"This is going to be constitutional and it will squeeze all the water out of trusts and prevent them from oppressing the people," said a republican who stands very high in administration councils.

It was pointed out that the date set for the introduction of the bill would only be a week before adjournment and that the chances were very much against its being pushed through both houses, even if the republican majority desired such a result.

"Well, of course, it may not be passed this session," said this same optimistic manufacturer of campaign material, "but at any rate it will show the people what we intend to do and they ought to keep the republicans in power when their intentions are so good."

The trouble is that the people have grown tired of promises and good intentions on the part of the republicans. They had a clear majority in both houses and could have passed any desired anti-trust legislation long ago. The fact is that they never intended to meddle with the trusts and have only been frightened into a sham display of opposition at this late date because the voters of the country are already voicing their indignation at a party which not only refuses to restrain the mischievous tendencies of trusts but actually promotes their interests as far as possible by power of congress.

Republican Pretense.

Even if a really effective anti-trust law were passed, the republicans could always find an attorney general, like the present one, who would declare the law inoperative.

A proposition to restrain trusts will be in nice company with the ship subsidy bill on one side of it and the armor plate steal on the other, not to say anything of the opportunities for trust exploitation so generously furnished in legislating for Porto Rico outside the constitution and leaving the Philippines in the control of the president—which means Mark Hanna and his friends.

The republicans are a little late with their pretense of restraining trusts. This congress will be judged on what it actually did in relation to trusts, not what it proposed to do.

The Cuban Postal Frauds.

The Cuban postal frauds gave one object lesson on the effect of imperialism, and the investigation of the Idaho mining troubles and the application of martial law gives a twin lesson as to the dangers of militarism and a big standing army.

The republican majority of the house committee on military affairs try to justify the use of United States troops in imprisoning and finally exiling men, whose only proven offense was membership in a labor union. The wage workers of the country will not fail to note this, and they fear that militarism will be found a much more convenient toll than the usual injunction whenever an industrial disturbance occurs. It is not that the punishment of the rioters in Idaho is condemned. On the contrary the labor organizations all over the country have condemned the riot and put themselves on record in favor of punishing the guilty to the fullest extent of the law. The trouble is that the administration and its party seem to think that martial law is a good substitute for state and federal law and that it does not matter how many innocent men are punished on suspicion that they are exercising their rights as citizens in belonging to a union.

The minority report on the Idaho trouble shows that Gen. Merriam and Gov. Steunenberg cooperated in an application of martial law which has no precedent in this country. Every accusation as to the cruelties of the bullpen was sustained and it was shown that martial law is still in force in Idaho for the sole purpose of enforcing the "permit" system.

The wage workers of the country are alarmed at this disposition to take away from them the protection of the constitution and substitute an irresponsible militarism. One of the first results of the Idaho investigation is shown in Speaker Henderson's report to President McKinley that the army reorganization bill cannot pass the house. He said if it did the next house would surely be democratic. The democratic congressional committee is sure that it will be democratic anyway, but the administration is very much grieved over the failure of the army bill.

Application of Imperialism.

While an adjournment early in June is confidently advertised by the republicans, there is plenty of work on hand for congress. The house makes slow progress with the Alaskan code. It is a most voluminous bill and the democrats show an exasperating tendency to thoroughly sift a number of its most objectionable features. Among other things it is proposed to very much extend the power of the administration-appointed judges and to curtail the cases in which trial may be had by jury. The whole code shows the application of imperialist notions, that is taking the power from the people and putting it into the hands of the administration.

The Philippine bill tarries in the senate but will probably get through the house without much debate. It is a foregone conclusion that congress will let the Philippines alone and direct the president to pursue any policy he chooses. The republicans are so thoroughly scared over the Cuban rottenness that they dread any mention of the Philippines. The scandals are much greater there, but the administration hopes to censor everything until after election.

Hanna's Campaign Fund.

Mark Hanna's campaign fund is by no means as large as he desires. The various interests which he assessed so successfully four years ago are very slow in contributing this time. So the republicans instead of boasting of their $25,000,000 campaign fund as they did a few weeks ago, are talking of a "campaign of education." That is a pleasant euphemism for a campaign of misrepresentation. But even that takes a lot of money. And the congressmen who voted for the Porto Rico bill and other administration iniquities, under a promise of a big campaign fund, are very much disheartened over the prospect of facing indignant constituents and trying to make a campaign on principle. The democrats can do that, but it is a little difficult for the republicans with the record of this congress in evidence.

ADOLPH PATTERSON.

TO DEMOCRATIC CLUBS.

William R. Hearst, President of the National Association, Issues an Address.

Washington, May 31.—Mr. William R. Hearst, president of the National Association of Democratic Clubs, had a formal conference with the principal democratic leaders in Washington at the Metropolitan hotel regarding the plan of campaign to be followed in the approaching presidential struggle. Senator Jones, chairman of the democratic national committee; Representative Richardson, democratic leader in the house, and chairman of the congressional committee, Judge Chauncey F. Black; Representative Clayden and others were present. It was agreed that the democratic national committee, the Association of Democratic Clubs and the democratic congressional campaign committee should work in harmony. At the close of the conference President Hearst issued the following:

"To the Democratic Clubs and Societies of the United States: Recent events in the history of the United States point to the approaching anniversary of the birthday of the nation as a day that should be celebrated with special fervor this year. There are those in the nation who seek to create the impression that the American people have outgrown their love for the just principles of government expressed in the Declaration of Independence and are ready to surrender their moral leadership among nations in order to gratify a newly born instinct for imperial power founded on a colonial system. All the democratic clubs and societies are earnestly requested to assemble on the Fourth of July, and all patriotic citizens, regardless of past party affiliations, are urged to join with them in a new pledge of fidelity to the republic as the fathers made it. Let the people of the United States unite in their various cities, towns and villages in a demonstration of the confidence they feel in the form of government under which the nation has grown to its present greatness. The danger which threatens the country is real and imminent. It seems appropriate, therefore, that citizens who believe that the Declaration of Independence is not merely an academic document should meet together on this day and give voice to the national sentiment that all men are created free and equal and that there must be no subject colonies under the American flag.

"W. R. HEARST,
"President of National Association of Democratic Clubs."

Porto Rico to Be Pitied.

The Porto Rican consumer—by the juggling of the administration barred as a citizen of the republic—must import from the United States all articles entering into his daily life. The Dingley law prevents him importing from elsewhere, and it charges him this toll: Corn, 3 cents per bushel; corn meal, 3½ cents per bushel; oatmeal, 2 mills per pound; oats, 3 cents per bushel; brooms, each, 7 mills; cotton cloth, per yard, valued at 12 cents, 6 mills; wire nails, per pound, 1½ mills; boots and shoes, valued at $1, .037 cents; clocks, each dollar of value, 5 cents; lard, each pound at 6 cents, 3 mills; butter, each pound valued at 14 cents, 6 mills; soap, on each pound valued at 10 cents, 3 mills; beans, per bushel, 7 cents; household furniture, on each dollar's value, .067 cents; earthenware, common, on each dollar's value, .052 cents; glassware, common, on each dollar's value, .067 cents; dried herring, per pound, 1 mill. Machetes, it is pleasing to note, go in free of duty. —The Verdict.

A Republican Trick.

If the republicans in congress really had a remedy for trusts, why did they hold it till the last days of the session, when it is impossible to get it through? The constitutional amendment will take years to become incorporated in that instrument, even if it is started on its course immediately. As a remedy it is a joke. This report of the house judiciary committee is so transparently a campaign dodge that it will fall flat. The republican McKinley administration has so diligently promoted trusts and all their works that a pompous anti-trust declaration by a congressional committee will not deceive the people as to the party attitude on the subject. After election we shall hear no more of the proposed amendment.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch

It was at a wedding, and as the soon-to-be wedded couple walked down the aisle of the little church embarrassment was plainly written on the face of both; but when, in response to the question by the minister if either of them knew of any reason why they should not lawfully be joined together, there came boldly forth from each the answer "I do," the evident embarrassment on their part was changed to one of real on the part of the clergyman.—Harper's Monthly.

[Mt. Sterling Sentinel Democrat.]

To use his own language, Dr. J. D. Fields, of Austin, Tex., who was here yesterday, "came back to see his grave." Dr. Fields was a gallant Confederate soldier. He fought under Col. Bob Martin, and in 1864, in a battle between Morgan's and Burbridge's men on the Camargo pike near this city, Dr. Fields was so badly wounded he was left on the field of battle for dead—so fatal were his wounds believed to be that his comrades dug a grave near where he fell in which to lay him away when he breathed his last, which they thought would be but a short time. Such, however, was not the case. He revived, and his fellow-soldiers removed him to the house of a Mr. Hamilton (believed to be J. C. Hamilton, from Dr. Fields' description), and, after getting better and fearing he would be captured by the Federals, he was taken to Mrs. Mary Owings' (mother of Mr. Joshua Owings,) and later to Mr. Pres. Howard's. After leaving Mr. Howard's Dr. Fields says he laid out in the brush until he was able to travel.

Yesterday, accompanied by Capt. Fred Riddell and T. H. Eastin, Dr. Fields visited the spot where his grave was dug. Later he went out to see relatives of the people who had befriended him when he was nursing his wounds.

Dr. Fields has been attending the Confederate Reunion at Louisville. This is his first visit to Kentucky since the day in '64 when his comrades had prepared his last resting place for him.

Rev. John Jasper, now in his eighty-eighth year, who was made famous by his dictum that "the sun do' move," was sought in his humble home to get hisviews of the eclipse.

"You still believe that the sun moves?" he was asked.

"Yes," answered the dusky preacher. "I believe it as much as I believe that I am sitting here, and no man will ever be able to make me believe that it don't move until he can convince me that the Word of God is wrong. The sun has been moving ever since the Lord put him in his habitation, and he has never stopped but once, and that was when Joshua commanded him to stand still. When Hezekiah was lying on his sick couch and asked the Lord to spare his life, the Lord turned the sun back ten degrees, but the sun never stopped."

"Well, what do you think of the eclipse?"

"I have never interested myself about it," was the answer. "I know that it occurs annually, but God attends to all these matters. Some things he has revealed to his children, and some things He has kept secret from them. The heavens declare the glory of God and He has arranged all these things to suit himself. The sun and the moon and the stars obey God, but man doesn't. That's the trouble.

"I never thought any man was fool enough to believe that the sun did not move. Everybody can see with his own eyes that the sun do move, for he rises in the east in the morning and goes over the circuit like a strong man to run a race,and sets in the west. But the newspapers and the phliosophers tried to make me out a contemptible liar, and so I just took down the Word of God and proved out of God's Word that they were the liars and not me."

Several years ago, when the natural gas fever was prevalent in the city and some of our moneyed men had bad cases of it, they sank a number of wells in different parts of the county. These wells are still blowing in some places, just as they did at the time they were sunk,and seem to be perfectly oblivious to the fact that the natural gas boom has been "busted" for a long time. One of these situated on the old Gerard farm, on Drake's creek, has been cutting curious capers lately, and alarming those who live in the vicinity not a little. It was one of the biggest of the wells bored, and a good flow of gas was obtained. The mouth of the well has been covered up at different times by the people of the neighborhood to prevent the flow and keep down the odor of gas which pervaded the whole country round about. In wet weather, however, the gas bursts the bounds and shoots up into flames many feet high. This is always preceded by loud reports as if of an explosion. For several nights past the well has been on a regular rampage, and the reports from its explosions sounded like a regular cannonading going on. The explosions are terrific and shake the earth and cause it to quake perceptibly. There is evidently a large volume of gas confined there, and the people round about get a little uneasy sometimes when it begins to explode and shake the earth, but there is probably no danger.—Bowling Green Journal.

Dandy Cristo's dam by Virginia Morgan and Spark's Cren Berry Grandam, by Black Squirrel, great-grand dam, Highlander and Blades' famous saddle horse, Regulator, from Bracken county.

This breeding has produced the best saddle and harness horses ever in the Blue Grass section, and it is to be hoped that the breeders in this section will take advantage of it and raise a higher grade of horses, when it can be done so cheap.

Remember that a fancy saddle horse commands as high price as ever, whilst common horses are too cheap to give away.

Dandy Cristo took first premium in general purpose ring at Florence Fair in 1899; has made two shows and took first each time.

NOTES FROM WASHINGTON

What Is Going On in the Political Arena of the National Capital.

REPUBLICAN BLUFF ON TRUST ISSUE.

The Burden Upon the People Imposed by Unnecessary Taxation—Republicans Trying to Dodge Responsibility for Cuban Scandal—Trusts Are Being Favored.

[Special Correspondence.]

With $700,000,000 of appropriations staring the country in the face the Fifty-sixth congress adjourns to face its constituencies in a presidential election. This enormous sum, so vast that the mind refuses to grasp its significance, represents taxes to be wrung from the sweat of labor. Somewhere within the limits of the United States men, women and children toiling with their hands must produce the wealth from which this sum is to be taken.

Whether the taxes are to be paid directly or indirectly matters but little so long as the fact is borne in mind that labor in the end pays it all.

Were these taxes to be returned, to the people who pay them, in public benefits there might be reasonable acquiescence in bearing such a burden. Unfortunately not one dollar in ten ever really gets back to the taxpayers. The public funds are consumed by tax eaters, a hungry swarm ranging from the smallest place holder discontented with wages far in excess of what he could earn in private employment, up to the mighty specialized interests which look upon the government as a proper victim for their exploitation to the extent of millions.

When it is considered that congress adjourns with some of the greatest schemes of republican grab still hung up between the house and senate the country will stand aghast at what may yet befall unless a check be given to this reign of prodigality by democratic success next November.

Republican Pretense.

The hollowness of the republican pretense of opposition to trusts was illustrated by the action of the majority on the proposed constitutional amendment followed by the almost unanimous vote of the house passing amendments to strengthen the Sherman anti-trust law.

The republicans refused to permit the democrats to have either voice or hand in shaping the constitutional amendment. Its defects, its ambiguities and its weakness were properly shown up by the democratic speakers, yet the republicans were obdurate and preferred to have it considered as a partisan proposition. As a result the amendment was badly defeated, as the republicans intended it should be. Labor leaders went to Chairman Ray, of the judiciary committee, and to Representative Littlefield, of Maine, the author of the amendment, and proposed that labor unions be specifically excepted from its operation. But they were refused, though it was plainly demonstrated that unscrupulous judges could take advantage of the language of the amendment to suppress every labor organization in the country. It was also pointed out that a farmers' alliance or a benevolent association could be equally brought under the ban of judicial construction.

The republicans showed a surprising willingness to allow the Ray bill, amending the Sherman act, to come to a vote in the house. They were finally coerced into accepting an amendment proposed by the democrats excepting industrial organizations from its operation. Thus amended it went through with a practically unanimous vote, although several of the republican leaders made themselves conspicuous by opposing the amendment referred to. The necessity is manifest when it is explained that the Sherman anti-trust law had been twisted by unscrupulous judges in numerous instances to apply to labor unions, while the trusts at which it was aimed were permitted to go scot-free.

But the republican willingness to pass the bill through the house found its adequate explanation when it reached the senate, where Senator Pettigrew moved that it be placed upon the calendar for immediate action, but Senator Gallinger, of New Hampshire, a republican, moved its reference to the judiciary committee for the sole purpose of burying it forever.

The Cuban Affair.

Postmaster General Smith is now squirming to dodge responsibility for the Cuban postal scandals. After four weeks of public discussion of that nauseating affair he comes to the front with a claim that he recommended retrenchment and a reduction of expenditures as far back as last January. Although this is evidently an afterthought on the part of Mr. Smith, it might be accepted with better grace were he not guilty of an outrageous attempt to mislead the public as to the extent of the Cuban defalcations. In an authorized interview he states that these defalcations will be found to be less than $100,000. In making this statement he knowingly and purposely ignores the fact that Neely and his confederates stole $400,000 worth of stamps and disposed of them and that the $80,000 of defalcation is in excess of the stamp stealing referred to. Mr. Smith further ignores the fact that for nearly a year Rathbone, the head of the Cuban postal service, was given absolutely unlimited authority and that he failed to make a single one of the monthly reports for which the regulations called. Mr. Smith also ignores the fact that under his control several scores of postal employes have been put in office and retained there without any warrant of law. It is also a further fact that a treasury expert who discovered and called attention of his superior officers to these irregularities was promptly reduced from $2,000 to $1,800 and warned that if he dug any deeper into these matters he would be discharged.

But Postmaster General Smith need not feel lonely nor humiliated. There is not a department under this administration which cannot develop rottenness quite equal to that of the post office department. The only anxiety of the thieves and looters is that they shall make the books balance. No matter how much crookedness and stealing goes on beneath the surface, so long as the books balance everything will be well.

The Triseornia railway, six miles long, built around Havana by the war department, is an excellent example. The construction account of the Triscornia railway is as pretty a piece of bookkeeping as one ever need to ask for. It balances to a cent. Yet this six miles of badly constructed and absolutely useless railway which wouldn't sell for $60,000 has already cost over $600,000 and the end is not yet in sight.

Under officials of the treasury department declare that Otis' accounts covering disbursements in the Philippines are the most wonderful vouchers ever presented in that department. Millions of dollars are accounted for in terms so vague and general as to absolutely defy analysis. There is nothing to show whether money has been expended properly or stolen outright. The regulations of the army relative to the expenditure of public funds are of the most specific and all-embracing character. They call for itemized accounts down to the smallest amount. Therefore it leaves wide open the presumption that where millions are spent and no items furnished the accounts will not bear close and rigid scrutiny.

ADOLPH PATTERSON.

Discontent with the Administration Made Manifest by Recent State Returns.

The political complexion of the next house of representatives is problematical. In the present house the republicans are in a majority of 26 over the combined opposition. Of the total membership, 45 were elected by pluralities of 1,000 or less, of whom 24 are republicans, 15 democrats and four populists. These republicans were elected as follows: Indiana, four; Illinois, three; California, Iowa, Maryland and West Virginia, two each; Alabama, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Minnesota, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Ohio and Virginia, one each. The democratic list is as follows: New York, four; Kentucky, Ohio and Pennsylvania, two each; Illinois, Maryland, Massachusetts, North Carolina and Virginia, one each. Of the populists, two are from Nebraska and one each from Kansas and North Carolina. It will be noted that for the republicans the greatest number of close districts is in Indiana, and for the democrats in New York.

Expansion, the trusts and the war tariff will come up for discussion, and republicans must be prepared with both offensive and defensive tactics. While the republican party is apparently in a better position in the extreme west than it was in 1896, the situation in the north and middle west is sufficient to cause concern. The sound money democrats were willing to support McKinley or Palmer in the last campaign rather than permit Bryan to become president, and to inaugurate a free silver policy. These democrats are now hostile to McKinley and not so averse to Bryan since congress deprived the secretary of the treasury of the privilege of disturbing the gold standard. The disposition of the sound money men may not affect the electoral vote of the eastern states, but it is likely to cut some figure in the congressional elections. There seems to be considerable discontent with the administration in such states as Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Iowa and Minnesota, growing out of the colonial questions. Republicans may treat this with disdain, but if they ignore it they may awake on the morning after the election to an unpleasant realization.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Hanna's Corruption.

There is plenty of reason for believing that at least three of the most unpopular and oppressive trust combinations in the country have given notice to Mr. Hanna and the president that they do not intend to be held up to public scorn in the republican platforms of the year, no matter how necessary that course may be regarded by the machine managers. They have already allowed their interests to be protected in such ways more than is comfortable. If the party which they own, support and provide with the means of corruption cannot stand by them openly, they demand at least that it shall keep quiet about them. In view of this sentiment among the magnates who control the administration, it is probable that there will be a desperate fight over the trust plank in the republican national platform of 1900. The result is very apt to be a colorless utterance similar to that at Columbus.—Washington Times.

This seems to be the administration's way of taking the measure of a people's rights and outreachings: "If we clothe and feed you, and give you good roads and good schools, and set a ruler over you and fill your land with soldiers and officeholders, what more can you ask? What more are you competent to enjoy? Be satisfied with what we have thrown to you and stop your grumbling about the loss of liberty and self-government." Some such talk came across the ocean to the American forefathers once, and how it reassured them and quieted them, did it?—Detroit Free Press.

CURE FOR ANXIETY.

Dr. Talmage Prescribes for Those in Trouble.

Advises Them to Follow the Example of the Disciples, Who "Went and Told Jesus"—Comfort for the Bereaved.

[Copyright, 1900, by Louis Klopsch.]

Dr. Talmage, who has finished his tour of England and Scotland, where thousands thronged to hear him wheresoever he preached, is now on his way to Norway and Russia, in which countries he is already well known through the publication of translations of his sermons. In the following discourse, which he has sent for publication this week, he gives a prescription for all anxiety and worriment and illustrates the Divine sympathy for all who are in any kind of struggle. The text is Matthew 14, 12: "And His disciples went and told Jesus."

An outrageous assassination had just taken place. To appease a revengeful woman King Herod ordered the death of that noble, self sacrificing prophet, John the Baptist. The group of the disciples were thrown into grief and dismay. They felt themselves utterly defenseless. There was no authority to which they could appeal, and yet grief must always find expression. If there be no human ear to hear it, then the agonized soul will cry it aloud to the winds and the woods and the waters. But there was an ear that was willing to listen. There is a tender pathos and at the same time a most admirable picture in the words of my text: "They went and told Jesus." He could understand all their grief, and He immediately soothed it. Our burdens are not more than half so heavy to carry if another shoulder is put under the other end of them. Here we find Christ, His brow shadowed with grief, standing amid the group of disciples, who, with tears and violent gesticulations and wringing of hands and outcry of bereavement, are expressing their woe. Raphael, with his skilled brush putting upon the wall of a palace some scene of sacred story, gave not so skillful a stroke as when the plain hand of the evangelist writes: "They went and told Jesus."

The old Goths and Vandals once came down upon Italy from the north of Europe, and they upset the gardens, and they broke down the statues and swept away everything that was good and beautiful. So there is ever and anon in the history of all the sons and daughters of our race an incursion of rough-handed troubles that come to plunder and ransack and put to the torch all that men highly prize. There is no cave so deeply cleft into the mountains as to afford us shelter, and the foot of fleetest courser cannot bear us beyond pursuit. The arrows they put to the string fly with unerring dart until we fall pierced and stunned.

I feel that I bring to you a most appropriate message. I mean to bind up all your griefs into a bundle and set them on fire with a spark from God's altar. The prescription that cured the sorrow of the disciples will cure all your heartaches. I have read that when Godfrey and his army marched out to capture Jerusalem, as they came over the hills, at the first flash of the pinnacles of that beautiful city, the army that had marched in silence lifted a shout that made the earth tremble. Oh, you soldiers of Jesus Christ, marching on toward Heaven, I would that to-day, by some gleam from the palace of God's mercy and God's strength, you might be lifted into great rejoicing, and that as the prospect of its peace breaks on your enraptured gaze you might raise one glad hosanna to the Lord!

In the first place, I commend the behavior of these disciples to all burdened souls who are unpardoned. There comes a time in almost every man's history when he feels from some source that he has an erring nature. The thought may not have such heft as to fell him. It may be only like the flash in an evening cloud just after a very hot summer day. One man to get rid of that impression will go to prayer, while another will stimulate himself by ardent spirits, and another man will dive deeper in secularities. But sometimes a man cannot get rid of these impressions. The fact is, when a man finds out that his eternity is poised upon a perfect uncertainty and that the next moment his foot may slip, he must do something violent to make himself forget where he stands or else fly for refuge.

Some of you crouch under a yoke, and you bite the dust, when this moment you might rise up a crowned conqueror. Driven and perplexed as you have been by sin, go and tell Jesus. To relax the grip of death from your soul and plant your unshackled feet upon the golden throne, Christ let the tortures of the blood mount transfix Him. With the beam of His own cross He will break down the door of your dungeon. From the thorns of His own crown He will pick enough gems to make your brow blaze with eternal victory. In every tear on His wet cheek, in every gash of His side, in every long, blackening mark of laceration from shoulder to shoulder, in the grave-shattering, Heaven-shattering death groan, I hear Him say: "Him that cometh unto me I will in nowise cast out."

"Oh," but you say, "instead of curing my wound, you want to make another wound—namely, that of conviction!" Have you never known a surgeon to come and find a chronic disease and then with sharp caustic burn it all out? So the grace of God comes to the old sore of sin. It has long been rankling there, but by Divine grace it is burned out through these fires of conviction, "the flesh coming again as the flesh of a little child," "where sin abounded grace much more aboundeth." With the 10,000 unpardoned sins of your life, go and tell Jesus.

You will never get rid of your sins in any other way. And remember that the broad invitation which I extend to you will not always be extended. King Alfred, before modern timepieces were invented, used to divide the day into three parts, eight hours each, and then had three wax candles. By the time the first candle had burned to the socket eight hours had gone, and when the second candle had burned to the socket another eight hours had gone, and when all the three candles were gone out then the day had passed. Oh, that some of us, instead of calculating our days and nights and years by any earthly timepiece, might calculate them by the numbers of opportunities and mercies which are burning down and burning out, never to be relighted, lest at last we be amid the foolish virgins who cried: "Our lamps have gone out!"

Again I commend the behavior of the disciples to all who are tempted. I have heard men in middle age they had never been led into temptation. If you have not felt temptation, it is because you have not tried to do right. A man hoppled and handcuffed, as long as he lies quietly, does not test the power of the chain, but when he rises up and with determination resolves to snap the handcuffs or break the hopple, then he finds the power of the iron. And there are men who have been for ten and twenty and thirty years bound hand and foot by evil habits who have never felt the power of the chain because they have never tried to break it. It is very easy to go on down with the stream and with the wind lying on your oars, but just turn around and try to go against the wind and the tide, and you will find it is a different matter. As long as we go down the current of our evil habit we seem to get along quite smoothly, but if after awhile we turn around and head the other way, toward Christ and pardon and Heaven, oh, then how we have to lay to the oars! You will have your temptation. You have one kind, you another, you another, not one person escaping.

It is an folly for you to say to some one: "I could not be tempted as you are." The lion thinks it is so strange that the fish should be caught with a hook. The fish thinks it is so strange that the lion should be caught with a trap. You see some man with a cold, diplomatic temperament, and you say: "I suppose that man has not any temptation." Yes, as much as you have. In his phlegmatic nature he has a temptation to indolence and censoriousness and overeating and drinking, a temptation to ignore the great work of life, a temptation to lay down an obstacle in the way of all good enterprises. The temperament decides the styles of temptation, but sanguine or lymphatic, you will have temptation. Satan has a grappling hook just fitted for your soul. A man never lives beyond the reach of temptation. You say when a man gets to be 70 or 80 years of age he is safe from satanic assault. You are very much mistaken. A man at 85 years of age has as many temptations as a man of 25. They are only different styles of temptation. Ask the aged Christian whether he is never assaulted of the powers of darkness. If you think you have conquered the power of temptation, you are very much mistaken.

No man gets through life without having a pommeling. Some slander comes after you, horned and husked and hoofed, to gore and trample you. And what are you to do? I tell you plainly that all who serve Christ must suffer persecution. It is the worst sign in the world for you to be able to say: "I have not an enemy in the world." A woe is pronounced in the Bible against the one of whom everybody speaks well. If you are at peace with all the world and everybody likes you and approves your work, it is because you are an idler in the Lord's vineyard and are not doing your duty. All those who have served Christ, however eminent, all have been maltreated at some stage of their experience. You know it was so in the time of George Whitefield, when he stood and invited men into the kingdom of God. What did the learned Dr. Johnson say of him? He pronounced him a miserable mountebank. How was it when Robert Hall stood and spoke as scarcely any uninspired man ever did speak of the glories of Heaven? And as he stood Sabbath after Sabbath preaching on these themes his face kindled with glory. John Foster, a Christian man, said of this man: "Robert Hall is only acting, and the smile on his face is a reflection of his own vanity." John Wesley turned all England upside down with Christian reform, and yet the punsters were after him, and the meanest jokes in England were perpetrated about John Wesley. What is true of the pulpit is true of the pew; it is true of the street; it is true of the shop and the store. All who will live godly in Christ Jesus must suffer persecution. And I set it down as the very worst sign in all your Christian experience if you are, any of you, at peace with all the world. The religion of Christ is war. It is a challenge to "the world, the flesh and the devil," and if you will buckle on the whole armor of God you will find a great host disputing your path between this and Heaven.

But what are you to do when you are assaulted and slandered and abused, as I suppose nearly all of you have been in your life? Go out and hunt up the slanderer? Oh, no, silly man! While you are explaining away a falsehood in one place 50 people will just have heard of it in other places. I counsel you to another course. While you are not to omit any opportunity of setting yourselves right, I want to tell you of one who had the hardest things said about him, whose sobriety was disputed, whose mission was scouted, whose companionship was denounced, who was pursued as a babe and spit upon as a man, who was howled at after he was dead. I will have you go unto Him with your humble child prayer, saying: "I see Thy wounds—wounds of head, wounds of feet, wounds of heart. Now, look at my wounds and see what I have suffered and through what battles I am going, and I entreat Thee by those wounds of Thine to sympathize with me." And He will sympathize, and He will help. Go and tell Jesus.

Again, I commend the behavior of the disciples to all the bereaved. How many in garb of mourning? How many emblems of sorrow you behold everywhere? God has His own way of taking apart a family. We must get out of the way for coming generations. We must get off the stage that others may come on, and for this reason there is a long procession reaching down all the time into the valley of shadows. This emigration from time into eternity is no vast an enterprise that we cannot understand it. Every hour we hear the clang of the sepulchral gate. The sod must be broken. The ground must be plowed for resurrection harvest. Eternity must be peopled. The dust must press our eyelids. "It is appointed unto all men once to die." This emigration from time into eternity keeps three-fourths of the families of the earth in desolation. The air is rent with farewells, and the black tasseled vehicles of death rumble through every street. The body of the child that was folded so closely to the mother's heart is put away in the cold and the darkness. The laughter freezes to the girl's lip, and the rose scatters. The boy in the harvest field of Shunem says: "My head! My head!" And they carry him home to die on the lap of his mother. Widowhood stands with tragedies of woe struck into the pallor of the cheek. Orphanage cries in vain for father and mother. Oh, the grave is cruel! With teeth of stone it clutches for its prey. Between the closing gates of the sepulcher our hearts are mangled and crushed.

Is there any earthly solace? None. We come to the obsequies, we sit with the grief stricken, we talk pathetically to their soul; but soon the obsequies have passed, the carriages have left us at the door, the friends who staid for a few days are gone, and the heart sits in desolation listening for the first feet that will never again patter through the hall, or looking for the entrance of those who will never come again—sighing into the darkness—ever and anon coming across some book or garment or little shoe or picture that arouses former association, almost killing the heart. Long days and nights of suffering that wear out the spirit and expunge the bright lines of life and give haggardness to the face and draw the flesh tight down over the cheek bone and draw dark lines under the sunken eye, and the hand is tremulous, and the voice is husky and uncertain, and the grief is wearing, grinding, accumulating, exhausting.

Now, what are such to do? Are they merely to look up into a brazen and unpitying sky? Are they to walk a blasted heath unfed of stream, unsheltered by overarching trees? Has God turned us out on the barren common to die? Oh, no! no! no! He has not. He comes with sympathy and kindness and love. He understands all our grief. He sees the height and depth and the length and the breadth of it. He is the only one that can fully sympathize. Go and tell Jesus. Sometimes when we have trouble we go to our friends and we explain it, and they try to sympathize; but they do not understand it. They cannot understand it. But Christ sees all over it and all through it. He not only counts the tears and records the groans, but before the tears started, before the groans began Christ saw the inmost hiding place of your sorrow, and He takes it, and He weighs it, and He measures it, and He pities it with an all absorbing pity. Bone of our bone, Flesh of our flesh, Heart of our heart, Sorrow of our sorrow. As long as He remembers Lazarus' grave He will stand by you in the cemetery. As long as He remembers His own heartbreak He will stand by you in the laceration of your affections. When He forgets the footsore way, the sleepless nights, the weary body, the exhausted mind, the awful cross, the solemn grave, then He will forget you, but not until then.

Often when we were in trouble we sent for our friends, but they were far away; they could not get to us. We wrote to them: "Come right away," or telegraphed: "Take the next train." They came at last, yet were a great while in coming or perhaps were too late. But Christ is always near—before you, behind you, within you. No mother ever threw her arms around her child with such warmth and ecstasy of affection as Christ has shown toward you. Close at hand—nearer than the staff upon which you lean, nearer than the cup you put to your lip, nearer than the handkerchief with which you wipe away your tears—I preach Him an ever present, all sympathizing, compassionate Jesus. How can you stay away one moment from Him with your griefs? Go now. Go and tell Jesus.

It is often that our friends have no power to relieve us. They would very much like to do it, but they cannot disentangle our finances, they cannot cure our sickness and raise our dead, but glory be to God that He to whom the disciples went has all the power in Heaven and on earth, and at our call He will balk our calamities and at just the right time in the presence of an applauding earth and a resounding Heaven will raise our dead. He is mightier than Herod. He is swifter than the storm. He is grander than the sea. He is vaster than eternity.

HUMOROUS.

"This newspaper praise of her acting is rather extravagant, don't you think?" "Decidedly. It must have cost her half her salary."—Detroit Journal.

"Well, I wouldn't call that a pierless combination," remarked Northside. "What?" demanded Shadyside. "The bridge trust."—Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph.

Football Enthusiast (during heavy rain last Saturday)—"This is a grand day for the fitba', Tam." Tam—"Hoo dae ye mak' that out, Wull?" Wull (moving off)—"Because it'll no' get a kickin'."—Glasgow Evening Times.

Old Saying Revamped.—"I've prepared an 'ad,'" said the junior partner, "in which I say the bed we manufacture to sell at $9.98 is as good as those sold elsewhere for $25." "Good!" exclaimed the older man. "As we expect the advertisement to make our bed, let us lie in it."—Philadelphia Press.

"Yes, I caught a beautiful string," said the sun-blistered bunker. "Many of 'em weighed four pounds." There was a brief silence. The voice of the insurance agent broke it. "About how many did it take to weigh it?" he mildly asked. "Not over ten," replied the unabashed banker.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

BACKBONELESS HUMANITY.

Over Indulgence of Mothers Often Responsible for Weakness of Character.

It is the home indulgence of early life that is responsible for so many specimens of backboneless humanity. There are many mothers of the indulgent kind, who have it not in their hearts to make their children do anything that is unpleasant to them.

The frequent "school headaches" are accepted seriously, and the lessons are shunted for that coveted run in the garden, or that jolly play in the house. If music be unpleasant for little miss, still in the grinding drudgery of scales and fingering, music is dropped because she has no taste for it, and it is cruel to force her inclinations. So with the brother's Latin and arithmetic, geography and history.

The mother maintains the abnormality of her children all through, and makes that childish petulance and childish dislike of initial drudgery the measure of their mature requirements. Nor can she correct them when they do wrong. She makes kindly excuses to them and for them, and puts excuses into their own mouths to save them the pain of a frank confession and herself the anguish of inflicting a deserved punishment.

She wishes, poor soul, to be all that is sweet and good and loving to her children, but she has not strength of mind nor force of will enough to make them feel that everlasting truth of consequences and responsibilities. She wants them to be good without the need of training, and to be happy without the drawbacks of sorrow for wrongdoing and the bitterness of suffering in punishment.

She thinks if she makes them strong and healthy and happy, they will necessarily be good, and she does not see that all the while she is weakening their moral fiber and making them self-indulgent, unable to resist the pains and misfortunes of life, and sure to become in the end a member of that purposeless species known as backboneless humanity.—Ledger Monthly.

The Mermaid.

This was the name of a famous London tavern frequented by noted literary men and actors during the reign of Queen Elizabeth. All the wit and talent of the time assembled there for convivial enjoyment. Authors have made it the scene of great mind combats between such men as Shakespeare, Ben Jonson, Beaumont, Fletcher, Selden, Carew, Donne and others of reverential memory. It was the gathering place of the celebrated Mermaid club, the origin of which is ascribed to Sir Walter Raleigh. The Mermaid tavern was located in Bread street, and was handily reached from three thoroughfares, so that it has been often referred to in various ways. The Mermaid in Bread street, the Mermaid in Friday street and the Mermaid in Cheap street were, however, all one and the same. It was the nearest to Bread street. The Mermaid was destroyed in the great London fire. There were other Mermaid taverns, one in Cheapside and another in Cornhill, but they had no such associations as clung to that of Bread street.—Detroit Free Press.

Chinese Women Soldiers.

The Boer war is not the first to enlist women to fight. There was a conflict some 50 years ago in which over 500,000 women took part, and they were as active as men in all military duties. They were formed into brigades of 13,000 each, and had female officers. Ten thousand were picked women, drilled and garrisoned in Nankin. The rest dug moats and trenches, built breastworks, batteries, etc. The Tae-Ping rebellion was one of the most remarkable of modern wars.

WEST POINTERS.

[Selected paragraphs from W. E. Curtis' Washington correspondence in the Chicago Record.]

Perkins, of Wisconsin, is the best all-round athlete at the academy.

Two cadets have been court-martialed for using tobacco during the last year, but none has been dismissed, and the reports show a decided improvement.

Cadet Hillman, of Indianapolis, is the first man of the class of 1900 to become engaged, and the happy bride-to-be is Miss Ellis, sister of Lieut. Ellis, of the Fourth artillery, one of the instructors at the academy.

Col. Mills, superintendent of West Point academy, is in favor of revoking the rule which prohibits the use of tobacco and permitting the cadets to smoke during recreation hours. He says that nearly one-half of the demerits arise from the violation of this rule, and it leads to much deception and untruthfulness.

The graduating class this year consists of only 54 members, an unusually small number. The second class has 76, the third class 72, and the fourth class 134 members, but the last will be considerably reduced after the examinations, as is usually the case. The course of study is so severe that at least 20 per cent. of the cadets are unable to survive the struggle of the first year.

Cadet Burnett, of Illinois, has been elected president of the Young Men's Christian association at West Point military academy, to succeed Cadet Mitchell, of Mattoon, Ill. The cadets say that Mitchell has been the best president they have ever had and has done more to build up the Y. M. C. A. and to extend its influence than any other man who has ever been in the academy. Mitchell is the inventor of the diagram for plotting football games now in vogue among American colleges. Burnett, the new Y. M. C. A. president, is also a crack football man.

The most conspicuous of the graduates for scholarship and soldierly qualities is Cadet Pillsbury, a son of a physician of Lowell, Mass., who stands at the head of his class and so high above his comrades that one of the professors told me there was room enough between him and No. 2 for a dozen able men. He had excellent preparation at the Boston School of Technology and has stood first in every study since the day he entered, but he is a phenomenal student and they say that he would have been the best man in any class of any institution that he might have entered.

SAYINGS OF A CONGRESSMAN.

[Representative Hamilton, of Niles, Mich., made a speech in the house recently which contained a great deal of wit and a good deal of wisdom. We reproduce from the Chicago Record some of his epigrams.]

There is really no piety in being poor.

Many people mistake envy for political economy.

Let us not be self-righteous because we are hard up.

Human nature is about the same in its fundamental outlines from a dollar a day up.

God made man different here, and hereafter we are told the difference will be still more marked.

There will probably never come a time when the moral regeneration of mankind can be accomplished by legislation.

There is no doubt that the dust from the wheels of some people's carriages is more annoying than that of others.

The legislative oath of office actually performs no supernatural function, confers no mantle of wisdom or prophecy, although some gentlemen seem to suspect this of themselves.

The Typewriter Invention.

A Statistician has proved that the invention of the typewriter has given employment to 500,000 people, but he fails to state how many cases of weak stomachs and dyspepsia it has induced. All people of sedentary occupation need Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It helps nature to bear the strain which ensues from confinement and it is a wonderful medicine. No one realizes that more keenly than the man or woman who has been cured of stomach trouble by its use.

The Parson's Revenge.

It had been the custom of an Atchison man all his life to time his preacher at church, and when the preacher had talked 30 minutes the Atchison man thought it long enough and got up and walked out. He died recently, and the preacher took advantage of the fact that the knocker of his sermons couldn't get away, and preached a funeral sermon lasting an hour and 15 minutes.—Atchison Globe.

Supreme Court Sustains the Foot-Ease Trade-Mark.

Justice Laughlin, in Supreme Court, Buffalo, has ordered a permanent injunction, with costs, and a full accounting of sales, to issue against Paul B. Hudson, the manufacturer of the foot powder called "Dr. Clark's Foot Powder," and also against a retail dealer of Brooklyn, restraining them from making or selling the Dr. Clark's Foot Powder, which is declared, in the decision of the Court, an imitation and infringement of "Foot-Ease," the powder to shake into your shoes for tired, aching feet, now so largely advertised and sold all over the country. Allen S. Olmsted, of Le Roy, N. Y., is the owner of the trade-mark "Foot-Ease," and he is the first individual who ever advertised a foot powder extensively over the country. He will send a sample Free to anyone who writes him for it. The decision in this case upholds his trademark and renders all parties liable who fraudulently attempt to profit by the extensive "Foot-Ease" advertising, in placing upon the market a spurious and similar appearing preparation, labled and put up in envelopes and boxes like Foot-Ease. Similar suits will be brought against others who are now infringing on the Foot-Ease trade-mark and common law rights.

LAXATIVE BROMO QUININE

Must not be Imitated.

JUDGE—(to imitator of Laxative Bromo-Quinine)—You have made imitations of Laxative Bromo-Quinine. You have tried to pass them off as the genuine. You have traded on a business reputation which has cost years of labor and thousands of dollars to upbuild. The United States guarantees to every man the undisturbed enjoyment of the fruits of his toil, and it will protect the public from fraud. You are, therefore, ordered and commanded to desist from your unlawful practices under the extremest penalties of the law!

Laxative Bromo-Quinine

Is a Valid Trade-Mark and must not be imitated.

The Paris Medicine Co., St. Louis, Mo., recently won a suit in the U. S. Circuit Court for the district of Indiana, establishing the validity of Laxative Bromo Quinine as a trade-mark, and perpetually enjoining the defendant, Newton C. Davis, of Frankfort, Indiana, from using those, or any similar words, to describe a medicinal preparation of his manufacture. On account of the popularity of Laxative Bromo-Quinine it still has a few imitations put up under similar names, which are calculated to deceive the public and in order to get the genuine be sure this signature E. W. Grove is on every box. The Paris Medicine Co. will bring suit at once against all other infringers.

Laxative Bromo-Quinine is a prescription compounded exclusively for colds, and it seldom fails to cure a cold in one day. All druggists in the United States and Canada sell it—No Cure, No Pay. Price 25c.

Mrs. L. L. Tanner came very near meeting with a serious accident a few days ago. While standing on a ladder picking cherries the ladder fell and she fell across a gate and was badly but not seriously hurt.

J. A. Smith is a strong advocate of the theory, that "anything that is worth doing at all is worth doing well." He wanted to do some hauling a few days ago and on examining his wagon he concluded it needed greasing, so he went to work and put one box of axle grease on. He then concluded if a little would do good another box would do more good, so he applied another box which was all he had, and he says it was not any too much, for his team pulled his load with greater ease than it ever did before.

Mrs. Mary Carpenter entertained a number of relatives and friends, Sunday, at dinner. Mrs. Carpenter and son Claud, are certainly very hospitable, clever people.

Atty. S. W. Tolin, candidate for State Senator, was presenting his claims to the voters of Union and vicinity, last week. Mr. Tolin is a hard man to beat in a political race.

Atty. D. E. Castleman was transacting business in Union and looking after his political interests hereabouts, one day last week. Mr. Castleman says the District Committee meeting at Sparta was harmonious and he got all he wanted for Boone—a primary.

Jas. Utz, the boss road builder, was giving the boys some pointers on road working out near Grauge Hall this week, and talking up a plan by which all mud holes may be rocked and road made first class all winter. Mr. Utz don't ask any man on that road to do any more than he is willing to do himself.

The campaign liar is a man who invents campaign lies, and merits the contempt of every high-toned, decent person in the community. His head runs back like an incline plane and his nose runs forward so as to protrude into things that don't concern him. The campaign lie inventor, 9 times out of ten is a conscienceless scalawag without any influence and simply invents such "rot" as a means of gratifying his disordered appetite for divilitry and ought to be horsewhipped every 30 days in the year, with a coat of tar added annually for an xmas gift.

R. T. Clements, one of Union's pioneer citizens and merchants, died at his home, Sunday morning at 10:15 o'clock. Mr. Clements' health had been in a precarious condition for sometime and still the sudden and unexpected ending of his life, Sunday, was a shock that cast gloom over the entire village. Mr. Clements was a man of strong convictions, loyal to his friends and notwithstanding, he was badly crippled, his energy and industry enabled him to overcome difficulties that most men would have been bowed down by. He has sold goods here for about 40 years, and was well known by every one in this part of the county. Twenty-two years of acquaintance and friendship with Mr. Clements leads us to say that Union never had a more public spirited citizen than he, or a citizen that would help a poor man quicker and longer. After a brief service of song and prayer at the residence at two p. m., Monday, the remains were followed by a large concourse to their last resting place in the cemetery east of town. The funeral was in charge of McAlpin & Blanton, funeral directors, of Erlanger.

We dined with Mrs. Julia Cox, one day last week. She had fried chicken, green beans and new potatoes. Mr. Editor, she mentioned your name at meal time and I know that you would have liked to have been their as she is one of your old neighbors in boyhood days. (And she is the best cook in the State.—Ed.)

Dick Stephens, an old darkey who used to live with Mrs. Collins but now resides with some of the bon tons in Cincinnati, was here Sunday. Very few of the Woolper Sabbath school attended the Convention at Bullittsville, last Thursday week. If some had attended it might have had some effect in stopping them from going a visiting on the Sabbath and neglecting the Sunday-school. Last year the Woolper Suuday-school acquired the name of a courting school. In that branch there were a few graduates. We can not tell how it will be this year.

At our burg is an iron bridge across Woolper creek, which spans 100 feet. On account of high water cutting the bank it became necessary to move the road, leaving the bridge worthless where it is. At Flickertown, about one mile below, where a wooden bridge use to span Ashby's Fork, there is no bridge, and on the side of the main town there is considerable grade. This shows that somebody or some company is neglecting the welfare of this county, and especially this vicinity. We know the longer this remains the worse it is, and we suggest that the iron bridge be moved and made to span Ashby's Fork. It will not only be better, but will show development of good citizenship.

They describe the Hall as being elaborately decorated and grandly beautiful. The music was ravishingly delicious, the magnificent robe and superb lace vail of the bride, the gay dresses of the ladies and the air of happy enjoyment which irradiated the countenances of all was indescribable. Friends of the groom were there from all parts of the country. Three large tables in the banquet hall, seating over 100 persons each, were loaded with all the delicacies of the season and all pronounced it the most enjoyable and recherche affair they had ever witnessed. The bride and groom are for the present the guests of Mrs. Ruth Hind until some arrangements are made in the home. Last night there was a very large turnout of our citizens to do honor to the happy pair. They were handsomely received and Mrs. Kahn has the pleasure of knowing that the ovation was one owing in a measure to her husband's popularity but mainly to the accounts given by those, who attended the wedding of her graces and charms.

Last week the Court of Appeals affirmed the judgment of H. T. Buckner, of Erlanger, for $4,500 against the Memphis Packet Co. It will be remembered that Mr. Buckner was shipping some horses south on one of the defendant company's boats, and going to see about his stock one night he fell through a hatchway that had been left open, and was seriously injured and disabled for quite a while. Hence the suit and judgment.

To the Democratic voters of Boone County, and the Twenty-Third Senatorial District of Kentucky:

As a vacancy now exists in the Kentucky Senate in this Senatorial District by the resignation of the Hon. J. G. Furnish, I take this opportunity of announcing myself as a candidate for the nomination to fill out the unexpired term. Under a resolution existing between the three counties composing the district, Boone is entitled to name the candidate to fill the vacancy, and a Democratic primary election has been ordered by the District Committee for Boone county only, to be held August 11th, next.

Reared and trained a Democrat I believe in party principles and party loyalty, and at this age and day, after the party has been thoroughly put to the test and found not wanting in the least, my party faith and loyalty, if such can be, is stronger than ever before. When we consider the high regard for the preservation of law and good order, as shown by the Democratic party and her advisors in the late trouble in Kentucky, who is there that could not be a Democrat and support the party?

In the past I have done what I could to promote party success and harmony, and will continue to do so in the future to the best of my ability, and if nominated and elected to the place I now aspire, I will pride myself on a correct and fearless discharge of a public duty to the great common people.

Respectfully, S. W. TOLIN.

The cotton acreage this year will be the largest on record and will not fall far short of 26,000,000 acres. Cotton raisers also expect good prices, for last year's crop in India was almost a total failure, ours was small, and the present Egyptian crop is not promising.

Scarcity of hemlock bark is reported to have caused the almost total extinction of the once prosperous tanning industry in Maine. Though there is a large growth of hemlock in the state, it is so far from practicable tannery sites that the cost of hauling prohibits its use.

Fire alarm boxes in New York are being coated with luminous paint in order that they may be easily located at night. The paint is made of white zinc. In some parts of New York, where there is little light, the alarm boxes can be distinguished at a distance of ten blocks.

The Boston board of health has classed tuberculosis as contagious, and requires reports from physicians of cases of the disease. In the past five years deaths from consumption in Boston have been about double the combined mortality from scarlet fever, diphtheria and typhoid fever.

Swinburne is deaf as a post. He lives in a somewhat somber-looking house at Putney hill, the dining-room walls of which are covered with original pictures by Dante Gabriel Rossetti, which must be worth a fabulous sum. The famous poet is bald, with a thin, straggling, reddish beard, and has beautiful hands.

Mlle. Marguerite Cassini, daughter of the Russian ambassador to the United States, is the only woman in the diplomatic corps who handles her own automobile and she rides around Washington at a pace that causes consternation among her friends. She has a costume designed especially for mobile riding. It has a skirt of cream-colored cloth with a white silk waist, and one of the new Ladysmith hats.

The mental collapse of Munkacsy, the Hungarian painter, began with his picture of Mozart on his deathbed listening to the strains of his "Requiem." Munkacsy insisted on having an invisible orchestra behind his canvas, and often remained for hours together in a state of apparent ecstacy. His distinguished fellow-countryman, Dr. Max Nordau, soon perceived that the symptoms were grave, if not incurable.

Ignace J. Paderewski, the Polish pianist, has the most valuable pair of hands in the world. When he sailed from New York recently he carried with him a check for $171,581, a portion of the earnings of his hands in the tour which he made through the United States in the season just closed. The total receipts for the trip amounted to $260,000. Deducting from this $60,000 for traveling expenses Paderewski carried away with him a net profit of $200,000.

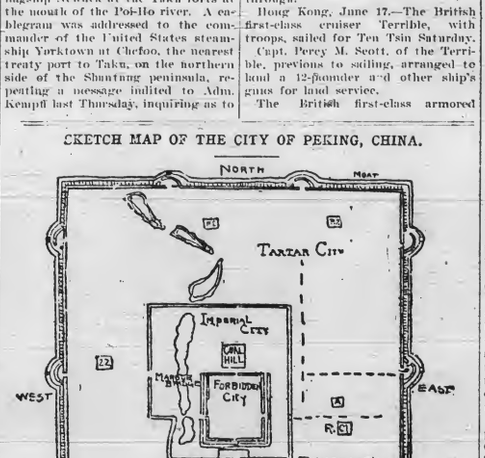
Annie Trueheart Dillion, a pretty Kiowa girl, about 14 years old, daughter of Black Wolf, a noted chief of his tribe, is sole heiress to the entire fortune of $1,000,000 and more left by John Dillion, a rich cattle man, who about 20 years ago was saved from death at the hands of a half-breed assassin by this little girl. The girl's education is to be begun at once under the supervision of the bishop of Monterey.

Traveling incognito and attended only by a lady in waiting, the Princess Aribert, of Anhalt, eldest daughter of her royal highness, the Princess Christian, and granddaughter of Queen Victoria, arrived in New York on the Majestic 45m other evening. The Princess Aribert is here as a tourist, solely for pleasure, and has preferred to remain incognito. She will visit the national capital and Canada. Her present intention is to return home in July.

The cotton crop this season is 2,000,000 bales short of that grown each year for a long time, but the cotton planters have found it the most profitable crop for the last decade. For the ten months ending April 30, 1900, our total exports of cotton were $2,898,755,000 pounds, compared with 3,478,027,000 pounds in 1899. But such were the prices obtained that the value of the exports of cotton for the ten months of 1900 is $223,190,000, as against $191,517,000 for the same time in 1899.

What is probably the largest single armor plate ever made at either Bethlehem or Homestead was shipped recently to San Francisco, to be used in the construction of the battleship Wisconsin, which is building there. The plate will become the port plate of a turret on the vessel, and is made on a new principle, being cut at an angle instead of being the arc of a circle, the idea being to better deflect a shot. The plate weighs 30 tons and costs over $12,000. It was pressed at Bethlehem, and returned to Homestead for finishing.

IN HANDS OF A MOB.



Reported That the Boxers Destroyed All Foreign Legations in Pekin.

English and American Churches and Many Foreigners' Residences Burned in Tien Tsin—Telegraph Wires Cut.

Washington, June 18.—The third day passed here without a single line of news from any official source respecting the critical situation in China. Inquiries of the cable companies showed that not only were the communications by wire with Pekin, Taku, Tien Tsin and all northern China suspended, but the notices conveyed little encouragement for the hope that they would be soon reopened.

The navy department made an effort to reach Rr. Adm. Kempff on his flagship Newark at the Taku forts at the mouth of the Pei-Ho river. A cablegram was addressed to the commander of the United States steamship Yorktown at Chefoo, the nearest treaty port to Taku, on the northern side of the Shantung peninsula, repeating a message indited to Adm. Kempff last Thursday, inquiring as to SKETCH MAP OF THE CITY OF PEKING, CHINA.

The city of Peking is in two sections, known as the Tatar and Chinese cities. The former, taking its name from the Tatars who conquered northern China in the seventeenth century, is nearly square and is surrounded by a wall which is over 14 miles long. The Chinese city was originally a suburb and was inclosed in walls in the sixteenth century. This is rectangular in shape, the walls somewhat lower than those of the other city and measuring ten miles in length. In the heart of the Tatar city is the Imperial city known as the "Forbidden City," the home of the emperor, to which no foreigners are admitted. Around the "Forbidden City" is a large inclosure known as the imperial city, also having high walls and gates. Foreigners are allowed to pass freely through the section of the city. Three lakes are included in the inclosure which in winter time are used for skating parties by the imperial household.

Numerous temples adorn the two sections of the city, representing Buddhism, Confucianism, Mohammedanism and the large number of idols worshiped by the Chinese. There is no foreign concession in Peking, but the legations are situated near together in the southern part of the Tatar city. They were originally fine Chinese residences, but have been rebuilt to suit the tastes of their present occupants. The Roman Catholics erected three cathedrals, but have been forced to abandon one, as it was located too near the imperial palace.

In the accompanying sketch map the two Presbyterian missions are designated by P.; the Catholic by R. C.; the Methodist by M.; the Society of Propagation of the Gospel by S. P. G.; American board of commissioners for foreign missions by A. The missionaries are supposed to be gathered at the Methodist mission, which is near the legations.

his situation, the conditions at Pekin at last report, and into his need for more men and ships, and directing the commander to take the message at once to Taku and return with the answer. The department is now properly well assured that the original message never reached Adm. Kempff. The department does not know whether the message to Chefoo can be delivered, but made the effort. From Chefoo to Taku is only a single day's run for the Yorktown, so that an answer from Adm. Kempff should be received by Monday night.

Manila, June 18.—The 9th regiment, United States infantry, has been ordered to Manila, whence it will proceed to China.

London, June 16.—This is the situation in China as it appears to the Shanghai correspondent of the Daily Express:

"It is really a state of veiled war. The members of the foreign legations in Pekin are virtually prisoners, and the Chinese troops are only restrained from attacking them by fear of the legation guards.

"Meanwhile the ministers are altogether unable to communicate with the officers commanding the relief column, which is making an enforced and isolated halt between Tien Tsin and Pekin. The walls of the capital are guarded by 100,000 imperial troops. The gates are heavily defended with modern guns. Gen. Tung, acting under orders from the empress dowager, says that no more foreign troops shall enter the sacred city."

London, June 17.—A dispatch from Hong Kong under Saturday's date says that according to advices from Tien Tsin all the legations in Pekin have been attacked and destroyed by a mob.

The German minister, Baron Von Ketteler, is reported killed.

Shanghai, June 17.—Anarchy prevails in Tien Tsin. Advices from that place say that Friday, amid popular turmoil, incendiary fires occurred in the East City.

Three English and American churches and many foreign residences were burned. The Boxers also cut off the telegraph communication, and there is no hope of any immediate restoration of the telegraph.

A train, conveying a relieving party with food and ammunition, which started for Lang Fang, where Adm. Seymour's force is halted, was obliged to return here, being unable to get through.

Hong Kong, June 17.—The British first-class cruiser Terrible, with troops, sailed for Ten Tsin Saturday.

Capt. Percy M. Scott, of the Terrible, previous to sailing, arranged to land a 12-pounder and other ship's guns for land service.

The British first-class armored cruiser Undaunted has suddenly been ordered north under sealed orders. She will sail immediately. Trouble is brewing near West river. Riots have broken out at Bun-Chow, whence over a hundred refugees arrived at Wu-Chow June 12.

London, June 18.—There is not a cabinet in Europe, apparently, that knows what has been transpiring in Pekin for five days or in Tien Tsin for three days. Nor does any one know with what difficulties the small and inadequately equipped international column is contending between those cities. The German foreign office, upon learning the report of the murder of Baron von Ketteler, the German minister at Pekin, sent a telegraphic inquiry to St. Petersburg, the Russian government (because of its wires to Manchuria) being supposedly in a better position than the other governments to obtain direct news. In reply the German foreign office was informed that nothing whatever was known on the subject, as communication with Pekin was interrupted. The report spread worldwide from Shanghai that the legations had been attacked and that one minister, probably the German, had been murdered, has been traced to the Tao Tai Sheng, who for a few days, as the empress dowager's agent, has been censoring telegrams from Shanghai.

BOERS' NEXT STAND.

It Will Be at Paardekop, Where Gen. Botha Has a Reduced Force.

Gen. Hunter Is Moving From Potchefstroom—His Advance Brigade Expects to Reach Johannesburg Next Tuesday.

London, June 15.—Lord Roberts' engagement with Gen. Botha terminated as expected, by the Boer commander-in-chief retiring from his position. Beyond driving Botha further from the capital, little seems to have been accomplished, as Lord Roberts does not mention the capture of prisoners or guns or the infliction of loss. Perhaps the most important feature revealed by Thursday's official dispatches is the announcement that the army of Natal is at last in touch with Lord Roberts' troops. The accomplishment of this movement, long delayed, should considerably accelerate the pacification of the Transvaal. That it is already bearing fruit is evidenced by the submission of the Wakkerstroom district to Gen. Lyttleton. Another dispatch from Gen. Buller says Gen. Clery encountered no opposition in his march from Ingogo to Laings Nek, which he now occupies. Gen. Dartnell marched through Laings Nek June 13 (Wednesday), on his way to Charlestown. The press dispatches say Charlestown was partially destroyed previous to its evacuation by the Boers, but that no damage was done to Volksrust.

On the Orange river colony affairs seem to be returning to the same status as obtained previous to the cutting of the line of British communications.

London, June 16.—By the peaceful occupation of Klerksdorp, announced by Lord Roberts, the British gained a strategic position of some importance as the town is not only the terminus of another railroad to Johannesburg, but it is within easy reach of the Kroonstad-Vierfontein railroad.

The Cronje who surrendered the place is a son of the famous Gen. Cronje, now a prisoner at St. Helena. The son was prominent during the siege of Mafeking.

Apart from the fact that Lord Roberts' dispatch comes direct from Pretoria showing the telegraph line is reopened the other only point of interest is the fact that the Boers whom Gen. Methuen was reported to have so utterly routed have sufficiently recuperated to attack a construction train.

London, June 17.—A rumor is rife in the city that Lord Roberts is negotiating with President Kruger and Gen. Botha, through their wives, regarding terms of surrender.

London, June 17.—The only South African news of importance Saturday morning is a telegram from Cape Town announcing that the ministerial deadlock is relieved. Sir John Gordon Sprigg hopes to have a ministry formed by Monday, and it is believed Mr. Rose-Innis will accept a portfolio.

A dispatch from Laings Nek, dated Saturday, says Gen. Christian Botha's next stand will be at Paardekop, but with a reduced force.

The German ambulance captured by Gen. Buller has been sent to Durban whence it will be allowed to return to the Transvaal, via Delagoa bay.

The war office has received the following message from Lord Roberts:

"Pretoria, June 16.—Rustenburg was occupied yesterday by Baden-Powell. A column starts from this place to-morrow to meet Baden-Powell and repair the telegraph between Pretoria and Rustenburg.

"Hunter is moving from Potchefstroom. His advance brigade expects to reach Johannesburg June 19.

"Buller, I hope, is at Stumlerton, Heidelburg will be occupied from this place shortly, and then the Orange River colony will be completely cut off from the Transvaal.

"Baden-Powell reports that the district through which he passed is settling down satisfactorily. Over 1,000 stands of arms were surrendered and Hans Eloff and Piet Kruger, son of the president, were to make submission to him yesterday, having been previously disarmed of their farms.

"Botha's army has retired and is believed to be at Middleburg. His rear guard was surprised and entirely routed by Ian Hamilton's mounted infantry."

The war office received the following dispatch from Gen. Buller

"Laings Nek, June 15, Friday.—Now that Natal is clear of the enemy I wish to call attention to the disgraceful way in which private property was treated in the part of the colony they occupied. Their wilful and needless damage is visible everywhere, and houses, when not completely wrecked, have been desecrated with filthy ingenuity. That this has been done with the consent of the leaders is proved by the fact that while in Charlestown every house was wrecked; in Volksrust, two miles off, but in the Transvaal, every house was intact."

SETTLED DOWN TO A BOYCOTT.

Outcome of the Struggle Between the St. Louis Transit Co. and Its Old Employes.

St. Louis, June 18.—The long-drawn-out controversy between the St. Louis Transit Co. and its striking employes has now simmered down into a struggle between capital and labor along the lines of a boycott. The submitting of the question of the reinstatement of the former employes of the company to arbitration has been the bone of contention in the recent negotiations for a settlement of the strike, but, like all former contentions, it has resulted in nothing, the railway officials demanding an unconditional surrender on the part of the men.

As a result of the company's action, President Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, has declared that he will do all in his power to bring the influence of the whole body of organized labor in America to bear upon the local situation in an effort to win the strike for the union. Mr. Gompers urges the strikers to be law abiding. The boycott to be declared, strike leaders say, will apply not only to the St. Louis Transit Co., but to every person, every business man, every association and, in fact, any corporation or individual favoring it in any way.

Some trouble was experienced on the Page avenue division of the Transit Co. As a car was passing the corner of Page and Taylor avenues it exploded a dynamite cartridge. Both of the front wheels were shattered, all of the windows in the car broken, and the motorman was thrown violently from his position to the street. He was bruised about the body, but not seriously injured. The passengers on the car escaped injury.

Dynamite was more freely used than on any day since the strike was inaugurated. In addition to the wrecking of a car on the Page avenue division four other cars were wrecked last night in various parts of the city but no one was seriously injured. A car on the Baden division had its truck shattered, the floor ripped up and the roof torn off.

Mrs. Eva Doman was roughly handled by a mob at Marion street and Broadway. As she alighted from a transit car she was quickly surrounded by a mob of girls, who shouted "scab" at her. A large throng soon joined the girls. Mrs. Doman ran down several streets with the mob in hot pursuit and sought refuge in Joseph A. Bene's saloon in South Broadway, but Bene pushed the woman back into the street. A woman living over the saloon succeeded in getting Mrs. Doman to her apartments but not before both had been pelted with mud and stones. Mrs. Doman was escorted home by a police officer. The police arrested Bene charging him with assault and battery.

Chief of Detectives Desmond sent a dozen of his men to the neighborhood of Broadway and Marion streets to lay wait for other crowds that might attack women. An hour later two detectives were sent to the locality with a woman as a decoy. As soon as the woman stepped off the car she was surrounded by a crowd. The detectives used their clubs, doing much damage to the heads of those in the mob. The crowd broke and ran. The police did not attempt to arrest any of the mob as they had not committed themselves.

FIGHTING IN THE PHILIPPINES

The United States Forces Had Two Engagements of Importance Last Week.

Manila, June 18.—The United States forces had two engagements of importance last week. The troops under Gen. Funston and Gen. Grant organized an advance with parts of five regiments and two guns against 500 rebels in a mountain stronghold east of Bacnalnata, where it was supposed Capt. Roberts, of the 35th regiment, who was captured last month at San Miguel de Mayumo, was held captive. The Americans operated under many difficulties and over an exceedingly rough country, but the rebels retreated, only a few resisting, and their stronghold was occupied and burned.

As a result of last week's scouting, 60 Filipinos were killed, 200 were captured, and 300 rifles, with 23,000 rounds of ammunition, were surrendered. Three Americans were killed.

Malarial fever has been prevalent since April in parts of Cavite and Batangas provinces, which are garrisoned by the 46th and 39th regiments. Thirty per cent of the men of the regiment are on the sick list. Of two battalions in Batangas province, one has 150 sick and the other 140.

No Remedy Equals Peruna, So the Women All Say.

Miss Susan Wymar.

Miss Susan Wymar, teacher in the Richmond school, Chicago, Ill., writes the following letter to Dr. Hartman regarding Peruna. She says: "Only those who have [illegible] it is to be able to find relief in Peruna. This has been my experience. A friend in need is a friend indeed, and every bottle of Peruna I ever bought proved a good friend to me." Susan Wymar.

Mrs. Margaretha Dauben, 1214 North Superior St., Racine City, Wis., writes: "I feel so well and good and happy now that pen cannot describe it. Peruna is everything to me. I have taken several bottles of Peruna for female complaint. I am in the change of life and it does me good." Peruna has no equal in all of the irregularities and emergencies peculiar to women caused by pelvic catarrh.

LITTLE, BUT OH, MY!

How a Low-Sized Lawyer Impressed a Timid Servant with His Importance.

The following story is attributed to Senator Vest, says the Chicago Tribune:

"Before the war there was a lawyer in Independence, Mo., who was the counterpart in appearance of the pictures of Pickwick. He was as busy in his manner as a hen with a brood of ducks. One day he nearly broke in the door of a residence by his vigorous use of the knocker. The disturbance was answered, by a darky, who was frightened out of his boots as he opened the door. 'Where's your master?' thundered the lawyer, and before the darky could answer the lawyer repeated his question. Then the darky replied that he was not in.

"'I suppose not,' thundered the lawyer again. 'Well, mind you, now, mind you, when he comes you tell him I want to see him—want to see him at once. Understand? Tell him J. Brown Hovey, attorney at law, wants to see him at once, at once.'

"With that Mr. Hovey turned and disappeared in a flutter. When the master came he asked his servant if anyone had called. The darky was still in his fright, and with his teeth chattering he replied:

"'Yes, sah, dar was a leetle, funny-looking mane come, an' he said dat I was to tell you dat Brown-A. Hovey, de eternal Lord, want ter see you right away.'"

Must Respect Tradition.

Constance, the beautiful maiden, struggles desperately in the water.

"Save me!" she shrieks.

Harold, the brave youth, standing upon the shore, throws aside his coat.

"Are you sinking for the third time?" he asks.

"Oh, dear! I forgot to count! How stupid of me!" Constance cries, in much confusion.

Harold is as brave as a lion, truly, but he will scarcely risk violating what is perhaps the most cherished convention of romance.—Stray Stories.

Mrs. Pinkham

The one thing that qualifies a person to give advice on any subject is experience—experience creates knowledge.

No other person has so wide an experience with female ills nor such a record of success as Mrs. Pinkham has had.

Over a hundred thousand cases come before her each year. Some personally, others by mail. And this has been going on for 20 years, day after day and day after day.

Twenty years of constant success—think of the knowledge thus gained! Surely women are wise in seeking advice from a woman with such an experience, especially when it is free.

IN A TENEMENT HOUSE

Ten Lives Lost and Seven People Injured in a New York Fire.

Brave Efforts Made by the Policemen to Rescue the Families—A Mother's Sacrifice for Her Babies.

New York, June 16.—Ten lives were lost and seven people badly injured during a fire which almost totally destroyed a tenement house at 34 Jackson street early Friday morning.

The official list of the dead is: William Cotter, 40 years old; Mrs. Kate Cotter, 38; Mamie Cotter, 13; Joseph Cotter, 12; Kate Cotter, 9; John Cotter, 3; William Cotter, 1; Louis Marion, 40; Mary Marion, 37; Elsie Marion, 6.

The fire appears to have started in the rear of the hallway on the second floor. It had gained great headway before the people in the house were awakened to their peril.

The Cotter family lived on the fourth floor. Cotter was a laborer, and, in addition to the children who lost their lives, he had a son, George, four months old.

The Marion family lived on the top floor. Patrick Burns appears to have been the first person in the house who was apprised of the fire. He was awakened by smoke and he gave the alarm to others in Miss Mary Jordan's apartments, where he boarded. All escaped except Burns, who was severely injured by flames.

Policeman Knowles, after assisting the Hartigan family to escape from the third floor of the building, mounted one flight higher. Flames shot out of the windows and set fire to his coat. He looked into the windows of the Cotter apartments, but could not see any signs of life there. The family had moved into the rooms only a few days before, and the furniture was so banked up in front of the windows that the view was obscured. The brave policeman, half suffocated by the smoke, continued to climb the fire escape till he reached the top floor. He heard screams coming from the Mulhearn apartments, and locating them, assisted the dazed people down the fire escapes.

Louis Marion was killed by jumping from a window. When the firemen reached the apartment of the family three of them were dead on the floor and the others unconscious.

In the Cotter rooms were found Mrs. Cotter, while a few feet away lay the body of Mr. Cotter, with a dead child under him. In other parts of the rooms were found the remaining members of the family. Only two of them, Mamie and George, the latter 4 months old, were alive.

When Officer Knowles reached the Marion apartments a confusion of flame and smoke burst into his face. In the midst of it all, with nightgowns ablaze and their hair blazing, four of the children were tearing about the room shrieking in terrible agony.

Mrs. Marion huddled near the window. With her bare arms wrapped about her baby, she was gasping for air.

Three rushes were made into the flames by the terrified woman, and Margory, Frank and Mamie were brought to Knowles after he had taken the baby. The blisters and scars were swelling on his hands and arms, but he conquered his agony and finished his work on the floor by finally carrying the fainting form of the courageous mother down the fire escape.

A few moments afterward the woman died; she had literally sacrificed herself for her babies.

Ernest Clevenger Hanged.

Liberty, Mo., June 16.—Ernest R. Clevenger was hanged at 5 o'clock Friday morning in the county court. Clevenger met death fearlessly, and walked upon the scaffold unassisted. He was pronounced dead in thirteen minutes from the time of the drop. Clevenger was hanged for the murder near Missouri City in 1897 of George Allen and Della Clevenger, the latter his cousin. Clevenger was enamored of his cousin and jealous of all his attentions.

Box Plant Burned.

Rockport, Ind., June 16.—The main plant of the Rockport Box Manufacturing Co. was totally destroyed by fire. The loss on building and stock is estimated at $25,000, with insurance of $12,000. Chas. Lieb, president of the company, has large contracts with the government for school supplies to be sent to Cuba. Rumor says the fire was incendiary, but it probably started in the boiler room. The corporation will rebuild at once.

MOLDERS' PAY REDUCED.

The Wage Scale in Effect Prior to May 1 is Restored—The Entire Country Affected.

Detroit, Mich., June 17.—The conference between the committee of nine from the Molders' Union of America and the administrative council of the Foundrymen's National association ended with the decision that the advance in pay for molders in Cincinnati, Cleveland and Chicago of 25 cents per day would not be granted.

The molders in the three cities named were getting $2.50 per day for bench work and $2.75 for floor work. On May 1 the request for a raise was refused, but a temporary raise of 10 cents per day was granted, to remain in effect until the present conference. The action of the association restores the wages in effect prior to May 1.

The decision affects all cities in the United States, because had a raise been granted to the molders of Cincinnati, Cleveland and Chicago, it would have affected all cities where the association has members.

ELECTION IN HAVANA.

Gen. Alejandro Rodriguez, Nationalist, Elected Mayor By an Overwhelming Majority.

Havana, June 13.—Gen. Alejandro Rodriguez, nationalist, was Saturday elected mayor of Havana, polling 13,073 votes, against 6,054 cast for Senor Estrada Mora, independent. The total vote fell about 4,000 below the registration. The national party elected its entire ticket—18 councilmen, the treasurer, one correctional judge and three municipal judges. The other correctional judgeship fell to an independent candidate, as did also the fourth municipal judgeship. Of the six other councilmen, four are republicans and two are nationalists who ran independently.

Reports from every part of the island go to show that perfect order prevailed at the polls.

A St. Louis Boy Attempted to Shoot a Brick Off a Playmate's Head—Badly Wounded.

St. Louis, June 17.—Robert Hoesle, twelve years old, and Gordon Collier, aged nine, played William Tell here with almost fatal results. The boys got a revolver and for awhile amused themselves flourishing the weapon in wild west fashion. Then they remembered the story of Wm. Spot on the Sun Discovered.

He predicts the appearance of other spots in July, August and September, inferring that the heat during those months will be very great.

The Widow of William E. Gladstone, the English Statesman, Passes Peacefully Away.

London, June 15.—Mrs. Gladstone, widow of William E. Gladstone, the noted English statesman, died at her home, Hawarden, at 5:40 Thursday evening. She had been unconscious for about 72 hours and died without recovering consciousness.

The news was immediately conveyed to the queen, the prince of Wales, the dean of Westminster, the dean of Lincoln, Sir William Vernon Harcourt, Sir Henry Campbell Bannerman, Arthur J. Balfour and others. In the course of the evening William Gladstone, heir to Hawarden, arrived from Eton, shortly followed by two sisters from London. The bells of Hawarden church rang muffled peals.

By courtesy of the dean of Westminster, and in accordance with arrangements made in 1898, the funeral will be held in the Abbey. The interment probably will take place on June 19, being of as private a character as possible.

Mrs. Gladstone was married to William E. Gladstone in 1839, 61 years ago. Her maiden name was Miss Catherine Glynne. She was the daughter of Sir Stephen R. Glynne, of Hawarden castle, Flintshire.

DOUBLE TRAGEDY.

Thomas Bach, Aged 50, Shot and Killed His Adopted Daughter and Then Kills Himself.

Louisville, Ky., June 15.—Moved by strange jealousy of an adopted daughter, Thomas Bach, aged 50, shot and killed 18-year-old Mollie Bach because she was secretly married four weeks ago to Newt Thorne. The tragedy occurred at the Bach farm, 11 miles from Louisville on the Taylorsville pike. Mollie Bach was adopted 12 years ago by the Bach family and given their name. Thomas Bach, although he is a married man, was intensely jealous of the girl, and he had told her, it is said, that he would kill her if she ever married.

Yesterday she showed him the license for her marriage to Thorne, which occurred four weeks ago and had been kept a secret. Bach immediately grabbed a pistol and started for the girl. She darted through the front door of the house, but he caught her and shot her three times in the back. Pursuing her into the yard, he shot her in the left side. The girl fell to the ground, and Bach put the pistol to her temple and shot her again. With the last bullet in the pistol he shot himself near the heart. As he lay on the ground he reloaded the pistol, crawled over the girl's body and shot himself again. Notwithstanding the terrible wounds Bach and the girl received, they lived a few minutes, but were dead before a physician could reach them.

Newt Thorne, whom the young girl married, is a young farmer of the neighborhood.

BUILDING MONUMENTS.

A Pennsylvanian is Expending a Fortune of $100,000 in Improving Lafayette Cemetery.

Westchester, Pa., June 15.—In order to preclude the possibility of a contest over his will after he is dead, John G. Taylor, of this place, is now engaged in expending a fortune of $100,000 in monuments. Mr. Taylor's avowed purpose is to use all his money in improving Lafayette cemetery, on the heights of Brandywine battlefield, a short distance from the spot where Gen. Lafayette fell, wounded in battle. The bodies of Taylor's father, mother, sister, wife and child are buried there. Quietly and without ceremony Mr. Taylor Wednesday unveiled his fourth monument. The shaft is of white enameled brick, containing a niche, in which there is a life-size figure of Christ in marble. The statue was made in Carrara, Italy.

Near this pile, Mr. Taylor has completed the base of a $25,000 monument commemorate of Gen. Lafayette.

Shot Dead From Ambush.

Dallas, Tex., June 15.—Henson Williams and his son William, colored, were shot dead from ambush in Brazos county while plowing in a field. Officers are searching for a white man who is believed to have shot them. The elder Williams fought through the civil war as a confederate soldier and made such a good record that he was a full member of the confederate veterans' camp at Millican. The old white confederate soldiers are enraged at the assassination and threaten vengeance on the assassin when captured.

Hundreds of Marriages Not Legal.

San Francisco, June 15.—Judge Belcher filed an opinion holding that marriages of persons divorced in this state consummated within 12 months after the decree of divorce has been made are invalid, and that in the eyes of the law such persons are unmarried persons. The opinion will be a blow to hundreds of California couples who have married at Reno, Nev., within the past two years under the belief that a marriage outside of this state nullified the law.

Another Battle With Ashantis.

London, June 15.—The Daily Express has the following dispatch from Prahsu: "There has been another fight on the line of communications of the Coomassie relief expedition. No details have been officially supplied. There are 10,000 Ashantis surrounding Coomassie and 5,000 facing the relief force. The leaders of the rebellion include Ashantuah, queen of Ofesu."

STATE NEWS PICK-UPS.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

Eight Delegates-at-Large Selected to Be Sent to the Kansas City Convention.

Louisville, Ky., June 16.—Characterized by harmony, in marked contrast with the feeling that prevailed one year ago when the democrats of Kentucky met in Music hall to select a nominee for governor, was yesterday's convention, the first since the memorable fight of 1899 in Music hall. The object of this convention was to select delegates from the state at large to the national convention at Kansas City. It was half an hour after the designated time (2 o'clock) when Chairman Allie Young, of the state central committee, rapped for order and asked for a nomination for temporary chairman. But one name was presented—that of Ollie James, of Marion county, and he was elected by acclamation.

After the selection of a secretary and an assistant the chair announced the appointment of United States Senator J. C. S. Blackburn and Congressman John S. Rea upon the committee on resolutions from the state at large. Gov. J. C. W. Beckham next addressed the convention, his remarks being of a purely local and personal nature. There were several other speeches by Congressman C. K. Wheeler, ex-Congressman James M. McCreary, Hon. Charles Mercalfe, Judge J. B. Black, Judge Joseph H. Lewis and Hon. W. D. Smith, the three last named candidates for the democratic nomination for governor. The convention then adjourned until 7:30 p. m.

It was nearly 9 o'clock when the night session was called to order. The committee on permanent organization reported in favor of Frank B. Daugherty, of Bardstown, a townsman of Gov. Beckham, for permanent chairman, while the rest of the temporary organization was made permanent. The report recommended that the number of delegates from the state at large to the national convention be increased from four to eight. It also recommended that Allie W. Young be retained as chairman of the state central committee. A discussion arose over the number of delegates to the national convention. The convention voted down an amendment to send four delegates to Kansas City instead of eight and the report of the committee was then adopted.

Senator Blackburn read the report of the committee on resolutions. The convention reaffirms the Chicago platform and instructs the 26 delegates from Kentucky to cast their votes for Bryan and to vote as a unit on all questions. The republican national policy was denounced in its entirety, as were separately imperialism, the Porto Rican tariff bill, the maintenance of an army in the Philippines and the financial policy. Sympathy was expressed for the two South African republics. Trusts were denounced. The democrats of Kentucky were congratulated for their course in the recent republican convention. The assassination of Goebel was declared to be the result of a republican conspiracy, and Wm. S. Taylor and his official acts were denounced.

Senator Blackburn, after reading the resolutions, addressed the convention on a proposal to modify the present election law, known as the Goebel law. He said the committee had been perfectly harmonious and that it had agreed that modification of the law, which he said had been a failure, was necessary. This, he said, had been the opinion of Gov. Goebel himself. The amendments recommended are such as will give the two leading parties equal representation on election boards, and, the democrats claim, insure a fair and honest count. The committee also favored an educational qualification for voting. These changes, Senator Blackburn said, it had been decided to leave to the convention to nominate a governor which will be held July 19 in Lexington.

Modification of the Goebel election law, it is said, was advocated by Wm. J. Bryan, who has written democratic leaders here, urging that they be made.

The report of the committee on resolutions was adopted.

The following delegates-at-large were then unanimously elected:

Senator J. C. S. Blackburn, ex-Gov. James B. McCreary, Louis McQuown, Charles R. Poyntz, James P. Gregory, William S. Pryor, N. W. Utley and C. W. Bransford.

After the election of Morton K. Yontz and N. B. Hayes as presidential electors the convention adjourned.

New Men Are In.

Frankfort, Ky., June 16.—The state offices and records were turned over to the democratic officers by representatives of the retiring republican officials, in accordance with the order of the court of appeals. The new officials began immediately to move in.

Will It Be Honored?

Frankfort, Ky., June 15.—Gov. Beckham has made a requision on Gov. Mount, of Indiana, for the extradition of E. P. Lee, under arrest at Indianapolis and wanted for trial at Owensboro, where he is charged with embezzlement.

A House Demolished.

Owensboro, Ky., June 15.—At Central City a flash of lightning out of a clear sky demolished a new house. James Jenkins was badly burned, and Charles Jenkins and Philip Edwards were unconscious for several hours.

FAILED TO FIND HIM.

A Posse Searched for John Powers, Wanted in Connection With the Goebel Assassination.

Barbourville, Ky., June 16.—An unsuccessful attempt was made to arrest John L. Powers, under indictment as an accessory to the murder of Wm. Goebel. A posse quietly formed and left town for the home of Powers' brother-in-law, on Poplar creek, but a runner had been sent out ahead, and Powers had left the house when the posse arrived.

Despite Powers' action, his attorney, J. D. Sampson, said that Powers is not evading arrest. He intends to intrust his case to a fair and impartial jury at any time. Mr. Sampson declares that no one has any authority to arrest Powers, who has been pardoned by Taylor. Sampson says those who engaged in the raid would be prosecuted.

TWO GEORGE WASHINGTONS.

One of Them Arrested, Charged With Trying to Get the Pension of the Other.

Lexington, Ky., June 16.—George Washington, colored, was arrested here by Deputy United States Marshal Con McCarty on the charge of making alleged false application for a pension when not entitled to it. He was sent to jail in default of $1,000 bond.

The case is a singular one. A white man of the same name applied for a pension, which he was entitled to. While the case was being looked into it is alleged that the pension department received orders to change Washington's mail to another street. It is supposed that the Negro got hold of the white man's mail. As a result the two Washingtons appeared before the medical examining board, by which it was discovered.

WILL AID A RAILROAD.

The Commercial Club of Louisville Seeking New Fields of Trade for Their Merchants.

Louisville, Ky., June 14.—The Commercial club directors decided to aid the proposed construction by the southern railway of an extension from the Southern's line at Bergen, Ky., to Jellico, Tenn., via Lancaster, Ky. Half of the $50,000 needed to buy the right of way for the necessary 60 miles of road has been pledged, and the Commercial club proposes to raise the other half in Louisville.

It is the club's idea that this extension will open to Louisville a territory in Eastern Kentucky and Tennessee to which Cincinnati merchants at present have the better freight rates. It is said the Southern will build the extension if the right of way can be secured.

Tried to Get in Taylor's Room.

Lexington, Ky., June 16.—From a letter received by Capt. G. S. Sharp, of this city, from Secretary Finley, at Indianapolis, it is believed a scheme to gain clandestine entrance into Taylor's and Finley's apartments in the Denison hotel has been unearthed. The letter stated that a bellboy informed them that while out Capt. Sharp, their warm friend, had called to see them. Capt. Sharp has not been in Indiana in two years. He thinks it was a ruse to kidnap them, and has written to Taylor about it.

Republican Committee Called.

Louisville, Ky., June 14.—Chairman Barnett, of the republican state central committee, called the committee to meet in Louisville, June 16, to fix the time and place of holding the state convention to nominate a candidate for governor. It is understood that the meeting on June 16 will result in a call for a state convention in Louisville, July 17. At this time it appears that Hon. John W. Yerkes, of Danville, will be named without opposition for governor.

Postmaster Missing.

Paducah, Ky., June 16.—The post office department has been notified to send an inspector to Ragland post office, this county. Richard Lewis, the postmaster, had two $100 orders cashed Saturday, one at Metropolis, Ill., and one here, both assigned to himself. He then skipped. There is no such man here as the one to whom the order was made out.

Gold Medal Oratorical Contest.

Danville, Ky., June 14.—The annual gold medal oratorical contest between the literary societies of Center college was won by Allan W. Gulion, of Carrollton. Harry A. Shaw, of Louisville got the second medal.

Bought Seventy Houses.

Shot His Overseer.

Hopkinsville, Ky., June 15.—In a wheat field Ganison Pettus, colored, a tramp hand, shot and killed Stephen Stewart, overseer of James S. Radford's farm, because the latter reproved him for shirking work. Pettus escaped.

A Barn Burned.

Glasgow, Ky., June 15.—D. B. Smith's barn, three miles from this place, was burned. Two horses, two mules, twenty sheep and all feed stuff was burned. Loss, $1,200; insurance, $200.

OWEN COUNTY.

From Owenton Herald.

Committeemen E. E. Lee, Chairman, R. B. Brown and D. E. Castleman met at Sparta last Monday to arrange for nominating a Democratic candidate for State Senator in this district to fill out the unexpired term of Dr. J. G. Furnish, resigned. By the terms of the agreement of the three counties it was decided to leave the matter entirely with Boone County. Mr. Castleman said there were two excellent gentlemen in that county who wanted the honor, so it was agreed to have a primary in that county only, to be held at a time to be agreed upon and the candidate receiving the highest number of votes to be declared the nominee.

R. J. Walker was stung between the eyes by a honey bee last Sunday afternoon and for a time his life was almost despaired of. The sting of a bee is rank poison to Mr. Walker and he has had some very unpleasant experiences along that line heretofore. This was the worst however. He is all right now.

R. H. Wills, of Cynthiana, bought a number of fine horses here last Saturday at good prices, ranging from $50 to $125.

Postmaster Hutcheson has been notified of an increase of $100 in his yearly salary.

GRANT COUNTY.

From Williamstown Courier.

Corinth will have a big celebration July 4th, Fireworks, speaking, base ball, races, etc. The event promises to be the biggest in our history.

Done setting tobacco, weeds growing, cut worms working, clover hay ready to cut, wheat getting ripe, and so much to do that farmers are in a hustling condition just now.

By reference to our local columns it will be seen that the County Committee has called a primary election for Saturday, December 1, 1900, to nominate candidates for the various county offices, to be filled by election in November, 1901. The date fixed gives the farmer candidates time to complete their crops and still have an opportunity to interview the voters before the primary occurs, and should make an active worker in November next of every man who is then a candidate. The fellow who is "lackward in coming forward" in the race for Governor and President in November will probably fare poorly in the primary in December.

Last Thursday night, the Postoffice at this place was broken into and robbed on a credit. The front door was pried open with a pick and crow bar which were found next morning on South Main street. There was no money in the office except some coppers, and these were not disturbed, and up to the present time no stamps have been missed. There is no clew as yet to the robbers. But for the thoughtful precautions habitually exercised by by the Postmaster, J. A. McPherson, the matter might have been reduced to cash transaction, but a bold burglar would need both a search light and a search warrant to find the multitudinous hiding places where his valuables are stowed away.

Mr. W. S. Whedon, Cashier of the First National Bank of Winterset, Iowa, in a recent letter gives some experience with a carpenter in his employ, that will be of value to other mechanics. He says: "I had a carpenter working for me who was obliged to stop work for several days on account of being troubled with diarrhoea. I mentioned to him that I had been similarly troubled and that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy had cured me. He bought a bottle of it from the druggist here and informed me that one dose cured him, and he is again at his work. For sale by W. F. McKim, Burlington; Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg, C. S. Baisly, Bullittsville, O. N. Grant, Grant.

Attorney E. K. Wilson, of London, Ky., was sentenced to 5 years in the penitentiary, after a hard fought trial at Mt. Vernon, where he got a change of venue. It will be remembered that Wilson was charged at London with having caused the death of a young lady by performing a criminal operation. The case attracted widespread attention owing to the prominence of the parties. Wilson is a member of an excellent family and his father is one of the best known and most respected men of Grant county. Wilson's attorneys immediately filed a motion for a new trial.

Former Congressman D. G. Colson came near being killed in a runaway at Middlesboro Saturday. His horse took fright and became unmanageable. After running about half a mile the buggy struck a telegraph pole and was turned over. Strange to relate, Mr. Colson didn't receive a scratch.

The Grant county Circuit Court adjourned Saturday after making a record for briefness. The grand jury was in session only four days and returned seven indictments. The court was in session only six days and disposed of the entire docket.

Christian county farmers commenced harvesting their wheat last week.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 27, 1900. NO. 26

THE expenses of the Kentucky delegation at the Kansas City convention will be $250 a day.

J. H. WESTOVER, candidate for Congress will speak in Burlington next Monday at 1:30 p. m.

ROOSEVELT was the only fellow attending the Philadelphia convention whose appearance was the signal for oceans of applause.

ROOSEVELT looks like he was a bigger man than Mark. Other Viee-Presidential booms were not good sides hows as compared to his.

THAT resolution the Kentucky delegation submitted to the Philadelphia convention, last week, declaring in favor of a federal election law, was quietly pigeon holed by the committee.

Two of the free silver Republicans who each gave $25,000 to the Democratic campaign fund in 1896, have doubled the amount for this year, but the contributions go to the Republican campaign fund this time.

THE boom of David B. Hill, of New York, for the Democratic Vice-Presidency, seems to have staying qualities, and it is no two to one proposition that he will not be named by the Kansas City convention for that place.

A farmer's son below the city set a hen on 100 turtle eggs. They hatched all right and followed the hen during the day,but did not like her roosting-place, and scooted for the river. They have not returned.—Hawesville Plaindealer.

IN twenty-four hours more time at Philadelphia Roosevelt would have been put at the head of the ticket. Probably his repeated assertions that he would not accept the nomination for the Vice-Presidency meant he wanted the nomination for President.

THERE will be no one present at the Kansas City convention, who, after the nomination is made,can go out among the trusts and induce them to come down liberally with campaign funds, in consideration of legislative favors in the past and in anticipation of favors to be granted in the future.

GROSVENOR, of Ohio, thinks the boss of the gang of platform constructors in the national Republican convention at Philadelphia usedhis blue pencil freely. Grosvenor had a few favorite resolutions that were censored until he could hardly recognize them when the platform was submitted to the convention for adoption.

Thirty-five passengers and trainsmen were killed late Saturday night in a wreck on the Macon branch of the Southern railway, near McDonough, Ga. The train ran into a washout, and of all those on board none escaped death save those in the sleeping car. Not a trainman escaped. The wreckage caught fire and many of the unfortunate were burned to death. On the Chicago and Northwestern road yesterday six persons were killed,. one is missing and thirty-five were injured. The train was heavily loaded with excursionists and collided with a freight train five miles south of Green Bay, Wis.

The first English elms ever planted in this country, it is said, were brought from England and planted on the grounds of Nazareth Academy, near Bardstown. They were brought by Father Hazelton, one of the first priests connected with that institution. From these trees sprouts were obtained to supply shade trees for many points in the surrounding country. Some of the older inhabitants remember the first of the English elms to be planted in and around Springfield more than fifty years ago. Two of which, said to be the three original trees planted in this vicinity, are still standing. One is in the large one in the yard of Dr. W. W. Ray's residence and the other is on the old Davison place, now owned by Mr. C. R. Grundy. The third was on the cemetery hill, but has been dead for some years. The usefulness of the English elm as a shade tree is evidently a thing of the past, and a bug proof tree is wanted to supply its place.—Springfield News Leader.

Mrs. Mary Ann Edwards, a widow at Pryorsburg, was bitten on the right hand a few days ago by a copperhead snake. Her hand and arm swelled to twice their usual size, and Mrs. Edwards suffered greatly from the bite. Dr. M. W. Rozzell was called in and treated the wound, and she is now out of danger. The snake was cut in two pieces with a hoe, and inside was a full grown mouse which it had probably swallowed only a short time before. When bitten Mrs. Edwards was gathering vegetables in her garden, and caught hold of the snake before she saw it.—Mayfield Monitor.

The destruction of crops by insects is becoming a more serious matter every year, and fighting them is both a laborious and expensive business. The potato bug seems to have come to stay forever. He was not merely a transient visitor, and it is nearly as much work to fight the bug as it is to cultivate the crop. Through the ravages of insects the successful growing of peaches over large sections of Tennessee has become a thing of the past, and the apple crop suffers materially from this myriad monster. There is scarcely a field, garden or orchard crop now that hasn't one or a legion of enemies in the insect world. Now that the Hessian fly has put in an appearance, wheat growing will have to be abandoned unless this pest can be totally banished from those sections where wheat is raised. Wheat can not be successfully grown in sections where this fly hath its habitat. The war on insects will have to be taken up and the fight prosecuted with great diligence to make farming a successful business in most any crop. One remedy, and the only economical one with which to solve the problem is for every farmer and citizens to encourage the increase of birds. They are the natural enemies of insect life, and the most steady and reliable check on the depredation of the innumerable species of flying, jumping, crawling and creeping things. It may be too late for even the birds to counteract the evil, but the experiment is certainly worth trying. Let farmers and farmers' sons and daughters protect the birds, and the birds will protect your crops.—McMinniville Standard.

ORIGIN OF THE "BOXERS."

Since the murder of Mr. Brooks, who was hacked to death in a Chinese village, many people have asked. Who are the Boxers?" The Chinese society of Boxers constitute in reality a great clan of murderers, estimated to contain over 11,000,000 semi-barbarians, well organized, well armed, and as savage in their fanaticism as the Sudan dervishes.

The society was originally formed with the beneficent intention of protecting honest men in China from bandits. It was called To Tao Hwti, which means "The Society of the Great Sword," a title which seems to have been changed at a comparatively recent date to the more familiar name which so often appears in our newspapers just now.

When and where the clan originated is not certain. The natives refer to it as an "ancient" society but that may mean ten years or one hundred. It is agreed that at first its principles were laudable and its work good but as it became more powerful and increased in number many dishonest and designing persons entered it for the prestige and protection it accorded just as dishonest and designing persons ally themselves with influential bodies in other lands today.

These men proved a disturbing element and in many cases directed the efforts of the society against their personal enemies whom they represented as bandits and lawless persons. Terified by persecution, the innocent victims looked around for protection, and discovered it in the Christian missionaries. It is said that they professed conversion. At any rate, it seems to be clear that the missionaries succeeded in protecting them, and thus intensified the feeling which has always existed in China against Christian evangelists.

In many districts of Shantung countless Christian homes have been destroyed. German Protestants and German Catholics, English churchmen and Congregationalists have been alike the victims of shocking outrages.—London Mail.

THE trouble in China will furnish a good excuse for the partition of that empire among the greedy governments that have been anxiously awaiting it.

Crop and Stock.

R. L. Slade has an ear of corn one side of which is of white corn and the other red. It grew on Mr. Sam Shearers' farm near Booneboro.—Cynthiana Democrat.

Union county raised about 500,000 bushels of wheat last year, and the crop this year is estimated at 600,000. Conservative estimates place the damage from the Hessian fly and rain at 25 per cent.

The Berry correspondent to the Log Cabin says: Alvin Roberts sold his crop of tobacco of about 15,000 pounds to N. C. Ridgeway, of Falmouth, at 8 cents. per pound. Mr. Ridgeway offered to purchase Mr. Roberts' growing crop at 6½ cts. per pound.

Charles Dougherty shipped two cars, 263 lambs, to Cincinnati Tuesday night. He bought them at an average of $4 per head. One hundred and seventy-six hhds of Pendleton county tobacco were sold in Cincinnati last week at prices ranging from $4.00 to $15 75 per cwt.—Pendletonian.

On the farm of Forest Books, near Headquarters, Tuesday, the plowmen in cultivating a field plowed up $28 in coin. The mint marks showed dates ranging from 1700 to 1856, and the coins were of various denominations from 12½ cents to 50 cents pieces. The money is thought to have been buried before the civil war by a slave belonging to the Brooks family. Some of the coins bear the stamp of Spanish mints.—Kentuckian Citizen.

The average wheat crop in Shelby county is about 400,000 bushels, the production in the year 1899 was only 350,000 bushels, while this year, on account of the Hessian fly the production will not exceed 200,000 bushels or less, or not more than a half crop. Some reliable sources place the production this year at even less than 200,000 bushels. This large falling off is due entirely to the destructive work of the fly, notwithstanding a larger acreage than is usual was planted.

The plan which I have followed with success and without permanent injury is girdling in early summer time. This should be done in June. A single cut may be made with a knife through the bark entirely around the trunk at any convenient place, or two or more such cuts may be made. It a ring of bark several inches wide is peeled off entirely around the trunk of an apple or pear tree at this time of year, no harm will follow, for a new bark will soon form over the wound. Another very good plan is to remove long strips of bark about two inches wide, pointed at both ends, and leaving spaces of bark of about the same width.

Any of these will cause a checking of the flow of sap and an unusual formation of fruit buds instead of an excess of wood buds. The trees of the stone fruits are much more sensitive to injury and will not safely endure such treatment as has been deseribed; nor do they usually need anything to force them into bearing.—Prof. VanDeman, in Vick's Magazine for June.

Mr. W. S. Whedon, Cashier of the First National Bank of Winterset, Iowa, in a recent letter gives some experience with a carpenter in his employ, that will be of value to other mechanics. He says: "I had a carpenter working for me who was obliged to stop work for several days on account of being troubled with diarrhoea. I mentioned to him that I had been similarly troubled and that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy had cured me. He bought a bottle of it from the druggist here and informed me that one dose cured him, and he is again at his work. For sale by W. F. McKim, Burlington; Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg, C. S. Balsly, Bullittsville, O. N. Grant, Grant.

James R. Keene, the wealthy Wall Street speculator, is said to have already made bets amounting to $25 000 that Bryan will be the next President. Joseph Pulitzer, the veteran editor of the New York World, who was opposed to Mr. Bryan in 1896, is reported to have predicted the success of the Democratic ticket this year with Bryan at its head. The Louisville Courier-Journal, with the mighty Henry Waterson fully enlisted in the work, and many other newspapers and individuals who were on the enemy's side before, are for us this time, and the outlook is exceedingly encouraging.

The Democratic State convention held at Louisville, last week, was a harmonious affair.

James Watson, a workman employed on a farm near Scottsville, met with a fatal accident while riding a plow mule to the field. The animal became frightened and hurled Watson from its back, lodging him in the chains of the harness and dragging him quite a distance over gullies and rocks. He died two hours later.

A strange disease is reported to have appeared among the horses in the vicinity of Owensboro, Ky. Within six days nine have died at that place, and several others at Knottsfield, a nearby village. The horses are said to rarely ever show any illness before they drop in the harness, and then they are dead in a few minutes. The disease is a puzzle to the local veterinaries.

The Danville Advocate says the Messrs. Tamme and Snapp, of Shawhan, Bourbon county, report that they have found on a tract of land which they purchased on Rolling Fork a bed of metal which has the appearance of gold. They report that Prof. Gordon, of Centre College, made a partial analysis of the metal and pronounces it undoubtedly gold. They say half a peck of the metal can be picked up in a few hours. Their land is close to Junction City. Gold has also been discovered in Franklin county, the ore paying $9.80 per ton. It is found on Sulphur Lick Creek, a branch of Elkhorn. The lands have been leased for ten years.

W. M. Merrimon was called to Nicholasville on Monday last as a witness in the case of his brother, Geo. Merrimon, against the Cincinnati Southern railroad. This was a case where a man not having time to purchase a ticket boarded the train hurriedly without a ticket. He tendered the regular fare, but the conductor demand ten cents more than the regular fare. This was refused and Mr. Merrimon was ejected from the train. He brought suit for damages and recovered $500. The demand for that dime proved rather expensive. Railroad companies have right to collect no more than the regular fare to any point. They cannot impose a penalty for failure to purchase a ticket.—Harrodsburg Democrat.

A case of unusual interest was tried at the recent term of the Bourbon Circuit Court. One year ago Clarissa Berry, aged 82, died near Millersburg and left a will. Three sisters and two brothers appealed from the judgment of the Probate Court to the Circuit Court. When the case was called for trial at the March term James Wilson, who was devisee under the will, filed an affidavit setting up the fact that the mother Clarissa Berry was still living, and that the sisters and brothers contestants were not parties in interest. The attorneys for the sisters and brothers inquired into the matter and learned that it was true; that the mother was residing within a mile of Millersburg, and that she was 102 years of age. The appeal was dismissed and the case revived in the name of Jemima Berry. Clarissa Berry's mother. When the sisters and brothers employed attorneys they made no mention of the mother, and the attorneys never dreamed that the mother of an eighty-two-year-old woman was still alive and healthy. The mother is in possession of her faculties and bids fair to live many more years.

OWEN COUNTY.

The tobacco recently set is growing nicely and an average good stand is reported.

The wheat crop this year in Owen county is nearly double in acreage of any previous year, and the yield and quality is expected to be good.

W. H. Darsham, of Missouri. contractor and builder of concentrating plants, passed through Owenton one day last week enroute for Gratz, where he will put in some machinery connected with the mines there. Mr. Darsham says that the mines will be an immense thing.

Many of the bluegrass farmers are complaining of "fly" in their wheat and too much rain for hay harvest. While Owen county has undergone a very wet spell yet we have heard of very little complaint. The wheat crop is good and corn was never better. Tobacco that was not washed out by the recent deluge is growing nicely.

In spite of the doleful predictions in regard to the passing of the horse, the noble equine is in greater demand than ever, and his value is correspondingly higher. The automobile and in the increasing uses of electricity as a motive power will never succeed in doing away entirely with the horse. The love of horses is too firmly implanted in the human breast to ever suffer him to become extinct. Farmers throughout the State will do well to consider the advisability of devoting more time and money to stock raising. The wars in Africa and the Philippines have created an almost phenomenal demand for horses and their prices have nearly doubled in value. It is stated that it will require five years at least, to supply the places of the stock that has been withdrawn from this country on account of these wars for this year, without saying anything about the number that will be required in 1901. Even after the wars have ceased many mounted troops will have to be left in the conquored territories to preserve order. In both the Philippines and the Transvaal, horses suffer so severely that the per centage of death is very heavy, and the future demand for them is likely to be continued and steady.—Kentucky Journal.

A Justice of the Peace in Kansas named Bell married himself to a widow named Miller. He said he was authorized by law to unite people in marriage, and did not see that his relation to the affair as one of the contracting parties detracted anything from his official rights. This may be technically true, and Mr. Bell, being no doubt a thrifty person, has saved a fee. As to that, though, any neighboring Squire would have officiated without charge as an act of professional courtesy; but Squire Bell knew just how he wanted it done, and having read the story of the Lark and Farmer he knew that the sure way to get a thing done was to do it himself. The knot will hold, too,though the self-marrying performance is in violation of the ethics in nearly all of the professions. When a physician gets sick he always calls in some other doctor. The lawyer who pleads his own case has been set down from way back as having "a fool for a client." The writer who indites his own biography is sure to flatter himself or undo himself with honesty. For a man to nominate himself for office in a convention would be looked upon as a shocking exhibition of effrontery even in a politician. Of course the idea of a minister of the gospel preaching his own funeral sermon would be absurd. Squire Bell has taken a departure from the beaten path. It is not so much the birth of new ideas as boldness in putting them into execution that spices life with variety and leads us out of the paths that have been beaten for years and that are so hard and unyielding that they make us footsore and brain weary.—Enquirer.

In an article called forth by the call for a meeting of the National Committee of gold Democrats, Mr. Watterson gives this good advice: The gold Democrats should meet, declare the organization ended and, if they cannot make up their minds to endorse the action of the Kansas City convention, they should leave individual Democrats free to do as they please, a thing they are pretty certain to do without any special let or hindrance.

W. C. P. Breckinridge writes a long editorial for the Lexington Herald, in which he discusses "The Only Issue in Kentucky," and summed up in a few words the only issue with Mr. Breckinridge is, how to prevent the punishment of the murderers of Mr. Goebel.—Owensboro Messenger.

SINS OF REPUBLICANS

Strong Arraignment of the Administration by Ohio Democrat.

Temporary Chairman Webster P. Huntington at Columbus Convention Talks on Imperialism, Militarism and Trusts.

At the preliminary deliberations of the Ohio democratic convention at Columbus, June 12, Temporary and Permanent Chairman Webster P. Huntington spoke at some length upon the sins of the republican administration, saying:

"You are assembled in state convention for the fourth time since the memorable campaign of 1896. Since that time democratic thought in Ohio has been slowly but surely concentrating along certain lines of reform and manifesting every year the renewed devotion of Buckeye democrats to the fundamental principles upon which, more than ever before in its history, our party is distinctively and peculiarly 'the party of the people.' Your last convention at Zanesville merely emphasized the declarations which the party had solemnly reached at Columbus and Dayton in 1897 and 1898. The Zanesville convention, and subsequently the splendid campaign of the Chicago platform and indorsed for president in 1900 the greatest popular leader of modern times; the eloquent orator in whose tongue is the law of kindness; the honest citizen in whose heart is the love of justice; the unselfish statesman in whose mind is the welfare of mankind—the friend of the people and the dreaded foe of their enemies—William J. Bryan. That reaffirmation and that indorsement represented the convictions of the democracy of Ohio then, and there is no reason to believe that those convictions are changed now.

"You are assembled at a time most critical for the nation and for the democratic party. We shall take no step backward, but we shall take long strides forward. The time has come when every American citizen must determine for himself whether this nation shall continue to be in fact as well as in name a republic, or shall pattern after Great Britain and become a colonial empire. We believe that if we are to have a democracy, it cannot be too democratic; if we are to have a republic it cannot be too republican. To remain a democracy, to remain a republic—is to preserve the union; while to become a colonial empire is to destroy the union. The great war in 1860 that this nation could not long endure, 'half slave and half free,' and its truth now that it cannot long endure half republic and half empire, therefore the paramount question which must be answered by the American people before the 13th of November, is: Shall the union be preserved?

"We invite an adjustment of differences —or at least of cessation of factional strife—between those who are not agreed as to certain policies of government, but who are agreed that the union must be preserved. There are those who would preserve the union and at the same time maintain the gold standard, and there are those who would preserve the union and at the same time restore the bimetallic currency that has always been and always will be the only basis for permanent prosperity in this country. But what good will either of these accomplish, even from his own point of view, if we have bimetallism or the single gold standard, and the union is destroyed? 'What shall it profit a man, if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?' What shall it profit a nation like ours, if it gain the whole world and lose its own character? Whatever a man's convictions on the question, if he believes that the republic must remain, he is a fool if he trade the greater principle for the lesser; he is blind if he do not unite with others to achieve the main object, no matter how he may disagree with them in respect to lesser objects. Democrats, get together; and not democrats only, but all you of every political faith who would first save the union from the threat of imperialism, from the course of militarism and from the blight of monopoly, and after that is done you can fight over the while determining other questions. Our appeal is not the appeal of the democratic party as a political organization. It is an appeal to the honor and the patriotism of our land, from all those who believe that George Washington was right and George III was wrong.

"We must have a long pull, a strong pull, and a pull all together. And that will be the end of Mark Hanna's 'pull' with this government.

"When we point to signs of empire and their dangers, which have appeared on every hand, multiplying every day since the hour when William McKinley took oath before God and his countrymen that he would support the constitution of the United States, we are told that there is no imperialism. But there who say there is no imperialism are the very ones aiming to destroy the republic and create the empire. Their own teachings, their own conduct, their own purposes are startling evidences that they lie ignorantly or viciously when they say there is no imperialism. As a matter of fact the empire is at hand to-day, both in our dealings with our own people and our policy toward other peoples. The present administration has established a grand and fundamental imperialism at home and a military imperialism abroad. An army of soldiers is more imperialistic than an army of trusts.

"The waters of Asiatic seas are not more treacherous to our welfare than the waters in millions of watered stock. A military and an industrial dictatorship go hand in hand. The man who would rule others against their will by the bayonet, and the man who would rule others against their will by the power of monopoly deserve but one name—the name of tyrant; and tyranny will not be endured by the American people. Suppose the czar of Russia, by royal edict, were to arbitrarily raise the price of bread throughout his dominions to all his subjects would not that be called a wanton act of imperialism? But how would it differ from the edict of a trust in the United States, arbitrarily raising the price of any particular necessity of life which it might have the power to control? If a king anywhere on earth were to lay hands upon the sources of production among his people, and thereupon were to limit the supply, control the distribution and fix the price of natural products for his own benefit, would not that be called an act of imperialism, and yet trusts are practiced in this country to-day? The truth is that trusts do what kings would never dare. The king of England laid a tax on tea in Boston harbor, and as a consequence lost an empire; but the king of monopoly in the United States lays a tax on every article in universal use, and as a consequence expects his dupes to reelect a president who will confirm this power. Show me anywhere on earth an act of imperialism more imperious than an act of congress that turns the highest functions of government over to national banks and makes the magnitude of the people's debts the index of their prosperity. Show me in the world's history a more arbitrary use of imperial power than is implied when the money trust controls the circulating medium of a country and the other trusts control all its manufactured and many of its natural products. You cannot show it. And still our opponents say there is no imperialism—there is only 'duty' and 'destiny' and 'responsibility.' Meanwhile duty wears a crown. Destiny carries a scepter and responsibility benignly smiles on both and says: 'God bless you, my children!'

"Only a short time ago they were telling us with equal earnestness that there were no trusts. But when Mark Hanna dictated a platform for the republican state convention of Ohio, which was adopted in this Auditorium but a few weeks since, he forsook that old falsehood and made full confession of his sins and the sins of the republican party. That platform not only acknowledged the existence of trusts, but proceeded to classify them. In effect, it declared that there are three kinds of trusts—good, bad and indifferent. The indifferent trust is the trust that is not big enough to attract much attention; the bad trust is the trust that refuses to throw up its hands when the political highwayman appears, and the good trust is that which contributes most to the republican party, to which it owes its life. Thus nowadays, instead of telling us there is no imperialism, they will be pointing us to the comparative advantages of different brands of imperialism. Some will doubtless be labeled 'Polygamy,' others 'Slavery,' others 'Tariff Taxes Between Parts of the Union,' and still others with various designations more or less appropriate. And then the trusts have dissertations on their respective merits by the man whose only claim to renown is that he bought a United States senatorship and afterward boasted that he 'knew his business.' But when this happens we shall have gained one point. We shall have forced them to admit that imperialism is at hand, just as we have already forced them to admit trusts are to-day operating in every state of the union, in violation of the law and to the ruin of the public welfare.

"Behind these trusts—the industrial and the imperial—is one greater than any and from which all the others come. It is the political trust operated by Mark Hanna and represented in the white house by William McKinley. This is the trust that goes into every state, every congressional district, every county and every precinct in this country, dictating who shall be candidates for public office; who, being candidates, shall be elected; who shall make the laws and what kind of laws they shall be when made. The political trust is the trust that goes into state legislatures and into the halls of congress to procure public franchises for its favorites. This is the trust that determines which party shall predominate in both branches of congress, and in return for services to that end openly and shamelessly bestows foreign consulships and local offices upon those who promote its interests. It is the trust which gathers up the usufruct of all the other trusts and applies their millions annually to perpetuate itself in power. This is the trust that has created itself into political conventions, as it has recently done in Ohio, and from this very platform, and is able to prevent delegates from voting for their choice for a state officer, even after they have been instructed by their constituents for whom to vote. This is the trust that is able to prevent the people of Ohio from celebrating the one hundredth year of their glorious history in a manner already provided for by law, because the only political trust would make of the Ohio centennial a political machine. This is the trust whose operations are universal in the domain of all the other trusts. Sometimes its offspring multiply too rapidly, and then it becomes like the old woman who lived in a shoe—she had so many children she didn't know what to do.' But when this happens to the political trust it has a remedy in killing off some of its children by giving others advantages over them; and so the family resumes its former numbers and prospers on continued robbery without attracting too much attention. This trust sees the policy of the government of dictating who shall constitute it. It is able to stifle freedom abroad and breed corruption at home; for under its operations the people of the republic are dying and the trusts are thriving.

"You cannot destroy the other trusts and let the political trust live. All the other trusts must stand or fall together. If all the other trusts were destroyed, the political trust would breed their successors; but if the political trust be destroyed, all the others will die from lack of nourishment. To accomplish this is the object of democracy; it is the object of your assembling here to-day, and will be the object of the greater assemblage that will presently give a new expression of the national faith at Kansas City. And when that is done and our candidate for president, at one stroke we shall have made an end of the imperialism of industry and the imperialism of arms.

"My friends, in all we think, in all we express, in all we do, in all we propose, it is most essential now that we renew our devotion to the cardinal principles of American statesmanship, since others have departed from them. It was written on the death of a great Persian philosopher that, 'taking the first footsteps with the good thought, the second with the good word and the third with the good deed, he entered Paradise.' In the same order of progress the people of this country, marshaled under the banners of triumphant democracy, may enter the land of the fathers and possess it. It is astonishing, it is humiliating—but it is true—that to-day we are obliged to reaffirm fundamental doctrines that were accepted as matters of course only four years ago, in order to prove our title to the name of democrats.

"We believe in the constitution of the United States. We believe in the declaration of independence. We believe in the Monroe doctrine. We believe that the love of liberty is inborn in the human breast and that possessing its fruits ourselves through more than a century of trial and temptation, we cannot deny them to others. We believe that the love of liberty is the same in California as in Cuba; the same in Cuba as in California; the same in Porto Rico as in Cuba; the same in the Philippines as in Porto Rico, and the same in South Africa as in the Philippines. We make no distinction as to where liberty should be enjoyed when men desire it. Intelligent sacrifices for liberty prove the fitness of their victims to possess it, and there is no line drawn between such sacrifices, whether they are offered on the altar of American tyranny in Luzon or on the altar of British greed in the Transvaal. Sherman said that 'war is hell,' but there is no word this side of hell that can describe the horror of a war of conquest.

"We charge that William McKinley, of his own volition, began such a war on the 21st of December, 1898, by issuing to the Filipinos a proclamation claiming absolute sovereignty over the entire Philippine archipelago and over the property and persons of its inhabitants. We charge that this declaration of war was issued against a people with whom we were then and always had been at peace with, and that they were our allies against a common enemy at the moment Mr. McKinley proclaimed the conquest. We charge that this declaration was issued without the consent or even the knowledge of congress, which under our constitution is the sole power to make war. Before the treaty of peace with Spain was ratified, before we could have substantiated the slightest claim of purchase or conquest, over the Philippines, the present administration deliberately proclaimed the Filipino patriots rebels and put the stamp of treason upon their honest virtue. At that moment imperialism was born in this country. At that moment the clouds began to obscure the republic and a blood-red sun foretold the empire. That sun rose in a significant hue, for it showed the crimson tide that has since flowed from the death-wounds of 2,000 American soldiers. Where its rays pierced the gloom they were bolts of fire in many desolate homes, and where they shone not was the blackness of despair—the despair of the hero who was denied the privilege of surrendering up his soul, but from whom this war of conquest took away his mind.

"What has followed in the Philippines and wherever we have thrown down our imperial gantlet has followed naturally and logically. Ye shall know a tree by its fruits,' and the fruits of imperialism we know the empire. Its heralds carry one of two weapons—the sword or the carpetbag. Sometimes they carry both, but they can't accomplish more havoc with one than the other. The sword was never unsheathed in a war of conquest, and a national theft was never accomplished by the carpetbag without being followed by the carpetbag. If a nation were to choose how it should perish—by the sword or by the carpetbag—it could not do better than toss up a penny and let 'heads or tails' decide. In any event, for the thieving nation it would be 'heads I win, tails you lose.' The American carpetbag in Cuba and Porto Rico is doing as much to destroy the Cubans and Porto Ricans as the American sword ever did to destroy the Spaniards. We are professing to teach our wards the lesson of self-government, but are in fact impressing them with the belief that the effects of self-government is indicated by the amount of money the governors can steal from the governed. We are pointing them to the advantages of free American citizenship that knows no restrictions between parts of the union, but are telling them that taxation without representation does not count as between the old parts of the union and the new parts. We assure them that 'trade follows the flag,' but how much of how little of the flag of trade is our business, and not theirs. We place them on the solid rock of the constitution, but are careful to grease the rock, so that in case they slip off they will attribute the catastrophe to the grease and not to the constitution.

"How much better it would be if we guaranteed independence to the Filipino, self-government to the Cuban and to the Porto Rican equal rights in the union. How much better it would have been if we had done this two years ago—how infinitely more urgent that we do it now.

"Thirty-five years ago Abraham Lincoln, standing on the threshold of his second term as president, and unknowingly in the valley of the shadow, looking down the broad avenue of peace, prosperity and contentment which he believed this nation would pursue from that time on; and this is the heritage he left to those who should come after him, and the guiding star of our domestic and foreign policy:

"'With malice towards none, with charity for all, with firmness in the right as God gives us to see the right, let us finish the business we are in, to bind up the nation's wounds; to care for him, who shall have borne the battle, and for his widow and his orphan, to do all that may achieve and cherish a just and lasting peace among ourselves and with all nations.'

"Analyze that utterance in the light of modern imperialism. 'With malice towards none'—is that our policy in the Philippines? 'With charity for all'—is that our policy? 'With firmness in the right'—is that our policy? 'Let us finish the business'—what business? To embark in wars of conquest? To abandon the opportunities of the land we live in for the opportunities of the lands where others live? No. It is to finish the business we are in. Is it to make new wounds or tear old ones asunder, to make new orphans, new widows, new sacrifices? No. It is to bind up the nation's wounds, to care for him who shall have already borne the battle. It is to make an international career which invites a perpetual threat of foreign war? No. It is to 'do all that may achieve a just and a lasting peace among ourselves and with all nations.'

"The imperialism of industry—otherwise the trusts—and the imperialism of arms' falsely called 'expansion'—is a hard taskmaster. Its creed is the creed of serfs of mankind. They are telling the youth of the land that the shoulder-strap is more to be desired than the diploma. They are raising the 'stand by the president,' when no man can stand by him a moment without jumping from one platform to another. They are invoking the god of battles in order to destroy the very foundations of patriotism. They are draping the flag around a golden calf and asking you to fall down and worship it. They are telling you that the constitution is 'obsolete' and the declaration of independence 'written for an occasion.' They are doing all they can to remove the possibility of a just and lasting peace among ourselves and with all nations.'

"To defeat and confound the enemies of popular government is the mission of the democracy. We shall do it now or fall hereafter. The republic cannot temporize with the empire. The fight we are in means life or death to both. No division of opinion can prevent patriotic men from uniting on the proposition that the union must be preserved. During the civil war there was a song that at one time or another has touched the heart of every man and woman in this audience—'The Union Forever.' Hurrah, boys, hurrah!' And to-day a nation that knows no north, no south, no east, no west, repeats in the same words, with the same enthusiasm, with the same fervent devotion, with the same stern purpose, 'The Union Forever.'"

Hanna Distrusted by Republicans.

No matter how admiringly Mr. Hanna may regard those monopolistic combinations in restraint of trade—the trusts—a very great proportion of the people have not only no admiration for them, but unqualifiedly condemn and denounce them as subversive to public policy and in contravention of sound republican principles; as concerns dangerous to our political and economic institutions. Although the last national platform condemned the trusts, and although the next one is expected to present an even more vigorous condemnation of them as public enemies, the national chairman has seen fit to persistently and aggressively defend and uphold them; to make himself, in fact, their most conspicuous champion. It is indisputable that Senator Hanna is not a popular political idol; that many republicans distrust him, his policies and methods, and especially do they view with disfavor his real or supposed dominating influence over the administration. — Philadelphia Ledger (Rep.).

—It is not capital, but monopoly, whose palm itches for the Philippines. There was nothing, even under Spanish rule, to prevent the investing of American capital in the islands, and there is nothing to prevent it now, except a war provoked by ourselves, nor is there anything to keep us from trading with any nation under the sun, except tariff laws, passed in the interest of monopoly. The imperialist doesn't want to trade; he wants to rob. He doesn't want to invest capital; he wants to steal the capital of others.—Johnstown (Pa.) Democrat.

OF DIVINE ORIGIN.

Dr. Talmage's Reasons for His Belief in the Scriptures.

The Good Accomplished in the World as an Evidence—An Answer to Agnosticism—Prophecies Fulfilled.

[Copyright, 1900, by Louis Klopsch.]

In the great conflict now raging in Europe as in this country between Christianity and agnosticism Dr. Talmage has taken a decided stand, and in this sermon declares his unwavering belief in the divine origin of the Scriptures; text, Matthew, 7:16, "Do men gather grapes of thorns?"

Not in this country. Not in any country. Thorns stick, thorns lacerate, but all the thorns put together never yielded one cluster of Canawha or Isabella grapes. Christ, who was the master of apt and potent illustration, is thus setting forth what you and I well know, that you cannot get that which is pleasant and healthful and good from that which is bad. If you find a round, large, beautiful cluster of grapes, you are certain that it was produced by a good grapevine and not from a tangle of Canada thistle. Now, if I can show you that this holy Bible yields good fruit, healthful fruit, splendid fruit, you will come to the conclusion that it is a good Bible, and all the arguments of the skeptic against it when he tries to show it is a bad book will go overboard.

"Do men gather grapes of thorns?" Can a bad book yield good results? Skeptics with great vehemence declare that the Bible is a cruel book. They read the story of the extermination of the Canaanites and of all the ancient wars and of the history of David and Joshua, and they come to the conclusion that the Bible is in favor of laceration and manslaughter and massacre. Now, a bad book will produce a bad result, a cruel book will produce a cruel result.

You have friends who have been in the habit of reading the Bible a great many years. Have you noticed a tendency to cruelty on their part? Have you ever heard any of them come out and practically say: "I have been reading the story about the extermination of the Canaanites, and I am seized upon with a disposition to cut and slash and maul and pinch and murder and knock to pieces everything I can lay my hands on?" Have your friends in proportion as they become diligent Bible students and disciples of the Christ of the Bible shown a tendency toward massacre and murder and manslaughter? Has that been your observation? What has been the effect upon your children of this cruel book? Or if you do not

The book to be read in your household, what has been the effect upon the children of other households where the word of God is honored? Have they as a result of reading this cruel book gone forth with a cruel spirit to pull the wings of flies and to pinion grasshoppers and to rob birds' nests? A cruel book ought to make cruel people. If they diligently read it and get absorbed with its principles that cause must produce that effect. At what time did you notice that the teachings of this holy Bible created cruelty in the heart and the life of George Peabody, of Miss Dix, of Florence Nightingale, of John Howard, of John Frederick Oberlin, of Alfred Lawrence? Have you noticed in reading the biography of these people that in proportion as they became friends of the Bible they became enemies to humanity? Have you not, on the contrary, noticed that all the institutions of mercy established or being established were chiefly supported by the friends of this book? There is the hospital in war time. There are 20 Christian women. They are binding up wounds; they are offering cordials; they are kneeling down by the dying praying for their departed spirits. Where does the cruelty crop out? They have been reading the Bible all their lives. They read it every morning; they read it every night; they carry it under their arm when they go into the hospital.

Where does the cruelty of the book crop out? Is it in the gentleness of their step? Is it in the cadence of their voice? Is it in the sympathetic prayer they offer at the bedside of the dying? Your common sense tells you that a cruel book must produce cruel results. When you can make a rose leaf stab like a bayonet, and when you can manufacture icicles out of the south wind, and when you can poison your tongue with honey got from blossoming buckwheat, then you can get cruelty out of the Bible. That charge of the skeptics falls flat in the presence of every honest man.

Again, infidels go on and most vehemently charge that this Bible is an impure book. You all know that an impure book produces impure results. No amount of money could hire you to allow your child to read an unclean book. Now, if this Bible be an impure book, where are the victims? Your father read it—did it make him a bad man? Your mother read it—did it make her a bad woman? Your sister 15 years in Heaven died in the faith of this gospel—did it despoil her nature? Some say there are 200,000,000 copies of the Bible in existence, some say there are 400,000,000 copies of the Bible. It is impossible to get the accurate statistics, but suppose there are 200,000,000 copies of the Bible abroad, this one book read more than any 20 books that the world ever printed, this book abroad for ages, for centuries—where are the victims? Show me 1,000. Show me 500 victims of an impure book. Show me 100 despoiled of the Bible. Show me 50. Show me ten. Show me two. Show me one! Two hundred million copies of an impure book and not one victim of the impurity! On the contrary, you know very well that it is where the Bible has the most power that the family institution is most respected.

Again, agnostics go on still further, and they say the Bible is a mass of contradictions, and they put prophet against prophet, evangelist against evangelist, apostle against apostle, and they say if this be true, how then can that be true? Mr. Mill, who was a friend of the Bible, said he had discovered 30,000 different readings of the Scriptures, and yet not one important difference—not one important difference out of 30,000—only the difference that you might expect from the fact that the book came down from generation to generation and was copied by a great many hands. And yet I put before you this fact to-day, that all the Bible writers agree in the four great doctrines of the Bible.

What are those four great doctrines? God—good, holy, impartial, just, loving, omnipotent. Man—a lost sinner. Two destinies—one for believers, the other for unbelievers; all who accept Christ reaching that home and only those destroyed who destroy themselves; only those who turn their back upon Christ and come to the precipice and jump off, for God never pushes a man off, he jumps off. Now, in these four great doctrines all the Bible writers agree. Mozart, Beethoven, Handel and Hadyn never wrote more harmonious music than you will find in this perfect harmony of the Word of God, the harmony in providence and in grace.

You must remember also that the authors of the Bible came from different lands, from different ages and from different centuries. They had no communication with each other; they did not have an idea as to what was the chief design of the Bible, and yet their writings, got up from all these different lands and all these different ages, and all these different centuries, coming together make a perfect harmony in the opinion of the very best scholars of all lands. Is not that a most remarkable fact?

The Bible is made up of the Old Testament and the New Testament. Let us take the New Testament first. Why do I believe it? Why do I take it to my heart? It is because it can be traced back to the Divine hand just as easily as that aisle can be traced to that door, and that aisle to that door.

Jerome and Eusebius in the first century and Origen in the second century and other writers in the third and fourth centuries gave a list of the New Testament writers just exactly corresponding with our list, showing that the same New Testament which we have they had in the fourth century and the third century and the second century and the first century. But where did they get the New Testament? They got it from Irenaeus. Where did Irenaeus get it? He got it from Polycarp. Where did Polycarp get it? He got it from St. John, who was the personal associate of the Lord Jesus Christ. My grandfather gave a book to my father, my father gave it to me, I give it to my child. Is there any difficulty in tracing this line?

On communion day I will start the chalice at that end of the aisle, and the chalice will pass along to the other end of the aisle. Will it be difficult to trace the line of that holy chalice? No difficulty at all. This one will say: "I gave it to that one," and this one will say: "I gave it to that one." But it will not be so long a line as this to trace the New Testament. It is easier to get at the fact. But you say: "Although this was handed right down in that way, who knows but they were lying impostors? How can you take their testimony?" They died for the truth of that Book. When men die for a lie cheerfully and triumphantly. They were not lying impostors. They died in triumph for the truth of that New Testament.

"Well," says someone, "now I am ready to believe that the New Testament is from the heart of Christ, but how about the Old Testament? Why do you believe that?" I believe the Old Testament because the prophecies foretold events hundreds and thousands of years ahead—events which afterward took place. How far can you see ahead? Two thousand years? Can you see ahead a hundred years? Can you see ahead five minutes? No, no! Human prophecy amounts to nothing. Here these old prophets stood thousands of years back, and they foretold events which came accurately one after on in the future centuries. Suppose I should stand here and say to you: "Twenty-five hundred and sixty years from now three miles and a half from the city of Moscow, there will be an advent, and it will be in a certain family, and it will be amid certain surroundings." It would make no impression upon you because you know I cannot foresee a thousand years or one year or one minute, and I cannot tell what is going to transpire in a land far away. But that is what these old prophets did.

Besides all this, you must remember that the most of the writers of this book were uneducated men. How can you account for the fact that when Thomas Babington Macaulay, standing in the house of parliament in London, wanted to finish off a magnificent sentence he quoted from the fishermen of Galilee, or, sitting in his house, wanting to finish one of his great paragraphs of history, he quoted the words of the fishermen of Galilee? Why is it that those uneducated men have more influence on modern times than all the scholars of antiquity? Because they were divinely inspired, because God stood back of them. They were not educated and scholarly. It was not by force or rhetoric that they triumphed, but to-day those humble fishermen, those uneducated fishermen, wield more influence in all our modern cities than any 25 men living in this generation and day. They must have been inspired. There must have been a Divine influence behind them, and before them, and above them, and within them.

Besides that, you must remember that this Book has been under fire for centuries, and after all the bombardment of the skeptics of all the centuries, they have not knocked out of this Bible a piece as large as the small end of a sharp needle. Oh, how the old Book sticks together. Unsanctified geologists try to pull away the book of Genesis. They say they do not believe it; it cannot be there was light before the sun shone; it cannot be all this story about Adam and Eve; and they pull at the book of Genesis, and they have been pulling a great while, yet where is the book of Genesis? Standing just where it stood all the time. There is not a man on earth who has ever erased it from his Bible.

Then all the undevout astronomers went to work to pull away the book of Joshua. They say: "That cannot be true, the sun's halting above Gibeon and the moon above the valley of Ajalon; it cannot be possible, we must pull that book of Joshua away." And they pull away at it, and they pull away at it, and yet what has become of the book of Joshua? Like the sun above Gibeon and like the moon over the valley of Ajalon, it stands still. All the undevout anatomists and physiologists get hold of the book of Jonah, and they pull away and they say: "That story about Jonah and the whale can't be true." Every infidel carries a harpoon especially for that whale, and they pull away at the book of Jonah, but where is the book of Jonah to-day? Just where it has been all the time—the grandest thing that was ever written to prove that when God sends a man to Nineveh, he cannot get to Tarshish if God to stop him has to upset the Mediterranean sea with a cyclone.

And so the infidels have been trying to pull away the miracles, pulling away at the blasted fig tree, at the turning of the water into wine, at the raising of Lazarus from the dead. Can you show me a Bible from which one of these miracles has been erased? How marvelously the old Book sticks together! All the striking at these chapters only driving them in deeper until they are clinched on the other side with the hammers of eternity. And the Book is going to keep right on until the fires of the last day will kindle it. Some of them will begin on one side and some on the other side of the old Book. They will not find a bundle of loose manuscripts easily consumed by fire. When the fires of the last day are kindled, some will burn on this side, from Genesis toward Revelation, and others will burn on this side, from Revelation toward Genesis, and in all their way they will not find a single chapter or a single verse out of place. That will be the first time we can afford to do without the Bible. What will be the use of the book of Genesis, descriptive of how the world was made, when the world is destroyed? What will be the use of the prophecies when they are all fulfilled? What will be the use of the evangelistic or Pauline writings of Jesus Christ when we see Him face to face? What will be the use of His photograph when we have met Him in glory? What will be the use of the book of Revelation, standing, as you will, with your foot on the glassy sea and your hand on the ringing harp and your forehead chapleted with eternal coronation amid the amethystine and 12-gated glories of Heaven? The emerald dashing its green against the beryl and the beryl dashing its blue against the sapphire and the sapphire throwing its light on the jacinth and the jacinth dashing its fire against the chrysoprase and you and I standing in the chorus of 10,000 sunsets.

But I do not think we will give up the Bible even at that time. I think we will want the Bible in Heaven. I really think the fires of the last day will not consume the last copy, for when you and I get our dead children out of the dust we want to show them just the passages, just the promises, which comforted us here in the dark day of interment, and we will want to talk over with Christians who have had trials and struggles, and we will want to show them the promises that especially refreshed us. I think we shall have the Bible in Heaven.

Oh, I want to hear David with his own voice read, "The Lord is my Shepherd." I want to hear Paul with his own voice read, "Thanks be unto God that giveth us the victory." I want to hear the archangel play Paul's march of the resurrection with the same trumpet with which he awoke the dead, a blessed book, good enough for earth, good enough for Heaven. Dear old book—Book bespattered with the blood of martyrs who died for its defense—Book sprinkled all over with the tears of those who by it were comforted. Put it in the hand of your children on their birthday. Put it on the table in the sitting-room when you begin to keep house. Put it under your head when you die. Dear old Book! I press it to my heart, I press it to my lips.

"Where shall I go?" said a dying Hindoo to the Brahmitic priest to whom he had given money to pray for his salvation. "Where shall I go after I die?" The Brahmitic priest said: "You will first of all go into a holy quadruped." "But," said the dying Hindoo, "where shall I go then?" "Then you shall go into a singing bird." "But," said the dying Hindoo, "where then shall I go?" "Then," said the Brahmitic, "you will go into a beautiful flower." The dying Hindoo threw up his arms in an agony of solicitude as he said: "But where shall I go last of all?" Thank God, this Bible tells the Hindoo, tells you, tells me, not where I shall go to-day, not where I shall go to-morrow, not where I shall go next year, but where I shall go last of all!

BAD RAILROAD WRECKS

Thirty-Five People Killed on the Southern Near McDonough, Ga.

Every Person on the Entire Train, Except the Occupants of the Pullman Car, Perished in the Disaster.

Atlanta, Ga., June 25.—A passenger train on the Macon branch of the Southern railway ran into a washout one and a half miles north of McDonough, Ga., Saturday night, and was completely wrecked. The wreck caught fire and the entire train, with the exception of the sleeper, was destroyed. Every person on the train except the occupants of the Pullman car perished. Not a member of the train crew escaped. Thirty-five persons in all were killed.

The train left Macon at 7:10 and was due in Atlanta at 9:45. McDonough was reached on time. At this point connection is made for Columbus, Ga., and here every night the Columbus train is coupled on and hauled through to Atlanta. Saturday night, however, for the first time in many months, the Columbus train was reported two hours late on account of a washout on that branch, and the Macon train started to Atlanta without its Columbus connection. Tremendous rains of daily occurrence for the past two weeks have swollen all streams in this part of the south, and several washouts have been reported on the different roads. Camp's creek, which runs into the Ocmulgee, was over its banks and its waters had spread to all the lowlands through which it runs. About a mile and a half north of McDonough the creek comes somewhat near the Southern tracks, and, running alongside it for some distance, finally passes away under the road by a heavy stone culvert. A cloudburst broke over that section of the country about 6 o'clock Saturday night, and, presumably, shortly after dark washed out a section of the track nearly 100 feet in length, into this the swiftly moving train plunged. The storm was still raging and all the car windows were closed. The passengers went to death without an instant's warning.

The train, consisting of a baggage car, second-class coach, first-class coach and a Pullman sleeper, was knocked into kindling wood by the fall. The wreck caught fire a few minutes after the fall, and all the coaches were burned except the Pullman car. Every person on the train except the occupants of the Pullman car perished in the disaster.

EXCURSION TRAIN WRECKED.

Eight Persons Were Killed and Thirty-Four Others Injured Near Green Bay, Wis.

Green Bay, Wis., June 25.—A northbound passenger train on the Chicago & Northwestern road loaded with excursionists bound for the saengerfest in this city collided at 10:15 o'clock Sunday morning with a freight train at Depere, five miles south of here. Eight persons were killed outright and thirty-four were injured.

The accident happened just as the passenger train was pulling into the station. A double-header freight was backing into a side track to let the passenger by, but had not cleared the main track. Those injured were nearly all in the second coach. When the two trains came together the first car, which was a combination smoker and baggage, was driven through the second coach, where the loss of life occurred. The dead were taken out of the wreck and to an undertaking establishment at Depere. The injured were first taken to the Depere high school, which was converted into a temporary hospital, and later were brought to St. Vincent's hospital in this city. None of the trainmen were injured, the engine crews jumping in time to save themselves. Both engines were badly damaged and two coaches were broken into kindling wood.

The Work of Whitecaps.

Nashville, Tenn., June 24.—Great excitement prevails at Quebec, a small town near Sparta, Tenn., over the work of whitecaps in that vicinity. Ten or 12 men, wearing white caps, visited the homes of Charles George, Floyd Davis and Clark Davis, and after dragging the men into the woods, beat George and Floyd Davis almost to death. They took Clark Davis' measure for a coffin. The reason given for the whipping is that the men were lazy, and would not work or provide for their families.

Another Advance on Coomassie.

Prahsu, June 25.—Sufficient supplies have at last been collected, and the final advance to open communications with Coomassie will begin at once. On the road from Ashanti to Kwahou are three villages where are gathered some 2,000 fighting men who have practiced the rites of fetish worship and pledged themselves to help the Ashantis.

Captured by Rebels.

Caracas, Venezuela, June 24.—The Colombian revolutionists have occupied Bucaramanga, on the Venezuelan frontier. Cucuta, a town in the department of Santander, also on the Venezuelan frontier, continues in possession of the revolutionists.

Chinese Ship Captured.

Berlin, June 24.—In naval circles at Kiel it is stated that the cruiser Hansa has driven a Chinese ship ashore and captured a second, and that 50 Chinese were killed and 70 wounded.

DISCUSS ART NATIONALITY.

Peculiar Debate Started Over Pictures by Adopted British Citizens Shown in American Section.

Frederick Miller, the well-known patron of art, has created considerable discussion by a letter to the London Daily Mail complaining that several Anglo-American artists, such as John S. Sargent, E. A. Abbey, F. D. Millet, and Mark Fisher, had pictures hung in the American section of the Paris exposition instead of the British.

Mr. Miller insisted that, since these artists were adopted citizens of Great Britain, it was poor taste to hang their pictures in the section of another country, especially since it meant a serious loss to the British exhibit.

Sargent, however, declares neither the artists concerned nor the English nor American commission are responsible.

"When we decided to exhibit," said Sargent, "both Abbey and myself naturally expected that our work would appear in the English section, as our negotiations were conducted through the English commission.

"We were informed, however, that the French authorities had made out a list of names, including, besides Abbey's, mine, Millet's and Mark Fisher's, all of whose works they insisted must be shown in the American section.

"The British commission, I understand, formally protested against the exclusion, but the exhibition authorities refused to yield, and hence the confusion."

Sargent can give no reason for the probable motive prompting the action.

WILL WED TO HOLD WORK.

Bachelor School Principals at Holyoke, Mass., Yield Cheerfully to the Board's Ultimatum.

The Holyoke (Mass.) school board does not propose to be accused of discouraging matrimonial advancement. In fact, it has just taken a step that will lead several couples to the altar soon, or the possible grooms will be out of work. A few days ago the members of the board made a tour of the several school buildings to inspect the work and ascertain how the principals and teachers were getting along.

In two buildings there were bachelor principals, while in a third was a young principal fresh from college. After the members of the board had explored the building where one of the bachelors taught and had questioned the principal closely, Committeeman Carmody, who acted as spokesman, said:

"The committee is very well pleased with the way you have carried on the work the past year, but there is one thing that we feel should be impressed upon you, and the position you take in the matter will determine to a considerable extent your continued services here. To be frank with you, it is the wish of the members that you marry. We have decided to make a rule that all principals of grammar schools shall hereafter be married, as we believe better results can be attained."

The two bachelors and the young college graduate are now all engaged and will be reappointed if they carry out their intentions to get married.

Improvement on the Mauser.

An improvement on the Mauser rifle has recently been devised by Capt. Cei, of the Third regiment of Italian sharpshooters, which enables the speed of fire of the gun to be increased to 17 shots in one second and 300 shots in one minute.

Diet to Supersede Medicine.

THE REPORT OF A MAN OF EXPERIENCE.

What He Found in Western Canada to Induce Him to Settle.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Feb. 20, 1900.

To whom it may concern, especially to those who are desirous of obtaining health and wealth for themselves and families, I wish to state a few facts in regard to the Canadian Northwest, where I went, leaving Sault Ste. Marie on May 2nd, 1899, for the purpose of seeking a better home for my family in the future. I got a special rate ticket for Ft. McLeod, Alberta. Through Manitoba and part of Assiniboia the farmers were busy employed ploughing and seeding. I found the farmers very kind and friendly, willing to talk and assist in giving me the particulars of the country. At McLeod I spent a few days looking over some ranchers' stock, which I was surprised to see looking so well; they were in better condition than any stock I ever saw in Michigan, even those that had been stabled, and most of these had never seen the inside of a shed or received any feed from the hands of man. But as I was looking for mixed farm land I found McLeod no place for me; it is only fit for ranching purposes.

Retracing my way back to Winnipeg, I stopped off at Lethbridge where I found some of the greatest horse-ranches I ever had the pleasure of looking at; it is a fine level country and lots of water and good grazing. At Medicine Hat, which is located in a valley, there were lots of sheep, cattle and horses in the surrounding country and all looking well.

On July 11th I went on to Regina; there I began to see mixed farming lands in abundance and the crops looking remarkably well, and as long as daylight lasted I saw the same all along the line, and on the 15th of July I arrived in Winnipeg, just in time for the Exhibition; there I met with one of the most beautiful pictures of the world's records, for as soon as I entered the grounds my eyes met with all kinds of machinery, all in motion, and the cattle, grain and produce of the country was far beyond my expectation, in fact it was beyond any industrial exhibition or agricultural fair I ever visited, and I have seen a good many.

From Regina to Prince Albert, a distance of 250 miles, it is all good for mixed farming, and well settled, with some thriving little towns. In some places the grain, just coming into head, would take a man to the waist, and the wild fruit along the line was good, rich and in great quantities; from Saskatoon on the south branch of the Saskatchewan river to Prince Albert on the north branch of the same river, is one of the best farming districts without any doubt that ever laid face to the sun, and everything to be found there that is necessary to make life comfortable; all that is required is labor. There is lots of wood, good water and abundant hay land, and the climate is excellent.

Prince Albert is a flourishing little place, situated on the north Saskatchewan river, having a population of about 1,800, with good streets and sidewalks and churches of nearly every denomination, three schoolhouses and another one to be built at once; also a Brewery and Creamery. Here I stayed for about four months, working at my trade of brick-laying, and met with farmers and ranchers with whom I made it my special business to talk in regard to the prospects. I also visited several farmers for some distance out in the country while crops were in full bloom and I may say that I never saw better crops in all my travels than I saw along the valley towards Stoney Creek and Carrot River. In the market garden there is grown currants, both red and black, and as fine a sample of roots and vegetables as ever went on a market. The soil in and around this district cannot be beaten for anything you may wish to grow, and besides the season is long, giving time for everything to mature. The cattle were looking as good as I saw anywhere, good pasture and hay land, and plenty of water wherever you go. The country is dotted all around like islands with timber fit for fuel and building purposes and within a day's walk of lumbering-woods, where lumbering and tie-making is carried on, in winter. Both large and small game is plentiful. There are two good sawmills in this district with a good supply of all grades of lumber all the year round and also two good brickyards with an excellent quality of brick. There is no scarcity of building material and at a reasonable price. Clothing and living are no higher than I find in Michigan, and furthermore I wish to say that there is a great demand for laboring men all the year round and good wages ranging from $1.75 to $2.00 per day, and from $25.00 to $35.00 per month with board.

I wish to say that I am perfectly satisfied with the country and I intend to return to Prince Albert early in the spring of 1900. Any reasonable man can go there and in from five to ten years make a good and comfortable home for himself and family, and if any person into whose hand this letter should fall, desires more information, please write to me and I will freely give them my best opinion. I am writing this for the benefit of those who may want to make a better home for themselves and families or friends.

Trusting that this statement may be useful to you in the publication of your next pamphlet and be the means of guiding at least some of those who are in search of a home, I remain,

Your humble servant,

(Signed) WILLIAM PAYNE.

Bathing Without Shoulder Straps.

The rank and file on the Modder river were a short time ago forbidden to bathe, and sentinels were posted on the banks to look for surreptitious swimmers. One of the sentinels caught sight of a swimmer, who persistently ignored his summons to surrender to arrest. At last the bather emerged from the river; the furious sentinel advanced upon the dripping figure and claimed a prisoner. "Confound you!" was the reply, "can't you see I'm an officer?"—London Chronicle.

A DEAD LIVER

He thinks he lives, but he's a dead one. No person is really alive whose liver is dead. During the winter most people spend nearly all their time in warm, stuffy houses or offices or workshops. Many don't get as much exercise as they ought, and everybody knows that people gain weight in winter. As a rule it is not sound weight, but means a lot of flabby fat and useless, rotting matter staying in the body when it ought to have been driven out. But the liver was overburdened, deadened—stopped work. There you are, with a dead liver, and spring is the time for resurrection. Wake up the dead! Get all the filth out of your system, and get ready for the summer's trials with clean, clear blood, body, brain free from bile. Force is dangerous and destructive unless used in a gentle persuasive way, and the right plan is to give new strength to the muscular walls of the bowels, and stir up the liver to new life and work with CASCARETS, the great spring cleaner, disinfectant and bowel tonic. So much for being Democratic you know.

Jeff Rouse might have repeated poetry and said many pleasant things about the fellow who drove a file into the oak log he was sawing Tuesday, but we doubt very much if he did. The file knocked fire out of things and took several points from the saw. Jeff has run across several such things in sawing, and they make him lot of trouble.

Mr. Ed., if you want to find out how much higher the hills on Big Bone creek are than the Rocky mountains, ask Spencer Smith. If you have any doubts about the fish being good at the mouth of Steel's creek, ask Lan Norman and Allie Rouse. If you believe that a party of fishermen can travel up South Fork creek without pontoon bridges and 2 or 3 ambulances to haul off the dead and wounded, you will please step down and ask Bro. Billy Grimsley. If any one tells you that the ice cream and soda water sold in Patriot, Ind., is not genuine and good for the digestion, just tell'em it is a mistake. If you think there is any comfort in going to sleep on the river banks with about 4 chances to 1 in favor of the water being 2 feet deep under the horse blanket you are resting on, just go down and try it, for the river is still rising. Napolean Bonaparte was a great climber and cium the Alps without a scratch, but if he had tried to navigate the road up South Fork creek from the church to end of river pike, he would have been done up worse than he was at Waterloo, aud, perhaps, worse than the principal actor in a shanty boat fight saw on the Ohio river some where between Louisville and Cincinnati, Thursday, about 8 a. m., sun time.

Batterson's bear dogs were on the scene and soou had the beast at bay in a hedge fence, where Add Batterson dispatched it with his Winchester. It was the largest specimen of the kind killed in this vicinity in a long time.

Dr. and Mrs. Ryle, Mr. and Mrs M. C. Carroll and Marion Johnson made a pleasant excursion trip, last Wednesday, on the elegant Str. City of Cincinnati, to Louisville and return. Mark Hanna opened his grip in a hall at Philadelphia, last week, and hauled out to the convention a couple of favorite candidates, they were very choice, being Mark's own particular selection, aud warranted to suit the purposes of the party in every respect. Mark is a power and conducts a Republican convention with admirable grace.

Hon. Nathan Walton and Col. Walker Tolin, two eager aspirants for Senatorial honors in this district, were fondly grasping the hands of the dear voters in the south end of the county, last week. They are both nice gentlemen, and either one is capable of discharging the duties of the office to which he aspires with credit to himself and constituency.

Sorry, my dear boy, but Pete is too late in her bid for the next Congressional convention, as that noble trio of high spirited aspirants for official honor have arranged to hold it in Johnson's commodious barn at Midway, nearby which a large vein of ice-cold water gushes from limestone cliffs as rejuvinatiug and invigorating as Ponce de Leon's fountain of youth. We are glad to announce it will be a strictly temperance affair, far removed from the baneful influence of the liquor element dominant in city politics.

Last Wednesday the inhabitants of this locality were aroused and called together by the utterance of thrilling, stentorian, lugubrious sounds which menacingly echoed, reverberating and caromming among the lofty hills of Midway, till all, with one dire impulse proceeded to move in the direction of the imagined band of untuned calliopes, wild engine, or mayhap, Gabriel's trumpet, pealing out a selection of discordant blasts, resolved on the destruction of whatever power was producing the intolerable noise. But, on nearing the spot whence the terrible sounds eminated, deep seated and lastiug was their surprise and chagrin, when they discovered D. Rodh perched up in his new tobacco delivery wagou with both feet full up against the break bandle, he puffiug a 3 for 5 cheroot, and a span of large gray, draft horses coming rampant down the Old Noell rocky bill, looking as calm and composed as though he was entertaining the Sabbath School picnic. His untimely taking away was averted only by the wise counsel of the aged members of the enraged citizens. An immediate application of some lubricating preparation to be awe inspiring mechanism of his double geared freight car brake would be greatly appreciated by this community.

In this country there is so much going on that it is impossible to remember everything that happens. There isn't one man in ten who can name the presidents in their order. Not one man in fifty can name the vice-presidents or the governors of Kentucky. These things were all well advertised at the time, but we forget. Then the true way to advertise is to keep at all the time. Some say it don't pay to advertise, but you will notice that the man that is a good advertiser always succeeds.

To the Democrats of the 23rd Senatorial District of Kentucky:

I am a candidate for the nomination for the State Senate to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of the useful and efficient Dr. J. G. Furnish. The counties of Boone, Gallatin and Owen stand high in the galaxy of counties for honest, intelligent and lawabiding citizenship. This citizenship is composed of the followers of the different professions; they are mutually dependent and go hand in hand together. They are largely au agricultural people. The assessed value of the land amounts to ⅔-thirds of the total of all the property in the counties. It therefore pays two-thirds of all taxes. With due regard for all others this great interest is entitled to recognition in our legislative bodies. If our farmers are prosperous we have general prosperity. If our towns were burned they will be built up again. If they are not prosperous the grass will grow in our streets. I am a farmer and to the manner born. If nominated and elected I will try to voice the sentiments of my constituency. I will use my best efforts to keep the State pure, her justice unsullied, and her honor clean. If elected I will be thankful and proud. If defeated I will vote for the man of your choice.

N. S. WALTON.

NOW AS TO DRUGS AND MEDICINES.

When you need them you need them promptly; you want them right, both as to quality and preparation. You do not want them put up in a haphazard manner. We have given years to the work and feel competent to give you the best service.

It is quite important that drugs entering prescriptions be weighed, measured and compounded properly, as it is that they be of the highest possible quality. We have a reputation earned by strict attention to these matters. We pride ourselves on accuracy and quality. It costs the same oftimes less than poor, dangerous service. Call and see us when you need Drugs or Medicines.

The Baptist church, on Wednesday, the 20th inst., was handsomely decorated for the swell event of the season—the wedding of Miss Julia Adams and Mr. Walter L. Rouse. The bride is the accomplished and charming daughter of Dr. S. M. Adams, of South Main St., and the groom is the son of Mr. R. Rouse, of Rouse Brothers, one of the prominent business men of the town. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Swindler, of Covington, assisted by Rev. Holmes, pastor of the M. E. Church of this place. The bride was gowned in Paris Mausseline handsomely trimmed with liberty silk and white lace. She carried a large bouquet of bride roses and her long tulle veil looped with the same kind of roses swept even with her gown. The maids of honor were, Mary Rouse, sister of the groom, who was gowned in pink silk grenadine, trimmed with pink chiffon, lace and ribbon and carrying a bouquet of pink carnations, and Rita DeJarnette, who wore a gown of Paris Mouseline trimmed with ribbon and lace and carrying a large boquet of carnations, Miss Graham Roberts gowned in Canary Organdie with white lace and black velvet trimmings and carrying a beautiful bouquet of white carnations. John Adams was the best man and carried himself accordingly. The ushers were John Sleet, Waller Herndon, Claud Ford and C. C. Metcalfe.

An ante-nuptial feast at the residence of Dr. Adams at 5 p. m., was greatly enjoyed by many guests. Mrs. Adams makes no lofty pretensions to "Literature and Art, but does pride herself upon her well deserved reputation in the culinary aud other housewifely qualifications that go to make up the comforts of the ideal home!"; and between ourselves, gentle reader, such accomplishments as hers tend to soften and smooth over many rugged and hard phases with which our life abounds.

After the ceremony was over the happy couple repaired to the home which they had prepared for themselves, and with their friends inspected the many useful and beautiful presents that had been showered upon them. An appetizing collation wound up the festivities, and the youthful pair were started on the voyage of life. The Recorder tenders congratulations.

Messrs. S. W. Tolin and N. S. Walton, candidates for the nomination to succeed Dr. Furnish in the State Senate from this district, have been around to see the folks lately, and it is presumable they will call again. The people like to see two such estimable gentleman contend for civic honors. There will be no skulduggery in the contest and it will prove an object lesson to our Republican fellow citizens to see how two honest, upright Democrats will make a race for an office that is more honorable than it is profitable.

Our friend Judge Westover was billed to speak here on Saturday night and was promptly on haud. It so happened that there was an important meeting of the Odd Fellows the same night, and the ladies of the Christian church were having an ice cream lay-out at the same time. It is not known what happened in the I. O. O. F. meeting further than they had a good one. The ladies venture was not a brilliant success and the audience that greeted friend Westover was not a large one. He makes a good speech, however, showing that in the last 43 years the counties having no cities of the second class within their limits have only had the three terms where they had been represented in Congress. Judge Westover is an able, fearless man who can represent his party anywhere and be a credit to it. It should be noted that Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights are meeting nights of societies, and that Saturday night in particular is not a good night for political speaking.

BURLINGTON, . . KENTUCKY

For race courses in a new starting machine a pair of cars travel on rails on either side of the track, supporting a pair of spring-controlled arms, which fly up to lift the starting bar when the race is under headway, the cars being run by a motor to keep pace with the contestants at the start.

The German government, after an extensive series of observations, has ascertained that the tree most liable to be struck by lightning is the oak. Other growths follow with varying degrees of probability, the beech being most exempt from unpleasant visits of the electric fluid.

The white ants of Manila are fond of wood. They bore holes from the outside, enter in thousands, and eat articles of furniture until little is left but mere shells. Sometimes they devour the legs of a chair, so that when a person sits down the chair crumbles under him and he suddenly and ungracefully lands on the floor.

An English pilgrim just returned to London from Rome gives a striking account of the continued strength of the 90-year-old pontiff, Leo XIII., though appearing emaciated, is full of vigor, and not only went through the very trying process of blessing the 25,000 pilgrims among whom he was carried on his chair, but stood up many times in order that none might lose the benediction.

The Baroness Burdett-Coutts, who is perhaps the richest woman in the world, has celebrated her 86th birthday. When the queen came to the throne the baroness came into an inheritance of $10,000,000. This was increased afterward from other sources. She had always attended to her own financial affairs, and in spite of her great gifts to charity she has certainly increased her holdings largely.

Bavaria boasts that it has the longest lightning conductor in the world. It rises some yards above the top of the meteorological station on the Zugspitze, the highest point in the German empire and runs down the side of the mountain to the bottom of the Hollenthal, where there is running water all the year round. The length of the rod is five and a half kilometers, nearly three miles and a half.

Herbert Putnam, the head of the Congressional library, who has just sailed for Europe, will have a busy trip. He is to purchase many books for the library, will attend several congresses of professional interest to him in widely separated parts of Europe, and hopes to be present at the five hundreth anniversary of the birth of Gutenberg, to be celebrated in Mainz. To this celebration he will go as a delegate from the United States.

A new disease has been added to the list of more than 2,000 to which mankind is liable; this is mountain toothache. The workmen employed in the construction of the railway up the Jungfrau, who have to live at an altitude of 10,000 feet, have been greatly afflicted with toothache and gumboils. The malady resembles a fever in its course, the crisis occurring at the third day; but the disease does not leave any after effects in the form of decayed teeth.

A German scientist has been making some observations in South Africa on the subject of the influence of repeated detonations on the ear. He examined the ears of ninety-six soldiers before and after a battle, and found marked changes in no fewer than forty-four, or nearly 50 per cent. In seven cases he found small hemorrhages in the ears, and in one case a large bleeding, while the firing caused the edge of the ear drum to become red in thirty-seven cases.

By the death of Mr. Dieudonne Denis, of St. Simon, the Jacques Cartier bank, of Montreal, will receive $35,060, the amount of a policy on his life, taken out to cover a loss made several years ago in grain speculation, Mr. Denis, with others, losing $200,000 at that time. The bank itself lost $35,000, which is now recovered, after seven years, during which time it has paid the premiums. The amount was not included in the statement of assets submitted at the last meeting.

John Glenn of Urbana, O., died the other day after having made a record for eccentric vows. Because his father bought what he thought was a better suit for his brother than for him he vowed that he would not wear a coat for twenty years. Another time he took offense at some trifling thing and vowed that he would not leave his house for twenty years, and for twenty years he was a voluntary prisoner. Except for a few eccentricities like these he was said to have been quite sane.

In the course of a speech at the recent general council of the Reformed Episcopal church at Baltimore Bishop Stevens rather astonished his co-workers by declaring his fondness for tobacco. "I smoke," he said, "and I shall continue to smoke. I don't believe the use of tobacco is as bad as it has been described; I believe it is all a piece of will worship. God has never said anywhere that we shall not be ministers of his gospel if we do use it. God provided for every need in nature and I thank God for my cigar."

THEY NOW WANT PEACE

Large Mass Meeting of Prominent Filipinos Held in Manila.

Amnesty, Return of Confiscated Property, Establishment of Civil Governments, Some of Terms Upon Which They Agreed.

Manila, June 22.—Gen. MacArthur Thursday formally announced President McKinley's order of amnesty. Buencamino, Paterno and other prominent Filipino leaders are greatly pleased, as they believe that, under the amnesty, they can bring about the surrender of Aguinaldo, who, they declare, is ready and willing to consider the peace platform adopted by the Filipino leaders with a few insignificant exceptions.

Manila, June 22.—Two hundred Filipinos met this morning in Manila to determine honorable and decorous methods for securing peace. The results were submitted later to Gen. MacArthur, who accepted them.

The leaders of the meeting will use their influence to induce Aguinaldo to accept the arrangements. If they are successful, as they hope to be, they believe Aguinaldo will issue order in conjunction with the American authorities for the cessation of hostilities.

The meeting, which was the first of the kind since the days of the Filipino congress, was composed of the distinctly revolutionary element, the "Americanists" being lacking. Thirty political prisoners were released from jail this morning in order to attend. Senor Paterno presided, and Senor Buencamino, the originator of the movement; Senor Flores, Gen. Pio del Pilar, Gen. Garcia, Gen. Macabulos and other prominent revolutionists were present. It was pointed out that the questions to be considered were military and civil, the military being concerned with a cessation of hostilities and the civil with the determination of the political status of the Filipinos. The immediate object of the meeting was to effect peace, and subsequently the leaders could consult with the civil commission as to political matters.

It was evident that Senor Paterno was convinced that he could obtain Aguinaldo's sanction to a peace based upon the following seven clauses, which, after four hours, were unanimously accepted as compatible with an honorable peace:

1. Amnesty.
2. The return by the Americans to Filipinos of confiscated property.
3. Employment for the revolutionary generals in the navy and militia when established.
4. The application of the Filipino revenues to succor needy Filipino soldiers.
5. A guarantee to the Filipinos of the exercise of personal rights accorded to Americans by their constitution.
6. Establishment of civil governments at Manila and in the provinces.
7. Expulsion of the friars.

The statement of the seventh condition was vociferously acclaimed, the entire assembly shouting "Expel! Expel!"

Manila, June 23.—Gen. MacArthur has given a formal answer to the Filipino leaders who last Thursday submitted to him peace proposals that had been approved earlier in the day by a meeting of representatives. In his reply he assured that all personal rights under the United States constitution, except trial by jury and the right to bear arms, would be guaranteed them. The promoters of the peace movement are now engaged in reconstructing the draft of the seven clauses submitted to Gen. MacArthur in such a way as to render it acceptable to both sides. The seventh clause, providing for the expulsion of the friars, Gen. MacArthur rejected on the ground that the settlement of this question rests with the commission headed by Judge Taft.

That portion of the 43d infantry which formerly garrisoned the island of Samar will proceed to the island of Leyte, giving the garrison there the needed reinforcement. The battalion of the 29th infantry which was sent to Samar will act as the garrison there.

Sixth Cavalry Goes to Japan.

San Francisco, June 24.—The transport Grant has been ordered to take the 6th cavalry direct to Nagasaka, Japan, indicating that the government expects the worst in China. The 6th was destined for the Philippines. The war department plans that, should the occasion arise, the regiment could be diverted to any point in China upon its arrival in Japan. Should the situation improve in China the regiment can proceed from Nagasaka to Manila.

Wants More Officers.

Washington, June 24.—Adm. Remey, at Cavite, has called the navy department an urgent request for more officers. He wants three commanders, four lieutenant commanders, ten lieutenants, 20 cadets and a fleet paymaster.

Nominated a State Ticket.

Jacksonville, Fla., June 24.—The democratic convention in session here has nominated the following state officers: Francis E. Carter, justice of the supreme court; John L. Crawford, secretary of state; W. H. Reynolds, controller; W. B. Lamar, attorney general.

After Rough Riders.

Kansas City, Mo., June 24.—The war department will maintain a recruiting station at Oklahoma City during the Rough Riders' reunion in hopes of getting men to enlist.

TRANSVAAL SITUATION.

The British Forces Are Making Advances, the Boers Fleeing Before Them.

London, June 23.—Gen. Buller's advance to Sandspruit is almost the only fresh point in the military situation in South Africa. His march is in the direction of Standerton, which commands the road northward from Vrede. Lord Roberts has announced his plan of operations already, and the occupation of Heidelberg by forces from Johannesburg may confidently be expected within 48 hours. The remnants of Presidents Kruger's and Steyn's armies will then be separated and gradually hemmed in and disarmed. The process ought not to require much time, as the Dutch forces in the two sections can not now number more than ten thousand men.

Military men are not surprised by the delay on the British line. They assert that the business of feeding over 200,000 soldiers in a country where food is scarce is a most serious undertaking. The magnitude of the British army is a hindrance to its mobility and to decisive operations, since the transport problem is one of enormous difficulty and prevents rapid work. Generals Roberts and Buller, moreover, are compelled to go slowly and disarm the Barghers day by day. Immense districts are to be pacified and the arms must be secured from every house on the line of march.

Rumors have been revived that Generals Botha and Dewet will surrender their forces if they can gain any points by negotiating, but these appear to be premature. Dewet has not yet been thoroughly beaten, and Botha came near surrounding French's troops during the last battle. The story that the bridge of the Delagoa railway was blown up by the premature explosion of a mine is hardly creditable.

London, June 25.—The Transvaal military incidents are summed up officially by Lord Roberts in the following message to the war office:

"Pretoria, Sunday, 11:30 a. m.—Buller reached Standerton June 22. He found a good deal of rolling stock. All the Dutch residents had left the town.

"The British prisoners captured since our occupation of Pretoria have been taken to Machadodorp.

"Ian Hamilton occupied Heidelberg Saturday. The enemy fled, pursued by our mounted men six or seven miles. The previous day Broadwood's cavalry had a skirmish with the enemy, dispersing them completely and capturing six.

"The enemy attacked our post at Houngspruit, and before reinforcements arrived from Kroonstad they had burned three culverts. These had all been repaired by this afternoon."

A dispatch from Cape Town, dated yesterday, says: "The British casualties at Houngspruit were 37 killed and wounded."

Lord Roberts and Commandant Gen. Louis Botha are still exchanging letters.

ANOTHER AMBUSH.

Americans Compelled to Retreat by the Filipinos—Several of Our Troops Killed.

Washington, June 24.—The war department has received the following cablegram from Gen. MacArthur:

"Manila, June 23.—Adjutant General, Washington: Detachment four officers, 100 men 40th Volunteer Infantry, Capt. Millar commanding, left Tagayan June 13, on reconnaissance up Cagayan river, meeting, announced by insurgents in strong position. Fifty men sent to reinforce from Tagayan. "MACARTHUR."

AT SAN DIEGO HARBOR.

Plans to Be Drawn for Battery of Two 8-Inch Guns to Be Located On North Island.

Sandiego, Cal., June 24.—Capt. J. J. Meyler has been directed by the war department to have plans drawn for a battery of two 3-inch guns to be located on North Island, at the entrance of Sandiego harbor. The guns will not only command the entrance to the harbor, but will be able to destroy any small craft that might steal up under the 10-inch guns of Ft. Rosecrans, located directly across the channel. These big guns can not be depressed sufficiently to hit a ship at close range, and the three-inch guns will be placed to solve this problem.

Sun Spots Change.

Memphis, Tenn., June 24.—David Flanery, a local astronomer, reports that the group of sun spots, which was visible Monday, appears now as two large spots in the southwest quadrant of the sun, all the small spots having disappeared. Another large spot has appeared in the northwest quarter.

Five Children Burned to Death.

Solomonville, A. T., June 24.—The residence of Mrs. Collier at Tacher was burned and five small children perished in the flames.

SITUATION IN CHINA.

Ten Thousand Foreign Troops Are Now in the Vicinity of Pekin.

Adm. Kempff Reports the Killing of Four Americans and the Wounding of Seven Others in an Ambuscade Near Tien Tsin.

London, June 25.—The position of the international force in the section of Northern China, where 70,000 men are striving to keep a footing and to succor the legations in Pekin, appears to increase in peril with every fresh dispatch. Pekin has not been heard from direct for 14 days. The last dispatch was one imploring aid. Adm. Seymour's column of 2,000 was last heard from 12 days ago. At that time it was surrounded midway between Pekin and Tien Tsin. Possibly now it has reached Pekin.

The 3,000 internationals at Tien Tsin were hard pressed and fighting for their lives on Thursday, and a relieving force of less than a thousand had been beaten back to Taku Friday. Observers on the spot think that 100,000 men would not be too many to grasp China firmly.

The admiralty has received the following from the British rear admiral at Taku:

"Che-Foo, June 25.—Only one rumor has got through from Tien Tsin for five days. No information could be obtained except that the foreign settlement had been almost entirely destroyed and that our people were fighting hard.

"News is received as this telegram is dispatched that an attempt to relieve Tien Tsin on June 22 was repulsed with some loss."

The telegram also said: "The allied admirals are working in perfect accord, with the Russian vice admiral as senior officer."

Washington, June 25.—The navy department Sunday afternoon issued the following bulletin:

"A telegram from Adm. Kempff, dated Che-Foo, June 23, says:

"'In ambuscade near Tien Tsin, on the 21st, four of Waller's command killed and seven wounded. Names will be furnished as soon as received. Force of 2,000 going to relieve Tien Tsin to-day. Kempff.'"

The secretary of the navy has ordered Adm. Remey to go with the Brooklyn to Taku and to tender to Gen. MacArthur conveyance of any army troops which the Brooklyn can carry.

Washington, June 24.—Several important communications have been received by the secretary of state justifying the attitude assumed by this government, that, technically speaking, a state of war does not exist between the United States and China. The viceroys who have their seats of government at Nanking and Wu Chang, and who govern the five great provinces in the Yang Tse Kiang region, have assured this government that they are determined and perfectly able to preserve order in their jurisdictions, and protect the lives and property of foreigners. In reply to this they have been assured that, so long as they are able to maintain order and protect life and property in the provinces under their control, the government of the United States will send no troops into that region, and will use its influence with the other powers in same direction.

Another communication of great importance was received from Li Hung Chang, the viceroy of Canton, who gives his personal assurance that the firing upon the foreign fleets at Taku was not authorized by the Chinese government. He desires the authority of the powers to proceed to Pekin for the purpose of putting an end to the disturbances there, a purpose in which his great influence both with the court and with the people gives a certain promise of success.

The United States, and it is believed the other powers, have assented to this proposition of Li Hung Chang, and he is supposed to have started for Pekin.

Adm. Kempff's dispatch stating that an engagement had occurred near Tien Tsin and that another was about to occur, sent a thrill of expectancy throughout official circles here. Other dispatches had been received giving additional detail, but these were not made public, as they did not shed light upon the engagement itself, but more on the movements of forces. The official information gave no clue, however, as to the extent of any casualties which may have been suffered by the American forces engaged, and this was taken to indicate that the loss was little or nothing in the face of such an ill-equipped foe.

Maj. Waller, in command of the American marines who participated in the fight, is known here as a brave and efficient officer, whose coolness and daring was displayed during the battle of Santiago when he commanded the marines on board the battleship Indiana. The marines referred to in the cable are the 130 men taken by the Solace from Manila at the first call for reinforcements.

Cologne Visited By a Cyclone.

London, June 25.—Cologne was visited by a cyclone which demolished many buildings and threw down a number of factory chimneys. Several persons were badly injured.

BARBECUE IN TRENCHES.

Many Prominent Men Will Attend the Reunion of the Blue and the Gray at Atlanta.

Atlanta, Ga., June 23.—A committee of prominent citizens will go to Washington to invite President McKinley and his cabinet to Atlanta, July 20, to attend a reunion of the blue and gray. After calling upon the president, the committee will go to Albany and secure, if possible, from Gov. Roosevelt an acceptance of a similar invitation.

The reunion is to be held on the famous battle field of Peachtree creek, and a genuine Georgia barbecue will be spread in the trenches over which the contending armies fought 36 years ago. The reunion committee has already received many letters of acceptance from commanders on both sides, among them being Gen. O. O. Howard, Gen. Stewart, Gen. Joseph Wheeler and Gen. Stephen D. Lee. In a communication Gov. Mount, of Indiana, who was the first man to cross the Chattahooche as the federal army neared Atlanta, says:

"It will be a great pleasure to me to meet in friendship and unity the men I met in hostile combat 36 years ago. No country on earth can present such a scene. It seems that God is ruling the destiny of the nation and has a great mission for our united country to accomplish. It is now the duty of every patriot to seek to unify and strengthen the bonds of fraternity between the once divided sections of the country. We are bound together by the ties of commerce, by the ties of blood, and I rejoice that we are united in patriotic devotion to our country."

YELLOW FEVER IN CUBA.

Unusually Heavy Rains Have Caused the Disease to Break Out at Many New Places.

Havana, June 23.—The unusually heavy rains that have been falling throughout Cuba have caused yellow fever in places where it had been unknown for several years. Fortunately, except at Santa Clara and Quemados, the United States troops have escaped. At Quemados two new cases are reported among the members of Gen. Lee's staff—Capt. Hepburn, signal officer, and Maj. Kean, chief surgeon. Capt. Hepburn's case is serious, but Maj. Kean's is light. Mrs. Edmunds, wife of the late Maj. Frank H. Edmunds, is convalescent. She has not yet been told of the death of her husband.

Havana has developed only three cases thus far, in spite of the gloomy predictions of what would occur as soon as the rainy season, from which the city did not suffer last year, was really at hand.

El Cubano says: "The Cubans have a right to object to the expenditure of money for sanitary measures intended to protect the lives of Americans, as they do not themselves take yellow fever. In such circumstances large expenditures can not be justified."

AT OYSTER BAY.

Gov. Roosevelt, the Republican Candidate for Vice President, Will Rusticate a Few Days.

New York, June 23.—Gov. Roosevelt left this city for Oyster bay at 1 o'clock Friday afternoon. After sleeping Thursday night at the Union League club, he went with Gen. Francis V. Greene to the Fifth avenue meeting Chairman B. B. Odell, and the trio made a call on Senator Platt. There was nothing more than an exchange of courtesies between the senator and the vice presidential nominee.

Gov. Roosevelt announced that he will stay at Oyster bay until June 29, when he will go to Oklahoma to attend the Rough Riders' convention. It was intended that he should address the local ratification meeting at Carnegie hall on June 25, but his nomination for the vice presidency has made that impossible.

Wheat Crop a Failure.

Chicago, June 23.—A crop report prepared by Snow, the crop expert who has just completed a two weeks' trip through the states of Minnesota, North and South Dakota, says the situation is a national calamity, and claims the wheat failure is the worst ever known. He estimates the Dakotas as promising only 20,000,000 bushels each, and Minnesota 35,000,000—a total of 75,000,000 bushels, against 200,000,000 and 225,000,000 bushels in 1898.

Failed to Reach an Agreement.

Chicago, June 23.—The building contractors' council met and voted to refer back, with power to act, to the executive board of that board the ultimatum presented by the representatives of the labor unions. The executive board later announced that the contractors would take no action on the proposition of the labor unions until the unions agree to withdraw from the objectionable trades council. This representatives of the union declare they will not do.

Mississippi Delegates.

Mr. T. Erribleigh Swell told his stenographer to write a note to a friend of his, asking him to dine "al fresco." The young lady put her Libby novel where she could reach it, and tapped off:

TO WOMEN WHO DOUBT.

Every Suffering Woman Should Read this Letter and be Convinced that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Does Cure Female Weakness.

"I have been troubled with female weakness in its worst form for about ten years. I had leucorrhœa and was so weak that I could not do my housework. I also had falling of the womb and inflammation of the womb and ovaries, and at menstrual periods I suffered terribly. At times my back would ache very hard. I could not lift anything or do any heavy work; was not able to stand on my feet. My husband spent hundreds of dollars for doctors but they did me no good. After a time I concluded to try your medicine and I can truly say it does all that you claim for it to do.

Ten bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and seven packages of Sanative Wash have made a new woman of me. I have had no womb trouble since taking the fifth bottle. I weigh more than I have in years; can do all my own housework, sleep well, have a good appetite and now feel that life is worth living. I owe all to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I feel that it has saved my life and would not be without it for anything. I am always glad to recommend your medicine to all my sex, for I know if they follow your directions, they will be cured."—Mrs. Annie Thompson, South Hot Springs, Ark.

REPUBLICAN TICKET.

McKinley For President and Gov. Roosevelt For Vice President.

The Platform Adopted Renews Allegiance to the Principles of the Gold Standard and Endorses McKinley's Foreign Policy.

Philadelphia, June 20.—At 12:37 noon, Tuesday, the republican national convention of 1900 was called to order by Chairman Hanna.

Prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. Bolton, of Philadelphia.

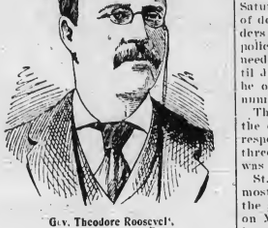
At the conclusion of the prayer Hanna arose, and again a wave of applause swept over the hall.

"The secretary of the national committee will now read the call of the convention," said Hanna.

As Col. Dick arose he was greeted with hand clapping and cheers.

The preliminary business being concluded, Hanna began his speech.

In concluding Hanna said it was his great pleasure to now present the distinguished senator from Colorado, Mr. Wolcott, as temporary chairman.



After Chairman Wolcott's address, the convention adjourned until noon Wednesday.

Philadelphia, June 21.—Chairman Wolcott called the convention to order at 12:30, and the delegates stood up while the band played the "Star Spangled Banner."

The report of the committee on permanent organization was adopted, and Senator Lodge, the permanent

President William McKinley.

Gov. Theodore Roosevelt.

Senator Fairbanks, of Indiana, then reported the platform.

Approves of President McKinley's conduct of foreign affairs.

Philadelphia, June 22.—Chairman Lodge called the convention to order at 10:38 a. m. The prayer was offered by Archbishop Ryan, of Philadelphia.

Senator Lodge announced the next order was the nomination of presidential candidates, and Senator Foraker was recognized. As he took the platform the convention cheered. He nominated William McKinley for president of the United States. When Mr. Foraker concluded his speech the convention arose and cheered enthusiastically, all waving fans. The demonstration grew exciting when Senator Hanna seized one of the plumes and waved it from the stage. The greatest excitement was when the state banners were carried to the stage.

At 11:28 Gov. Roosevelt was recognized. There was another enthusiastic demonstration when he took the platform and seconded the nomination of William McKinley.

Senator Thurston, of Nebraska, followed Roosevelt's seconding McKinley's nomination.

John W. Yerkes, of Kentucky, made a seconding speech.

Delegate Bridgit, of California, seconded McKinley.

Gov. Mount, of Indiana, seconded McKinley.

The roll of states was then called for president, and each state voted for McKinley all the way down the roll. Senator Lodge announced that McKinley was nominated unanimously.

Col. Lafayette Young, of Iowa, at 12:56 took the platform to nominate Roosevelt for vice president.

When Mr. Young named Roosevelt there was another demonstration. Banners were carried about the hall and the band played while the convention sang "There Will be a Hot Time in the Old Town To-night."

Michael J. Murray, of Massachusetts, seconded Roosevelt's nomination.

J. M. Ashton, of Washington, withdrew Bartlett Tripp and seconded Roosevelt's nomination.

The delegates still choked the aisles, grasping Gov. Roosevelt's hands, and with diffculty the chairman restored quiet and recognized Butler Murray, of Massachusetts, for a speech seconding the nomination of Roosevelt. He spoke in behalf of "old New England" and his vigorous sentences elicited another demonstration for the Rough Rider candidate.

After the speech of Mr. Murray, of Massachusetts, Gen. James M. Ashton, of Washington, was recognized, and he also seconded the nomination of Roosevelt.

Senator Depew, of New York, also seconded the nomination of Roosevelt.

Depew, at 1:50, concluded, and the roll was then called for vice president. The nomination of Roosevelt was unanimous, with the exception of one missing vote of New York—the individual vote of Roosevelt. Chairman Lodge then declared Roosevelt nominated for vice president of the United States.

On motion of Col. Dick, Senator Lodge was placed at the head of the committee to notify the president of his nomination, and Senator Wolcott at the head of the committee to notify the vice presidential nominee.

Resolution of thanks to Mr. Lodge and to Mr. Wolcott for their able services as presiding officers were unanimously adopted, also thanks to Mayor Ashbridge, of Philadelphia, for the hospitality of the city, and to all officials of the convention. This closed the work, and at 2:14, on motion of Sereno Payne, of New York, the republican national convention of 1900 adjourned sine die.

RETURNING HOME.

As Soon as the Convention Adjourned a Rush Was Made for the Railroad Stations.

Philadelphia, June 22.—As soon as the republican national convention adjourned the rush to get out of town began. Within an hour after Chairman Lodge had adjourned the session every railroad station in the city was crowded with passengers, and the congested condition of the railroad waiting rooms continued until late at night. It was figured by hotel men and railroad officials that almost 75 per cent. of the convention visitors had departed by 11 o'clock. Most of the strangers still here come from the far west, and will visit other eastern cities before returning home.

With the exception of National Chairman Hanna, all the prominent leaders in the party have departed. Senator Hanna will remain at Haverford, a suburb, until Saturday as the guest of Clement A. Griscom.

THE POSSE DISMISSED

A Large Body of Armed Men No Longer Needed in St. Louis.

Judge Zimmerman Makes a Ruling That Arrests Made By Possemen Are Illegal Unless in Case of a Riot.

St. Louis, June 24.—In accordance with instructions issued by the board of police commissioners to Sheriff Pohlman, the posse comitatus will be reduced to 500 men. It was decided by the police board that the time had come when a large body of armed men were no longer needed to preserve the peace. The men will be paroled, subject to call in case of trouble. Unless the situation grows worse, the men will not be recalled until the Fourth of July, when it is expected about 1,500 men will be on duty.

Cars are run on every division of the Transit Co.'s lines without molestation.

Ora Havill, an employe of the Transit Co., who for several weeks has been acting as private detective, was arrested on suspicion of having been connected with the dynamite explosions which have occurred along the lines of the Transit Co. On information furnished by Havill that he had overheard a conversation between two men in which arrangements were being made to destroy the Des Peres river bridge on the Delmar branch of the Transit Co., Chief of Police Campbell assigned officers to watch the bridge.

Judge Zimmerman made a ruling in the South St. Louis police court that arrests made by members of the sheriff's posse are illegal unless in case of a riot or in crowds.

St. Louis, June 24.—Sheriff Pohlman Saturday began reducing the force of deputies on duty to 500, under orders issued Friday by the board of police commissioners. The men not needed are being given furloughs until July 4, when the whole force will be on duty again. The whole posse numbers 1,226 men and 75 officers.

The examination of witnesses by the coroner in the inquiry as to the responsibility for the death of the three strikers killed Sunday, June 10, was resumed Saturday.

St. Louis, June 25.—Sunday was the most quiet and uneventful day since the great street railway strike began on May 8. Cars were run on all the branches of the Transit Co.'s system without molestation, and thousands of persons, despite the rain that fell at intervals throughout the day, rode to and from the parks and other pleasure resorts. Many of the strikers went to Belleville, Ill., and attended a picnic given for their benefit there.

This week will see the force of deputy sheriffs on duty reduced to 500 men, who will be kept on guard wherever the necessity exists for their presence. Many members of the posse will be discharged outright, but the names of 1,000 men (500 in addition to those retained for active duty) will be kept on the rolls for an emergency. The total number will be called on duty on July 4.

J. H. Stilson, a motorman in the employ of the St. Louis Transit Co., died as the result of wounds received in a riot in South St. Louis on May 29. He came from Hastings, Neb., where it is said a family survives him.

Demand for Indemnity Renewed.

Constantinople, June 25.—Lloyd C. Griscom, United States charge d'affaires, presented a fresh note to the Ottoman government, insisting upon an immediate reply to the demand of the United States for a settlement of the indemnity in connection with the losses of Americans at the time of the Armenian massacres. Although vigorously phrased, the note is not an ultimatum. It is said, however, to have been a disagreeable surprise to the porte, testifying as it does to the intention of the United States government to pursue this matter of indemnity to the end.

Terrible Deed of a Madman.

Cedar Rapids, Ia., June 25.—Charles Mefford, a lunatic, 27 years old, escaped from his home Saturday night. Early Sunday morning he plunged through a window at the home of James Fitzsimmons and, armed with an ax, split open the head of Fitzsimmons and seriously injured Mrs. Fitzsimmons and daughter Kate. Joseph Drake, a neighbor, who came to their assistance, was struck over the head and probably fatally injured. Mefford then fled. After running several blocks he fired a bullet through his left breast, and as the police came upon him he put a second bullet through his head, dying instantly.

Suicided in a Cemetery.

New Prague, Minn., June 25.—The dead body of Maj. Charles M. Schaefer, major in the 14th Minnesota volunteers during the Spanish war and a retired officer of the regular army, was found in the cemetery in this place. A bullet wound in the head and a revolver beside the body indicated suicide. Maj. Schaefer was 42 years of age.

Hogs Killed Him.

Mishawaka, Ind., June 24. H. W. Markham, a tenant on the Holcomb farm, was found dead in a barnyard. The body was terribly mutilated and partly eaten by hogs. Markham's wife went to Chicago Tuesday, leaving him alone. The theory is that the hogs attacked and killed him.

Kramer Killed Himself.

Columbus, O., June 25.—E. W. Kramer, aged 48, shot and killed himself. He was feeble from age, was diseased, and his physicians had told him his case was hopeless.

FIRE IN PITTSBURGH.

Flames in the Business Portion Caused a Loss of About a Quarter of a Million Dollars.

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 23.—Fire broke out in the five-story Eichbaum building, 242 Fifth avenue, about 1:30 o'clock Friday afternoon, and 15 minutes later spread to Duff's college building, Platt's restaurant, the Exchange national bank, A. M. Murdock, florist, and the Hussey building. The flames buried fiercely and the occupants of the buildings were forced to fly for their lives. Several persons are reported to have been caught in the Duff building and it is feared were burned to death.

Only the roof of the First National bank building was on fire and the flames were quickly extinguished. Firemen are now on the roof, and it is thought the danger of the flames again crossing the street is over.

The flames caused an estimated loss of several hundred thousands of dollars, and for a time threatened to wipe out the entire square of handsome buildings, bounded by Fifth avenue, Diamond, Wood and Market streets. At 1 o'clock flames were discovered issuing from the rear of the Eichbaum building, No. 242 Fifth avenue. The structure was of iron and brick, six stories in height, and occupied by Duff's college, and the Holmes Electric Protective company.

Ten minutes after the fire broke out, the entire building was in flames, and the adjoining structures, the Exchange national bank, Hussey building, Platt's saloon and restaurant and A. M. Murdock's flower store, were on fire, and the flames were burning so fiercely that little hope was entertained of saving any of them. Five minutes later the flames leaped across Fifth avenue and the roof of the magnificent eight-story iron building of the First national bank was seen to be on fire.

The fire started in the rear of the Eichbaum building facing on Diamon street. The building was being remodeled for a telephone office at an expense of many thousand dollars. As soon as the alarm was given the money and valuables in the Exchange bank were placed in the vaults in safety.

At 2:25 the fire was apparently under control, after gutting the Eichbaum and Duff buildings. When the fire was discovered fifty students were on the fifth floor of Duff's college. A panic ensued, but beyond a few bruises and contusions all reached the street in safety.

At 1:50 p. m. the flames crossed the street, and in a few minutes the handsome iron structure of the First national bank on the corner of Fifth avenue and Wood street was in flames.

CUTTING DOWN EXPENSES.

Twenty-Six Under Professors at the Havana University With Big Salaries Discharged.

Havana, June 23.—The postal frauds have rather swamped the scandal existing in the university, which has been the milking ground for some of the best men in Cuba, who, as under professors, received $24,000 a year each. There were 72 of these professors and 24 assistants, some of them having no classes at all, and others only one or two students. Many of the professors drew other government salaries. When this was called to Gen. Wood's attention he immediately inaugurated reforms, which resulted in cutting down the list to 46, including assistants, which is enough, considering that there are only 450 students. For instance, instruction in Greek was divided into three parts, history, grammar and literature. It is now combined under one professor of Greek.

BOTH BADLY HURT.

Prof. Neske, a Well-Known Band Director, and His Wife in a Runaway Accident.

Monticello, N. Y., June 23.—Prof. Neske, director of the Barracks bank at Columbus, O., a number of years, and Mrs. Neske are lying in a critical condition at their summer home in Thompsonville, Sullivan county, as the result of a runaway while they were out driving.

When going down a steep hill near their home Mr. Neske lost control of the horse. When about half way down the hill they overtook a conveyance and in order to avoid a collision Neske guided his frightened animal into a stone wall. The horse struck the stone wall and was killed and the occupants were thrown from the wagon. Mr. Neske was cut about the head, face and body. Mrs. Neske's arm was broken in several places and she was otherwise injured.

RAILROAD BRIDGE GAVE WAY.

Two Men Killed, Five Seriously Injured and Ten Slightly Hurt in the Wreck.

Lebanon, Ky., June 21.—Two men were killed, five seriously injured and ten slightly injured in a wreck on the Greensburg branch of the Louisville & Nashville railroad at Calvary, six miles from Lebanon.

The killed are: Geo. Mullins, bridge carpenter, of Mt. Vernon, and J. H. Rouston, bridge carpenter, of Pine Hill.

Seriously injured: J. B. Martin, supervisor, of Lebanon; Wm. Adams, bridge carpenter, of Broadhead; John Newland, bridge carpenter, of Broadhead; E. W. Hagan, baggage man, of Greensburg, and Claude Hobson, brakeman, of Campbellsville.

Slightly injured: Ed Smith, engineer; H. H. Martin, fireman; Wash Cabell, bridge carpenter; Arch Brown, bridge carpenter; Charles Andes; Robert Bell, bridge carpenter; Frank Allen, bridge carpenter; Walter Miller, bridge carpenter, Glen Spaulding, passenger, of Lebanon, and C. K. Crawford, passenger, of Danville.

Thirteen bridge carpenters were at work on the bridge that crosses Rolling Fork river. The passenger train, composed of engine, baggage car, combination coach and one regular coach, was in the center of the first 100-foot span when the bridge gave way and precipitated almost the entire train into the bed of the river.

The last coach, containing 23 passengers, was left hanging over the abutment, and was not seriously damaged until after its occupants were taken out.

Lebanon, Ky., June 22.—With the exception of John Newland and Wash Cable, bridge carpenters, of Broadhead, those injured in the wreck at Calvary, Ky., are rapidly recovering. The remains of James Houston and George Mullins, the two killed, were shipped home. The wreck is considered by railroad men the worst in years, the bridge having given away at each end almost simultaneously, precipitating bridge and train in the river bed, about 30 feet below. Men are working night and day, and it is not thought traffic will be delayed longer than Friday.

Gov. Beckham Announces His Candidacy for the Democratic Nomination for Governor.

Frankfort, Ky., June 21.—Gov. Beckham has issued a statement formally announcing his candidacy for the democratic nomination to succeed himself. In it he says: "Since the death of Gov. Goebel, February 3, I have endeavored to faithfully guard the interests of the people and to intelligently discharge the duties of the office of governor as best I could under the trying times that have surrounded us here at your state capital. In all that I have done I have striven to carry out the policies of the party, because I believe those policies to be to the best interests of the state. The few months I have served as your chief executive have marked a critical period in our state's history. The conditions surrounding me have been unusual, and the difficulties confronting me extraordinary. I have tried to meet them honestly and with a desire to do that which was best for the people."

Brown, of London, holding the office of circuit judge of the 27th judicial district, and John Henry Wilson, of Barbourville, who sets up claim to the same office, both appeared in Hyden, Perry county, and each one attempted to open the regular term of court at that place.

The friends of both parties, seeing that there would be trouble, interfered and a compromise was effected in electing by the bar Attorney H. C. Faulkner, of Barbourville, to hold the term, after which things moved off smoothly. Wilson has been claiming the office since last November election, but this is the first time that trouble has arisen.

Frankfort machinists worked on the doors for three days and made no progress. Finally a message was sent to the penitentiary for the loan of a convict that could blow open a safe.

Frank Simmons, who was sent up from Floyd county for safe blowing, was selected by the prison authorities as the best man to do the job, and he justified their confidence by opening the safe in 30 minutes.

MUST BE DECIDED BY LAW.

An Injunction Granted Against Impeachment Proceedings in the Castleman Case.

Louisville, Ky., June 23.—Special Judge John L. Dodd granted Adjt. Gen. Castleman an injunction against the general council of Louisville to prevent that body trying him on impeachment proceedings. The council claims Castleman is now holding the office of adjutant general at $2,500 a year and of president of the Louisville park board at the same salary, when it is against the law for one man to hold both offices.

The judge holds that the question of compatability is not within the jurisdiction of the council. It must be decided by common law.

MURDER FROM JEALOUSY.

Finding a Letter From Rival in His Sweetheart's Possession, Oscar McPherson Shot Her.

Livingston, Ky., June 23.—Jealousy caused a tragedy at Tunnel No. 5, a mile north of this town. Oscar McPherson, unmarried, aged 25 years, shot Carrie Arnold, his sweetheart, in the forehead, killing her instantly.

McPherson is a railroad employe. He had become infatuated with the Arnold girl, and, finding her in possession of a letter from another man, became furious in his jealous rage. The girl's mother interfered, when McPherson shot twice at her, and then shot the girl as she stepped between him and her mother. McPherson escaped.

The courtesy of H. C. Diers enables the writer to lay before the readers of the Recorder an accurate synopsis of the great speech made by W. J. Bryan at the auditorium in Columbus, O., on May 2nd, 1900. The speech was cheered by 10,000 people who were wild with excitement. The issues were clearly set forth by the wonderful orator; Trusts and Imperialism mercifully scored and the shams and false pretenses exposed in the masterful manner peculiar to Mr. Bryan. The Tri-Weekly Press-Post, from which the synopsis was taken gives lengthy, thrilling extracts showing that the speaker has lost none of his magnetism and force.

"A Democrat is perfectly consistent who believes the constitution must follow the flag wherever the flag may go.

"Every issue of the Chicago platform is still there for the Republicans have not settled a single question.

"There was a time when a Republican needed conviction; now he needs only agility. He don't have to think. He only has to jump.

"I have more at stake in this contest than the presidency. I can live whether I am president or not. I can get along better than many of those who voted against me.

"It is my opinion that when God concludes to govern us by Divine will, He will choose some one besides Mark Hanna as his mouthpiece.

"The Republican party does not stand for anything to day. Their platform was a fraud when it was written.

"The Republican Congressmen look up to Mr. Hanna every morning and say, give us this day our daily opinion.

"The people get their ideas, but how? The wise man gets it in his head, the foolish man gets in the neck.

"The opponents of the Chicago platform have not been able to take from it one single line or one plank.

"It may be good for the army contractor and for the young man who will thus get a life appointment in the army but it is not good for the whole people.

"It asserts the damnable doctrine that this territory is to be without the scope of the constitution and that the president in dealing with it is wholly unlimited.

"You will search history in vain for a tyrant or despot holding more arbitrary power than our president is to have under this imperial policy.

"What excuse is there for imperialism? I have heard three, viz: Because there is money in it; because God is in it and because we are in it and cannot get out.

"I would rather pull down the American flag in the Philippines and the West Indies, and let the flags of the two republics go up in its place than to let the flag of blood stained imperialism float over them,

"You cannot find an instance in History in which trade that has been taken and held by a fleet, proved a benefit to any nation,

"A president cannot trample upon the constitution of this country.

"Free the Phillipines and tell the world that the ground is holy ground and no king can ever set foot on it again.

"The English government has not conquered the Boers yet, and I pray to God she never may. We are practicing in the Phillippine islands the same policy that English is practicing in South Africa.

"The man who says war will pay, must put a value on human blood. How can this be measured? Republicans, if you are willing to spill human blood for financial gain, you cowards go there and spill your own.

"The Republican party in absolute control of all departments, neither enacts new laws against trusts nor enforces those that are already on the statute books

"John W. Gates said the other day that trusts were all right in the long run. But what consolation is that to a man who is too short winded for a long run.

"You go to those fellows who were urging the gold standard in 1896 and you will find their pockets full of trust certificates now that don't represent 25 cents on the dollar of actual money invested.

"There is no good monopoly in private hands. A monopoly in private hands is indefensible and intolerable.

"You can't have industrial despotism and individual independence.

"I am not in favor of a government for the trust magnate and his son and his son-in-law. I want conditions that will give every man an equal chance.

"Republicans, you are condemning young men to perpetual clerkships. You are taking hope out of the young mans heart and planting despair there.

"Help us take this government out of the hands of corporate wealth and make it a government of the people, by the people and for the people.

"Every trust that contributes to the Republican campaign fund is a good one—the stingy are all bad.

"If we have money enough, why have we been given more, why should it not be given real money and not somebody's promise to pay.

"If our money system is so shaky as to be affected by an English reverse in South Africa, tell me, Republicans, what will become of it if England ever tackles a nation of her size and goes at it in the same way?

"If the policy of the Republicans continues along the lines now mapped out, there will soon be no legal tender but gold, and no paper money but bank notes."

DANDY CRISTO!

will make the season of 1900 at my stable near Big Bone church, and will be permitted to attend 15 or 20 approved mares at $12 to insure a colt to stand up and suck.

DESCRIPTION AND PEDIGREE:

Dandy Cristo is a dark bay, 5 yrs-old, 16 hands high, heavy mane and tail, and weighs 1,000 lbs.

Dandy Cristo by Black Cristo; he by Monte Cristo, 51; first dam by Black Squirrel, 58; 2d dam by Mambrino Tim; 3d dam by Blue Bull.

Monte Cristo by Montrose; he by Diamond Denmark, he by Black Denmark, he by Denmark, thoroughbred, the great sire race horse, he by imported Hedgeford. Monte Cristo's 1st dam by Black Williams, she by Brown's Highlander; 2d dam by Whips' thoroughbred mare.

Dandy Cristo's dam by Virginia Morgan and Spark's Gren Berry. Grand dam, by Black Squirrel, great-grand dam, Highlander and Blades' famous saddle horse, Regulator, from Bracken county.

This breeding has produced the best saddle and harness horses ever in the Blue Grass section, and it is to be hoped that the breeders in this section will take advantage of it and raise a higher grade of horses, when it can be done so cheap.

Remember that many saddle horse commands as high price as ever, whilst common horses are too cheap to give away.

Dandy Cristo took first premium in general purpose ring at Florence Fair in 1899; has made two shows and took first each time.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JULY 4, 1900. NO. 37

FROM this time on politics will have full sway in this country.

WONDER who will have charge of the blue pencil at Kansas City? No doubt but what it will be kept busy if it does its duty.

THE famine in India does not induce England to discontinue the shipment of the wheat crop from that stricken country, where thousands are dying for the want of bread.

WHEN the partition of China is begun, then you may look out for a war that is a war. Each of the powers will strive for the advantage, and then a general row will ensue.

THERE is some talk of the Governor calling a special session of the Legislature to meet in September, in which event special elections to fill two vacancies in the Senate and one in the House will be ordered.

THE farmers in this county are well pleased with the condition of their growing crops. Hay and oats are a much better crop than was anticipated a few weeks ago. A small wheat crop has been harvested, only a few having an average crop.

To make himself solid with the Germans in Chicago, the first thing Roosevelt did when he arrived there other the day was to begin inquiring if there was a Dutch Reform church in the city, saying that that was his church, and that he wanted to attend it.

THE work of the blue pencil in the Philadelphia convention is yet a source of much annoyance to Congressman Grovesnor, whose pet resolution was one of its victims. Grovesnor thinks the platform would have been a thing of beauty and a joy forever had he been permitted to edit it.

THE Democratic national love-feast begins to-day at Kansas City, and the indications are that it will not be spiritless. There are two or three important propositions that will come before the convention, either of which will have to be deftly handled in order to avoid creating serious trouble for the party.

IF the State convention that meets in Lexington on the 19th of this month does not transact its business in a harmonious and business-like manner, it may as well adjourn without making a nomination. The erratics must heed the advice of the level headed members of the party, who have party success at heat. No party that engages in personal and factional fights can expect to command the respect of the public.

THE report comes from Indiana that Messrs. Taylor and Finley will not be called upon by the Republicans over there to take part in their State campaign this fall. If it is true that Taylor and Finley have been given a back seat in Indiana, it shows that their efforts on the stump will prove a detriment to the party, a confession that there is some doubt as to their entire innocence of the charges preferred against them by the Franklin county grand jury.

Judge Westover, of Grant county, a candidate for Congress, and Judge Tarvin, of Covington, a candidate for Governor, addressed a good crowd at the court house Monday afternoon. Judge Westover lead off in a speech in which he presented in a strong manner his reasons for asking for the Congressional nomination, and judging from the expression heard after his speech he certainly increased his strength in this county. All seemed pleased with him.

Judge Tarvin followed Mr. Westover in a lengthy speech, which was frequently applauded He advocated the absolute repeal of the present election law, and declared he would not accept the nomination for Governor on a platform that did not demand the repeal of that law. There is a disagreement here as to what the Judge said in response to the question "will you support the nominee of the Lexington convention?" The speaker was emphatic in his declaration for a non-partisan election law.

The Best Horses in the World.

[Scientific American.]

Our export trade in horses reached its minimum in 1894, when the bicycle and trolley threatened the doom of the horse, but five years later, in 1899, the pendulum had swung to the other extreme and our export trade reached its maximum. Last year we exported nearly 100,000 head of horses and a fair percentage of these were trotters, to be used either for racing, coaching or for the parks. A large number of cavalry horses were also shipped, and these are still going abroad in a continuous stream.

The American trotter, as bred today, is the most useful and serviceable horse in the world, and he has outclassed all others at home and abroad. He is the ideal type of horse, with just sufficient mobility about him to permit the breeders to rear him for a variety of uses. He is bred from 14 to 17 hands in height, and from 900 to 1,400 lbs. in weight, suitable alike for racing, trotting on the speedway or for road handling. He is bred to trot from 2:20 to 2:03, and he sells from $500 to $10,000 on the average, not taking into account the extraordinary prices paid for a Maud S or a Sunol. There is a demand to-day in Europe for American trotters that can meet the market requirements at prices ranging from $600 to $10,000. Trottingbred road horses of extra speed and beauty sell to-day in the London market for $10,000 a pair, and in nearly all instances of such sales the horses are either bred in America or are from American-bred sires.

The condition of our trotting stock abroad has given a new impetus to horse breeding in this country, and there is a revival in the business that promises well for the future. The present scarcity of good salable horses is forcibly contrasted with the condition of the market five years ago. Then the horses in the far Northwest were so plentiful and in such demand that they were left by the farmers to starve on the range. On the great ranges of Texas, California, Oregon and Dakota the stallions were shot to stop the increase, and premiums were offered for removing the herds. Only recently the Union Pacific Railroad closed a contract to carry from the Oregon ranges some 9,000 head of wild horses to the grain-growing states. The organizers of this movement anticipated making money out of these wild horses when they have been fed and prepared for the market. Instead of the wild horses being a nuisance on the plains today, they are in great demand both for export and home use.

This change of condition is partly due to our war in the Philippines. The Pacific coast has been shipping horses to the far East for our soldiers and army transports at the rate of nearly a 1,000 a month. These half wild horses when broken to the saddle make the best sort of army and cavalry horses. So well is this recognized that both Germany and Russia are now buying American horses for this wing of their armies. We have the breeding stock and above all the cheapest ranges and feed in the world. The American breeder can put the products of his stock farms on the European markets at less cost than the local breeders, and his animals will be superior in speed, power and endurance.

It is stated that Japan has sent commissioners to this country to buy a number of American horses for the government to be used in crossing with their own for the benefit of the breed. Their intention is to buy trotters and hackneys. They will visit some of the larger breeding establishments and make their selections from them. One of these commissioners was in this country some years ago and took American horses with them. The Emperor of Japan was greatly pleased with the results of crossing the American with the Japanese horses and he desires more of the same sort both for military and general utility purposes. It is further stated that Great Britain is again buying a considerable number of American cavalry horses and mules. They are also said to have placed an order for a large number of heavy harness horses.—Stock Farm.

For some years the State Board of Health has been trying to stop the doctors of Osteopathy from practicing medicine in Kentucky but the Court of Appeals has made perpetual an injunction to restrain the State Board of Health from interfering with the Osteopathists. The court rules that the practice of Osteopathy is not a violation of the statutes.

SOME GOOD RULES.

Young men just starting out in life will do well to bear in mind the following maxims which have been crystalized from the experience of those who have gone before them in the journey of life:

Keep good company or none. Never be idle.

If your hands cannot be usefully employed, attend to the cultivation of your mind.

Always speak the truth. Make few promises.

Live up to your engagements. Keep your own secrets if you have any.

When you speak to a person look him in the face.

Good company and good conversation are the very sinews of virtue.

Goon character is above all things else.

Your character cannot be essentially injured except by your own acts.

If any one speaks evil of you, let your life be so that none will believe him.

Drink no kind of intoxicating liquors.

Ever live (misfortunes excepted,) within your income.

When you retire to bed think over what you have been doing during the day.

Make no haste to be rich, if you would prosper.

Small and steady gains give competency, with tranquility of mind.

Never play at any game of chance.

Avoid temptation, through the years you may not withstand it.

Earn money before you spend it.

Never run into debt unless you see your way to get out again.

Never borrow if you can possibly avoid it.

Do not marry until you are able to support a wife.

Never speak evil of any one.

Be just before you are generous.

Keep yourself innocent if you would be happy.

Save when you are young to spend when you are old.

Read over the above maxims at least once a week.

Liquor drinking in this country is slowly but surely losing caste. Once it was fashionable, now it is unfashionable. At the opening of the United States pavillion at Paris recently, Commissioner Peck hesitated about offering champagne to his guests, for fear it would not be approved at home in the United States.

Once grog was served to English sailors and soldiers; now it is not. General Roberts, in command of the British forces in South Africa, commends the British soldiers who are total abstainers and says they show the greatest endurance.

Even liquor dealers and manufacturers are in many cases, among the most determined total abstainer.

A writer in a Chicago paper says: "When we were at college we heard a fast young man say to a bartender once, Jack, why is it you never drink with the boys? The answer was direct and unequivocal. 'Because I know too well what is in it.' There was no mistake about that."

We happen to know two brothers who conduct a brewery on a capital of $1,000,000, who never suffer a drop of beer to pass their own lips.

At a Liquor Men's Convention in Oklahoma lately, the reporter could not refrain from expressing his surprise that the banquet which followed the convention was "dry."

While, even in Solomon's day wine was a mockery in its results; it is a mockery today in its composition. Most of the railroads of the country now refuse to employ any men who drink, either when on duty or off. To be seen entering a drinking place is enough to cause an employe's discharge on some roads.—Exchange.

White Man Turned Yellow.

Great consternation was felt by the friends of M. A. Hogarty, of Lexington, Ky., when they saw he was turning yellow. His skin slowly changed color, also his eyes, and he suffered terribly. His malady was Yellow Jaundice. He was treated by the best doctors, but without benefit. Then he was advised to try Electric Bitters, the wonderful Stomach and Liver remedy, and he writes: "After taking two bottles I was wholly cured." A trial proves its matchless merit for all Stomach, Liver and Kidney troubles. Only 50c. Sold by W. F. McKim, Burlington; J. G. Oelsner, Florence; M. J. Crouch, Union.

The following are the views of the Kentucky delegation to Kansas City convention, as expressed to the Courier-Journal in reply to the telegrams sent to them by that paper, eight of the delegates not replying:

I am in favor of the nomination of Bryan by acclamation for President, and I want a candidate for Vice President of proper ability, who will stand on the Democratic platform and bring the greatest strength to our ticket. I can not decide this important question until I obtain information in the convention. Jas. B. McCreary.

I am for Congressman Lentz, of Ohio, because he is in thorough sympathy with the Chicago platform and oppose to trusts and imperialism. I do not believe in sacrificing principle to expediency; hence I am opposed to the nomination of Hill, or any other man who denounced us in 1896.

C. W. Bransford.

As at present advised I am in favor of Shively.

Lewis McQuown.

Personal preference for Shively. Should party expediency suggest an Eastern man, Hill is entirely acceptable. N. W. Utley.

You ask my choice for President. Answer, William J. Bryan, four years ago; still sticking.

Felix Grasty.

I favor Shively, of Indiana, or any sound Democrat suggested by Mr. Bryan as a desirable running mate. His suggestion should be followed. R. J. Bugg.

Undecided, but friendly to David B. Hill. R. B. Bradley.

Turpie, of Indiana.

E. R. Pennington.

My personal preference is Shively of Indiana, but party first, candidate later. J. W. Jones.

I have no special preference for Vice President; want the strongest man. Speed Guffy.

Shively, of Indiana, my choice Vice President.

D. W. Whitman.

Am for Tom L. Johnson, of Cleveland, O., for Vice President.

Chas. C. Spalding.

My political preference is William Astor Chanler, of New York, but personally I prefer Benjamin F. Shively, of Indiana. I mean by this that my own personal wishes would best be fulfilled by nominating Shively, but political conditions, I think, demand Chanler's nomination. R. Lee Suter.

Shively, of Indiana, or Elliott Danforth, of New York, represent my choice for the nomination for Vice President.

John W. Vreeland.

Any man in full accord with the party who has the confidence of the people. If it goes to New York, Mr. Hearst. Fred Miller.

My choice for Vice President is he who will give the greatest strength to our ticket. Now Hill will do this. R. B. Brown.

Have not decided as to Vice President. T. E. Moore.

If the majority of the delegates think Hill can carry New York, then I am for Hill; but if not, I favor a man from Indiana, so that we will be sure to carry it.

W. P. Thorne.

I have no choice for Vice President, except that he shall be a man thoroughly in accord with the platform to be adopted. I would not under any circumstances vote for David B. Hill, nor for any other man who opposed the election of Mr. Bryan in 1896. I am very much inclined to favor Shively, of Indiana. C. M. Lewis.

My choice for the Vice Presidential nomination at Kansas City is the most available Democrat; the one who can be depended upon to add the greatest number of electoral votes to those already sure for Bryan. HigginC. Smith.

Shively, of Indiana, or some good New York man. W. R. Cress.

Mr. Hill's celebrated defense of a Democratic Administration should endear him to all loyal Democrats. He is my choice for Vice President. W. H. Rhorer.

The National Prohibition Convention met in Chicago, with 693 delegates, representing thirty-seven States. Samuel Dickie was elected permanent chairman of the convention. The platform deals solely with the prohibition question, all other issues being ignored. President McKinley and his Administration are severely arraigned. A resolution indorsing woman's suffrage was adopted by the convention.

THE MAN WITH THE HOE.

The following from the Courier-Journal is worth repeating: The labor problem would be easily solved if the population that congests the cities could be induced to return to the farms where the field for the creation of wealth is still unerowded, where the sir is pure and sweet and the hours of toil such as Godmakes them. Seriously speaking, there is no field for the average man that pays him so surely and so well as the primial one. Prices at times are low, but the farmer can always live in peace and plenty and need never fear ejectment by his landlord. The small cotton planter of the south, and wheat grower of the west are in positions of infinite superiority, if they but utilize their opportunities, to the laborer, skilled or unskilled, of the city. And while day labor on the farm is poorly paid as compared with the high wages of workingmen in the cities the remuneration is sure, and there is always the chance for independent work on one's account. No occupation in the world requires so little risk as agriculture, and all the homilies that can be impressed upon the great body of laborers have no practical wisdom comparable with the advice of Horace Greely, to go west and grow up with the country. Things have changed since his day, but what he said is still true."

SAYING "HELLO."

The English and American people say: "How do you do?"

The Germans greet each other by saying "How do you find yourself?"

The Chinese inquire of equals: "Have you eaten your rice?" The reply is: Thanks to your abundant felicity."

The Japanese, when they meet a superior, remove their sandals and exclaim: "Hurt me not."

"How do you stand?" ask the Italian when he meets a friend.

Arabs of eminence kiss each other's cheeks and exclaim: "God grant thee His favor and fine health to thy family."

The Burmese rub their noses against each other's cheeks and say: "Give me a smell."

Hollanders greet their friends by asking: "Have you had a good dinner?"

A Moor rides at full speed toward a friend or stranger, stops suddenly, fires a pistol into the air over his own head, then considers that he has been quite courteous.

On the African coasts negro Kings greet each other by snapping the middle finger three times.

The natives of the Philippine Islands take a friend's hand or foot and rub it over their faces as a token of friendly greeting.

In Egypt the usual words of greeting are: "How do you perspire?"

In Lapland friends salute by pressing their noses together.

"Peace be with you," say the Mohammedans, and the response is: "On you be peace and the blessing and mercies of God."

The Polish greeting is: "How do you have yourself?"

Persian friends cross necks, rub cheeks and say: "May thy shadow never grow less."

"Go with God, senor," is the Spanish greeting.

The French ask: "How do you carry yourself?"

The Turk crosses his hands upon his breast and makes a profound obeisance when he greets a friend.

Russian friends greet by asking: "How do live on?"

POLITICAL.

[Western Argus.]

Gen. Joseph H. Lewis has opened headquarters at the Fleming Hotel, and Mr. John Ray is in charge of same. The General has entered the contest to win, and no means will be spared to secure this result.

Gov. Beckham's headquarters are at the Capital Hotel, and are in charge of Percy Haly. While the Governor will not have the time to make a personal canvass he hopes to reach the people by letter.

The latest entry into the Gubernatorial Derby is Judge James P. Tarvin, of Covington. The new entry will again make the sixth district a factor in the race. Judge Tarvin is a good stumper, and a man of considerable political achivements. He will be a strong man before the people.

Ex-Gov. Jas. B. McCreary is a receptive candidate for Governor of Kentucky. He is not, and will not be, an announced candidate for the position, but he believes that any man selected by that Convention should accept and make that race to reclaim Kentucky from Republicanism. He is a life long Democrat and stands well before his party in this State, and the Democrats are willing to trust him in the high and honorable office of Governor.

Whoever brought about the exhibition of W. S. Taylor, former Governor of Kentucky, at the Philadelphia convention, committed a deplorable indiscretion. The movement was theatrical in conception but it utterly failed of the dramatic effect intended—to the credit of the delegates, be it said. Taylor is now a fugitive from justice. The Governor of Indiana, in violation of his clear constitutional duty, declined to surrender him to the authorities of Kentucky, and whoever goes out of his way to do him honor, affronts the State of Kentucky, and not merely the Democrats of that Commonwealth. It was foolish to elect him as a delegate, and it was even more foolish to attempt so lionizehim before the convention.—Chicago Post, Republican.

A Washington special to the Baltimore Sun says:

"We have the authority of the Pennsylvania Ledger that no such crimes against the suffrage have ever been committed anywhere as in the city of Philadelphia. It has been open, common talk for years that the ballot box thieves of Philadelphia are good any time for from 60,000 to 80,000 votes which were not cast. Pittsburg and Allegheny county are good for half as many more. Not a great while since an eminent Philadelphia Republican said to me in his own office: "Cleveland carried Pennsylvania in 1892 just as much as he carried Maryland and New Jersey. Patterson was elected Mayor of Philadelphia, but what does it amount to when you have to buck against 125,000 fraudulent votes?

"Pennsylvania Republicans are too busy shedding tears over abuse of suffrage in the south to look over their own shortcomings in this respect. So the Presidential election will be conducted under the usual auspices, and no matter how many votes Mr. Bryan may get, McKinley will be certified to having 200,000 or 300,000 majority. Whatever election surprises elsewhere may be in store, you need not look for any from Pennsylvania."

Among those who assisted President Monroe to lay the corner-stone of an arsenal at Philadelphia was Frederick Fraley, who was then 13 years of age. To-day, aged 96, he is the eldest man in the active business life of Philadelphia, going to his business daily as president of a savings bank.

A Washington jeweler is displaying in his window the horn-rimmed eyeglasses worn by Lord Cardigan in leading the famous charge of the light brigade at Balaklava. It was worn as a substitute for a broken monocle and was finally sold among the effects of a relative of the officer's military servant, who had secured it after the battle.

Not a single reigning family in Europe belongs to the nation over which it rules. The Austrian royal family, the Hapsburgs are Swiss, as are also the Hohenzollerns, Emperor William's family; Denmark's king is a German, the king of Belgium a Saxon; Alfonso of Spain is a Bourbon; Humbert of Italy is of a family from Savoy and George of Greece is a German.

Mrs. Baden-Powell, mother of the hero of Mafeking, is said to be a remarkable woman. As a girl she astonished her teacher by her aptitude for mathematics, and at the age of ten so fond was she of astronomy that she used to creep out at night through the garden of her father's observatory to work at the telescope. She became an accomplished linguist and translated foreign books for her father's reference.

A new table, for use by invalids confined to bed, is made so that it can be raised or lowered, and can be increased or decreased in diameter to overlap the side of the bed. By pressing a knob it can be converted into a reading desk, and spring clips are provided for holding the reading matter in position. The mechanism of this table is so easily worked that an invalid can perform the necessary operations without assistance.

The greatest watch in the world is being built. It will have spacious galleries in it, and yet it will be a perfect watch in every respect. It will be a great feature of the St. Louis fair in 1903. It will lie on its back, will have a polished metal case, and will be so large and roomy inside that people will be able to walk around in it, among the moving wheels. It will be nearly seventy-five feet in diameter and more than forty feet high.

Very few people are aware that in the last twenty years the number of fish in the great lakes has been decreasing rapidly. It is a fact that as compared with ten years ago it requires practically double the number of men, boats and nets to catch the same number of fish. The government has for twenty years maintained a large number of stations along the lakes where fish have been propagated in enormous numbers, but in spite of all this the supply is steadily decreasing.

China hates all Europeans equally. In an alliance with Japan she sees safety, but she is fearful of all entanglement with Europeans. Japan wishes Europe to keep out of the far east, and she will help China to keep them out. Her instructors are busy in China now, and soon the 400 Chinese students studying in Japan will be home again. Then China will understand that she may not have a millennium all by herself, but must share with others, do as others do, or go to pieces.

The question as to whether flowers are a necessary feature of a funeral is a queer one to be brought into the courts, but it has engaged the attention of the highest judicial tribunal in Rhode Island, all the same, where the payment of the bill for flowers was resisted by the administrators of the estate of a deceased citizen at whose funeral flowers were furnished on the credit of the estate. The court now justifies this expenditure, remarking that the custom of having flowers at funerals is well nigh universal in this country.

In a large American building, in which hundreds of employes were engaged on the various floors, much inconvenience was caused by overcrowding on the stairs and in the elevators at the times appointed for beginning and ensing work. It was therefore decided to prevent this by keeping the clocks at different times. The clock on the ground floor was correct, but that on the first floor was a little slow, and so the graduation went on to the top of the building. The result was that each floor was cleared at a different time.

THE MARRIAGE FEAST

Joyous Features of the Christian Religion Clearly Presented.

Dr. Talmage Invites the Whole World to Join in Its Holy Merriment—The Wedding in Cana.

[Copyright, 1900, by Louis Klopsch.]

A remarkable illustration of the ubiquity of English-speaking people is furnished by the requests that have reached Dr. Talmage in northern Europe for a sermon in out-of-the-way places where he did not expect to find a single person who could understand him. There, as here, he presents religion as a festivity and invites all the world to come as guests and join in its holy merriment; text, John ii., 10: "Thou hast kept the good wine until now."

This chapter invites us to a marriage celebration. It is a wedding in common life, two plain people having pledged each other hand and heart, and their friends having come in for congratulation. The joy is not the less because there is no pretension. In each other they find all the future they want. The daisy in the cup on the table may mean as much as a score of artistic garlands fresh from the hothouse. When a daughter goes off from home with nothing but a plain father's blessing and a plain mother's love, she is missed as much as though she were a princess. It seems hard, after the parents have sheltered her for 18 years, that in a few short months her affections should have been carried off by another, but mother remembers how it was in her own case when she was young, and so she braces up until the wedding has passed and the banqueters are gone, and she has a cry all alone.

Well, we are to-day at the wedding in Cana of Galilee. Jesus and His mother have been invited. It is evident that there are more people there than were expected. Either some people have come who were not invited or more invitations have been sent out than it was supposed would be accepted. Of course there is not a sufficient supply of wine. You know that there is nothing more embarrassing to a housekeeper than a short supply. Jesus sees the embarrassment, and he comes up immediately to relieve it. He sees standing six water pots. He orders the servants to fill them with water, then He waves His hand over the water, and immediately it is wine—real wine. Taste of it and see for yourselves. No logwood in it, no strychnine in it, but first-rate wine. I will not now be diverted to the question so often discussed in my own country whether it is right to drink wine. I am describing the scene as it was. When God makes wine, He makes the very best wine, and 150 gallons of it standing around in these water pots—wine so good that the ruler of the feast tastes it and says: "Why, this is really better than anything we have had. Thou hast kept the good wine until now." Beautiful miracle! A prize was offered to the person who should write the best essay about the miracle in Cana. Long manuscripts were presented in the competition, but a poet won the prize by just this one line descriptive of the miracle: "The conscious water saw its God and blushed."

We learn from this miracle, in the first place, that Christ has sympathy with housekeepers. You might have thought that Jesus would have said: "I cannot be bothered with this household deficiency of wine. It is not for me. Lord of Heaven and of earth, to become caterer to this feast. I have vaster things than this to attend to." Not so said Jesus. The wine gave out, and Jesus by miraculous power came to the rescue. Does there ever come a scant supply in your household? Have you to make a very close calculation? It is hard work for you to carry on things decently and respectably? If so, don't sit down and cry. Don't go out and fret, but go to Him who stood in the house in Cana of Galilee. Pray in the parlor. Pray in the kitchen. Let there be no room in your house unconsecrated by the voice of prayer. If you have a microscope, put under it one drop of water and see the insects floating about, and when you see that God makes them and cares for them and feeds them come to the conclusion that He will take care of you and feed you.

I learn also from this miracle that Christ does things in abundance. I think a small supply of wine would have made up for the deficiency. I think, certainly, they must have had enough for half the guests. One gallon of wine will do; certainly five gallons will be enough; certainly ten. But Jesus goes on, and He gives them 30 gallons and 40 gallons and 50 gallons and 70 gallons and 100 gallons and 130 gallons of the very best wine. It is just like Him—doing everything on the largest and most generous scale. Does Christ, our Creator, go forth to make loaves? He makes them by the whole forest full; notched like the fern or silvered like the aspen or broad like the palm; thickets in the tropics. Oregon forests. Does He go forth to make flowers? He makes plenty of them; they flame from the hedge, they hang from the top of the grapevine in blossoms, they roll in the blue sea of the violets, they toss their white surf in the spiraea—enough for every child's hand a flower—enough to make for every brow a chaplet, enough with beauty to cover up the ghastliness of all the grave. Does He go forth to create water? He pours it out, not by the cupful, but by a river full, a lake full, an ocean full; pouring it out until all the earth has enough to drink, and enough with which to wash.

Does Jesus provide redemption? It is not a little salvation for this one, a little for that and a little for the other, but enough for all. "Whosoever will, let him come." Each man an ocean full for himself. Promises for the young, promises for the old, promises for the lowly, promises for the high, for the halt, for the outcast, for the abandoned. Pardon for all, mercy for all, Heaven for all. Not merely a cupful of Gospel supply, but 130 gallons. Aye, the tears of Godly repentance are gathered up into God's bottle, and some day, standing before the throne, we will lift our cup of delight and ask that it be filled with the wine of Heaven, and Jesus, from that bottle of tears, will begin to pour in the cup, and we will cry: "Stop, Jesus! We do not want to drink our own tears!" And Jesus will say: "Know ye not that the tears of earth are the wine of Heaven?" Sorrow may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning.

I remark, further, Jesus does not shadow the joys of others with His own griefs. He might have sat down in that wedding and said: "I have so much trouble, so much poverty, so much presention, and the cross is coming. I shall not rejoice, and the gloom of my face and of my sorrows shall be cast over all this group." So said not Jesus. He said to Himself: "Here are two persons starting out in married life. Let it be a joyful occasion. I will hide my own griefs. I will kindle their joy." There are many not so wise as that. I know a household where there are many little children, where for two years the musical instrument has been kept shut because there has been trouble in the house. Alas for the folly! Parents saying: "We will have no Christmas tree this coming holiday because there has been trouble in the house. Hush that laughing upstairs! How can there be any joy when there has been so much trouble?" And so they make everything consistently doleful and send their sons and daughters to ruin with the gloom they throw around them.

Oh, my dear friends, do you not know those children will have trouble enough of their own after awhile? Be glad they cannot appreciate all yours. Break not the cup of bitterness from your daughter's lips. When your head is down in the grass of the tomb, poverty may come to her, betrayal to her, bereavement to her. Keep back the sorrows as long as you can. Do you not know that that son may after awhile have his heart broken? Stand between him and all harm. You may not fight his battles long. Fight them while you may. Throw not the chill of your own despondency over his soul. Rather, be like Jesus, who came to the wedding hiding His own grief and kindling the joys of others. So I have seen the sun on a dark day, struggling amidst clouds, black, ragged and portentous, but after awhile the sun, with golden pry, heaved back the blackness. And the sun laughed to the lake, and the lake laughed to the sun, and from horizon to horizon, under the saffron sky, the water was all turned into wine.

I learn from the miracle that Christ is not impatient with the luxuries of life. It was not necessary that they should have that wine, hundreds of people have been married without any wine. We do not read that any of the other provisions fell short. When Christ made the wine, it was not a necessity, but a positive luxury. I do not believe that He wants us to eat bread and sleep on hard mattresses unless we like them the best. I think, if circumstances will allow, we have a right to the luxuries of dress, the luxuries of diet and the luxuries of residence. There is no more religion in an old coat than in a new one. We can serve God drawn by golden plated harness as certainly as when we go afoot. Jesus Christ will dwell with us under a fine ceiling as well as under a thatched roof.

What is the difference between a Chinese mud hovel and an American home? What is the difference between the rough bear skins of the Russian boor and the outfit of an American gentleman? No difference, except that which the Gospel of Christ, directly or indirectly, has caused. When Christ shall have vanquished all the world, I suppose every house will be a mansion and every garment a robe and every horse an arch necked courser and every carringe a glittering vehicle and every man a king and every woman a queen and the whole earth a Paradise, the glories of the natural world harmonizing with the glories of the material world until the very bells of the horses shall jingle the praises of the Lord.

I learn, further, from this miracle that Christ has no impatience with festal joy; otherwise he would not have accepted the invitation to that wedding. He certainly would not have done that which increased the hilarity. There may have been many in that room who were happy, but there was not one of them that did so much for the joy of the wedding party as Christ himself. He was the chief of the banqueters. When the wine gave out, He supplied it, and so, I take it, He will

THE PRIDE OF THE NAVY

Rocks Pierce Holes Through the Bottom and Sides of the Oregon.

The Zafiro, at Che-Foo, Has Been Sent to Her Assistance—The Iris Will Assist—The Ship to Be Lightened.

Washington, July 1.—The following dispatches were received at the navy department Saturday morning relative to the grounding of the Oregon:

"Che-Foo, June 29.—Secretary of Navy: Anchored yesterday, dense fog, in 17 fathoms, three miles south of How Ke light, gulf of Pe Chi Li. Sent out two boats and sounded. Least water 5½ fathoms. Weather clear. Got under way and struck pinnacle rock. Much water in forward compartment. Perfect smooth. Shall charter steamer if possible at Che-Foo and lighten the ship. Rock through side of ship above double bottom, about frame 19. Small holes through bottom of ship. "WILDE."

"Che-Foo, June 29.—Secretary Navy, Washington: Iris gone to the assistance of the Oregon.

"RAYMOND ROGERS,"

"Comanding Nashville."

"Hong-Kong, June 29.—Secretary Navy, Washington: Princeton arrived. Brooklyn leaves for Nagasaki. The Zafire, at Che-Foo, has been sent to assist Oregon, reported by Rogers on a rock south How Ke light. Iris going to her assistance.

"REMEY."

Washington, July 1.—Pinnacle rock, where the Oregon ran aground, is about 25 feet high, and lies three and two thirds miles south of How Ki island, and about a mile and a quarter n. n. w. e. of the island of Sau La Shan. The rock is encircled by a shoal, and should not be approached nearer than three cables. According to the hydrographic bureau officials, there is a strong current from three to five knots speed always prevalent in this vicinity, and this fact, together with the dense fog that prevailed at the time, greatly enhanced the danger in navigating the Oregon. The officials of the naval hydrographers' office say there is a great rise and fall of the tide at this point (about ten feet), and it is possible that the Oregon may be lifted off in this way and see afloat without assistance.

Capt. Wilde's statement of the injuries sustained by the Oregon is scarcely sufficient to enable the naval constructors here to form a definite opinion as to the prospects of saving the famous ship. They say, however, the ship probably can be saved if the weather does not become rough, but, unfortunately, this is the season of storms in Chinese waters.

Washington, July 2.—The navy department has received no further news of the battle ship Oregon, aground off the Chinese coast.

The New Commander of the Department of the Lakes Formally Welcomed to Chicago.

Words Were Prophetic.

Shelbyville, Ind., July 1.—At St. Paul Albert Metzler, disobeying his mother, procured his father's revolver and was cleaning it. Just as his parent remarked: "Albert, you are determined to kill yourself," the weapon was discharged. The bullet entered the child's right eye and he fell back dead.

Used a Crowbar.

Gallipolis, O., July 2.—Robbers entered Clark Bros.' store at Athalin and pried the safe open with crowbars. They secured $150 and a quantity of goods.

Wool Trade Dull in London.

London, July 2.—Last week in the wool trade was dull and inactive, being depressed by the pending auction sales, which are expected to open flat and lower. The offerings for the week are 41,550 bales, and closes with the arrivals of June 28.

Four Persons Drowned.

Boston, July 2.—Four persons of a fishing party of eight were drowned in the harbor by the overturning of a 25-foot catboat. The drowned are John Colson, Wm. D. Ingwell, Harry Neal and Walter Loud.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

The Vice Presidency is an Open Contest So Far, With No One Particularly in the Lead—Names of the Candidates.

Kansas City, Mo., July 2.—Three noteworthy events stood out above the mass of detail marking the approach of the democratic national convention—the arrival of David B. Hill from New York and his departure for Lincoln in response to a telegraphic summons from Mr. Bryan; the conference of Chairman Jones, of the national committee with Mr. Croker, ex-Senator Murphy and other influential leaders concerning the platform, and the first serious consideration by the convention leaders of a plan to reach such an understanding on the platform that the way will be open to nominate Mr. Bryan for the presidency on July 4.

The leaders are losing no time, however, in making their preparations. But it is noticeable that this is not a gathering of leaders in the accepted sense. On the contrary, this is quite democratic, and one hears frequently and proudly the remark that in this convention the delegates representing the people will frame the platform and name the candidates. The conspicuous men here—Jones, Hill, Croker and Murphy—are not exerting any powerful hand in affairs.

Most of the members of the executive committee are here, including Chairman Jones, Vice Chairman Johnson, ex-Gov. Stone, of Missouri; J. M. Guffey, of Pittsburgh, and George Fred Williams, of Massachusetts, and they hold frequent meetings to determine upon formal features of the convention proceedings.

Kansas City, Mo., July 2.—The democratic vice presidential nomination is still for anybody—that is, anybody who can reach it. Here is a list to choose from: Wm. Sulzer, David B. Hill, Elliott Danforth, Judge A. B. Parker, of New York; Benjamin F. Shively, Indiana; Charles A. Towne, Minnesota; Carter H. Harrison, Illinois; Benton McMillin, Tennessee; James Hamilton Lewis, Washington; Robert A. Pattison, Pennsylvania; Arthur P. Gorman, Maryland; D. J. Campau, Michigan; David S. Rose, Wisconsin; David Overmeyer, Kansas; Wm. J. Stone, Missouri; George Fred Williams, Massachusetts.

Kansas City, Mo., July 2.—The platform to be adopted by the democratic national convention will contain a declaration for the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1, unless Mr. Bryan changes his attitude, and each fresh arrival from Lincoln brings renewed assurances that the foreordained nominee of the convention is maintaining his position in favor of the declaration.

McKINLEYS AT HOME.

The President and Mrs. McKinley Pass a Very Quiet Day in Canton.

Canton, O., July 2.—President McKinley spent a quiet and restful day almost entirely at his home in North Market street. The weather was delightful, many degrees cooler than prevailed in Washington for some weeks prior to the start for Canton, and in this respect at least no seaside possesses attractions superior to Canton for a real vacation. During the heat of the day the greatest comfort was found on the shady porch, and there the president acknowledged the greetings of many of his old friends and acquaintances, who drove or walked past the house. But as the sun sank in the west a warmer place was sought, and Mr. McKinley took a veritable sun bath just before dinner from a rustic seat on his lawn, the while enjoying one of his favorite fragrant cigars.

The west to morning services at the First M. E. church. Dr. Rixey accompanied him, and they walked from the house, a distance of about half a mile. There was nothing special in the service, the pastor, Rev. Dr. C. E. Manchester, who was a member of McKinley's regiment in the civil war, only making the usual reference to the president in his prayer of asking divine guidance of the president in all of his official acts.

The dinner in the evening was partaken of by members of the Barbour family in addition to the regular household, Mrs. Barber being a sister of Mrs. McKinley. During the afternoon the president and Mrs. McKinley went for a little drive about the city. Judge Day, former secretary of state, called during the day and spent some time in friendly conversation with the president. Many other friends and neighbors called during the afternoon and evening.

The notification to the president of his nomination is to occur July 12, and that date is being looked forward to as the time of a notable gathering. Detailed arrangements have not yet been commenced.

The president, it is expected now, will take no further part in the Fourth of July demonstration than to review the town parade and the deliberatory ceremonies at the cannon and monument.

Havana's Mayor Inaugurated.

Havana, July 2.—At no time since the American occupancy of Cuba has Havana shown such scenes of enthusiasm and excitement as were witnessed upon the occasion of the inauguration of Gen. Alejandro Rodrigue, the first Cuban elected mayor.

Troops Sent to Quiet Indians.

Duluth, Minn., July 2.—Company A, 3d regiment, M. N. G., left here on a special train under orders from Gov. Lind to proceed to the scene of the Indian uprising in the Rainy lake region.

LARGE VESSELS BURN.

Lives Lost and $10,000,000 Worth of Property Destroyed.

The Lives of at Least Fifteen Hundred People Were Imperiled By the Flames—The Fire Originated in a Bale of Cotton.

New York, July 2.—Almost $10,000,000 worth of property was destroyed, many lives were lost, many persons were injured and at least 1,500 lives were imperiled by a fire that started among cotton bales under Pier 3 of the North German Lloyd Steamship Co. in Hoboken, N. J., at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon. In less than 15 minutes the flames covered an area a quarter of a mile long, extending outward from the actual shore line to the bulkheads from 600 to 1,000 feet away and had engulfed four great ocean liners and a dozen or more smaller harbor craft in its grasp.

Stories in regard to the loss of life are conflicting, the number being variously estimated at from 50 to 200.

From what can be learned, the flames started among a large pile of cotton bales on Pier 2 of the North German Lloyd Steamship Co., and spread with such remarkable rapidity that in 15 minutes the entire property of the company, taking in over a third of a mile of water front, and consisting of three great piers, was completely enveloped in a huge blaze that sent great clouds of smoke high up into the air.

The flames started so suddenly and gained such headway that the people on the piers and on the numerous vessels docked were unable to reach the street.

At the docks of the North German Lloyd were the Saale, a single-screw passenger steamship of 4,963 gross tons; the Bremen, a twin-screw passenger and freight of 10,526 tons, and the Main, a twin-screw freight and passenger steamship of 10,200 gross tons. They all caught fire and were burned to the water's edge. The Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, which had just come in, was the only one of the four big vessels at the dock that escaped.

The loss of the crews of these vessels is said to reach 100.

Eighteen bodies have been recovered. Eleven of these were placed in a row at the morgue in this city and numbered, this being the only means the authorities have of maintaining any sort of identity over the corpses, as they are so badly charred and dismembered that identification will be made only by trinkets or pieces of clothing that were found about the bodies.

The only way the steamship officials have of approximating the loss of life is by comparing the list of those reported safe with the list of employes on the steamships. Gustave Schwab, general agent of the North German Lloyd line, gave out a list showing what men on each vessel are missing. On the Saale 255 men were employed, and 127 of these have only been accounted for, leaving 128 men actually employed as officers, sailors, stewards, engineers, coal passers, oilers and trimmers to be accounted for.

The Bremen had 204 men on board, but only 127 of these have been found. The Main had 137 employed on her at the time, and of these only 75 have been reported safe.

Eight barges and 11 canal boats were either burned or sunk with their cargoes. Total valuation, $125,000.

The Hoboken Shore railroad had a number of cars burned and other property damaged. Loss, $7,000.

Minor losses on floating property, burned at the fire proper or set on fire by burning driftwood, will amount to about $20,000.

The personal losses sustained by those aboard the steamships can simply be surmised, as there is no way of ascertaining this at the present time.

HURRY ORDERS.

Warships Are Being Fitted Out at the Norfolk Navy Yard—Extra Mechanics Employed.

Norfolk, Va., July 1.—Apparent warlike preparations are going on at Norfolk navy yard. An order which is regarded as very significant was the one issued calling into the yard 150 extra mechanics, with as many more to follow each day until the rush work shall have been completed. In the event of necessity night work may be done. Work will go on without stop on the colliers Saturn, Hannibal, Caesar, Alexander and Southey, so that these vessels may load coal as ordered by the navy department. There are several light draught converted gunboats that are to be overhauled besides torpedo boats and monitors. The monitor Puritan and torpedo boat Manley, which have been used as practice vessels at Annapolis, are expected at this navy yard to be placed in fighting condition. There are now about 12 available vessels of war at the Norfolk navy yard.

Bells Isles Mines.

St. Johns, N. F., June 30.—The Bells Isles mines, the scene of the recent strike, have closed down. The companies have withdrawn their staffs and will open mines in Canada, preferring this course to a submission to the terms of the strikers.

Life Sentence for Forgery.

Houston, Tex., June 30.—On conviction of having forged a pardon on which George Isaacs, sentenced for life for murder, secured his release from the penitentiary, W. J. Dent was given a life term in the penitentiary.

ALSCHULER FOR GOVERNOR.

State Ticket Nominated by the Illinois Democrats—Points in Their Platform.

Springfield, Ill., June 28. The democratic state convention adopted a platform and nominated a state ticket Wednesday.

The platform reaffirms the platform adopted by the democratic national convention held in Chicago in 1896; denounces the administration of William McKinley.

The platform denounces the currency law passed by the present congress, "which proposes to permanently establish the gold standard in this country in the place of the bi-metalic standard of the constitution, and which transfer to the national banks the entire control of the paper currency, thus laying foundation for a money trust which will have power to control the prices of all property and to stimulate or strangle business." It further denounces imperialism and the Porto Rico tariff bill; declares against trusts and monopo-

Chas. J. Parker, of Ouachita county, withdrew his resolution instructing for David B. Hill for vice president, it being claimed by many delegates that Hill is an advocate of the gold standard.

ONE MINISTER KILLED.

It is Certain That Germany's Representative at Peking Perished.

One Report Is That the Public Execution of Foreigners Has Been in Progress Since June 20—Position Desperate.

London, July 2.—Official dispatches received by the consular body at Shanghai, an Express cable dated Shanghai, July 1, says, confirm in the fullest manner the report of the butchery of Baron von Ketteler, the German minister, on June 18. The ambassador was riding on Legation street, when he was attacked by Chinese troops and Boxers, dragged from his horse and killed. His body was hacked to pieces with swords. The German legation and six other buildings were burned, and a number of servants of the legations were killed and bodies thrown into the flames.

Official confirmation of this ghastly business has created the utmost consternation among the consuls general of the powers, who express fears that war a outrance will be declared against the Peking government. The consuls entertain little hope that any foreigners are left alive in the capital. There were 100 foreigners connected with the legations, 50 in the custom house, English and American tourists and others to the number of 150 and nearly 500 legation guards.

A dispatch to the Express from Nanking, June 30, says: "French priests here have received reports from Peking that the public execution of foreigners has been in progress since June 20. The news comes by runners from French priests at Peking, who state that they administered the last rites to the condemned men."

Nanking cables dated Sunday say that Viceroy Liu Yuh Yih received a telegram from Gen. Yulu on Saturday stating that the German minister had been murdered at Peking. Yulu, who escaped from Tien-Tsin to Pao Ting Fu, also wired: "Position desperate. Implore your help. Foreign troops of eight nationalities entering Peking to the number of 30,000 or 40,000. I can not hold out four days."

Liu Yun Yih has received this from the viceroy of Yung Shi Kai: "Foreign troops victorious at Tien-Tsin. They will enter Peking immediately."

Washington, July 2. The following message was received at the navy department from Consul Rogers, at Che-Foo:

"Following telegram from Kempff, casualties relief expedition, June 25:

"Killed—Boatswain's Mate Thomas, Gunner's Mate Benson, Apprentice Bromin and Landsman Severson.

"Wounded—Boatswain's Mate Holyoke, Machinist Hadsford, Landsman Kellizky, Cadet Tanssig, Capt. McCalla, Fireman Rowe, Landsman Garrity, Coxswain Ryan, Quartermaster Conway, Coxswain McClay, Fireman Flaherty, Seamen Lloyd, Child, Anderson, Jansen, Bolmuller and McKervey, Coxswain Thomas Lindbohm, Apprentices Johnson, Rasmussen and Welch, Private Ordeff."

The department has been informed that the Princeton has arrived at Canton.

Coxswain McClay's name could not be found on the rolls. Possibly he had been transferred from some other ship since the rolls were returned. The name McKervey also is not to be found on the rolls. The records of the killed as shown at the navy department are as follows:

Thomas Thomas, enlisted at Mare Island in 1899. He was born in Copenhagen in 1880. His next of kin is Mrs. T. Lannigan, of 803 South Front street, Philadelphia.

Benjamin Benson was born in Mandahl, Norway, in 1874. Next of kin Mrs. Anna Benson, mother, living at Mandahl, Norway.

Harry A. Broman was born in Duluth, Minn., in 1882. Next of kin Ida M. Broman, mother, living at 1427 West Superior street, Duluth.

Harry Severson was born in Norway in 1878 and enlisted at Chicago. Next of kin Laurence Severson, father, living at 1034 Wabansia avenue, Chicago.

Washington, July 2.—Two important cablegrams were received by Secretary Hay from United States Consul Goodnow, at Shanghai. The text is withheld, but the consul states in substance as follows:

"It is rumored in Shanghai that the German minister to Peking, Baron von Ketteler, was killed at Peking on the 18th of June. On the 23d of June three of the legation buildings were still standing; the others had been burned. On the 26th of June a dispatch was received at Shanghai from Yung Lu (believed to be the viceroy of the province of Chile, where the principal troubles have occurred), stating that the other ministers were safe.

"Dispatches to Shanghai from different sources indicate that Prince Tuan, father of the heir apparent, seems to be absolutely in control at Peking, and that his attitude is the worst possible and most hostile to foreigners. It is even said that he issued an edict as far back as the 20th of June ordering all of the viceroys to attack the foreigners in their respective provinces—an order which has so far not been obeyed."

Rome, July 2.—The commander of the cruiser Elba telegraphs from Taku June 30 as follows: "Advices from the German legation in Peking state that all the legation buildings have been burned except those of England, France and Germany. All the members of the diplomatic corps have taken refuge in the British legation."

FIRE IN PITTSBURGH.

One Fireman Killed, Seven Others Injured and Nearly $300,000 of Property Burned.

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 30.—One fireman was killed and seven others injured and nearly $300,000 worth of property was destroyed in a fire that broke out in the machine-shop of the Best Manufacturing Co., on 25th street, shortly after 6 o'clock Friday morning.

The fire was discovered at 6:16 and the flames spread so rapidly that in less than a half hour the entire plant, four stories high and 100 feet square, was burning and it was feared that adjoining property would go. Three districts of the fire department were quickly on the ground, however, and by hard work the fire was kept within the original limits. By 7:30 o'clock the large structure was in ruins. The firemen were injured by falling walls.

The property destroyed was valued at $200,000, and the stock of patterns and machinery probably $100,000 more. Many of the patterns can not be replaced.

The company manufactured pipe fittings and valves. At 9 o'clock the fire was under control.

BATTLESHIP ALABAMA.

She Will Not Be Ready to Start on Her Trial Trip Before the First of August.

Philadelphia, June 30.—Work on the construction of the sheathed cruiser Denver has been begun. Ninety per cent. of the material to be used in the cruiser is already in the yard.

The six cruisers of the Denver class will be 17 knot boats, and her chief peculiarity is that they will be sheathed with yellow pine and coppered. The advantage of this construction is that the vessels will not have to be docked so often.

The battleship Alabama, approaching completion in the Cramps' yard, will not be ready to start on her trial trip before August 1. All of her armor is now in the yard. The large guns are still to be put in place, and until this is done the turret tops can not be completed. Officers who will be assigned to the Alabama are anxious to have her completed in view of the possibility of stirring times ahead in China.

EXECUTION IN WASHINGTON.

Hill Snell, 44 years old, formerly a clerk in the pension office, was hanged at the District jail at noon Friday for the murder of 13-year-old Lizzie Wiesenberger, who was employed at his home, and with whom he was infatuated. Snell was the largest man ever executed here. When he was received at the jail August 7 last, he weighed 296 pounds, and measured 6 feet 6 inches in height. When led to the scaffold Friday his weight was 237 pounds. Notwithstanding that the drop was considerably lessened on account of his size, the rope nearly severed the murderer's head from his body.

Farmers Object to the Dam.

Altoona, Pa., June 30.—Farmers of the Quemahoning valley are armed and guarding a point that has been selected by the Cambria Steel Co. for the erection of a dam four miles long and having a depth of 75 feet at the breast. The farmers declare the dam will be a menace to public safety and decrease the value of their lands. The property owners below the proposed dam claim they will be in constant danger of a repetition of the Johnstown flood. The clash between the civil engineers and the farmers is expected at any time.

Mr. A. G. Winston returned, last week, from Michigan, where he went to attend the nuptials of his son, an account of which appears in another column. He was delighted with his trip, and while in Michigan he visited the largest copper mine in the world and inspected closely the operation of this immense enterprise. He brought specimens of the rich ore taken 5,000 feet below the earth's surface. The RECORDER is under obligations to Mr. Winston for a nice, solid copper paper weight made from Michigan ore.

The marriage of Miss Nina Eugenia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Zophar Washington Wright, and Charles Albert Winston, of Chicago, Ill., was solemnized last evening about 7:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents in Ripley. The nuptial knot was tied by Rev. Edwin More, pastor of the Congregational church of Hancock, in the presence of the relatives of the contracting parties. After the ceremony a reception took place which was attended by a large number of the most prominent society people in the twin cities. The reception was held in a canopy on the lawn which was beautifully decorated for the occasion and which was illuminated with many colored electric lights. Here also supper was served the guests, during which Welsmiller's ochestra furnished music. The bride, who is one of Portage Lake's most charming young ladies, was the recipient of a large number of handsome and costly presents which were sent her from friends in all parts of the country. The groom, who first met his bride at Rome, while both were touring in the old world a few years ago, is a Kentuckian by birth, a graduate of the University of Cincinnati and Harvard law schools and now in the law office of Deneen & Hamill, Chicago. Mr. and Mrs. Winston will be at home at 1,080 Chase avenue, Birchwood, Chicago, after October 15. Among those present from out of town were A. G. Winston, father of the groom, and his nephew, B. Winston Gaines, both of Kentucky. — Daily Mining Gazette, Houghton, Mich., June 23.

The following letter is from Swygert, Illinois, dated June 30th:

If you will allow me space I will undertake to tell the readers of the RECORDER a few words concerning the crops, etc., in this part of the country. I never saw a better prospect for a good crop than is in this part of the State. Corn and oats are the chief crops. The farmers are all laying their corn by—many having finished. Oats harvest of which there is quite a lot, will begin in about ten days. The average crop for one farmer is about 100 acres of corn and from 75 to 100 acres of oats. The wages for hired help is $20 per month by the year and $1,25 a day for plowing corn and $1,50 to $2 a day for harvesting. I have been plowing corn all this week at $1,25 a day and board, and have a job for next week. Illinois is all right if a fellow don't care for anything but making money, but I don't believe it is the healthiest place in the world, at least it does not seem that way to me. I have been troubled with my throat and lungs and have had a cough every since I have been here. The air seems cool and damp. Wishing the good people of old Boone all the good luck possible, I remain

Yours very truly, BERT SMITH.

Last Thursday several of the married ladies of Burlington, accompanied by three or four young ladies, took baskets of provisions and hied themselves to that picturesque locality known as the "Middle Creek Cliffs," where they spent the day in a most delightful manner, climbing the rugged hills and scaling the dizzy, rocky heights. Several of the ladies visited Prof. T. Z Robert's residence now under construction, and from the description they gave of the size of the structure and its convenient internal arrangement, one is pursuaded that the Professor is not going to occupy his commodious new residence long as a bachelor.

Young Women

The entry into womanhood is a critical time for a girl. Little menstrual disorders started at that time soon grow into fatal complications. That female troubles are filling graveyards proves this. Wine of Cardui establishes a painless and natural menstrual flow. When once this important function is started right, a healthy life will usually follow. Many women, young and old, owe their lives to Wine of Cardui. There is nothing like it to give women freedom from pain and to fit young women for every duty of life. $1.00 bottles at druggists.

Miss Della M. Strayer, Tolly, Kan.: "I have suffered untold pain at menstrual periods for a long time, was nervous, had no appetite, and lost interest in everything, in fact was miserable. I have taken four bottles of Wine of Cardui, with Thedford's Black-Draught, when needed, and to-day I am entirely cured. I cannot express the thanks I feel for what you have done for me."

FREEDOM'S DAY
JULY 4TH.

18 freedom's own immortal day.
By all her children blest
From Maine's rough headlands far away
To the prairies of the west,
Where'er our starry banner flies
With beauty fold on fold,
Is told beneath the azure skies
The tale that ne'er grows old.

The glorious deeds of Lexington
Still in their luster shine,
And fame doth crown the sword and gun
That fought at Brandywine;
From loved and haunted Valley Forge
True heroism comes,
And in the grim and icy gorge
Is heard the sound of drums.

Again the Continentals march
Adown the wooded glen,
And there beneath the starlight arch
Ride Marion and his men;
The bellman, old, expectant stands,
A "relic" to his king;
The bell rope in his eager hands,
He waits prepared to ring.

Aye, back from years forever gone
These scenes and sounds still come,
And freedom's fair, immortal dawn
Is wreathed in the drum;
The hero chieftain, Washington,
By honor guarded sleeps
Where southward far toward seas of sun
The broad Potomac sweeps.

Ring every bell throughout the land,
Let loyal hearts be gay;
Beneath one flag we proudly stand,
For this is Freedom's day;
Let anthems rise from coast to coast
And echo o'er the sea;
Be this our nation's proudest boast:
"Our land's forever free."
—T. C. Harbaugh, in Ohio Farmer.

MISS ABIGAIL'S FOURTH.

LIGHTNING dipped his nose deep in the clear water. He closed his eyes slowly with a satisfied expression on his equine countenance, then elevated his dripping nozzle and cast a comprehensive glance at the tree tops. Miss Abigail waited resignedly.

Fortunately there was ample time and it was a pleasant spot in which to linger. Before, the road wound out between wide fields palpitating in the noonday heat, but here the shadows dappled the white horse's back and checkered the dust with leafy shapes. the water trickled musically down from the hillside into the mossy trough.

The woman drew a long, satisfied breath, inhaling the wild grape bloom, and her face softened with a happy memory. "Tad was mortal fond of the smell of the grape," she said, aloud, "I wonder if Tad's little girl will be like him."

She drew a letter from her pocket, spreading it with some difficulty on her lap. It was two months since this letter had fallen like a bomb into her quiet life. Since Tad's death in London five years ago she had felt that further change could not affect her. This last communication was a brief statement written by an English lawyer, of the death of her nephew's wife; but what robbed her of strength and set her pulse to bounding wildly was the request that she prepare to receive the little girl into her home, as the mother had been an orphan without near kin, while on the father's side she stood the closest to Tad's child. A slip of paper inclosed brought her Thaddeus' last message, dated long ago:

"If my little Primrose should ever stand in need of friends, will you take her into your heart, auntie, where you have ever kept—Tad."

This was why she was driving down to Stockton on this warm June noon, for, obedient to her direction, the child had started in the charge of acquaintances of Miss Abigail's own, who were returning after a winter on the continent. The train was due in an hour.

Lightning turned his head inquiringly. With a sigh Miss Abigail flopped the reins and drove out into the noonday heat.

The station master lounged out to help her tie her steed. "'Xpectin' the little gal, be ye, Abby?" he asked, with the freedom of long acquaintance.

She nodded. Her hands were clasped tightly upon her reticule when the train rolled in, but her face was calm. A gentleman stepped off, then turned to lift down a child. Seeing her he hurried his charge along the platform.

"I'm relieved to find you here, Miss Harding," he said, as he raised his hat, "for I must go on at once. Here is the baggage check. Good-by, little one."

The child held out her hand gravely. "Good-by," she said, and her eyes looked wistfully after him as he sprang upon the moving train.

Miss Abigail was distinctly disappointed. She had felt sure of seeing a little gypsy with dark skin and curling brown hair like Tad's. Instead, here was a quaint object in sage green with pale, demure face and a floss of yellow hair under the white sailor. Just then Primrose looked up with a shy smile and Miss Abigail's heart softened, for here were Tad's brown eyes, with Tad's own look, while Tad's dimple dented the small chin.

"More'n one trunk?" she asked in her driest tones, and Primrose, who had been ready to kiss this aunt whom her dear mother had told her she must love, felt repulsed.

That night, when the milk was strained and the chickens housed, Miss Abigail slipped out upon the south porch. It gave her a secret sense of elation when she came upon Primrose perched on the upper step, watching the rising moon. Primrose's heart ached for a mothering. And the New England woman, schooled to repression, was ashamed of the strong desire which urged her to take the tired child on her knee and coax the smile back into her brown eyes.

"Been to school, I 'spose," she said, with an effort at sociability. How did one talk to a little girl?

"No, ma'am." Primrose politely twisted around to face her.

"Gracious goodness! A girl of your age!"

Primrose flushed with embarrassment. "I wasn't strong," she said, apologetically, "so mamma taught me at home. I can read pretty well—and I can recite some poetry."

"Poetry!"

Primrose looked doubtfully at this new relative. She felt that she was not making a favorable report. "I can speak a little French," she continued, "and I have got as far as fractions," in desperate haste, for Miss Abigail's sniff was expressive.

"What can you do?" the curt voice came from the shadow of the vines.

"Do?" Primrose looked her small fingers nervously together. "Why, I don't do much but play. Oh, I can dance," and she brightened. "I'll show you."

Miss Abigail gasped in amazement. But Primrose had sprung out upon the grass, now flooded with moonlight. Poising herself lightly she commenced a soft humming, then threw up one round arm and began. Miss Abigail did not know how heavy the little feet felt or how thickly the tears crowded behind the long lashes, as Primrose tried to dance into her aunt's good graces.

"Very pretty," was her comment, at length, qualified with—"children didn't dance in my day. It's time you were in bed."

In the east chamber, with its chintz curtains and dragon paper, that had rejoiced the heart of small Thaddeus when he visited the farm, his little daughter slept. If the door creaked in the dead of night, and somebody tiptoed in to see if the child was covered, only the angels knew. Primrose dreamed that her mother kissed her.

Thenceforth began strange experiences for Primrose. The tangle of bright hair was confined in two tight pigtails. Miss Abigail, taking fright from her own growing satisfaction in "goldilocks," felt that thus she nipped vanity in the bud. For the same reason, combined with neatness, the dainty frocks were covered with long-sleeved, high-necked check aprons which Primrose's beauty-loving soul abhorred.

She had been at the farm nearly a month when one morning at breakfast Miss Abigail said abruptly:

"I s'pose you think you want some crackers to-morrow?"

"Crackers?" Primrose's eyes grew large with wonder.

"Firecrackers, of course. Don't look so wild."

"I don't know what they are," Primrose tried to modify her objectionable expression.

"Land! Why, you know what day it is?"

"Yes'm; Friday."

"Don't you know about the Fourth? Sakes alive! Your father used to tear up the whole farm that day. Nor why we celebrate?"

Primrose ventured a weak—"Nobody told me."

Miss Abigail strode to the small corner shelf and took down a dingy-covered volume. "It's time you knew some history" she said, "but I can't stop to tell you now. At least you can read the 'Declaration.' Take it out under the big walnut. Never mind about the dishes this time."

And Primrose, struggling over the long words, wished she was at her wonted tasks.

"Goin' to celebrate, Britisher?" called a roguish voice from the gate, and Sam Sackett hung over the pickets.

Primrose shook her head. "I don't know," she answered. "How does one celebrate?"

"Lots of noise. Begin early, keep it up all day. Crackers, torpedoes—rockets—(when there's any money left). Ss-s-s-z-z-z-bang!" with a clash of the gate and a warwhoop to reenforce his description.

Primrose jumped and Sam grinned wickedly. "Bill and I'll be round to-morrow to show you how," and his prr mise had a sinister sound in Primrose's ears.

After dinner, Miss Abigail disappeared in her bedroom, opening from the kitchen. "Come in here. I've something to show you," she called, after some time.

Primrose found her seated on the floor before an open bureau drawer, her lap full of little caps. "You were asking me about your pa's relatives," she said, amiably, motioning Primrose to draw up a chair. "I've got a little more time'n usual so I might as well show you their pictures.

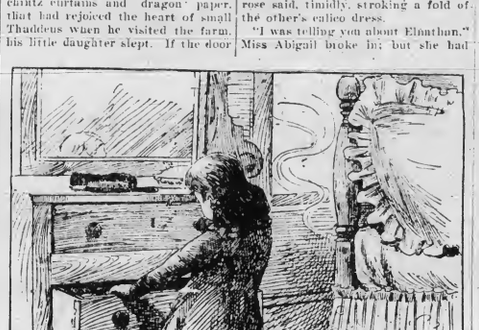
"This is your pa's mother at the age of 16. Twist it round till you can see. Those old daguerreotypes are queer about that. Susanna Martin was considered a good lookin' woman, but you'd hardly guess it from that. This is Uncle Ebenezer Harding—Methodist minister over at Knox's Corners; and this is Sophronia Harding, who married a Mason."

Queer enough Primrose found them, but she listened politely to the family history, breaking into little peals of laughter over the old-fashioned names.

Miss Abigail looked at her suspiciously over her glasses. "What pleases you so?" she asked, stiffly.

"Such funny names," Primrose said, deprecatingly.

"Funny! What do you call your own? What under the canopy made your ma call you by such a silly name?"



"I was born on Primrose day," the offender urged. "That's why they called me Primrose."

"Never heard of anybody called Fourth of July or Christmas! There were lots of good family names to choose from."

In her heart she sighed because Tad had not remembered once—then frowned at her weakness. "Abigail is a homely name," she thought aloud.

"I like it 'cause it's yours." Primrose said, timidly, stroking a fold of the other's calico dress.

"I was telling you about Elanthus." Miss Abigail broke in; but she had heard the child and felt her caress.

"There," she said, as she snapped the last case together, "I don't s'pose you'll remember half I've told you, but I care more for these pictures than for anything I've got, for it's all that's left of my folks. Now I've got something that'll please you more."

Dragging a pasteboard box from under the bed, she disclosed a doll's set of pewter dishes, and, with the sight of her childhood treasures, a new look came in her face. "They were mine when I was a little girl," she said, quietly. "You can play with them to-morrow."

Primrose's face shone, but she was dumb—the favor was so unexpected. Instead, she impulsively kissed Miss Abigail's arm.

"I must get supper, now," said Miss Abigail, but in the kitchen she laid her hand tenderly on the spot and stepped softly that she might hear the clink of the dishes as Primrose put them carefully away against the morrow.

At midnight the Sackett boys began their celebrating, but Primrose slept undisturbed. At breakfast there was a lull, so when Miss Abigail declared she must drive to Stockton Primrose was untroubled. Her aunt did not feel so easy. The Sacketts were mischievous neighbors on such a day and had already shown a disposition to tease the little stranger. However, her errand was urgent and surely Jake, her right-hand man, was protection enough.

She smiled as she looked back at Primrose, on the porch, playing party with her dolls and the treasured dishes. She could almost have played herself. Checking her vagrant thoughts with a feeling of shame, she urged Lightning still faster with a daring flick of the whip. She must be back before noon.

"Hi, here! Want to see a cracker?" Primrose jumped, for Sam stood close behind her.

"Pooh! Don't play dolls to-day. See here."

Primrose smiled and tried not to show that she wanted him to go home. He held a little red roll with a string attached. Was this a cracker? Sam swiftly lighted a match when, after an ominous sputter, the dreadful thing burst with a bang. Primrose bit her tongue hard to crowd back a cry.

Sam saw mischief ahead when, suddenly, he saw a strange figure in the garden, and judged it wise to go home—for a season.

The south porch grew warm, so Primrose gathered up her treasures and carried them into Miss Abigail's room. When two naughty boys crept cautiously round the house, an hour later, there was no small figure on the steps. They looked at each other with disappointed eyes, when a soft singing from the north room betrayed their victim. In a twinkling they disappeared round the corner.

Suddenly the hush was broken by a harsh explosion. To Primrose's horrified ears, the diabolical turmoil seemed to have no end. Cowering close to the bed she buried her head in the clothes. What would come next?

Nothing came. The familiar sounds were taken up again. She could hear Jake mowing in the lower meadow. Sparrows wrangled outside the window. She buried her head and waited and, so waiting, fell asleep.

The kitchen clock striking 11 woke her. For a moment she was confused then something unusual aroused her. There was an acrid odor in the air, her eyeballs stung, the room looked hazy. Why, it was smoke!

As she started up, every sense alert, she heard an ominous crackling. Out through the kitchen and round the corner of the house she flew. Pushing through a tangle of lilac bushes she reached the place of the explosion. How it happened nobody could ever explain. Perhaps a smoldering cracker alone was responsible, but creeping flames were now curling along the edges of the clapboards and eating through to Miss Abigail's chamber.

Primrose turned and ran wildly to the barnyard, whence she could see the lower meadow. "Jake," she screamed. The mowing machine paused and the man looked up. "Fire! Fire!" she danced up and down, waving her arms frantically, then, feeling that she must do something more, ran to the well. But, tug as she might, her small arms could not stir the windlass.

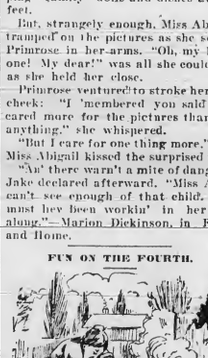
A sudden thought stopped her. Miss Abigail's treasures were in danger! Wreaths of smoke were coming through the kitchen door. For a minute she hesitated, then, drawing a long breath, darted across the kitchen and into the bedroom.

A line of flame was blinking beneath the window. She must be quick. The heavy mahogany drawer stuck, then yielded. With hot haste she grouped for the "family," bundling them in her skirt. Coughing and half blind, she felt her way to the bed, sweeping the beloved dishes and her dear dolls on top of her burden.

Something dashed into the yard. That something was the astonished Lightning, urged by an energetic whip. White and wild-eyed, Miss Abigail precipitated herself from the wagon.

"Jake," she screamed, as the man ran past with dripping buckets. "where's Primrose?"

"Blest if I know," he gasped. "I'll have this out in a jiffy."



"Auntie, I've got 'em!" piped a shrill voice from the kitchen door, and Primrose, with something bundled in her gingham apron, ran coughing, laughing and crying to meet her, dropping "family" dolls and dishes at her feet.

But, strangely enough, Miss Abigail trampled on the pictures as she seized Primrose in her arms. "Oh, my little one! My dear!" was all she could say as she held her close.

Primrose ventured to stroke her wet cheek: "I 'membered you said you cared more for the pictures than for anything," she whispered.

"But I care for one thing more," and Miss Abigail kissed the surprised face. "An' there warn't a mite of danger," Jake declared afterward. "Miss Abby can't see enough of that child. It must have been workin' in her all along."—Marion Dickinson, in Farm and Home.

FUN ON THE FOURTH.

This little boy said he was bound to have fun
At the expense of the old Thomas cat;
'Twas the Fourth of July when he fell off the fence,
And didn't know where he was at.

Sure Death.

Mrs. Cohwigger—I'm afraid something has happened Freddie. I haven't seen anything of him since morning.

Cohwigger—Nonsense! He's only linving a good time with his firecrackers.

Mrs. Cohwigger—No, he isn't. I would not let him have such things. I bought him one of those harmless toy pistols.

Cohwigger—Run, woman, and get me my hat. I guess he's down at the morgue before this.—N. Y. World.

Fourth of July.

Benny, beat the dish-pan!
Tommy, bring your drum!
Sammy, save your breath to blow!
Dick's harmonium!
Bobby, take your tin fife!
Doc, you're marching well!
Jimmy, keep in step there!
Alec, ring that bell!
Fire the cannon crackers,
Give a cheer now, boys!
What is this day meant for,
But to make a noise!
—Frances Amory, in St. Nicholas.

REPUBLICAN DANGERS.

Set Forth by Temporary Chairman Hurst of the Illinois Democracy.

In his opening address to the Illinois state democratic convention at Springfield June 27 Temporary Chairman E. W. Hurst, of Rock Island county, said:

"Since the representatives of our party have assembled in national convention new issues have arisen—issues involving grave questions of right and wrong, great questions of principle, questions affecting, in my judgment, the permanency of the republic. These new issues are, however, but the natural outgrowth of the old contest between man and the dollar, between aristocracy and democracy. Our forefathers thought when they abolished entail and provided for the distribution of estates they had erected a bulwark against the money power. They were led by Jefferson and believed with him that in a republic there should be no aristocracy but that of virtue and talent. If Jefferson saw any danger to republican institutions in a landed aristocracy what, think you, he would say if alive to-day of the gigantic power of combinations of capital in the form of trusts?

"The greatest danger which threatens our institutions to-day is to be found in the growing flood of incorporated wealth. These vast and powerful interests fully realize that their safety lies in the continuation of a republican administration which has failed to enforce the laws now on the statute book or to enact more stringent laws against them, and they will oppose with all their power any change in administration, and unless the mass of the people is aroused to the danger which confronts them the time will soon come when no law will pass or honor be conferred without the consent of these powerful and interested combinations, which are speedily becoming the government itself, to the utter subversion of the authority of the people. If you think this a too extreme a picture, look at the republican national convention at Philadelphia last week, where the representatives of these interests named the candidates and dictated the policy, a convention to which the great state of Illinois chose for two of its delegates the ruling spirits of the barb wire trust, a trust which, to advance the interests of its officers, recently closed down 12 of its factories and, without any warning whatever, deprived more than 6,000 laboring men of employment.

"The democratic party wages no war on property or property rights. The true democrat glories in the opportunity for individual advancement under a government such as ours, when rightfully administered, and has only admiration for the man who, asking nothing from his government but equal and exact justice, carves out his own success, be it financial or otherwise. But the true democrat demands that the blessing of government shall fall, like the rain from heaven, on the rich and poor alike and demands that his government shall not grant special privileges to the few.

"The growth of trusts is largely due to the protective tariff laws enacted by the republican party, but, not content with the advantages afforded by control of home markets under republican legislation and influenced by the prospect of profitable trade with the islands wrested from the dominion of Spain, these monopolists have inspired the imperial policy of the present administration, the enforcement of which can only be accomplished by revolutionizing our government and substituting the principles of our hereditary enemies for the teachings of Washington and his associates. Five score and fourteen years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that 'all men are created equal.' Winning their struggle for liberty, they established here a great self-ruling nation—the living embodiment of the gospel of democracy—'a government of the people, for the people and by the people'—a government which has been a beacon light to the people of the world struggling for liberty, and whose influence has liberalized monarchies and limited arbitrary power all over the world.

"There is great danger to the republic in this policy of imperialism—this reaching out for distant islands to be governed as subject provinces. Such a colonial scheme destroyed all hopes of republicanism in olden times. It can exist in no free country because it uproots and eliminates the basis of republican institutions, that government derive their just powers from the consent of the governed.

"The question presented to the American people is not the question of expansion of the republic over contiguous territory to which we extend the blessings of our institutions, a policy which all would gladly welcome if accomplished peaceably and honorably. No, the question for your consideration is the question between the republic and the empire, between 1776 and 1900, between the declaration of independence and imperialism, between the doctrines of Washington and Jefferson and the doctrines of George III. and Lord North, and, with a firm reliance in the love of liberty which God has planted in the hearts of the American people, I firmly believe the people will hurl aside those who in the delirium for trade and conquest seek to destroy the character of our institutions.

"I have every faith that, true to the interests of the people whom you represent, you will formulate a platform reaffirming the great principles of democracy enunciated in the platform of 1896 and protesting against this new and dangerous doctrine of imperialism. I feel sure, too, that in choosing among the different candidates for state offices your action will be prompted by a desire to do that which is for the best interests of the party and the state.

"In the national campaign upon which we are about to enter the great common people, who constitute the very bone and sinew of the republic, turn their faces with one accord toward one man and ask that he lead them in the political battle for the people's rights. And how wise their choice!

"Some one has said that the story of Napoleon should come from the lips of a Frenchman, who knows no language rich enough to paint the great captain of the nineteenth century, and that the story of Washington should be taken from the hearts of Americans, who think no marble white enough on which to carve the name of the father of their country. So it seems to me that the task of leading the democratic hosts, of pleading the people's cause and of teaching the gospel of true democracy should be given to that greatest exponent of democratic principles since the day of Jefferson—William Jennings Bryan, of Nebraska."

——The civil service plank in the republican platform takes first prize for case-hardened cheek. It commends the party for "maintaining the efficiency of the civil service" in face of the fact that President McKinley has thrown 16,000 classified places to the spoilsmen, and says: "The administration has acted wisely in its effort to secure for public service in Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii and the Philippine islands only those whose fitness has been determined by training and experience." And this within a month of the Neely embezzlement and the Rathbone crookedness!—N. Y. World.

DEMOCRATIC PROSPECTS.

Ex-Gov. Altgeld Gives His Views at the Illinois State Convention.

In answer to an uproarious demand for a speech at the Illinois state democratic convention, Springfield, June 27, ex-Gov. John P. Altgeld said:

"In my opinion, the prospects of carrying Illinois this fall are far better than they were in June, 1892. The country is somewhat dazed as yet, but I say to you that there are several millions of men in the republican party of this country who were with it when it was a great moral force under Lincoln that are not prepared to become criminal instruments in the hands of Mark Hanna. We have got away from the basic principle of republican government and our people do not yet fully understand it, and when the democracy will carry and rule this country for 50 years to come. Let me say to you there is no question of expansion before the American people. It is a misnomer, it is misrepresentation. The democratic party has been the party of expansion. We expanded in 1803 and got Louisiana. We expanded in 1819 and got Florida; we expanded in 1845 and got Texas; we expanded in 1848 and got New Mexico. But in every instance the treaty provided that the territory was to be a part of this republic and that the inhabitants were to be citizens of this republic. That was expansion; that was growth; that was development; that was statesmanship; that was broadening out the declaration of independence; it was giving more people the benefit of our constitution and of our institutions; it was a blessing to humanity. But the course of the administration now looks to no such results. President McKinley over a year ago asked congress to give us a standing army of not volunteers, but a standing army of 100,000 men, increasing it from 22,000 to 100,000. Why? Because we were going to embark in the colonial policy with England to govern people by brute force and having therefore a need of the same kind of machinery they use in Europe to crush the aspirations of men.

Change Is Essential.

"The time has come when we must have a change in America or republican institutions will be at an end. We find the hue calling for manhood, calling for something like Cromwellian policy, calling for men and not for politicians. It is asking that we step up on high ground and that we deal honestly with questions. We see the men who founded the republican party; we see such men as Senator Boutwell, Senator Hoar, ex-President Harrison and Tom Reed and most of the great men who made that party calling a halt and saying this policy must be checked or we are destroyed. There are hundreds of thousands of men in America who do not agree with us on some economic questions, but they are now coming forward, represented by such men as Carl Schurz, and declaring they will support our candidate because they have confidence in his integrity. They have no confidence in the president because he cannot be relied on.

"It is this fact that gives us our strength to-day. Do not lose sight of that for one minute. If our great leader had hesitated one moment during the last four years it would have destroyed him and he would no longer be the idol of the American people that he is to-day. He would no longer command the confidence of those men and he would be looked upon as a politician, which would end his career. If we are true to our colors and principles and stand firm, thus commanding the respect and confidence of the men who differ with us on economic questions, then the idea of November will witness a victory that will not leave seven states in the republican column.

Urges Strong Platform.

"You are going to make a declaration of principles here to-day, but do not forget that Illinois is looked upon as the bell-wether state of America. What you insert in your platform here is going to be scanned all over this republic. It is therefore important that you see to it that the democracy of this great state does not flinch. We have a great future. I believe, just as firmly as I see you here, that if we are true to our principles we will rally to our support not only the enthusiastic young men of our country, but the middle aged also. Do not forget that every man who can be purchased, every man who can be reached by selfish motives will be against us. Mark Hanna's great slimy hand will come down upon the whole brood of them and gobble them up. The hope of democracy lies in a different direction. In the first place, the great army that could not be bought in 1896 is still standing and anxious for the fray. Again, our strength lies in the fact that the patriotic intelligence of America, the men who believe in the declaration of independence, the men who believe in human freedom and equality, these men are all coming toward us. Our strength lies in the dynamic force of proper ideas and in the concentrated power of justice, two forces that have never yet been arrested and which have given the world its civilization. These are the forces upon which we depend, and they are going to give us victory."

Plum Tree Popularity.

Mr. Hanna is respected and revered by the republican party, but he is not its idol. That distinction belongs to Mr. Quay, as was manifest in the enthusiasm which greeted his appearance at Philadelphia. Mr. Hanna has skinned the criminal code mighty close, but he naturally fails to envoke that enthusiasm which is elicited by Mr. Quay, who has been under indictment for larceny. When some republican statesman shall arise who has actually served a term in the penitentiary Mr. Quay will, of course, have to give way. For the present he bears the palm alone.—Chicago Chronicle.

——The trusts, the postal thieves in Cuba, the dragging war in the Philippines, the extravagance of congress, the growth of militarism, the Anglo-American alliance, the Nicaragua canal treachery, the abandonment of American principles in Porto Rico and the subserviency of the government to concentrated wealth are all helping to waft the democratic candidate toward the white house.—N. Y. Journal.

——New York has been rendered all the easier to capture for the democrats in November, because the most popular republican in the state has been taken out of the contest for governor, so as to permit the nominating of one of Platt's corporation tools in his stead.—Kansas City Times.

——The McKinley administration will be judged not by professions and promises made at Philadelphia, but by its acts at Washington. These are quite sufficient to justify and demand its condemnation and overthrow at the polls next November.—Atlanta Journal.

STATE ITEMS OF INTEREST.

CAPT. POWERS RELEASED.

County Judge Cornett, at Harlan, Ky., Recognizes the Pardon Issued By Taylor.

Harlan C. H., Ky., June 28.—Capt. John Powers, of Barbourville, Ky., who was arrested here on the charge of complicity in the murder of Wm. Goebel, was released. His attorneys instituted habeas corpus proceedings, and after a hearing before County Judge Cornett, Powers produced a pardon signed by W. S. Taylor on March 6, 1900, offering it as a bar to arrest and prosecution. Judge Cornett honored the pardon and Powers was ordered released from custody.

This is the second time Powers has been arrested on the same charge and released on Taylor's pardon in the mountain counties of Kentucky, the former trial taking place in Knox county.

Capt. Powers is a brother of Secretary of State Caleb Powers, who is now being held in jail at Georgetown on the same charge.

REPEAL THE GOEBEL LAW.

Leading Democrats Advocate Calling a Special Session of the Legislature for That Purpose.

Lexington, Ky., June 28.—Gov. Beckham, ex-Senator C. J. Bronston, Judge Jere Morton, Judge Watts Parker, John R. Allen (candidate for congress in the Seventh district), Sheriff H. M. Bosworth, Howard McCorkle and Willa Viley were entertained by Gen. W. H. Gentry.

The meeting took a political turn, whose result, authoritatively stated, will be a call for an extra session of the legislature by Gov. Beckham to repeal the Goebel election law. It is said that the anti-Goebel wing, of which Bronston is the leader, is satisfied that Gov. Beckham has been made to believe that a continuance of the law would defeat the party in Kentucky. The tip is that Beckham will not wait for the democratic convention here in July to act. Blackburn and McCreary were to be present, but did not attend.

SUSPECT'S NAME LEARNED.

The Mysterious Requisition Was for Robert Noakes, a Railroad Man, Now in Bristol, Tenn.

Frankfort, Ky., June 30.—Robert Noakes, a railroad man, now of Bristol, Tenn., is the name of the Goebel assassination suspect for whom a warrant of arrest was issued Thursday. The requisition was made on the governor of Tennessee instead of Virginia, and Deputy Sheriff Harred is now at Bristol. Noakes formerly lived in Eastern Kentucky, and, it is said, was here with the Harlan county men at the time of the assassination.

Green Golden, who was taken into custody at Barbourville on Thursday and brought here, gave out a statement denying that he had been offered money to make a confession, and also denying that he had threatened to implicate other persons not under indictment. He says he knows nothing of an incriminating nature.

An Extra Session Probable.

Frankfort, Ky., June 30.—Gov. Beckham will in a few days issue writs of election for the filling of three vacancies in the senate and one vacancy in the lower house of the legislature. The elections will be held in the counties where the vacancies exist the latter part of July or first of August. This action on the part of Gov. Beckham is taken as an unmistakable indication that the governor intends to call an extra session of the legislature some time in August or early in September. It is supposed the session is to be called to consider proposed modification of the election law and minor state matters.

Lewis Open Headquarters.

Frankfort, Ky., June 28.—Gen. Jos. H. Lewis will conduct his campaign for the democratic nomination for governor here. Gen. Lewis arrived here and opened headquarters with Capt. W. S. B. Hill and John W. Roy in charge. Beckham has also opened headquarters here.

Their First Meeting.

Greenup, Ky., June 30.—Dr. John L. Robbins, of Carter county, met Miss Felice V. Autercid, of New York City, by appointment and were married. It was their first meeting, and this is the fourth marriage for the doctor.

Lived Nearly 102 Years.

Elizabethtown, Ky., June 28.—Mrs. Sallie Shackleford, who died here on Tuesday, aged 101 years and 8 months, was a member of the Baptist church for 85 years and probably the oldest member of the church in the United States.

Tenant Stabbed Him.

Winchester, Ky., June 30.—W. O. Huskins, a prominent farmer, was stabbed several times in the breast and perhaps fatally wounded, by a tenant on his farm named Gorrl. He had a difficulty with Gorrl over the settlement of an account.

Goes to Princeton.

Richmond, Ky., June 30.—Prof. William J. Foster, Jr., who has occupied the chair of chemistry in Central university, has resigned to accept the chair of analytical chemistry at Princeton university.

PREPARING FOR THE TRIAL.

W. S. Taylor and Charles Finley Are Named as Witnesses Wanted at Frankfort, Ky.

Frankfort, Ky., June 29.—The defense in the cases of Henry Youtsey and the other defendants, whose trials on the charge of complicity in the assassination of Wm. Goebel will be called at Georgetown, July 9, have filed with Sheriff Suter a list of many witnesses who are wanted to testify in the trials. Among those for whom subpoenas have been issued at the instance of the defense are Wm. S. Taylor and ex-Secretary of State Chas. Finley, now at Indianapolis.

The issuance of this process brings up the unique question of whether a witness can be extradited and whether the defense, under the circumstances, would be entitled to a continuance on account of their absence, should a continuance be demanded on that ground. All of the witnesses who testified at the application of W. H. Culton, another of the suspects, for bail recently were recognized and put under bond to appear as witnesses at Georgetown in July, but Sheriff Suter has so far been unable to serve subpoenas on several of the most important among them.

REVEALED IN COURT.

Horrible Treatment of an Aged Negro Who Was Afterwards Found Dead.

Benton, Ky., June 30.—The three Greer brothers are on trial here for the murder of an aged Negro last February. Witnesses testified that the brothers forced the old man at the point of a pistol to drink whisky and wine until he was hopelessly intoxicated. While drunk they beat him with heavy whips until he was senseless. They would revive him by burning him. They finally drove off with him in a wagon.

To witnesses who asked them to leave him alone they said they meant to finish him. The next morning the old fellow was found with his neck broken, hanging across a fence. The only defense offered by the brothers was that they were drunk.

Destructive Electrical Storm.

Pineville, Ky., June 30.—This part of the state was visited by a severe electrical storm and great damage is reported throughout Southeastern Kentucky. In Leslie and Clay counties houses were blown down, much forest destroyed and live stock killed. All the mountain streams are on a rampage and many sawlogs are flowing. It is reliably stated that further up the Cumberland river, in Harlan county, all crops are completely destroyed.

Expecting a New Indictment.

Richmond, Ky., June 30.—The indictment against Joe McDowell, charging him with absconding with funds belonging to the Estill County Deposit bank, were thrown out of court at Irvine. It is thought that the grand jury, which is now in session, will return new indictments against him. McDowell has explained all the discrepancies in his books, and it is not believed that he will be convicted.

Gov. Mount's Requisition Honored.

Frankfort, Ky., June 29.—The first official courtesy to be passed between the states of Kentucky and Indiana since Gov. Mount's refusal to honor Gov. Beckham's requisition for the extradition of W. S. Taylor occurred when Gov. Beckham honored the requisition of Gov. Mount for the extradition of Wm. Webb, who is under arrest at Louisville and is wanted for trial at Evansville, Ind., on a charge of grand larceny.

No Pay for Taylor's Soldiers.

Frankfort, Ky., June 29.—Gov. Beckham refused to approve accounts for services of the Taylor militia from the date Goebel was declared governor till the evacuation of the troops, after the decision of the supreme court. The whole sum claimed in salaries aggregated upwards of $50,000.

Taylor Back in Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 28.—W. S. and Mrs. Taylor arrived in Indianapolis and were met at the depot by their daughter. He had shaved his mustache since he left Indianapolis, and had a weary, hunted look. Two private detectives who acted as his bodyguard during the eastern trip came back with him.

Naval Cadets Named.

Williamstown, Ky., June 28.—Hubbard S. Needham, of this place, has received notice from Congressman A. S. Berry that he had named him as alternate, and a son of Dr. Lassing, of Boone county, principal, for appointment as cadet to the naval academy at Annapolis.

A Cloudburst at Geneva.

Henderson, Ky., June 29.—A telephone message from Geneva, six miles south of Henderson, reports a cloudburst there. The roadways were several feet under water and impossible of passages. Many bridges were washed away and fencing destroyed.

Awaits Result of Wounds.

Columbia, Ky., June 29.—The examining trial of Joe Aikins for shooting Charles Kingley at Sparksville last week was continued until Saturday to await the result of Kingley's wounds. Aikins is in jail.

Fable of the Small Bird.

Once upon a time there was a bantam rooster with an immense opinion of himself, and as he stood in the barnyard he said:

"I will make a stir in the world. I will attract attention."

Whereiore he began to crow lustily, although he had nothing much to crow about.

Now it happened that far above the bantam a hawk was wheeling in the circumambient air. The hawk had not been the bantam, owing to the latter's diminutive proportions, but when the bantam crowed the hawk heard and in about 43 seconds had his claws full and was contentedly winging his flight homeward, while all was still below.

What Will Become of China?

None can foresee the outcome of the quarrel between foreign powers over the division of China. It is interesting to watch the going to pieces of this ancient but unprogressive race. Many people in America are also going to pieces because of dyspepsia, constipation, blood, liver and stomach diseases. We are living too fast, but strength, vigor and good health can be retained if we keep oil and cure the above diseases with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters.

The Lost Thrill.

"Have you ever felt the thrill that comes from having a sweet girl look up into your eyes and tell you she loves you?"

"No. My nearest approach to it was when the loveliest maiden I ever knew put her arms around my neck, and with her sweet lips close to mine, said: 'George, I adore you.'"

"And you weren't thrilled by that?"

"Nope, I was just about to be thrilled when her father, who happened, without our knowledge or consent, to be standing back of me, got into action. I wouldn't insult the feeling I had by calling it a mere thrill."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Horrors of War.

The hardworked humorist sat at his desk, and without the slightest apparent effort he dashed this off:

"Why do you Peking here?" asked Tsi Ann of the Russian general, who was reconnoitering in the imperial neighborhood.

"Because I am going to Taku," was the reserve reply.

Yet such things as this were not mentioned among the horrors of war discussed at the Hague conference. —Baltimore American.

FREEDOM'S DAY JULY 4TH.

IS freedom's own immortal day.
By all her children blest
From Maine's rough headlands far away
To the prairies of the west,
Where o'er our starry banner flies
With beauty fold on fold.
Its tale that ne'er grows old.

The glorious deeds of Lexington
Still in their luster shine,
And fame doth crown the sword and gun
That fought at Brandywine;
From lovel and haunted Valley Forge
True heroism comes,
And in the grim and icy gorge
Is heard the sound of drums.

Again the Continentals march
Adown the wooded glen,
And there beneath the starlight arch
Ride Marion and his men;
The bellman, old, expectant stands,
A "rebel" to his king;
The bell rope in his eager hands,
He waits prepared to ring.

Aye, back from years forever gone
These scenes and sounds still come,
And freedom's fair, immortal dawn
Is wed to the drum.
The hero chieftain, Washington,
By honor guarded steeps
Where southward far toward seas of sun
The broad Potomac sweeps.

Ring! every bell throughout the land,
Let loyal hearts be gay;
Beneath one flag we proudly stand,
For this is Freedom's day;
Let anthems rise from coast to coast
And echo o'er the sea;
Be this our nation's proudest boast:
"Our land's forever free."

MISS ABIGAIL'S FOURTH.

LIGHTNING dipped his nose deep in the clear water. He closed his eyes slowly with a satisfied expression on his equine countenance, then elevated his dripping muzzle and cast a comprehensive glance at the tree tops. Miss Abigail waited resignedly.

Fortunately there was ample time and it was a pleasant spot in which to linger. Before, the roadwound out between wide fields palpitating in the noonday heat, but here the shadows dappled the white horse's back and checkered the dust with leafy shapes, the water trickled musically down from the hillside into the mossy trough.

The woman drew a long, satisfied breath, inhaling the wild grape bloom, and her face softened with a happy memory. "Tad was mortal fond of the smell of the grape," she said, aloud. "I wonder if Tad's little girl will be like him."

She drew a letter from her pocket, spreading it with some difficulty on her lap. It was two months since this letter had fallen like a bomb into her quiet life. Since Tad's death in London five years ago she had felt that further change could not affect her. This last communication was a brief statement written by an English lawyer, of the death of her nephew's wife; but what robbed her of strength and set her pulse to bounding wildly was the request that she prepare to receive the little girl into her home, as the mother had been an orphan without near kin, while on the father's side she stood the closest to Tad's child. A slip of paper inclosed brought her Thaddeus' last message, dated long ago:

"If my little Primrose should ever stand in need of friends, will you take her into your heart, auntie, where you have ever kept—Tad."

This was why she was driving down to Stockton on this warm June noon, for, obedient to her direction, the child had started in the charge of acquaintances of Miss Abigail's own, who were returning after a winter on the continent. The train was due in an hour.

Lightning turned his head inquiringly. With a sigh Miss Abigail flopped the reins and drove out into the noonday heat.

The station master lounged out to help her tie her steed. "'Xpectin' the little gal, be ye, Abby?" he asked, with the freedom of long acquaintance.

She nodded. Her hands were clasped tightly upon her reticule when the train rolled in, but her face was calm. A gentleman stepped off, then turned to lift down a child. Seeing her he hurried his charge along the platform.

"I'm relieved to find you here, Miss Harding," he said, as he raised his hat, "for I must go on at once. Here is the baggage check. Good-by, little one."

The child held out her hand gravely. "Good-by," she said, and her eyes looked wistfully after him as he sprang upon the moving train.

Miss Abigail was distinctly disappointed. She had felt sure of seeing a little gypsy with dark skin and curling brown hair like Tad's. Instead, here was a quaint object in sage green with pale, demure face and a floss of yellow hair under the white sailor. Just then Primrose looked up with a shy smile and Miss Abigail's heart softened, for here were Tad's brown eyes, with Tad's own look, while Tad's dimple dented the small chin.

"More'n one trunk?" she asked in her driest tones, and Primrose, who had been ready to kiss this aunt whom her dear mother had told her she must love, felt repulsed.

That night, when the milk was strained and the chickens housed, Miss Abigail slipped out upon the south porch. It gave her a secret sense of elation when she came upon Primrose perched on the upper step, watching the rising moon. Primrose's heart ached for a mothering. And the New England woman, schooled to repression, was ashamed of the strong desire which urged her to take the tired child on her knee and coax the smile back into her brown eyes.

"Been to school, I s'pose," she said, with an effort at sociability. How did one talk to a little girl?

"No, ma'am." Primrose politely twisted around to face her.

"Gracious goodness! A girl of your age!"

Primrose flushed with embarrassment. "I wasn't strong," she said, apologetically, "so mamma taught me at home. I can read pretty well—and I can recite some poetry."

"Poetry!"

Primrose looked doubtfully at this new relative. She felt that she was not making a favorable report. "I can speak a little French," she continued, "and I have got as far as fractions," in desperate haste for Miss Abigail's sniff was expressive.

"What can you do?" the curt voice came from the shadow of the vines.

"Do?" Primrose locked her small fingers nervously together. "Why, I —don't do much but—play. Oh, I can dance," and she brightened. "I'll show you."

Miss Abigail gasped in amazement. But Primrose had sprung out upon the grass, now flooded with moonlight. Poising herself lightly she commenced a soft humming, then threw up one round arm and began. Miss Abigail did not know how heavy the little feet felt or how thickly the tears crowded behind the long lashes, as Primrose tried to dance into her aunt's good graces.

"Very pretty," was her comment, at length, qualified with —"children didn't dance in my day. It's time you were in bed."

In the east chamber, with its chintz curtains and dragon paper, that had rejoiced the heart of small Thaddeus when he visited the farm, his little daughter slept. If the door ajar miss had a sinister sound in Primrose's ears.

After dinner, Miss Abigail disappeared in her bedroom, opening from the kitchen. "Come in here. I've something to show you," she called, after some time.

Primrose found her seated on the floor before an open bureau drawer, her lap full of little cases. "You were asking me about your pa's relatives," she said, amiably, motioning Primrose to draw up a chair. "I've got a little more time'n usual so I might as well show you their pictures.

"This is your pa's mother at the age of 16. Twist it round till you can see. Those old daguerreotypes are queer about that. Susanna Martin was considered a good lookin' woman, but you'd hardly guess it from that. This is Uncle Ebenezer Harding—Methodist minister over at Knox's Corners; and this is Saphrania Harding, who married a Mason."

Queer enough Primrose found them, but she listened politely to the family history, breaking into little peals of laughter over the old-fashioned names.

Miss Abigail looked at her suspiciously over her glasses. "What pleases you so?" she asked, stiffly.

"Such funny names," Primrose said, deprecatingly.

"Funny! What do you call your own? What under the canopy made your ma call you by such a silly name?"

"I was born on Primrose day," the offender urged. "That's why they called me Primrose."

"Never heard of anybody called Fourth of July or Christmas! There were lots of good family names to choose from." In her heart she sighed because Tad had not remembered one—then frowned at her weakness. "Abigail is a homely name," she thought aloud.

"I like it 'cause it's yours," Primrose said, timidly, stroking a fold of the other's calico dress.

"I was telling you about Ebanthus," Miss Abigail broke in; but she had creaked in the dead of night, and somebody tiptoed in to see if the child was covered, only the angels knew. Primrose dreamed that her mother kissed her.

Thenceforth began strange experiences for Primrose. The tangle of bright hair was confined in two tight pigtails. Miss Abigail, taking fright from her own growing satisfaction in "goldilocks," felt that thus she nipped vanity in the bud. For the same reason, combined with neatness, the dainty frocks were covered with long-sleeved, high-necked check aprons which Primrose's beauty-loving soul abhorred.

She had been at the farm nearly a month when one morning at breakfast Miss Abigail said abruptly:

"I s'pose you think you want some crackers to-morrow?"

"Crackers?" Primrose's eyes grew large with wonder.

"Firecrackers, of course. Don't look so wild."

"I don't know what they are." Primrose tried to modify her objectionable expression.

"Land! Why, you know what day it is?"

"Yes'm; Friday."

"Don't you know about the Fourth? Sakes alive! Your father used to tear up the whole farm that day. Nor why we celebrate?"

Primrose ventured a weak—"Nobody told me."

Miss Abigail strode to the small corner shelf and took down a dingy-covered volume. "It's time you knew some history," she said, "but I can't stop to tell you now. At least you can read the 'Declaration.' Take it out under the big walnut. Never mind about the dishes this time."

And Primrose, struggling over the long words, wished she was at her wonted tasks.

"Goin' to celebrate, Britisher?" called a roguish voice from the gate, and Sam Sackett hung over the pickets.

Primrose shook her head. "I don't know," she answered. "How does one celebrate?"

"Lots of noise. Begin early, keep it up all day. Crackers—torpedoes—rockets—(when there's any money left). S-s-s-izz-z-z-bang!" with a clash of the gate and a warwhoop to reenforce his description.

Primrose jumped and Sam grinned wickedly. "Bill and I'll be round to-morrow to show you how," and his heard the child and felt her caress.

"There," she said, as she snapped the last case together, "I don't s'pose you'll remember half I've told you, but I care more for these pictures than for anything I've got, for it's all that's left of my folks. Now I've got something that'll please you more."

Dragging a pastehoard box from under the bed, she disclosed a doll's set of pewter dishes, and, with the sight of her childhood treasures, a new look came in her face. "They were mine when I was a little girl," she said, quietly. "You can play with them to-morrow."

Primrose's face shone, but she was dumb—the favor was so unexpected. Instead, she impulsively kissed Miss Abigail's arm.

"I must get supper, now," said Miss Abigail, but in the kitchen she laid her hand tenderly on the spot and stepped softly that she might hear the clink of the dishes as Primrose put them carefully away against the morrow.

At midnight the Sackett boys began their celebrating, but Primrose slept undisturbed. At breakfast there was a lull, so when Miss Abigail declared she must drive to Stockton Primrose was untrobbled. Her aunt did not feel so easy. The Sacketts were mischievous neighbors on such a day, and had already shown a disposition to tease the little stranger. However, her errand was urgent and surely Jake, her right-hand man, was protection enough.

She smiled as she looked back at Primrose, on the porch, playing party with her dolls and the treasured dishes. She could almost have prayed herself. Checking her vagrant thoughts with a feeling of shame, she urged Lightning still faster with a daring flick of the whip. She must be back before noon.

"Hi, here! Want to see a cracker?" Primrose jumped, for Sam stood close behind her.

"Pooh! Don't play dolls to-day. See here."

Primrose smiled and tried not to show that she wanted him to go home. He held a little red roll with a string attached. Was this a cracker? Sam swiftly lighted a match when, after an ominous sputter, the dreadful thing burst with a bang. Primrose bit her tongue hard to crowd back a cry.

Sam saw mischief ahead when, suddenly, he saw Jake striding through the garden, and judged it wise to go home—for a season.

The south porch grew warm, so Primrose gathered up her treasures and carried them into Miss Abigail's room. When two naughty boys crept cautiously round the house, an hour later, there was no small figure on the steps. They looked at each other with disappointed eyes, when a soft singing from the north room betrayed their victim. In a twinkling they disappeared round the corner.

Suddenly the hush was broken by a harsh explosion. To Primrose's horrified ears, the diabolical turmoil seemed to have no end. Cowering close to the bed she buried her head in the clothes. What would come next?

Nothing came. The familiar sounds were taken up again. She could hear Jake mowing in the lower meadow. Sparrows wrangled outside the window. She buried her head and waited and, so waiting, fell asleep.

The kitchen clock striking 11 woke her. For a moment she was confused then something unusual aroused her. There was an acrid odor in the air, her eyeballs stung, the room looked hazy. Why, it was smoke!

As she started up, every sense alert, she heard an ominous crackling. Out through the kitchen and round the corner of the house she flew. Pushing through a tangle of lilac bushes she reached the place of the explosion. How it happened nobody could ever explain. Perhaps a smoldering cracker alone was responsible, but creeping flames were now curling along the edges of the clapboards and eating through to Miss Abigail's chamber.

Primrose turned and ran wildly to the barnyard, whence she could see the lower meadow. "Jake," she screamed. The mowing machine paused and the man looked up. "Fire! Fire!" she danced up and down, waving her arms frantically, then, feeling that she must do something more, ran to the well. But, tug as she might, her small arms could not stir the windlass.

A sudden thought stopped her. Miss Abigail's treasures were in danger! Wreaths of smoke were coming through the kitchen door. For a minute she hesitated, then, drawing a long breath, darted across the kitchen and into the bedroom.

A line of flame was blinking beneath the window—she must be quick. The heavy mahogany drawer stuck. Then it yielded. With hot haste she grouped for the "family," bundling them in her skirt. Coughing and half blind, she felt her way to the bed, sweeping the beloved dishes and her dear dolls on top of her burden.

Something dashed into the yard. That something was the astonished Lightning, urged by an energetic whip. White and wild-eyed, Miss Abigail precipitated herself from the wagon.

"Jake," she screamed, as the man ran past with dripping buckets, "where's Primrose?"

"Blest if I know," he gasped. "I'll have this out in a jiffy."

"Auntie, I've got 'em!" piped a shrill voice from the kitchen door, and Primrose, with something bundled in her gingham apron, ran coughing, laughing and crying to meet her, dropping "family" dolls and dishes at her feet.

But, strangely enough, Miss Abigail tramped on the pictures as she seized Primrose in her arms. "Oh, my little one! My dear!" was all she could say as she held her close.

Primrose ventured to stroke her wet cheek: "I 'membered you said you cared more for the pictures than for anything," she whispered.

"But I care for one thing more," and Miss Abigail kissed the surprised face, "an' there wasn't a mite of danger," Jake declared afterward, "Miss Abby can't see enough of that child. It must her been workin' in her all along."—Marion Dickinson, in Farm and Home.

FUN ON THE FOURTH.

This little boy said he was bound to have fun
At the expense of the old Thomas cat;
'Twas the Fourth of July when he fell off the fence,
And didn't know where he was at.

Sure Death.

Mrs. Cobwigger—I'm afraid something has happened Freddie. I haven't seen anything of him since morning.

Cobwigger—Nonsense! He's only having a good time with his firecrackers.

Mrs. Cobwigger—No, he isn't. I would not let him have such things. I bought him one of those harmless toy pistols.

Cobwigger—Run, woman, and get me my hat. I guess he's down at the morgue before this.—N. Y. World.

Fourth of July.

Denny, beat the dish-pan!
Tommy, bring your drum!
Sammy, save your breath to blow!
Dick's harmonium!
Bobby, take your tin fife!
Sue, you're marching well!
Jimmy, keep in step there!
Alec, ring that bell!
Fire the cannon crackers,
Give a cheer now, boys!
What is this day meant for,
But to make a noise!

REPUBLICAN DANGERS.

Set Forth by Temporary Chairman Hurst of the Illinois Democracy.

In his opening address to the Illinois state democratic convention at Springfield June 27 Temporary Chairman E. W. Hurst, of Rock Island county, said:

"Since the representatives of our party have assembled in national convention new issues have arisen—issues involving grave questions of right and wrong, great questions of principle, questions affecting, in my judgment, the permanency of the republic. These new issues are, however, but the natural outgrowth of the old contest between man and the dollar, between plutocracy and democracy. Our forefathers thought when they abolished entail and provided for the distribution of estates they had erected a bulwark against the money power. They were led by Jefferson and believed with him that in a republic there should be no aristocracy but that of virtue and talent. If Jefferson saw danger to republican institutions in a landed aristocracy what, think you, he would say if alive to-day at the growth of combinations of capital in the form of trusts?

"The greatest danger which threatens our institutions to-day is to be found in this incoming flood of incorporated wealth. The mass of the people is aroused to the danger which confronts them the time will soon come when no law will pass or honor be conferred without the consent of these powerful and interested combinations, which are speedily becoming the government itself, to the utter subversion of the authority of the people. If you think this an overdrawn picture, look at the republican national convention at Philadelphia last week, where the representatives of these interests named the candidates and dictated the policy, a convention to which the great state of Illinois chose for two of its delegates the ruling spirits of the birb wire trust, a trust which, to advance the interests of its officers, recently closed down 12 of its factories and, without any warning whatever, deprived more than 6,000 laboring men of employment.

"The democratic party wages no war on property or property rights. The true democrat glories in the opportunity for individual advancement under a government such as ours, when rightfully administered, and has only admiration for the man who, asking nothing from his government but equal and exact justice, carves out his own success, be it mental or otherwise. But the true democrat demands that the blessing of government shall fall, like the rain from heaven, on the rich and poor alike and demands that his government shall not grant special privileges to the few.

"The growth of trusts is largely due to the protective tariff laws enacted by the republican party, but, not content with the advantages afforded by control of home markets under republican legislation and influenced by the prospect of profitable trade with the islands wrested from the dominion of Spain, these monopolists have inspired the imperial policy of the present administration, the enforcement of which can only be accomplished by revolutionizing our government and substituting the principles of our hereditary enemies for the teachings of Washington and his associates. Five score and fourteen years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that 'all men are created equal.' Winning their struggle for liberty, they established here a great self-ruling nation—the living embodiment of the gospel of democracy—a government of the people, for the people and by the people'—a government which has been a beacon light to the people of the world struggling for liberty, and whose influence has localized monarchies and limited arbitrary power all over the world.

"There is great danger to the republic in this policy of imperialism—this reaching out for distant islands to be governed as subject provinces. Such a colonial scheme destroyed all hopes of republicanism in olden times. It can exist in no free country because it uproots and eliminates the basis of republican institutions, that government derive their just powers from the consent of the governed.'

"The question presented to the American people is not the question of expansion of the republic over contiguous territory to which we extend the blessings of our institutions, a policy which all would gladly welcome if accomplished peaceably and honorably. No, the question for your consideration is the question between the republic and the empire, between liberty and slavery, between the declaration of Independence and imperialism, between the doctrines of Washington and Jefferson and the doctrines of George III. and Lord North, and, with a firm reliance in the love of liberty which God has planted in the hearts of the American people, I firmly believe the people will hurl aside those who in the delirium for trade and conquest seek to destroy the character of our institutions.

"I have every faith that, true to the interests of the people whom you represent, you will formulate a platform reaffirming the great principles of democracy enunciated in the platform of 1896 and protesting against this new and dangerous doctrine of imperialism. I feel sure, too, that in choosing among the different candidates for state offices your action will be prompted by a desire to do that which is for the best interests of the party and the state.

"In the national campaign upon which we are about to enter the great common people, who constitute the very bone and sinew of the republic, turn their faces with one accord toward one man and ask that he lead them in the political battle for the people's rights. And how wise their choice!

"Some one has said that the story of Napoleon should come from the lips of a Frenchman, who knows no language rich enough to paint the great captain of the nineteenth century, and that the story of Washington should be taken from the hearts of Americans, who think no marble white enough on which to inscribe the name of the father of their country. So it seems to me that the task of leading the democratic hosts, of pleading the people's cause and of teaching the gospel of true democracy should be given to that greatest exponent of democratic principles since the day of Jefferson—William Jennings Bryan, of Nebraska."

——The civil service plank in the republican platform takes first prize for cense-hardened cheek. It commends the party for "maintaining the efficiency of the civil service" in face of the fact that President McKinley has thrown 16,000 classified places to the spoilsmen, and says: "The administration has acted wisely in its efforts to secure for public service in Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii and the Philippine islands only those whose fitness has been determined by training and experience." And this within a month of the Neely emozzlement and the Rathbone crookedness!—N. Y. World.

DEMOCRATIC PROSPECTS.

Ex-Gov. Altgeld Gives His Views at the Illinois State Convention.

In answer to an uproarious demand for a speech at the Illinois state democratic convention, Springfield, June 27, ex-Gov. John P. Altgeld said:

"In my opinion, the prospects of carrying Illinois this fall are far better than they were in June, 1892. This country is somewhat dazed as yet, but I say to you that there are several millions of men in the republican party of this country who were with it when it was a great moral force under Lincoln that are not prepared to become criminal instruments in the hands of Mark Hanna. We have got away from the basic principle of republican government and our people do not yet fully understand it, and then the democracy will carry and rule this country for 50 years to come. Let me say to you there is no question of expansion before the American people. It is a misnomer, it is misrepresentation.

"The democratic party has been the party of expansion. We expanded in 1803 and got Louisiana. We expanded in 1819 and got Florida; we expanded in 1845 and got Texas; we expanded in 1848 and got New Mexico. But in every instance the treaty provided that the territory was to be a part of this republic and that the inhabitants were to be citizens of this republic. That was expansion; that was growth; that was development; that was statesmanship; that was broadening out the declaration of independence; it was giving more people the benefit of our constitution and of our institutions; it was a blessing to humanity. But the course of the administration now looks to no such results. President McKinley over a year ago asked congress to give us a standing army of not volunteers, but a standing army of 100,000 men, increasing it from 22,000 to 100,000. Why? Because we were going to embark in the colonial policy with England to govern people by brute force and having therefore a need of the same kind of machinery that they use in Europe to crush the aspirations of men.

Change Is Essential.

"The time has come when we must have a change in America or republican institutions will be at an end. We find the age calling for more refined, cutting for something like Cromwellian policy, calling for men and not for politicians. It is asking that we step up on high ground and that we deal honestly with all questions. We see the men who founded the republican party; we see such men as Senator Boutwell, Senator Hoar, ex-President Harrison and Tom Reed and hosts of the great men who made that party calling a halt and saying this policy must be checked or we are destroyed. There are hundreds of thousands of men in America who do not agree with us on some economic questions, but they are now coming forward, represented by such men as Carl Schurz, and declaring they will support our candidate because they have confidence in his integrity. They have no confidence in the president because he cannot be relied on.

"It is this fact that gives us our strength to-day. Do not lose sight of that for one minute. If our great leader had hesitated one moment during the last four years it would have destroyed him and he would no longer be the idol of the American people that he is to-day. He would no longer command the confidence of those men and he would be looked upon as a politician, which would end his career. If we are true to our colors and principles and stand firm, thus commanding the respect and confidence of the men who differ with us on economic questions, then the idea of November will witness a victory that will not leave seven states in the republican column.

Urges Strong Platform.

"You are going to make a declaration of principles here to-day, but do not forget that Illinois is looked upon as the bellwether state of America. What you insert in your platform here is going to be scanned all over this republic. It is therefore important that you see to it that the democracy of this great state does not flinch. We have a great future, I believe, just as firmly as I see you here, that if we are true to ourselves we will rally to our support not only the enthusiastic young men of our country, but the middle aged also. Do not forget that every man who can be purchased, every man who can be reached by selfish motives will be against us. Mark Hanna's great slimy hand will come down upon the whole broad of them and gobble them up. The hope of democracy lies in a different direction. In the first place, the great army that could not be bought in 1896 is still standing and unxious for the fray. Again, our strength lies in the fact that the patriotic intelligence of America, the men who believe in the declaration of independence, the men who believe in human freedom and equality, these men are all coming toward us. Our strength lies in the dynamic force of progress and in the concentrated power of justice, two forces that have never yet been arrested and which have given the world its civilization. These are the two forces upon which we depend, and they are going to give us victory."

Plum Tree Popularity.

Mr. Hanna is respected and revered by the republican party, but he is not its idol. That distinction belongs to Mr. Quay, as was manifest in the enthusiasm which greeted his appearance at Philadelphia. Mr. Hanna has skinned the criminal code mighty close, but he naturally fails to envoke that enthusiasm which is elicited by Mr. Quay, who has been under indictment for larceny. When some republican statesman shall arise who has actually served a term in the penitentiary Mr. Quay will, of course, have to give way. For the present he bears the palm alone.—Chicago Chronicle.

——The trusts, the postal thieves in Cuba, the dragging war in the Philippines, the extravagance of congress, the growth of militarism, the Anglo-American alliance, the Nicaragua canal treachery, the abandonment of American principles in Porto Rico and the subserviency of the government to concentrated wealth are all helping to swell the democratic candidate toward the white house.—N. Y. Journal.

——New York has been rendered all the easier to capture for the democrats in November, because the most popular republican in the state has been taken out of the contest for governor, so as to permit the nominating of one of Platt's corporation tools in his stead.—Kansas City Times.

——The McKinley administration will be judged not by professions and promises made at Philadelphia, but by its acts at Washington. These are quite sufficient to justify and demand its condemnation and overthrow at the polls next November.—Atlanta Journal.

STATE ITEMS OF INTEREST.

CAPT. POWERS RELEASED.

County Judge Cornett, at Harlan, Ky., Recognizes the Pardon Issued By Taylor.

Harlan C. H., Ky., June 28.—Capt. John Powers, of Barbourville, Ky., who was arrested here on the charge of complicity in the murder of Wm. Goebel, was released. His attorneys instituted habeas corpus proceedings, and after a hearing before County Judge Cornett, Powers produced a pardon signed by W. S. Taylor on March 6, 1900, offering it as a bar to arrest and prosecution. Judge Cornett honored the pardon and Powers was ordered released from custody.

This is the second time Powers has been arrested on the same charge and released on Taylor's pardon in the mountain counties of Kentucky, the former trial taking place in Knox county.

Capt. Powers is a brother of Secretary of State Caleb Powers, who is now being held in jail at Georgetown on the same charge.

REPEAL THE GOEBEL LAW.

Leading Democrats Advocate Calling a Special Session of the Legislature for That Purpose.

Lexington, Ky., June 28.—Gov. Beckham, ex-Senator C. J. Bronston, Judge Jere Morton, Judge Watts Parker, John R. Allen (candidate for congress in the Seventh district), Sheriff H. M. Bosworth, Howard McCorkle and Willa Viley were entertained by Gen. W. H. Gentry.

The meeting took a political turn, whose result, authoritatively stated, will be a call for an extra session of the legislature by Gov. Beckham to repeal the Goebel election law. It is said that the anti-Goebel wing, of which Bronston is the leader, is satisfied that Gov. Beckham has been made to believe that a continuance of the law would defeat the party in Kentucky. The tip is that Beckham will not wait for the democratic convention here in July to act. Blackburn and McCreary were to be present, but did not attend.

SUSPECT'S NAME LEARNED.

The Mysterious Requisition Was for Robert Noukes, a Railroad Man, Now in Bristol, Tenn.

Frankfort, Ky., June 30.—Robert Noukes, a railroad man, now of Bristol, Tenn., is the name of the Goebel assassination suspect for whom a warrant of arrest was issued Thursday. The requisition was made on the governor of Tennessee instead of Virginia, and Deputy Sheriff Harred is now at Bristol. Noukes formerly lived in Eastern Kentucky, and, it is said, was here with the Harlan county men at the time of the assassination.

Green Golden, who was taken into custody at Barbourville on Thursday and brought here, gave out a statement denying that he had been offered money to make a confession, and also denying that he had threatened to implicate other persons not under indictment. He says he knows nothing of an incriminating nature.

An Extra Session Probable.

Frankfort, Ky., June 30.—Gov. Beckham will in a few days issue writs of election for the filling of three vacancies in the senate and one vacancy in the lower house of the legislature. The elections will be held in the counties where the vacancies exist the latter part of July or first of August. This action on the part of Gov. Beckham is taken as an unmistakable indication that the governor intends to call an extra session of the legislature some time in August or early in September. It is supposed the session is to be called to consider proposed modification of the election law and minor state matters.

Lewis Open Headquarters.

Frankfort, Ky., June 28.—Gen. Jos. H. Lewis will conduct his campaign for the democratic nomination for governor here. Gen. Lewis arrived here and opened headquarters with Capt. W. S. B. Hill and John W. Roy in charge. Beckham has also opened headquarters here.

Their First Meeting.

Greenup, Ky., June 30.—Dr. John L. Robbins, of Carter county, met Miss Felice V. Antercid, of New York City, by appointment and were married. It was their first meeting, and this is the fourth marriage for the doctor.

Lived Nearly 102 Years.

Elizabethtown, Ky., June 28.—Mrs. Sallie Shackleford, who died here on Tuesday, aged 101 years and 8 months, was a member of the Baptist church for 85 years and probably the oldest member of the church in the United States.

Tenant Stabbed Him.

Winchester, Ky., June 30.—W. O. Huskins, a prominent farmer, was stabbed several times in the breast and perhaps fatally wounded, by a tenant on his farm named Gorrl. He had a difficulty with Gorri over the settlement of an account.

Goes to Princeton.

Richmond, Ky., June 30.—Prof. William J. Foster, Jr., who has occupied the chair of chemistry in Central university, has resigned to accept the chair of analytical chemistry at Princeton university.

PREPARING FOR THE TRIAL.

W. S. Taylor and Charles Finley Are Named as Witnesses Wanted at Frankfort, Ky.

Frankfort, Ky., June 29.—The defense in the cases of Henry Youtsey and the other defendants, whose trials on the charge of complicity in the assassination of Wm. Goebel will be called at Georgetown, July 9, have filed with Sheriff Suter a list of many witnesses who are wanted to testify in the trials. Among those for whom subpoenas have been issued at the instance of the defense are Wm. S. Taylor and ex-Secretary of State Chas. Finley, now at Indianapolis.

The issuance of this process brings up the unique question of whether a witness can be extradited and whether the defense, under the circumstances, would be entitled to a continuance on account of their absence, should a continuance be demanded on that ground. All of the witnesses who testified at the application of W. H. Culton, another of the suspects, for bail recently were recognized and put under bond to appear as witnesses at Georgetown in July, but Sheriff Suter has so far been unable to serve subpoenas on several of the most important among them.

REVEALED IN COURT.

Horrible Treatment of an Aged Negro Who Was Afterwards Found Dead.

Benton, Ky., June 30.—The three Greer brothers are on trial here for the murder of an aged Negro last February. Witnesses testified that the brothers forced the old man at the point of a pistol to drink whisky and wine until he was hopelessly intoxicated. While drunk they beat him with heavy whips until he was senseless. They would revive him by burning him. They finally drove off with him in a wagon.

To witnesses who asked them to leave him alone they said they meant to finish him. The next morning the old fellow was found with his neck broken, hanging across a fence. The only defense offered by the brothers was that they were drunk.

Destructive Electrical Storm.

Pineville, Ky., June 30.—This part of the state was visited by a severe electrical storm and great damage is reported throughout Southeastern Kentucky. In Leslie and Clay counties houses were blown down, much forest destroyed and live stock killed. All the mountain streams are on a rampage and many sawlogs are flowing. It is reliably stated that further up the Cumberland river, in Harlan county, all crops are completely destroyed.

Expecting a New Indictment.

Richmond, Ky., June 30.—The indictment against Joe McDowell, charging him with absconding with funds belonging to the Estill County Deposit bank, were thrown out of court at Irvine. It is thought that the grand jury, which is now in session, will return new indictments against him. McDowell has explained all the discrepancies in his books, and it is not believed that he will be convicted.

Gov. Mount's Requisition Honored.

Frankfort, Ky., June 29.—The first official courtesy to be passed between the states of Kentucky and Indiana since Gov. Mount's refusal to honor Gov. Beckham's requisition for the extradition of W. S. Taylor occurred when Gov. Beckham honored the requisition of Gov. Mount for the extradition of Wm. Webb, who is under arrest at Louisville and is wanted for trial at Evansville, Ind., on a charge of grand larceny.

No Pay for Taylor's Soldiers.

Frankfort, Ky., June 29.—Gov. Beckham refused to approve accounts for services of the Taylor militia from the date Goebel was declared governor till the evacuation of the troops, after the decision of the supreme court. The whole sum claimed in salaries aggregated upwards of $50,000.

Taylor Back in Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 28.—W. S. and Mrs. Taylor arrived in Indianapolis and were met at the depot by their daughter. He had shaved his mustache since he left Indianapolis, and had a weary, hunted look. Two private detectives who acted as his bodyguard during the eastern trip came back with him.

Naval Cadets Named.

Williamstown, Ky., June 28.—Hubbard S. Needham, of this place, has received notice from Congressman A. S. Berry that he had named him as alternate, and a son of Dr. Lassing, of Boone county, principal, for appointment as cadet to the naval academy at Annapolis.

A Cloudburst at Geneva.

Henderson, Ky., June 29.—A telephone message from Geneva, six miles south of Henderson, reports a cloudburst there. The roadways were several feet under water and impossible of passages. Many bridges were washed away and fencing destroyed.

Awaits Result of Wounds.

Columbia, Ky., June 29.—The examining trial of Joe Aikins for shooting Charles Kingley at Sparksville last week was continued until Saturday to await the result of Kingley's wounds. Aikins is in jail.

Fable of the Small Bird.

Once upon a time there was a bantam rooster with an immense opinion of himself, and as he stood in the barnyard he said:

"I will make a stir in the world. I will attract attention."

Wherefore he began to crow lustily, although he had nothing much to crow about.

Now it happened that far above the bantam a hawk was wheeling in the circumambient air. The hawk had not seen the bantam, owing to the latter's diminutive proportions, but when the bantam crowed the hawk heard and in about 43 seconds had his claws full and was contentedly winging his flight homeward, while all was still below.

What Will Become of China?

None can foresee the outcome of the quarrel between foreign powers over the division of China. It is interesting to watch the going to pieces of this ancient but unprogressive race. The Lost Thrill.

"Have you ever felt the thrill that comes from having a sweet girl look up into your eyes and tell you that she loves you?"

"No. My nearest approach to it was when the loveliest maiden I ever knew put her arms around my neck, and with her sweet breath close to mine, said: 'George, I adore you.'"

"And you weren't thrilled by that?"

"Nope, I was just about to be thrilled when her father, who happened, without our knowledge or consent, to be standing back of me, got into action. I wouldn't insult the feeling I had by calling it a mere thrill."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Horrors of War.

The hardworked humorist sat at his desk, and without the slightest apparent effort he dashed this off:

"Why do you Peking here?" asked Tsi Ann of the Russian general, who was reconnoitering in the imperial neighborhood.

"Because I am going to Taku," was the fierce reply.

Yet such things as this were not mentioned among the horrors of war discussed at The Hague conference.—Baltimore American.

L. Joseph, agent for Schwartzchild, Sulzberger & Co., of New York, has purchased in Bourbon and adjoining counties, nearly 30,000 lambs, all to go between June 10 and Aug. 15. Prices from 5 to 5 3-4 cents.

It is estimated that nearly 100 of Angora goats are sold yearly to butchers in and near Chicago. The meat is a little darker and somewhat sweeter than that of sheep or lamb. It is sold as "mutton" and gives satisfaction to the consumer.

J. T. Larimore, a native of the Bluegrass region of Kentucky is now one of the most extensive and prosperous farmers in the Dakotas. In one field he has 7,500 acres of wheat 1,500 acres of oats and barley and 2,000 acres of flax. In the cultivation and harvesting of these immense crops about 500 laborers and as many mules and horses are constantly employed.

Mare mules are worth $10 more per head than horse mules, for the reason they are of better disposition, easier to keep, quieter to handle, better formed and tougher. Take a pair of well formed 15 to 16 hand mare mules, well broken, and there is no team to excel them for work. After working them all day remove the harness and turn them loose in the lot. They will take a good roll, most likely rolling over a dozen times, get up, shake themselves, go to the trough for a drink of water and are ready for their feed.

England has been working for years to get the United States into trouble with some of her European enemies, and it looks like she had found the right men to work her scheme through in McKinley and Hay.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

INTENSIVE VS. EXTENSIVE FARMING.

The successful farmer of the future must farm fewer acres and grow more per acre. Rotation of crops and diversified farming and stock raising are the plans to be adopted for laying the best foundation for the success of the future farmer, and, as it costs no more to raise a well bred animal than it does to raise a scrub, better sell off the inferior stock, and in the future raise none but the very best to consume the crops raised. Fewer animals in number and better ones to consume the grain and grass raised on fewer acres is the road to success in these days of small margins and sharp competition. The writer has observed one great mistake made by many farmers. They undertake to do too much, so that they have not time to give growing crops proper attention at the right time.

Better drop off one or two things in which there is the least profit, and put more time on other crops that pay better. The successful farmer of the future will find that he cannot afford to undertake more than he can do well. I have had experience enough to know that in farming many things must be done at the right time to secure a good and profitable crop. If we would have our potato patch and growing corn do their best, the ground should be stirred as soon as dry enough after every rain that falls, forming a crust on the surface. Every ton of clover hay that a man sells off his farm robs it of about $8 20 worth of fertility; every ton of timothy hay that he hauls away robs it of about $5 48, and every ton of wheat, $7 75.

Hence it is evident to every man that if we grow clover and timothy for the market it is only a question of time when the best of farms will become unproductive. We must practice more intensive farming and less extensive if we make farming pay in the future. We must plant fewer acres and raise more to the acre. Wheat at 50 cents per bushel and twelve to fifteen bushels per acre, does not pay expenses. But if we can so farm as to raise thirty or thirty-five bushels per acre then there would be some profit in raising 50 cent wheat. But the American farmer cannot afford to quit growing wheat if there be little or no profit in it, from the fact that we must rotate our crops in order to keep up the fertility of the soil.—M. Trussler, in Farmers' Guide.

At the Louisville convention it was decided to return to old way of choosing county committeemen. On the 3rd. day of November, 1900, the Democrats of the State are to meet at their various voting precincts and elect a committeeman to serve for four years. On the Monday following the precinct committeemen thus chosen are to meet at the county seat and organize by selecting a chairman and secretary, who may or may not be a member of said committee. When a vacancy occurs in the committee it shall be filled by the Democrats in the precinct in which such vacancy occurs after ten days notice, duly signed by the chairman and secretary of the committee, as to the time and place of holding said meeting.

OUR GLORIOUS COUNTRY.

Have you watched its marvelous growth? If not, The Weekly Enquirer wants to study the strides it has made. The first census of the United States was taken in 1810. Since then every succeeding ten years. The result has been as follows:

Year.	Population.	Year.	Population.
1810	7,239,881	1860	31,443,321
1820	9,633,822	1870	38,558,371

1840	17,069,453	1890	62,622,250
1850	23,191,876

Here you have the figures of a basis of calculation. The problem now is: What will be the population of the United States, excluding recent acquisitions. The result is usually announced in July of the census year.

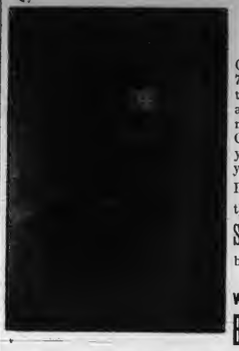
THE WEEKLY ENQUIRER is anxious to engage all in a study of their country. To this end it will distribute cash amounting to $25,000, for solutions received of the population of the United States Census, as follows:

To the first nearest correct guess received	$3,000.00
To the second	1,500.00
To the third	750.00
To the fourth	500.00
To the fifth	250.00
To the sixth	200.00
To the seventh	150.00
To the next 10, each $100, amounting to	1,000.00
To the next 50, each $50, amounting to	2,500.00
To the next 100, each $25, amounting to	2,500.00
To the next 500, each $10, amounting to	5,000.00
To the next 1,530, each $5, amounting to	7,650.00
2197 cash presents amounting to	$25,000.00

In case of a tie, money equally divided.

Every guess on the above proposition must be accompanied by a year's subscription to the WEEKLY ENQUIRER.

You can guess as often as you care to inclose subscription price to the WEEKLY ENQUIRER.



This contest will close a month before the result of the census will be known and officially certified by the Director of the United States Census at Washington, D. C.

Subscription price for the WEEKLY ENQUIRER (including guess) is only $1.00 a year. Eleven copies and eleven guesses for $10.00. For full particulars see WEEKLY ENQUIRER.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JULY 11, 1900. NO. 38

Senatorial primary election next Wednesday.

THE primary election to nominate a Democratic candidate for State Senator, will be held next Wednesday.

Remember the precinct meetings on next Saturday and the senatorial primary election on the Wednesday following.

EACH the great parties has its national ticket and its declaration of principles before the public, so the band can begin to play.

Nominate either of the candidates for State Senator, at the primary next Wednesday, and Dr. Furnish will have a worthy successor.

A TYPOGRAPHICAL error in the call for the precinct meetings as published last week gave Burlington precinct 6 and Florence 5 delegates. Florence is entitled to 6 and Burlington 5.

THE Democratic State convention that will meet in Lexington on the 19th inst. acting with the wisdom that characterized the Kansas City convention it will have done a great deal towards securing a victory in this State next fall.

THE comment of the Republican press on the Kansas City ticket and platform, sound very much like those of the Democratic press on the Philadelphia ticket and platform. But neither party was making a ticket for the other.

WHILE Judge Tarvin was shelling the woods here on the second the old time Republicans in the audience were elated, but when he turned his battery on Mark Hanna and Hannaism, their smiles were soon replaced by an "I-wish-I-was-not-here" look.

THE Democratic committee for this Congressional District met at Walton, last Saturday, to decide upon the manner, time and place of nominating a candidate for Congress. Hon. R. B. Brown, of Gallatin county was the only committeeman absent, he having not returned home from the Kansas City convention. The committee failed to take any action and adjourned until the 24th inst to meet again at the same place.

WHEN the Democrats of Boone meet in their respective voting precincts next Saturday afternoon to select delegates to the county convention to choose delegates to the State convention, they ought to select men who have the welfare of the party at heart—men who will oppose the sending of any delegate to Lexington who it is not absolutely certain will work for the best interests of the party in the State, and not simply that some local faction may gain an advantage. No man is greater than his party, and party interests should control the action of every delegate. Let the Democrats of Kentucky send their best representative men to Lexington. Don't pack the convention with a lot of politicians.

THE meeting of the District Congressional Committee at Walton, last Saturday, demonstrated pretty clearly that there are several gentlemen in this district who have their lightning rods up hoping that in case the nomination is made by a convention that conditions may arise under which they will be selected as a compromise candidate. This dark horse game ought to be set down on as it encourages discreditable scheming on the part of those who desire to obtain a nomination as the result of wrangles produced in conventions at their instance. The gentlemen who are known to be candidates for Congress in this district are as deserving and as well qualified as any candidate who may be sprung as a dark horse, and some one of them should be nominated. A convention may, in an honest effort to nominate, fail to agree upon any one of the candidates before it, and unite upon a person who has not been instrumental in bringing about the deak-lock for his special benefit, in which case the delegates are not victims of the tricks of the dark-horse politicians and often in such cases render their party the better service by naming one not previously a candidate.

The announcement from Washington that Senator Morgan, of Ala., would not attend the Kansas City convention is entirely superfluous. Senator Morgan has never attended a National convention of his party, and if we may believe a fellow Senator, he is opposed to such gatherings on principle. "He tells me," says this Senator, "that conventions violate one of the fundamental principles of the constitution; in that they virtually repeal that very wise provision which looks to the election of our Presidents by a body of chosen electors, very much as Senators are chosen by the State Legislature, instead of by people direct. "Conventions," he says, by nominating candidates for the Presidency, take away from the electors that freedom of choice which it was the intention to provide, so that instead of the electors choosing the President they merely record the will of the convention expressed in advance.

There undoubtedly has been a great departure from the original scheme of the constitution in this regard, though it cannot be said that it was not for the better. For many years after the forming of our government the Presidents were chosen without either conventions or platforms. The first election for President was a free for all in which no less than twelve candidates were voted for in the electoral college. Washington was chosen on the first ballot, though he did not receive a majority of all the votes cast and was the choice of only a plurality. At the second election there were five candidates, and again Washington won only by a plurality, his vote being exactly half of the total number cast. Adams was selected out of a field of thirteen candidates, and he, too, was a plurality winner. His total vote was but 71, no less than 205 electoral vote being cast against him, but he had three more than Jefferson, his next highest competitor.

In the election of 1800 both Adams and Jefferson were nominated by Congressional caucuses, and this introduced a system that prevailed until the election of 1824, when no caucuses were held and the election degenerated into a personal contest between Jackson, Clay, Adams and Crawford, with the result of no election at all, and the selection of Adams by the House. And here it is proper to note that not infrequently the vote of a State was divided in the electoral college. In this year, for example, New York cast 26 votes for Adams, 5 for Crawford, 4 for Clay and 1 for Jackson, thus showing what Senator Morgan means in speaking in freedom of choice.

In 1828 the candidates were presented through resolutions adopted by the various State Legislatures, but this system was received with anything but satisfaction. In 1832, and at the wish of President Jackson, the Democrats held the first National convention in the history of the country, adopting a little platform of three planks. And, curiously enough, the first plank of the first Democratic platform is the very one which the Republican party has presented as a fundamental doctrine from the beginning of the party's organization, the full text reading as follows:

"Resolved, That an adequate protection to American industry is indispensable to the prosperity of the country, and that an abandonment of the policy at this period would be attended with consequences ruinous to the best interests of the Nation."

In this year Republican (or Whig) and anti-Masonic National conventions were held also, but neither of them adopted a platform. In 1836 the Democrats held their second National convention, nominating Martin Van Buren, who was elected over William Henry Harrison—the latter having been nominated by several Legislatures. From that time on all the parties regularly held National conventions, the platforms gradually growing more voluminous and broader in scope.

The evolution of the National convention was a natural one, and grew out of a desire on the part of the people not only to know what their candidates stood for, but also to pledge them to some well defined principle or policy. It also had the effect of simplifying the elections by forestalling a multitude of candidates and lessoning the chance of the choice falling in the House. Before these conventions became the practice there had been no opportunity for the masses to express their choice on Presidential candidates, and neither could the people select issues on which they wished the contest waged.

Taking freedom of choice away from the electors is certainly not the evil that Senator Morgan seems to think. While, theoretically, the electors still have the right to vote for whomsoever they please, it is the part of good politics and an obligation of honor that they should vote for the man who is the choice of a majority of the people of the State which they represent. The method of leaving each elector free to exercise his own judgment offers too many opportunities for corruption, makes the elections too confusing and indefinite, and does not conform with the idea of States exercising their political power as a whole. One example will serve to show the danger of the system espoused by Senator Morgan. In 1824 the electors of New York were chosen by the Legislature on an agreement which gave so many to Adams, so many to Clay, so many to Crawford and so many to Jackson. When the college met the electors declined to feel themselves in honor bound to keep this agreement. Four that ought to have been for Clay went somewhere else and the result was that Clay fell behind Crawford in the whole college and became fourth in the race. As the constitution permitted the House, into which the election had been thrown, to vote for only three highest, Clay was deprived of the chance that the people and the Legislature wanted him to have.—Kansas City Journal.

In his "affairs at Washington" Joe Mitchell Chapple, editor of "The National Magazine," relates an interesting incident at the St. Louis convention in 1896, when William J. Bryan made up his mind to run for the Presidency.

As events are now shaping, the two men who are likely to be the leading candidates for the Presidency in 1900 possess the sterling qualities of American manhood, no matter how much at variance may be their party principles.

It seems but a short time since I was sitting at a reporter's desk adjoining William J. Bryan at the St. Louis convention, when William McKinley was nominated for the Presidency. I did not even know the name of the sincere and energetic man who filed dispatches early and often and kept the telegraph boys going at a lively pace. To the rest of us he was the "Omaha World Herald man." Attired in a black alpaca coat, a lay-down collar and white lawn necktie, my first impression of the busy worker was what a splendid successor he would make to Edwin Booth! His energy was not theatrical but dramatic.

During the demonstrations that followed the nomination and the adoption of the gold standard plank many of the newspapers men stood upon their desks, joining in the buzzas, throwing copy, paper, telegraph blanks and everyting moveable in the air.

With lips closed tightly and an expression of defiance on his face as he hurried off the dispatches, William J. Bryan made up his mind then and there to run for President and the comparatively unknown newspaper man here received an inspiration that a few weeks later swept the Chicago convention as a tidal wave. This is an instance showing the subtle and unexpected inter-relation of events in Presidential campaigns.

A Good Cough Medicine.

Many thousands have been restored to health and happiness by the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. If afflicted with any throat or lung trouble, give it a trial for it is certain to prove beneficial. Coughs that have resisted all other treatment for years, have yielded to this remedy and perfect health restored. Cases that seemed hopeless, that the climate of the famous health resorts failed to benefit, have been permanently cured by its use. For sale by W. F. McKim, Burlington; Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg, C. S. Balsly, Bullittsville, O. N. Grant, Bellevue.

The candidate of the Democracy differs with many of his most earnest supporters upon questions which are not at issue in this campaign. That in spite of these differences he still retains their loyal confidence and support is no less to the credit of their practical wisdom than it is a tribute to his fearlessness and honesty. They see in him a champion of the Constitution, of popular government and of what popular government was conceived to establish and conserve—the right of every citizen against infringement by one man or a thousand, or by the government itself.—Rochester Herald.

OWEN COUNTY.

[News]

The vast peach orchards at Gratz will yield an immense crop of the choicest fruit this season. It is reported that the production will be nearly twice as large as any previous year. With her mines abundantly rich with hidden treasures, and heavily laden orchards, Gratz is truly the "Eldorado" of Sweet Owen, the garden spot of the bluegrass.

A candidate for a prominent office was seen to pass through town the other day with a long, light pole. Upon being questioned as to what he proposed to do with it, said—to knock the persimmon, of course.

White Man Turned Yellow.

Great consternation was felt by the friends of M. A. Hogarty, of Lexington, Ky., when they saw he was turning yellow. His skin slowly changed color, also his eyes, and he suffered terribly. His malady was Yellow Jaundice. He was treated by the best doctors, but without benefit. Then he was advised to try Electric Bitters, the wonderful Stomach and Liver remedy, and he writes: "After taking two bottles I was wholly cured." A trial proves its matchless merit for all Stomach, Liver and Kidney troubles. Only 50c. Sold by W. F. McKim, Burlington; J. G. Oelsner, Florence; M. J. Crouch, Union.

POLITICAL.

The work that Thomas Jefferson began will be carried on by William J. Bryan.—N. Y. Journal.

The watchword of the platform is that "The life of the Republic is at Stake!"—Atlanta Constitution.

Altogether, the Democratic platform is a document that appeals to the best liberty-loving and liberty-maintaining spirit of the American people.—Toledo Bee.

This is not a battle to be fought over the standard of a currency; it is a battle for the Constitution as the standard and basis of popular government.—Rochester Herald.

In this great conflict William J. Bryan goes forth to battle as the champion of the people. We believe he will triumph. We are very sure he ought to triumph.—Pittsburg Post.

William J. Bryan represents in this campaign not alone the principles of Democracy, but the best interests and the highest aspirations of the American people.—Buffalo Courier.

A leader of the party in whose honesty the people have absolute confidence and to whose support a majority of them, we believe, will rally with great enthusiasm.—Atlanta Journal.

His position creates a new era in American politics, and one that will always reflect luster on the name of William J. Bryan as a leader and a statesman.—Rocky Mountain News.

Upon all phases of all the questions involved in the issue of imperialism the Democratic platform is clear, straightforward, admirable. There is no evasion, no juggling.—St. Louis Post Dispatch.

The Record does not agree with Mr. Bryan and the Chicago platform, but it admires his courage and consistency and his unwillingness to make a pretense of being the thing he is not.—Philadelphia Record.

Not since the days of Andrew Jackson has such a man stood before the people—and the Young Hickory of Nebraska may be depended upon as was the Old Hickory of Tennessee.—Atlanta Constitution.

No one can accuse the Democrats of dodging. The platform is positive on every issue. It is an aggressive platform. The foremost issue is, as it should be, imperialism whether America is to be republic or empire.—Nashville American.

In recognizing imperialism, militarism, trusts and the questions growing out of the war with Spain as the leading issues of the presidential contest, the Committee on Resolutions and the convention have shown that they are not wholly ignorant of the situation.—Baltimore Sun.

The Democratic national platform adopted by the Kansas City convention is broad enough for all Americans, who desire their government to be replaced upon the foundations upon which its framers builded it, to stand. It is a tailsman of success. It is a pressage of victory. It is a bow of promise set in the skies of November.—Kansas City Times.

It is plain that during these four years Mr. Bryan has been a growing man. He has impressed himself upon his party and upon the country. His energy, his zeal, his sincerity, have not been and can not be questioned, even by his most implacable foes. An honest man, whose honesty is recognized and admired, is a power in himself, and Mr. Bryan is an honest man.—Chicago Chronicle.

Mr. Bryan has been placed on a platform worthy of him. It deals directly and fearlessly with the issues of which the people are thinking. At the head of all it places the question of Republic or empire. That is the most fundamentally important question with which the American people have ever had to deal, for it goes to the very root of our national identity.—New York Journal.

THE probability is a special election for State Senator will be held early in August, which will necessitate the holding of the primary election at an earlier date than that fixed.

As a matter of fact nobody would place any special reliance in anything that either Grosvenor or Quigg might say.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

Mr. Foraker is not giving out any explanations of the Philadelphia platform. He probably feels that it has been explained too much.—Washington Post.

Having been quiet for a long time, ex-Governor Pingree may be expected to make a few remarks as to temperate as a prohibition platform.—Minneapolis Journal.

By putting Roosevelt on his ticket Hanna no doubt counted on turning the attention of the cartoonist away from his own face in this campaign.—Salt Lake Herald.

It is not exactly complimentary to the Republican platform to see Brother Quigg and Grosvenor so vigorously repudiating their alleged parts in its authorship.—Pittsburg Press.

Mr. George B. Cox, of Ohio, has forfeited all claims he ever had to belong to the genuine order of bosses. He was a National Committeeman and resigned.—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

An equally ugly gap between premises and conclusion confronts us in the argument that Mr. McKinley's second term will be a vast improvement over his first.—New York Evening Post.

William Waldorf Astor has got into a "personal difficulty" with a British Captain who is said to have very blue and bellicose blood in his veins. What a fighting world this is getting to be!—N. Y. World.

George B. Cox's withdrawal from the Republican National Committee has created a gigantic sensation in Ohio. The spectacle of an Ohio man withdrawing from anything is more than odd.—Washington Post.

Besides running the Republican organization, the Administration and one or two less important things, Senator Mark Hanna has been quoted as undertaking to settle the woman's suffrage.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

General Otis is keeping very quiet. He is doubtless thankful that he no longer has to explain how an almost daily skirmish is incidental to the conclusion of peace in the Philippines.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

The standing army of the United States has been more than doubled since Mr. McKinley came into office, and notice has been given that an additional increase is desired. In fact, an increase is necessary if we go on with our present imperial policy.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

Whether Senator Hoar supports one man or another is a matter of small importance, but when he defines a moral issue and then tramples on his conscience in full view of the public his action invites the attention of those who are interested in such things.—Atlanta Constitution.

THE Democrats of this county must bear in mind that the primary election will be held on the 18th of July, instead of the date at first fixed by the district committee. This change of date was made necessary by the Governor's call for the special election to be held on the 6th day of August. This hurries the candidates up a little more than they anticipated, but as they are both well known in the county, a considerable vote will, no doubt, be polled, notwithstanding the election will be held in the middle of the week.

What is commonly known as the "measuring" or "span" worm has made its appearance in the section of country surrounding Richmond, Ind., and is doing vast damage to young fruit trees.

A mystery with which every sailor is familiar is the formation of dust at sea. Those who are acquainted with sailing ships know that, no matter how careful the decks may be washed down in the morning, and how little work of any kind may be done during the day, nevertheless, if the decks are swept at nightfall, an enormous quantity of dust will be collected.

Until the discovery of deposits of lime in the Calico mountains borax had been a product of the marsh and of methods the simplest, admitting no improvement in mechanical appliances. An entirely new era opened with the discovery of borate of lime in stratified rock formation. Thenceforward the industry was transformed into a proposition akin to that of quartz mining.

An Italian military officer has produced a new explosive. He makes use of the explosive properties of water electrically decomposed; he incloses this in a box or other steel receptacle hermetically sealed. It explodes with a force more than 50 times greater than gunpowder, and nearly 30 times greater than dynamite. He is adapting this to rifle cartridges, and the Italian government is making tests in Turin. It is called Cosmos.

Adm. Lord Charles Beresford is virtually revolutionizing the Mediterranean squadron, especially as regards its gunnery. He is insisting on the utmost attention being paid to accuracy of fire, both with large guns and rifles, and is manifesting the utmost ingenuity in devising targets of a novel character. He is likewise initiating and taking part in gun-room debates on all matters likely to quicken the intelligence of the officers and men under his orders.

The only place in the world where violin making may be said to constitute the staple industry is Markneukirchen, in Saxony, with its numerous surrounding villages. There are altogether about 15,000 people in this district engaged exclusively in the manufacture of violins. The inhabitants, from the small boy and girl to the wrinkled, grey-headed veteran and aged grandmother, are all constantly employed making some part or other of this musical instrument.

One of the consequences of the installation of a corn kitchen in the agricultural section of the United States exhibit at the Paris exposition is a widespread agitation in France in favor of the appointment of a government commission to visit this country and ascertain the best means of introducing corn in France. The cereal already has won some recognition in Europe, and in the course of a few years the exportation seems likely to be of large proportions.

Capt. Francis Martin, of Detroit, the oldest American naval officer alive, has just celebrated his one hundredth birthday. He was second lieutenant six years before Adm. Dewey was born. He entered the government service in 1831, and has been in it ever since, getting his first commission from Andrew Jackson. A month before attaining his majority he witnessed the funeral of Napoleon Bonaparte, the vessel on which he was serving having put into St. Helena for water.

It is interesting to know from a dealer in jewels that pearls are in particularly good health this summer. "Good health" is the expression of the dealer, and he meant it literally. "These gems are particularly liable to disease," he said. "Commercially, the health of a pearl refers to its luster, and when it becomes dull, you may know that it is sick. Salt water is the only tonic that is known to be efficacious in such cases, and after being immersed in brine for several days, the gems will be found to be restored to their usual health.

Miss Sarah Moore Ross, aged 96 years, passed away at the house of her niece, Mrs. Jared Haines, No. 34 Franklin street, Newark, N. J., a few days ago. She was born in 1804 in a house on the site now occupied by the State bank building, in Broad street, and was the daughter of James and Margaret Ross. Miss Ross was one of the 13 girls, representing the original 13 colonies and states, who strewed flowers before Lafayette when he visited Newark. She was a beautiful girl, and Gen. Lafayette how[illegible] and kissed her.

Manila, July 8.—The court-martial convened for the purpose of hearing the charges against Col. James S. Pettit, of the 31st volunteer infantry, who was accused of violating the sixty-second article of war in making an arrangement with President Medell, of Samboango, for the capture of Juan Ramos, and who was afterward transferred to Medell and killed, has brought in a verdict of acquittal. Gen. MacArthur in reviewing the evidence, disapproved of the finding of the court-martial. The acquittal, it is announced, restored Col. Pettit to duty in his regiment.

Wilder, 43rd Infantry, United States volunteers, consisting of four troops of native scouts, having a maximum of 120 men to a troop, engaged to serve until July 30, 1901, unless sooner discharged. The barracks at Caloocan have been designated as the rendezvous of the squadron.

TO THE PHILIPPINES.

Over 6,000 Regulars to Be Sent, with a View to Utilize Them in Cuba, If Found Necessary.

Washington, July 8.—As a result of a thorough consideration of the subject by the Secretary of War Gen. Miles and Gen. Corbin orders were issued by the war department Saturday afternoon for the dispatch of 6,254 regular troops to the Philippines with a view to their utilization in China, in case it is found necessary to divert them to that country. These troops are intended primarily to relieve the volunteers in the Philippines, and will only be diverted to China in the event that circumstances demand it.

The force is made up of two battalions, each of the 15th, 2nd, 5th and 8th infantry, two squadrons each of the 1st and 9th cavalry, one squadron of the 3rd cavalry and a company of engineers.

These troops will be forwarded as rapidly as transportation arrangements can be perfected, and the entire fleet of transports at San Francisco and New York will be employed in the work.

SCOUTING IN LUZON.

Eleven Americans Killed and Sixteen Wounded—Many of the Enemy Were Slain.

Manila, July 9.—The past week's scouting in Luzon resulted in 11 Americans being killed and 16 wounded. One hundred and sixty Filipinos were killed during the week, and eight Americans who had been prisoners in the hands of the rebels were surrendered and 100 rifles were turned over to the United States officials.

The enemy ambushed a wagon train between Indang and Naic. The 3d infantry lost nine men while on an expedition to punish the Ladrones in the delta of the Rio Grande.

In the Antigan, province of Panay, a running fight of three hours' duration resulted in the killing or wounding of 70 of the enemy. There were no casualties among the Americans.

The insurgents are slowly accepting the amnesty provisions. In some instances the Americans are suspending operations in order to give the rebels an opportunity to take advantage of the decree.

DIED IN MANILA.

The Demise of Capt. Robert B. Huston, a Native of Hamilton, O., Reported to the War Office.

Washington, July 9.—A dispatch from Gen. MacArthur, dated Manila, Saturday, announces the death of Capt. Robert B. Huston, 47th United States Infantry, by typhoid fever at Manila Friday.

Capt. Huston was born at Hamilton, O., January 25, 1864, and was appointed to the volunteer army from Guthrie, O. T., May 4, 1898, and served as captain of the First Volunteer Cavalry (Rough Riders) during the Santiago campaign. He was appointed major of volunteers September 30, 1898, and was honorably discharged May 24, 1899.

August 27, 1899, he was appointed captain of the 47th Infantry.

A Glacier Disintegrates.

Tacoma, Wash., July 8.—The steamer Queen, from Alaska, brings further news of the presumed disintegration of the famous Muir glacier. The sea in its vicinity was found full of floating ice, broken from the face of the glacier. It was impossible to get near enough to find out just how badly the glacier is damaged.

Railways in Receivers' Hands.

Washington, July 9.—The statistical report of the interstate commerce commission for the year ended June 30, 1899, shows that the number of railways in the hands of receivers on that date was 71, a net decrease of 23 as compared with June 30, 1898.

Havana's New Charter.

Havana, July 9.—The new charter for the city of Havana will go into effect immediately after its publication this week. The powers of the recently elected officials are thereby greatly increased.

ASSAULTED BY BOERS.

An Ineffective Attack on British Garrison at Fickburg.

Three Thousand Rebels Encountered on July 6, and 33 British Soldiers Were Killed Near Brookerspruit.

London, July 6.—Lord Roberts reports from Pretoria that Lieut. Rundle, of the carbineers, and a patrol were captured by the Boers near Pretoria on July 4. He also says trains are running to Greyliugstadt, Natal; that several respectable Boers have surrendered recently; that a soldiers' home has been opened at Heidelberg, the inhabitants subscribing the initial expenses, and that a total of 2,631 stands of arms have been delivered to Gen. Barton at Klerksdorp, Krugersdorp and Potchefstroom, all in the Transvaal.

The cordon around Gen. De Wet appears still to be wide—at least, he has not yet been cornered. Dispatches from the front, except official ones, deal with trifles or vague probabilities.

The Daily Telegraph's Lourenco Marques correspondent attempted on July 4 to interview President Kruger at Watervalonder. President Kruger was there, but he deputed State Secretary Reitz to talk. "President Kruger wishes through me to reveal what he has said over and over—that he will continue to fight. Such is our decision."

Dr. Conan Doyle, writing to the British Medical Journal, says he thinks that there were 10,000 to 12,000 cases of enteric fever at one time. Six hundred patients died at Bloemfontein in one month. Dr. Doyle declares that the physicians did all they could.

London, July 7.—Gen. Paget is moving toward the heart of the country held by De Wet.

Lord Roberts telegraphed to the war office, under date of Pretoria, July 6, 2:25 p. m., as follows:

"Paget engaged the enemy on July 3 successfully at Pleisirfontein. He drove them out of a very strong position across Leeuw Kop to Broncrifontein, where he bivouacked for the night. He followed up the enemy, and on the afternoon of July 4 was at Blaauw Kopje, 14 miles northwest of Bethlehem. He reports that all of Steyn's government officials except the treasurer general, who has gone to Vrede, are at Bethlehem, which has been proclaimed the capital. Steyn himself is reported to have taken flight to the mountains. Buller reports the line to Heidelberg restored, thus completing railway communication between Pretoria and Natal."

Lourenco Marques on Friday learned that the Boers are showing fresh activity. A British force is reported within 40 miles of Koomatipoort.

London, July 9.—Late news from South Africa reports that the Boers ineffectually attacked Gen. Buller's escort between Standerton and Heidelberg on Saturday as he was returning from a visit to Lord Roberts.

The Boers attacked Ficksburg garrison at midnight on Tuesday, but were driven off after 45 minutes' fighting.

Gen. Brabant on July 5 occupied Doruberg, between Senekal and Wiuburg, which served as a base for bands assailing convoys. Col. Mahon, of Gen. Hutton's mounted troops, on July 6 and 7 engaged 3,000 Boers east of Brookerspruit and drove them off. The British casualties numbered 35.

Commandant Lemmer tried to recapture Rustenburg on July 5, but was driven back.

Thirty-four of the Strathcona horse under Lieut. Anderson were attacked by 200 Boers east of Standerton on July 6. The British soon took possession of a kopje, upon which they successfully withstood the attacks of the enemy.

The Times' Lourenco Marques correspondent says: "A general movement of Boer settlers into Gazaland, Portuguese territory, seems to be in contemplation. Already large herds have been driven across the border. The Portuguese welcome the movement."

THE PATENT OFFICE.

Receipts Were $1,358,228, a Larger Sum Than Any Previous Year—Number of Patents 26,540.

Washington, July 9.—A summary of the year's work in the patent office by Commissioner Duell shows the cash receipts to have been $1,358,228, a larger sum than in any previous fiscal year. The total number of patents, 26,540, also breaks the record. There has been a corresponding increase in the number of trademarks and labels registered.

A corresponding increase for the coming year will necessitate some addition to the already increased force of the office.

The commissioner urges the erection of suitable building to be occupied solely by the patent office.

A Double Hanging.

Fayville, La., July 8.—Sim Parker and Bell McSwayne, colored, were hanged here. They were given absolution according to the rites of the Catholic church. The two Negroes murdered Frank C. Purnell in a fiendish manner on April 7.

Brigade Encampment.

Springfield, Ill., July 8.—The entire 1st brigade Illinois national guard arrived Saturday at Camp Lincoln. Twenty-six hundred and twenty-five men are in camp. This is the first brigade encampment held for years.

THEY MAY FUSE.

The Populite National Committee Decides to Join Issues With the Democrats in the Fall Campaign.

Kansas City, Mo., July 8.—Practical fusion between the populist and democratic parties on the presidential tickets has been decided upon by the populist national committee. Unless present plans are changed, however, the democratic vice presidential candidate will not be endorsed, whether or not Charles A. Towne decides to withdraw his name as the candidate of the populist party, as this, it is feared, would result in a large defection to the middle-of-the-road populists. C. A. Towne left for home late Saturday afternoon, and will stop over at Lincoln, at the invitation of W. J. Bryan. The whole situation will be thoroughly discussed, and upon Mr. Bryan's views on the matter will depend in a large measure Mr. Towne's decision in regard to the vice presidency. He will not announce his decision until he has also conferences with other leaders in both the democratic and populist parties, and until he does communicate with the populist national committee, which will not be for several days at least, that body will take no further action. In case Mr. Towne decides to withdraw his name as the vice presidential candidate of the populist party, the national committee will select another candidate.

The sentiment apparently is against the endorsement of Mr. Stevenson, on account of the peculiar conditions existing in several of the western states, notably Kansas, Nebraska and South Dakota, where the populist leaders fear the straight endorsement of the democratic ticket would jeopardize the success of the ticket. But the parties will work together in this way: In the states where the populist strength is the greater, the understanding will be that the electors on both tickets will favor Bryan and Towne. This will apply especially to the western states. In the eastern states and other sections where the populists admit their party is distasteful to the democrats, the electoral tickets will be for Bryan and Stevenson.

In the electoral college, according to the general plan as outlined, it is the intention to unite the vote, probably on Mr. Stevenson. This general plan was outlined at the meeting of the populist national committee, which was held Friday night at the close of the meeting between the conference committees of the democratic, populist and silver republican parties, and which adjourned early Saturday, after a protracted debate.

"The whole idea is to concentrate our forces and work for the success of Wm. J. Bryan," said former Congressman Ridgely, of Kansas, Saturday. "The democratic platform and ticket is satisfactory to us, but peculiar conditions exist in many states where our strength is the greatest, and we consider it advisable to have a complete populist ticket in the field, as in this way we can best hold our forces."

Lincoln, Neb., July 9.—While Mr. Towne has not announced for publication his decision in the matter, it is here regarded as practically settled that he will withdraw from the populist ticket as a candidate for vice president, and that the name of Adlai Stevenson will be substituted by the national committee.

CLAIM A VIOLATION.

Possibility of the Street Car Strike in St. Louis Being Renewed Before Long.

St. Louis, July 9.—The executive committee of the local branch of the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employes of American decided to call a mass meeting to consider the relations existing between the St. Louis Transit Co. and its employes. It is asserted by the executive committee that the agreement signed by President Whitaker, of the Transit Co., and Chairman Edwards, of the strikers' grievance committee, whereby the strike was declared off, has been violated by the former.

President Whitaker, it is charged, instead of hiring the men on the list furnished, according to the agreement by the grievance committee, is taking on new men. This alleged action is causing considerable hard feeling on the part of the men who have been out of work ever since the strike began on May 8, and may result in its renewal.

The advisability of resuming the strike will be passed upon at the mass meeting. Not only were the street car men actively engaged in shaping up matters for a renewal of the fight, but all other branches of organized labor in the city met and by a practically unanimous vote decided to tender their moral and financial support to the railway men if they decided to renew the fight.

Third Matrimonial Trip.

Valparaiso, Ind., July 9.—Peter Freemnu, aged 84 years, and Mrs. Eleanor M. Young, aged 79 years, both of Furnessville, were married. Both have been married twice before.

Odds On McKinley.

New York, July 8.—Jacob Field, a stock trader, and C. A. Starbuck, of the New York Air Brake Co., made a bet of $20,000 to $5,000, Field taking the $20,000 end with McKinley. Several small bets at 3 to 1 on McKinley were made on 'Change.

Nominated for Governor.

Little Rock, Ark., July 8.—The republican state convention met here Saturday and nominated Hon. H. J. Remmel, of Little Rock, for governor. The convention decided to leave the remainder of the ticket blank.

CONTRADICTORY NEWS

The Safety of the Foreigners in Peking Still in Doubt.

An American Force, in Great Peril, Relieved by the Allied Forces—Russians and British Fought Their Way Through.

London, June 9.—The foreign consuls at Shanghai met on July 7 and officially announced that the legations at Peking were safe on July 4. The foregoing statement, read with Consul Warren's dispatch to the foreign office on Saturday, makes it possible to believe that the legations will hold out for a number of days yet. Having fought to a standstill the first outbursts of fanatical fury, it is believable that something may intervene to save them.

The news, after the sinister rumors of the last ten days, is enough upon which to build up hopes. Tien-Tsin is still hard pressed. A Chinese force numbering from 80,000 to 100,000 men, as estimated by inconclusive reconnoisances, floods the country roundabout Tien-Tsin, communication between which place and Taku is apparently possible by river only.

A Che-Foo dispatch to the Express says the Russians have landed 8,000 men at Taku, and the Japanese have discharged several transports. The Japanese pushed on to Tien-Tsin, leading in the subsequent assault upon the native city, in which their commander was killed. Ten more transports are engaged at Japanese ports. With the 10,000 British India troops afloat and fresh Japanese contingents, it is quite probable that the allies will have 50,000 men ashore.

The disorders in the provinces appear to be increasing in violence. A Chinese army is within 40 miles of New Chwang, and the foreigners are preparing to abandon their homes. The southern part of the province is swept by raiders, who are destroying all works of the white men except in ports garrisoned by Russians. Proclamations have been posted in all villages near Che-Foo calling upon the loyal Chinese to rise and expel the foreigners for introducing among the pious Chinese an immoral religion. Every good Buddhist is expected to kneel three hours daily. Knock his head upon the floor thrice and pray earnestly that sudden, cruel death may overtake all aliens.

The foreign settlement at Che-Foo is at the mercy of two Chinese forts equipped with Krupp guns which command two sides of the city. Six warships, including the United States gunboat Nashville, are constantly cleared for action.

The correspondents at Shanghai, who are still the clearing house of all Chinese news, say that a combined force of Russians and Japanese has left Tien-Tsin, following the railway as far as Lang Fang, and have thence swept swiftly to the west, attacking the Chinese 18 miles north of Tien-Tsin and killing 1,000 of them.

The provisional government at Peking appears to have designs upon the southern provinces.

London, July 8.—An undated Tien-Tsin dispatch to the Daily Mail, sent by way of Che-Foo July 1, says that the relieving force of 1,700 Russians and 300 British, after fighting their way, met an American relief force, 200 strong, which had started three days previously, in the most dire straits. One American officer in despair committed suicide.

The dispatch concludes by saying that there is no rain, no crops and a prospect of pestilence and famine.

Brussels, July 9.—A dispatch from Shanghai received here says that, according to a high Chinese official, the two legations which were still holding out on July 2 were the object of incessant attacks. There had been some losses among the troops guarding the legations, but the diplomatists were safe.

The dispatch also says the loyal troops under Prince Ching, who is heading a counter revolution, had attacked the rebels in Peking. The governor of Shang Tung, according to the same official, is reported to have declined to obey Prince Tuan's orders to seize Nanking.

Further dispatches from Shanghai say the legations were holding out on July 3; that the rebels had been repulsed with a loss of 2,000, and that the Boxers were discouraged. They also report that a Chinese journal confirms the announcement of Prince Ching's counter revolution in Peking.

London, July 9.—The consuls at Shanghai report that the Peking legations were safe on July 4 and that the Chinese had ceased their attacks. The only fear felt at that time, according to the reports of the consuls, was regarding the food supplies.

Berlin, July 9.—A dispatch from Tien-Tsin says the Russians unsuccessfully bombarded the native town on July 2. The strength of the allied troops is about 10,000. There is no fresh news regarding the situation in Peking.

The American Boys Won.

Stamford Bridge, July 8.—The American athletes won the international championship Saturday by overwhelming their English competitors. Thus far they have won seven of the twelve events. The British have won four.

Orders to Recruit Troops.

Chicago, July 9.—Gen. Jos. Wheeler, commanding the department of the lakes, has received orders to recruit four companies of the 5th regiment, now at Ft. Sheridan, to the full quota as rapidly as possible.

War Notes from China.

The imperial arsenal at Sing-li is running nights, making metal shields with scare heads on them.

Prince Bung is buying up all the two-handed wooden swords for the use of the royal guard.

Twenty stands of firecracker guns have been seized in the province of Taka-Nip.

Handles are being fitted to a thousand dozen enameled toasting forks.

Two hundred assorted kites in the shape of demoniac dragons are to be sent up to frighten away the foreign dogs.

Twenty-five thousand war gongs are being lacquered in colors and provided with bamboo thumpers. These will be beaten upon as soon as the white devils appear and are expected to throw them into a blue panic.

There is a brisk demand for Canton matting bombproofs with rice paper prayers gummed on them. These are certain to turn aside the shells from the invaders' heavy siege guns.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

BRYAN AND STEVENSON

They Are the Democratic Standard Bearers in the Presidential Campaign of 1900.

Both Received the Nomination at the Kansas City National Convention on the First Ballots.

PLATFORM ADOPTED IS QUITE LENGTHY

It Declares That Imperialism is the Paramount Issue of the Coming Political Struggle.

It Opposes Expansion, Militarism and Trusts and Declares for the Free Coinage of Silver at the Ratio of 16 to 1.

Kansas City, Mo., July 4.—Amid scenes of tumultuous enthusiasm befitting such an event and such a day, the democratic national convention began its session. But after sitting until a late hour at night the expected climax of the day—the nomination of William J. Bryan as the democratic candidate for president—has failed of realization, and all of the larger business of the convention awaits the completion of the platform.

The committee on resolutions, after a session lasting until 3:30 in the morning, decided for an explicit declaration for silver coinage at 16 to 1. The vote was 27 to 23.

Thursday's Session.

Kansas City, Mo., July 5.—At 11 o'clock a. m. Thursday the slender figure of Chairman Richardson loomed up above the platform assemblage. He swung the gavel lustily, and above the din faintly could be heard his calls for order. Slowly quiet was brought out of the confusion, and the chairman presented Rt. Rev. John J. Clennin for the opening invocation, the entire audience, delegates and spectators, standing, reverently, with bowed heads, while the words of the prayer echoed through the building.

With the conclusion of the prayer, Chairman Richardson made an earnest appeal to the delegates and spectators to preserve order so that the work of the convention might proceed without undue interruption. Sergeant-at-Arms Martin added another appeal, particularly to delegates, not to bring their wives upon the floor reserved for delegates, as it kept other delegates from the seats to which they are entitled. Mr. Richardson now announced that the platform committee was not ready to report. Pending word from them he invited to the platform ex-Gov. Hogg, of Texas, to address the convention. The giant form of the Texan advanced to the front and was greeted enthusiastically. He was in good voice, and his words reverberated through the hall.

When he declared that the party did not propose to surrender one iota of its attitude in 1896, as promulgated by the Chicago convention, there was round after round of cheers. But this broke into a whirlwind of approving shouts when the governor asserted that the party's platform must contain an unequivocal and specific declaration for 16 to 1. It was noticeable that the delegates joined with the body of spectators in the tribute to the 16 to 1 idea. Gov. Hogg arraigned the policy of the present administration in the Philippines and foreign affairs generally, its subservicney to trusts. He closed with a prediction that the platform appealing for a correction of existing evils would bring victory in November.

At the termination of Gov. Hogg's address, Chairman Richardson stepped forward to say a few words to Sergeant-at-Arms Martin, and the crowd took advantage of the opportunity to start the cry of "Hill." It came from all quarters of the galleries, but practically little of it from the delegates. Mingled with the calls were hisses.

Chairman Richardson wielded the gavel vigorously, and when order was restored in some degree, announced:

"Gentlemen: I have the honor to introduce to you Hon. A. M. Dockery, Missouri's favorite son."

Mr. Dockery was warmly received.

The first mention of Dewey's name since the opening of the convention was made by Mr. Dockery while discussing the Philippine question, but the name of the famous admiral was received without a ripple of applause. He closed his remarks with the assurance of democratic success and the celebration of the centennial of Jefferson's nomination next November.

At the conclusion of the speech of Mr. Dockery, Mayor D. S. Rose, of Milwaukee, was called to the platform to address the convention. He made a fine impression instantly. Attired in a black sack suit, and standing easily and speaking fluently, he soon stirred the audience. His voice was clear and ringing and penetrated to the uttermost parts of the hall.

"Hill," "Hill," came the cry again as Mr. Rose concluded, but the New Yorker was not present and the bands broke out with the "Star Spangled Banner." The patriotic strains had no sooner subsided than another Hill wave passed over the assemblage, delegates going with the spectators, while some of the New Yorkers sought to offset the demand by shouting for, "Grady," "Grady."

Again the band came to the rescue. The hurrahs for Hill gave way to Dixie.

At every pause, however, the Hill supporters clamored for their favorite.

At 12:30 p. m., Gov. Beckham, of Kentucky, was introduced and the convention arose and cheered. The demonstration was confined almost wholly to the delegates. The governor addressed the convention.

After the cheers with which Gov. Beckham's speech was received had subsided, one of the delegates in Montana started the tuneful old song, "My Old Kentucky Home," and one verse of it was sung with vigor, the singing being followed by greet cheering as the young governor resumed his seat.

The convention then adjourned until 3 p. m.

Kansas City, Mo., July 5.—William J. Bryan, of Nebraska, was unanimously placed in nomination as the democratic candidate for president of the United States on a platform opposing imperialism, militarism and trusts and specifically declaring for the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1. The nomination came as the culmination of a frenzied demonstration in honor of the party leader lasting 27 minutes and giving utterance to all the pent-up emotions of the vast multitude. It followed also a fierce struggle throughout the last 36 hours concerning the platform declaration on silver and on the relative position which the silver question is to maintain to the other great issues of the day.

The convention had adjourned to meet at 3 o'clock, but it was after 4 before the chairman called it to order, the delay being on account of the platform committee not being ready to report. As soon as order was restored Chairman Jones reported the platform and it was read by Senator Tillman. It is as follows:

The Platform.

"We the representatives of the democratic party of the United States, assembled in national convention, on the anniversary of the adoption of the Declaration of Independence, do reaffirm our faith in that immortal proclamation of the inalienable rights of man and our allegiance to the constitution, framed in harmony with the fathers of the republic.

"We hold with the United States supreme court that the Declaration of Independence is the spirit of our government, of which the constitution is the form and letter. We declare again that all governments instituted among men derive their just powers from the consent of the governed; that any government not based upon the consent of the governed is a tyranny and that to impose on any people a government of force is to substitute the methods of imperialism for those of a republic.

Imperialism the Paramount Issue.

"We hold that the constitution follows the flag, and denounce the doctrine that an executive of congress deriving their existence and their powers from the constitution can exercise lawful authority beyond it or in violation of it. We assert that no nation can long endure half republic and half empire, and we warn the American people that imperialism abroad will lead quickly and inevitably to despotism at home.

"Believing in these fundamental principles we denounce the Porto Rico law enacted by a republican congress against the protest and opposition of the democratic minority as a bold and open violation of the nation's organic law and a flagrant breach of the national good faith. It imposes upon the people of Porto Rico a government without their consent and taxation without representation. It dishonors the American people by repudiating a solemn pledge made in the name and with the implied honor of the nation, and doubly brands the perfidy by relegating a people, whose only crime consists in their love of liberty and their determination to govern themselves, to the position of vassals and serfs.

"We denounce the action of the administration in sending the army of the United States to the Philippine islands to suppress with military force the efforts of our former allies to achieve liberty and self-government.

"We point out that the Filipinos, following the example set by us in our own declaration of independence, proclaimed their right to self-government, and established a government of their own, republican in form, and modeled after the government of the United States; that the government was functionating successfully in the performance of all the duties of civil government when the president of the United States, without consulting congress, without giving the Filipinos a hearing, without allowing them to present their claims to our government, and without giving our government an opportunity to consider their claims, ordered our army to attack the government of the Filipinos, and thereby began the war of conquest which has since been waged.

"We condemn the course of the administration in this matter, and especially condemn the cruelties which have been inflicted upon the Filipinos by our troops, the suppression of the free speech and free press, the starvation of prisoners, the destruction of property, the violation of the constitutional guarantees, and the creation of a condition of affairs in the islands which has destroyed all semblance of civil government and has installed in place thereof military despotism more cruel than any existing in the world.

"We call upon the president as commander-in-chief, and upon congress as the only power competent under the constitution to declare war, to put forth their constitutional power to end the war in the Philippines and to give to the Filipinos the opportunity to establish a government of their own.

"We denounce the greed of commercialism which dictated the Philippine policy of the republican administration attempts to justify it with the plea that it will pay, but even this sordid and unworthy plea fails when brought to the test of facts. The war of criminal aggression against the Filipinos, entailing an annual expense of many millions, has already cost more than any possible profit that could accrue from the entire Philippine trade for years to come. Furthermore, when trade is extended at the expense of liberty the price is always too high. We are not opposed to such expansion as shall open markets in desirable territory which can be erected into states in the union and admitted on an equality with the sovereign American citizens.

Trusts.

"We recognize that the existence of trusts and combinations organized to control the production and sale of many articles of general use is the direct result of the policy of protection, and we therefore denounce protection as the parent of trusts.

"We demand the prompt and honest fulfillment of our pledge to the Cuban people and the world that the United States has no disposition or intention to exercise sovereignty, jurisdiction or control over the island of Cuba, except for its pacification.

"The war ended nearly two years ago, profound peace reigns over all the island, and still the administration keeps the government of the island from its people, while republican carpet-bag officials plunder its revenues and exploit the colonial theory to the disgrace of the American people.

"We condemn and denounce the Philippine policy of the present administration. It has embroiled the republic in a war of conquest, entailed the slaughter of our army, which the Porto Ricans welcomed to a peaceful and unresisted occupation of their land. It doomed to poverty and distress a people whose helplessness appeals with peculiar force to our justice and magnanimity. In this, the first act of its imperialism program, the republican party seeks to commit the United States to a colonial policy inconsistent with republican institutions and condemned by the supreme court in numerous decisions.

"We demand the prompt and honest fulfillment of our pledge to the Cuban people and the world that the United States has no disposition or intention to exercise sovereignty, jurisdiction or control over the island of Cuba, except for its pacification.

"We condemn and denounce the Philippine policy of the present administration. It has embroiled the republic in an unnecessary war, sacrificed the lives of many of its noblest sons and placed the United States, previously known and applauded throughout the world as the champion of freedom, in the false and unAmerican position of crushing with military force the efforts of our former allies to achieve liberty and self-government.

"We point out Jefferson's declaration of the nation's purpose to give to the Filipinos, first: A stable form of government; second, independence, and third, protection from outside interference, such as has been given for nearly a century to the republics of Central and South America.

"The greed of commercialism which dictated the Philippine policy of the republican administration attempts to justify it with the plea that it will pay, but even this sordid and unworthy plea fails when brought to the test of facts. The war of criminal aggression against the Filipinos, entailing an annual expense of many millions, has already cost more than any possible profit that could accrue from the entire Philippine trade for years to come. Furthermore, when trade is extended at the expense of liberty the price is always too high. We are not opposed to such expansion as shall open markets in desirable territory which can be erected into states in the union and admitted on an equality with the sovereign American citizens.

Trusts.

"Private monopolies are indefensible and intolerable. They destroy competition, control the price of all material and of the finished product, thus robbing both producer and consumer, they lessen the employment of labor and arbitrarily fix the terms and conditions thereof and deprive individual energy and small capital of their opportunity for betterment.

"They are the most efficient means yet devised for appropriating the fruits of industry to the benefit of the few at the expense of the many, and unless their insatiate greed is checked, all wealth will be aggregated in a few hands and the republic destroyed.

"The dishonest dealing with the trust evil by the republican party in state and national platforms is conclusive proof of the truth of the charge that trusts are the legitimate product of republican policies, that they are fostered by republican laws and that they are protected by the republican administration in return for campaign subscriptions and political support.

"We pledge the democratic party to an unceasing warfare in nation, state and city against private monopoly in every form. Existing laws against trusts must be enforced and more stringent ones must be enacted providing for publicity as to the affairs of corporations engaged in interstate commerce and requiring all corporate officers to show before doing business outside of the state of their origin that they have no water in their stock and that they have not attempted and are not attempting to monopolize any branch of business or the production of any articles of merchandise, and the whole constitutional power of congress over interstate commerce, the mails and all modes of interstate communication shall be exercised by the enactment of comprehensive laws upon the subject of trusts.

"The tariff laws should be amended by putting the products of trusts upon the free list to prevent monopoly under the plea of protection.

"The failure of the present republican administration, with an absolute control over all branches of the national government, to enact any legislation to prevent or even curtail the absorbing power of trusts and illegal combinations or to enforce the anti-trust laws already on the statute books proves the insincerity of the high-sounding phrases of the republican platform.

"Corporations should be protected in all their rights and their legitimate interests should be respected, but any attempt by corporations to interfere with the public affairs of the people or to control the sovereignty which creates them should be forbidden under such penalties as will make such attempts impossible. We condemn the Dingley tariff law as a trust-breeding measure, skillfully devised to put the screws where they do not desire, and to place upon the many burdens which they should not bear.

"We favor such an enlargement of the scope of the Interstate Commerce law as will enable the commission to protect individuals and communities from discrimination and the public from unjust and unfair transportation rates.

Famous Free Silver Plank.

"We reaffirm and indorse the principles of the national democratic platform adopted at Chicago in 1896, and we reiterate the demand of that platform for an American financial system made by the American people for themselves which shall restore and maintain a bimetallic price for gold and silver, for such system the immediate restoration at a ratio of 16 to 1 without waiting for the aid or consent of any other nation.

"We denounce the currency law enacted at the last session of congress as a step forward in the republican policy, which aims to discredit the sovereign right of the national government to issue all money, whether coin or paper, and to bestow upon national banks the power to issue and control the volume of paper money for their own benefit.

"A permanent national bank currency, secured by government bonds, must have a permanent debt to rest upon, and if the bank currency is to increase with population and business the debt must also increase. The republican currency scheme is therefore a scheme for fastening on the taxpayers a perpetual and growing debt for the benefit of the banks.

"We are opposed to the private corporation paper circulated as money, but without legal tender qualities and demand the retirement of national bank notes as fast as paper or silver certificates can be substituted for them.

Election of Senators and Other Planks.

"We favor an amendment to the federal constitution providing for the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people.

"We are opposed to government by injunction; we denounce the Chicago blacklist, and favor arbitration as a means of settling disputes between corporations and their employes.

"In the interest of American labor and the upbuilding of the workingman, as the cornerstone of the prosperity of our country, we recommend that congress create a department of labor, in charge of a secretary, with a seat in the cabinet, believing that the elevation of the American laborer will bring with it increased production and increased prosperity to our country at home and to our commerce abroad.

"We are proud of the courage and fidelity of the American soldiers and sailors in all of our wars; we favor liberal pensions to them and their dependents, and we reiterate the position taken in the Chicago platform in 1896 that the fact of enlistment and service shall be deemed conclusive evidence against disease and disability before enlistment.

"We favor the immediate construction, ownership and control of the Nicaraguan canal by the United States, and we denounce the insincerity of the plank in the national republican platform for an Isthmian canal in face of the failure of the republican majority to pass the bill pending in congress.

"We condemn the Hay-Pauncefote treaty as a surrender of the rights, claims and interests, not to be tolerated by the American people.

"We denounce the failure of the republican party to carry out its pledges to grant statehood to the territories of Arizona, New Mexico and Oklahoma, and we promise the people of those territories immediate statehood. We favor home rule during their condition as territories, and we favor home rule and a territorial form of government for Alaska and Porto Rico.

"We favor an intelligent system of improving the arid lands of the west, storing the waters for the purpose of irrigation and the holding of such lands for actual settlers.

"We favor the continuance and strict enforcement of the Chinese exclusion law and its application to the same classes of Asiatic races.

"Jefferson said: 'Peace, commerce and honest friendship with all nations, entangling alliance with none.'

"We approve this wholesome doctrine, and earnestly recommend its observance. The republican departure, which has involved us in so-called world politics, has led to diplomacy of bluster and the intrigue and land grabbing of Asia, and we especially condemn the ill-concealed republican alliance with England, which must mean discrimination against other friendly nations, and has already gratified the nation's voice, while liberty is being struggled in Africa.

"Believing in the principles of self-government and rejecting as did our forefathers, the claim of any government, or even of an individual, the purpose of England to overwhelm with force the South African republics.

"Speaking, as we believe, for the American nation, except the republican office holders, we extend our sympathy, and we extend our sympathies to the heroic burghers in their unequal struggle to maintain their liberty and independence.

"We denounce the lavish appropriations of recent republican congresses, which have kept taxes high, and which threaten the perpetuation of the oppressive war levies. We oppose the accumulation of a surplus to be squandered in such barefaced frauds upon the taxpayers as the shipping subsidy bill, which, under the false pretense of prospering American shipbuilding, would put unearned millions into the pockets of favorite contributors to the republican campaign fund. We favor the reduction and speedy repeal of the war taxes, and a return to the time-honored democratic policy of raising revenue in accordance with the needs of the government economically administered.

"We favor the reduction and speedy repeal of the war taxes, and a return to the time-honored democratic policy of raising revenue in accordance with the needs of the government economically administered.

"Believing that our most cherished institutions are in great peril; that the very existence of our constitutional republic is at stake, and that the decision to be rendered will determine whether or not our children are to enjoy those blessed privileges of free government which have made the United States great, prosperous and honored, we earnestly ask for the forgoing declaration of principles the hearty support of all liberty-loving American people, regardless of previous party affiliations."

Nominations for president were called for. Alabama yielded to Nebraska, and Oldham ascended the platform and nominated Bryan.

When Oldham finished his speech the convention went wild. The greatest demonstration of the convention followed. A parade of states began, with banners and flags, while the band played. This was kept up over half an hour.

WILLIS D. OLDHAM.
The Man Who Nominated Bryan.

Judge E. B. Perkins, of Dallas, Tex., seconded the nomination of Bryan. Seconding speeches were made by ex-Senator White, of California; Judge O. P. Thompson, of Illinois; ex-Senator Hill, of New York, and half a dozen others.

The roll call of states was then ordered, and every state east its entire vote for Bryan, and the vote was made unanimous.

The convention then adjourned until Friday morning.

Friday's Session.

Kansas City, Mo., July 6.—The democratic national ticket was completed by the nomination of Adlai E. Stevenson for vice president. The nomination was made on the first ballot, state after state joining in the wild scramble to record its support of the winning candidate. It was not accompanied by any such frantic demonstration of approval as had marked the proceedings at previous stages, although the result followed a spirited and at times highly dramatic contest between the advocates of Stevenson, Towne, Hill and the lesser candidates. The distinct triumph of the day in the way of a break-away of a popular ovation was that accorded to Senator Hill, and in its spontaneity and enthusiasm was one of the most notable features the convention has produced. It was accompanied, too, by a remarkable scene when Hill earnestly protested to his friends against being placed in nomination, and then, finding his protest in vain, he stood to the platform and in tones which left no doubt of his sincerity earnestly becought the convention not to make him the nominee.

The vote was followed with intense interest, for when Alabama announced 3 for Stevenson and 19 for Hill it looked as though there would be a close contest. But it was soon evident that Stevenson had a strong lead. At the close of the call he had 559½ votes, which, however, was not enough to nominate him, the requisite two-thirds being 624. Hill had received 200 votes and Towne 89½. But before the announcement of the result a strong-lunged delegate from Tennessee stood on a chair and announced, "Tennessee changes her 24 votes from Hill to Stevenson." This started the tide irresistibly toward Stevenson. From every quarter of the hall came calls for recognition. Alabama changed to Stevenson, California did the same, North Carolina changed from Carr to Stevenson. Even New York finally and reluctantly announced its change from Hill to Stevenson. That ended it. Stevenson's nomination was assured, although for some time longer the various states continued to record their changes from Towne and other candidates to Stevenson. In the end the nomination was made unanimous. Its announcement was greeted with enthusiastic applause, and again state standards and banners were borne about the building in tribute to the nominee.

DAVID B. HILL.

The usual vote of thanks were passed and the convention adjourned.

Dr. Henry Barnard, a noted educator, died at Hartford, Ct., aged 98.

COL. WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN.

ADLAI E. STEVENSON.

SILVER REPUBLICANS.

No Nominations Were Made—the Whole Affair Left With the National Committee.

Kansas City, Mo., July 7.—After a long and exciting debate, during which it looked several times as if Charles A. Towne would be nominated for vice president in spite of his protest against such action, the national convention of the silver republican party adjourned sine die without making a nomination, the whole matter being referred to the national committee, with power to act. W. J. Bryan was made the unanimous choice of the convention for president during the morning session, and it was the intention to complete the ticket in the afternoon by the nomination of former Congressman Towne.

The action of the democratic convention, however, in placing Adlai E. Stevenson in nomination took the delegates off their feet, but most of them asserted their determination to nominate Mr. Towne notwithstanding. For two hours Senator Teller, former Congressmen Shafroth, of Colorado, and Cheadle, of Indiana, and others made speeches in favor of indorsing the democratic ticket, but it was not until Towne himself appeared and appealed to the convention not to nominate him, but to concentrate their forces, that the delegates became calm and the vice presidential nomination was left to the national committee.

Kansas City, Mo., July 7.—The national committee of the silver republicans organized by electing D. C. Tibloson, of Kansas City, chairman and Gen. E. S. Corser, of Minnesota, secretary and treasurer. The selection of an executive committee was deferred. Senator Dubois offered a resolution pledging the support of the silver republicans to Adlai E. Stevenson, but there was opposition, and action was postponed until after a conference with the committee appointed by the democratic convention.

ORDERED FROM CUBA.

Three Regiments of Regulars to Return Home—Volunteers May Stay in the Philippines.

Washington, July 7.—As a result of recent consultations of the secretary of war with Lieut. Gen. Miles, commanding the army, and Maj. Gen. Wood, commanding the division of Cuba, orders were issued for the return to the United States from Cuba as soon as possible of the 2d, 5th and 8th regiments of infantry. These regiments are scattered over the island, and probably will not be able to start home for a week or ten days. They will be brought to the port of New York, and their future station will be determined before they reach that port.

The recall of the Cuban troops is the first step in the programme of the war department for the replacement of the volunteer army in the Philippines with troops of the regular establishment. It was intended to begin the homeward movement of the volunteers in the Philippines next November, but the deplorable state of affairs in China undoubtedly has caused the military authorities to hasten the departure of the outgoing troops as much as possible, with a view of utilizing them for the protection of American interests in China, in case it is found necessary to divert them from their original destination at Manila.

SIX PERSONS INJURED.

Roof Over the Covered Walk at the Entrance to the Pittsburgh Union Station Collapsed.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 7.—The roof over the covered walk at the western entrance to the Union station collapsed at 9:45 a. m. Friday and injured six persons. The frame work for a distance of 125 feet fell on the pavement and completely buried the Fort Wayne and Pittsburgh and Birmingham traction trucks.

The accident occurred just as the passengers who had come to the city on the Cincinnati and Cleveland express from the east were leaving the station, and a number of persons had narrow escapes from being buried under the splintered timbers.

Tornado and Cloudburst in Iowa.

Marshalltown, Ia., July 7.—The report reaches here that a tornado and cloudburst occurred at Steamboat Rock, destroying that village. This is partly verified by the fact that the Coma river has risen five feet here within an hour. A cloudburst between Stanthoney and Zearing washed out nearly a mile of track on the Iowa Central railroad and caused great damage to crops.

Both Were Killed.

Tuscon, Ariz., July 7.—Antonio Soro and Jose Vasquez, two prominent Mexican cattlemen, quarreled over a cattle brand in San Pedro valley and both men were killed in a fight with guns. A feud between cowboys employed by the two men killed has arisen and serious trouble is feared.

Severe Storm in Wisconsin.

Berlin, Wis., July 7.—About the worst rain and wind storm Berlin ever had passed over the city Friday afternoon. Many roofs were blown off, including those on several business blocks on Huron street and Broadway. The entire front of the Owen livery stable was blown out. Many streets were blocked with broken trees. The telephone and electric light systems were entirely demoralized. Mike Decker, of Fargoville, was struck by lightning and instantly killed.

The death of Miss Lizzie Kipp on last Monday week, was a shock to the whole community. She had been ill with an attack of the grippe for two weeks or more, but had become so much better that her passing away was all the more painful to her friends that were looking forward to her speedy recovery. The blow was crushing to her family and all are heart broken over the sad event. Miss Lizzie had been a teacher in our public schools for nine years and was devoted to her calling for which she had been well prepared. Her life was blameless and altogether lovely. The school children mourn her loss as a beloved companion who showed them the way to acquire the knowledge stored in books. They and all their parents were accustomed to speak of her as "our Miss Lizzie." Words are too poor and common place to express all that is felt in our bereavement. Her monument, whose foundation has been laid in the hearts of her pupils will be always before them.

The Burnetts came out from Cincinnati, on the fourth, and played two interesting games of ball with the local team, winning in the morning by a score of 6 to 5 and losing in the afternoon by the same score. Last Saturday afternoon the Burlington and Hebron teams played an intensely exciting game, ending in a score of 6 to 5 in favor of Burlington. Tanner and Gordon did extra battery work for the visitors and received good support. Slayback at second and Hughes at short did good work for the home team, the latter making a running left hand catch that was wonderful. Newt York, who was subbing, was in the game considerably at critical times. There were several very close decisions, and as a consequence some scrapping, but not of a serious nature. "Daddy" Cloud played first for Hebron in his old style form. The game Saturday was the fourth that Brady had pitched that week and for the first three or four innings Hebron made all their scores off him.

Fresh Items of Interest from the Capital City Relating to Matters Political.

POINTS ABOUT REPUBLICAN PLATFORM.

A Howl Goes Up Over Liberties Taken with the Fateful Document—Some Things That the People Will Remember—Unhappiness of the Administration.

[Special Correspondence.]

The more the administration clique reflect on the republican national platform the more disgusted they become with their own stupidity. Anxious hours were spent at the white house in preparing a platform which would indorse McKinley's policy and yet placate the rebellious and critical voters.

It appears that the editing and final arrangement of the platform of Philadelphia was then left to ex-Congressman Lemuel Eli Quigg, a faithful henchman of Senator Platt's. It is now alleged by administration representatives that that gentleman took grave liberties with the fateful document, which had been sent over to the convention with the white house O. K. upon it.

Congressman Grosvenor is regarded in congress as the official mouthpiece of the administration. He sends up a howl about the platform that discounts any criticism the democrats have made on the document. Grosvenor insists that the administration forces had prepared a plank indorsing the action of congress in placing Porto Rico outside the constitutiou and another specifically mentioning the ship subsidy bill favorably.

Of course Quigg denies that he did anything which was not ordered by the committee on resolutions, but the fact remains that the republicans themselves have discovered too late that their platform is altogether too weak and evasive to suit even the McKinley republicans, let alone bring back the anti-McKiuley forces into the party fold.

The platform is too long and still it says too little. It is chiefly remarkable for the things it omits to say. The only issues upon which it is at all definite are those which are not at all in question. It devotes about 2,000 words to threshing over dead issues of the past campaign and about 200 words to the live issues of trusts and imperialism.

The trust plank is so carefully worded that it could not possibly offend the most sensitive trust which is expected to contribute to the campaign fund.

It says: "We condemn all conspiracies and combinations intended to restrict business, to create monopolies, limit production or to control prices, and favor such legislation as will effectively restrain and prevent such abuses, protect and promote competition and secure the rights of producers, laborers and all who are engaged in industry and commerce."

Well, there have been about 250 just such trusts organized since the beginning of McKinley's administration, and they have been doing just the things which this plank mentions, but this republican congress refused to pass the anti-trust bill. The administration will never, under any circumstances, have an opportunity to restrain trusts better than that presented at the recent session of congress, when every branch of the government was under republican control. The fact that it did absolutely nothing to restrain trusts shows where it stands.

Republican Effrontery.

In the face of the unpunished Rathbone and Neely postal scandals in Cuba, the republicans have the effrontery to state in their platform that they favor for public service in Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii and the Philippines, "those whose fitness has been determined by training and experience." Rathbone, Neely, et al., were lauded as just that kind of material until their rascalities were exposed by a jealous military contingent, which felt it was not getting its share of the spoils in Cuba.

With a fine disregard for the facts, this same platform "commends the republican policy in maintaining the efficiency of the civil service." The republicans seem to think that the public has forgotten that only a year ago the administration took 10,000 places from under civil service and distributed them as party plunder.

On the Philippines the platform leaves the inference very clear that the constitution is not expected to apply to those islands, but that they are to be kept as colonial dependencies. It promises "the largest measure of self-government consistent with their welfare." That is the vague promise which every tyrant has always held out to the people whom it proposed to subjugate, and the American voters have the issue of imperialism clearly before them. McKinley's reelection means the continuation of the senseless war in the Philippines, the subjugation of a people fighting for liberty and the exploitation of the islands for the profit of moneyed interests.

Independence and self-government are promised to Cuba, but not a word as to when the pledge shall be fulfilled. Probably in the next century—sooner, perhaps, if the carpet baggers can steal everything worth having from the island in less time, and no longer find the island useful.

A Slap at Organized Labor.

Considering the fact that congress refused to pass the eight-hour law applying to government contracts and hung up the contract convict labor in the senate, the labor plank in the platform is a direct slap at organized labor. It looks like a notice that the republicans do not desire the industrial vote. The platform "favors" more effective immigration laws, more education for working children, raising the age limit for child labor, protection of free labor against contract convict labor and labor insurance. The latter clause is so socialistic that it would be greeted by the republicans with a howl of derision if it were adopted by a populist convention. The moonshine about child labor is a matter for state and not national action. In relation to immigration and convict labor the working people will ask: "If you favor these things, why didn't your congress enact the necessary laws?" The labor people are very much disappointed over the failure of congress to pass certain measures which were unanimously desired, like the eight-hour bill, and if the platform had omitted any mention of matters industrial it would have given less offense.

The People Will Remember.

There is a very cautious expression in regard to the Boer war. A hope that peace will soon be restored. But the people will remember that the republican congress refused to pass a resolution of sympathy for the Boers.

The intention to pass the ship subsidy grab is reaffirmed. The promise of isthmian canal legislation is given, in the face of the fact that the Nicaraguan canal bill was hung up in the senate because that body would not approve the Hay-Pauncefote treaty.

The republicans now realize so clearly the weakness of the platform that they are saying that the speeches of Wolcott and Lodge are the real platform. The administration is not happy. There is gloom about the white house. The shadow of the rough rider has fallen across the portal, and not even Chinese complications afford McKinley distraction from his campaign troubles.

ADOLPH PATTERSON.

IMPERIALIST M'KINLEY.

What the People May Expect If the Hanna Outfit Is Returned to Power.

Those who desire to maintain the government of the United States in the form which has given freedom to its citizens and opportunity to all its people should fight the republican party with unfailing persistency and conrage.

McKinley has shown by his acts that he is opposed to the principles upon which the government was founded, and that he favors imperialism, a thing which is a grenter menace to this country than was the doctrine of secession.

And that the republican party proposes to support McKinley and his imperialistic ambitions is shown by the platform adopted by the republican national convention at Philadelphia.

In all the turgid rhetorie of that document there can be found no reference to the declaration of independence nor the constitution.

Both of these immortal documents are opposed to imperialism and therefore neither of them could be referred to by the makers of the republican platform, intent on establishing imperialism in the United States.

All the issues which are opposed by the freedom loving people of this country are indorsed. Imperialism, militarism, the trusts and the tariff, to say nothing of the single gold standard, are defended in strong terms or approved by implication.

Assuming to denounce trusts, yet approving commercial combines in the introduction of this resolution, the platform stands as a weak contradiction to the facts.

During McKinley's administration nearly a thousand monopolies have been created, with a combined capital of $5,000,000,000, and not one step has been taken by the republican executive, the republican attorney general or the republican congress to curb this creation of trusts.

Hanna represents the combines, and Hanna contracted the convention, declared the platform and nominated the candidates.

The issue is made up. Do the people want Hanna, McKinley and imperialism, or Bryan and a free government?—Chicago Democrat.

——President McKinley recently nominated for the United States judgeship a man in Buffalo named Hnzel, who is said to be conspicuously unfit both by character and attainments for that high office. The nomination is condemned severely by many New York newspapers, republican and independent, as well as democratic. And now arises the oracular Depew to fulminate against all who criticise this appointment. He declares that they are committing the unpardonable sin of "insulting the president." If the president wants this man Hazel, a notorious henchman of Tom Platt, to be a federal judge nobody must object, nobody can object without being guilty of "insulting the president." The imperialists are consistent even in this assertion of their arrogance.—Atlanta Journal.

——The industrial combinations are making themselves felt everywhere. One mercantile firm after another is forced to the wall. The passing of the small manufacturer and business man is an irreparable loss to the country. His going is simply a mark of the trend of the times. Ultimately unless conditions change, the great middle class of moderate means—nurtured and cherished in monarchical England—will be swept away in republican America, to be succeeded by the extremely rich and the extremely poor.—Denver Post.

RELIGION OF CHRIST.

Dr. Talmage Says It Is a Preventive of This World's Ills.

An Active Principle Which Constantly Works for the Welfare of Body, Mind and Soul—A Mighty Antiseptic.

[Copyright, 1900, by Louis Klopsch.]

Dr. Talmage is now traveling in Norway, where he has been deeply interested in the natural phenomena and the quaint social life of that wonderful land. In his discourse this week he argues, contray to the opinion of many, that religion is an active principle which works constantly for the welfare of body, mind and soul. His text is Luke 14:34: "Salt is good."

The Bible is a dictionary of the finest similes. It employs, among living creatures, storks and eagles and doves and unicorns and sheep and cattle; among trees, sycamore and [illegible] pomegranates and almonds and apples; among jewels, pearls and amethysts and jacinths and chrysoprases. Christ uses no stale illustrations. The lilies that He plucks for His sermons are dewy fresh; the ravens in His discourses are not stuffed specimens of birds, but warm with life from wing tip to wing tip; the fish He points to are not dull about the gills, as though long captured, but a-squirm in the wet net just brought up on the beach of Tiberias. In my text, which is the peroration of one of His sermons, He picks up a crystaland holds it before His congregation as an illustration of divine grace in the heart, when He says what we all know by experiment: "Salt is good."

I shall try to carry out the Saviour's idea in this text and in the first place say to you that grace is like salt in its beauty. In Galicia there are mines of salt, with excavations and underground passages reaching, I am told, 280 miles. Far under ground there are chapels and halls of reception, the columns, the altars and the pulpits of salt. When the king and the princes come to visit these mines, the whole place is illuminated, and the glory of crystal walls and crystal ceilings and crystal floors and crystal columns, under the glare of the torches and the lamps, needs words of crystal to describe it. But you need not go so far as that to find the beauty of it. You live in a land which produces millions of bushels of it in a year, and you can take the morning salt train and in a few hours get to the salt mines and salt springs. And you have this article morning, noon and night on your table. Salt has all the beauty of the snowflake and water foam with durability added. It is beautiful to the naked eye, but under the glass you see the stars and diamonds and the white tree branches and the spinters and the bridges of fire as the sun glints them. There is more architectural skill in one of these crystals of salt than human ingenuity has ever demonstrated in an Alhambra or St. Peter's.

It would take all time, with an infringement upon eternity, for an angel of God to tell one-half the glories in a salt crystal. So with the grace of God. It is perfectly beautiful. I have seen it smooth out wrinkles of care from the brow. I have seen it make an aged man feel almost young again. I have seen it lift the stooping shoulders and put sparkle into the dull eye. Solomon discovered its therapeutic qualities when he said: "It is marrow to the bones." It helps to digest the food and to purify the blood and to calm the pulses and quiet the spleen, and instead of Tyndal's prayer test of 20 years ago, putting a man in a philosophical hospital to be experimented upon by prayer, it keeps him so well that he does not need to be prayed for as an invalid. I am speaking now of a healthy religion—not of that morbid religion that sits for three hours on a gravestone reading Harvey's "Meditations Among the Tombs"—a religion that prospers best in a bad state of the liver! I speak of the religion that Christ preached. I suppose when that religion has conquered the world that disease will be banished and that a man a hundred years of age will come in from business and say: "I feel tired. I think it must be time for me to go," and without one physical pang Heaven will have him.

But the chief beauty of grace is in the soul. It takes that which was hard and cold and repulsive and makes it all over again. It pours upon one's nature what David calls "the beauty of holiness." It extirpates everything that is hateful and unclean. If jealousy and pride and lust and worldliness lurk about, they are chained and have a very small sweep. Jesus throws upon the soul the fragrance of a summer garden as He comes in, saying, "I am the rose of Sharon," and He submerges it with the glory of a spring morning as He says: "I am the light." Oh, how much that grace did for the three Johns! It took John Bunyan, the foul mouthed, and made him John Bunyan, the immortal dreamer. It took John Newton, the infidel sailor, and in the midst of the hurricane made him cry out: "My mother's God, have mercy upon me!" It took John Summerfield from a life of sin and, by the hand of a Christian maker of edge tools, led him into the pulpit that burns still with the light of that Christian eloquence which churned thousands to the Jesus whom he once despised. Ah, you may search all the earth over for anything so beautiful or beautifying as the grace of God. Go all through the deep mine passages of Wieliczka and amid the underground kingdoms of salt in Hallstadt, and show me anything so exquisite, so transcendently beautiful as this grace of God fashioned and hung in eternal crystals.

Again, grace is like salt in the fact that it is a necessity of life. Man and beast perish without salt. What are those paths across the western prairies? Why, they were made there by deer and buffalo going to and coming away from the salt "licks." Chemists and physicians all the world over tell us that salt is a necessity of life. And so with the grace of God; you must have it or die. I know a great many speak of it as a mere adornment, a sort of shoulder strap adorning a soldier, or a light, frothing dessert brought in after the greatest part of the banquet of life is over, or a medicine to be taken after powders and mustard plasters have failed to do their work, but ordinarily a mere superfluity, a string of bells around a horse's neck while he draws the load, and in nowise helping him to draw it. So far from that, I declare the grace of God to be the first and the last necessity. It is food we must take or starve into an eternity of famine. It is clothing without which we freeze to the mast of infinite terror. It is the plank, and the only [illegible] on which we can float shoreward. It is the ladder, and the only ladder, on which we can climb up into the light. It is a positive necessity for the soul. You can tell very easily what the effect would be if a person refused to take salt into the body. The energies would fail, the lungs would struggle with the air, slow fevers would crawl through the brain, the heart would flutter, and the life would be gone. Salt a necessity for the life of the body; the grace of God a necessity for the life of the soul.

Again I remark that grace is like salt in abundance. God has strewn salt in vast profusion all over the continents. Russia seems built on a saltcellar. There is one region of that country that turns out 90,000 tons in a year. England and Russia and Italy have inexhaustible resources in this respect. Norway and Sweden, white with snow above, white with salt beneath. Austria, yielding 900,000 tons annually. Nearly all the nations rich in it—rock salt, spring salt, sea salt. Christ, the Creator of the world, when He uttered our text, knew it would become more and more significant as the shafts were sunk and the springs were bored and the pumps were worked and the crystals were gathered. So the grace of God is abundant. It is for all lands, for all ages, for all conditions. It seems to undergird everything. Pardon for the worst sin, comfort for the sharpest suffering, brightest light for the thickest darkness. Around about the salt lakes of Saratov there are 10,000 men toiling day and night, and yet they never exhaust the saline treasures. And if the 1,600,000,000 of our race should now cry out to God for His mercy there would be enough for all—for those furthest gone in sin, for the murderer standing on the drop of the gallows. It is an ocean of mercy; and if Europe and Asia, Africa, North and South America and all the islands of the sea went down in it to-day they would have room enough to wash and come up clean. Let no man think that his case is too tough a one for God to act upon. Though your sin may be deep and raging, let me tell you that God's grace is a bridge not built on earthly piers, but suspended and spanning the awful chasm of your guilt, one end resting upon the rock of eternal promises and the other on the foundations of Heaven. Demetrius wore a robe so incrusted with jewels that no one after him ever dared to wear it, but our King, Jesus, takes off the robe of His righteousness, a robe blood dyed and Heaven impearled, and reaches out to the worst wretch in all the earth and says: "Put that on! Wear it now! Wear it forever."

Again, the grace of God is like salt in the way we come at it. The salt on the surface is almost always impure—that which incrusts the Rocky mountains and the South American pampas and in India; but the miners go down through the shafts and through the dark labyrinths and along by galleries of rock and, with torches and pickaxes, find their way under the very foundations of the earth, to where the salt lies that makes up the nation's wealth. To get to the best saline springs of the earth huge machinery goes down, boring depth below depth, depth below depth, until from under the very roots of the mountains the saline water supplies the aqueduct. This water is brought to the surface and is exposed in tanks to the sun for evaporation, or it is put in boilers mightily heated, and the water evaporates, and the salt gathers at the bottom of the tank—the work is completed, and the fortune is made. So with the grace of God. It is to be profoundly sought after. With all the concentered energies of body, mind and soul we must dig for it. No man stumbles accidentally on it. We need to go down to the very lowest strata of earnestness and faith to find it. Superficial exploration will not turn it up. We must strive and implore and dig until we strike the spring foaming with living waters. Then the work of evaporation begins, and as when the saline waters are exposed to the sun, the vapors float away, leaving nothing but the pure white salt at the bottom of the tank, so, when the Christian soul is exposed to the Sun of Righteousness, the vapors of pride and selfishness and worldliness float off, and there is chiefly left beneath pure white holiness of heart. Then, as in the case of the salt, the furnace is added. Blazing troubles, stirred by smutted stokers of darkness, quicken the evaporation of worldliness, and the crystallization of grace.

Have you not been in enough trouble to have that work go on? I was reading of Aristotle, who said there was a field of flowers in Sicily so sweet that once a hunter coming on the track of game came to that field and was bewildered by the perfumes and so lost the track. Oh that our souls might become like "a field which the Lord hath blessed" and exhale so much of the sweetness of Christian character that the hounds of temptation, coming on our track, might lose it and go howling back with disappointment!

But, I remark again, that the grace of God is like the salt in its preservative quality. You know that salt absorbs the moisture of articles of food and infuses them with brine, which preserves them for a long while. Salt is the great antiputrefactor of the world. Experimenters, in preserving food, have tried sugar and smoke and air-tight jars and everything else, but as long as the world stands Christ's words will be suggestive, and men will admit that as a great preservative "salt is good." But for the grace of God the earth would have become a stale carcass long before this. That grace is the only preservative of laws and constitutions and literatures. Just as soon as a government loses this salt of divine grace it perishes. The philosophy of this day, so far as it is antagonistic to this religion, putrefies and stinks. The great want of our schools of learning and our institutions of science to-day is, not more Leyden jars and galvanic batteries and spectroscopes and philosophical apparatus, but more of that grace that will teach our men of science that the God of the universe is the God of the Bible. How strange it is that in all their magnificent sweep of the telescope they have not seen the morning star of Jesus and that in all their experiments with light and heat they have not seen the light and felt the warmth of the Sun of Righteousness! We want more of the salt of God's grace in our homes, in our schools, in our colleges, in our social life, in our Christianity. And that which has it will live; that which has it not will die. I proclaim the tendency of everything earthly to putrefaction and death—the religion of Christ the only preservative.

My subject is one of great congratulation to those who have within their souls this gospel antiseptic. This salt will preserve them through the temptations and sorrows of life and through the ages of eternity. I do not mean to say that you will have a smooth time because you are a Christian. On the contrary, if you do your whole duty, I will promise you a rough time. You march through an enemy's country, and they will try to double up both flanks and to cut you off from your source of supplies. The war you wage will not be with toy arrows, but sword plunged to the hilt and spurring on your steed over heaps of the slain. But I think that God omnipotent will see you through. I think He will. But why do I talk like an atheist when I ought to say I know He will? "Kept by the power of God through faith unto complete salvation."

When Gov. Geary, of Pennsylvania, died, years ago, I lost a good friend. He impressed me mightily with the horrors of war. In the eight hours that we rode together in the cars he recited to me the scenes through which he had passed in the civil war. He said that there came one battle upon which everything seemed to pivot. Telegrams from Washington said that the life of the nation depended on that struggle. He said to me: "I went into that battle, sir, with my son. His mother and I thought everything of him. You know how a father will feel toward his son who is coming up manly and brave and good. Well, the battle opened and concentered, and it was awful. Horses and riders bent and twisted and piled up together. It was awful, sir. We quit firing and took to the point of the bayonet. Well, sir, I didn't feel like myself that day. I had prayed to God for strength for that particular battle, and I went into it feeling that I had in my right arm the strength of ten giants." And as the governor brought his arm down on the back of the seat it fairly made the car tremble. "Well," he said, "the battle was desperate, but after awhile we gained a little, and we marched on a little. I turned round to the troops and shouted: 'Come on, boys!' and I stepped across a dead soldier, and, lo, it was my son! I saw at the first glance he was dead, and yet I did not dare to stop a minute, for the crisis had come in the battle. So I just got down on my knees, and I threw my arms around him, and I gave him one good kiss and said, 'Good-by, dear,' and sprung up and shouted 'Come on, boys!'" So it is in the Christinu conflict—it is a fierce fight. Eternal ages seem depending on the strife. Heaven is waiting for the bulletins to announce the tremendous issue. Hail of shot, gash of saber, full of battle ax, groaning on every side. We cannot stop for loss or bereavement or anything else. With one ardent embrace and one loving kiss we utter our farewells and then cry: "Come on, boys! There are other heights to be captured; there are other foes to be conquered; there are other crowns to be won."

Yet, as one of the Lord's surgeons, I must bind up two or three wounds. Just lift them now, whatever they be. I have been told there is nothing like salt to stop the bleeding of a wound, and so I take this salt of Christ's Gospel and put it on the lacerated soul. It smarts a little at first, but see—the bleeding stops, and, lo, the flesh comes again as the flesh of a little child. "Salt is good." "Comfort one another with these words."

Metropolis of Song Birds.

Capt. G. E. Shelley, an English ornithologist who has devoted special attention to African birds, says that Africa may fairly claim to be "the metropolis of song birds." It is the winter home of a large proportion of the most attractive small birds of northern Europe, including the nightingale, the swallow and many of the warblers, and the bush resounds with their melody. Africa also possesses a great number of remarkable and beautiful birds of its own.—Youth's Companion

The church of Sourorov, in the village of Kotchmask, near Novgorod, has just been transported bodily to St. Petersburg. The celebrated Preobrazjenski regiment wished to possess the church, which contained many souvenirs of the famous Marshal Sourorov. It was recordingly removed from its foundations and carried to the nearest railway station by means of 350 wagons.

At a recent meeting of the trustees of Amhurst college, it was voted that students who are prepared in one ancient language and in studies equivalent to the second ancient language, in addition to other studies required may be candidates for the degree of bachelor of arts. This signifies that either Latin or Greek is required, but that both languages are not required.

The Boston Transcript tells of an Episcopal church that is being sued because it is not sufficiently "High church." It appears that a certain person left money to the church, with the provision that the services should come up to a certain standard of churchmanship. The minister has failed, it is claimed, to get as much ritualism into the service and the responses of his flock as the money calls for.

OLD, BOYISH FEELINGS.

How the Sight of Urchins Bathing in Fountain Affected Staid Men of Business.

"I saw something yesterday that made me envious," said an elderly cotton broker, sighing deeply, relates the New Orleans Times-Democrat. "You know there is a fountain directly back of the Hennen building, at the Common street end of Cotton Exchange alley. It has a perfectly plain oval basin and no attempt at ornament beyond a languid little jet in the middle; but, set down there in the very heart and center of the business tumult, it is a grateful and pleasant spectacle. I never pass it without feeling refreshed, and the mere sight of its clean, living water is somehow soothing to the eyes.

"I came down the alley during a lull in trade, and as I drew near the fountain I became aware of a commotion of some sort. A lot of ragged street urchins were clustered about the basin and others dodged in and out the corners of near-by buildings, apparently keeping watch against interruption. One of the sentries eyed me pretty sharply and then sang out: 'He's all right, fellers! I blacks his shoes!' At that there was a tremendous splash, and four small naked bodies suddenly bobbed up from behind the rim of the fountain.

"Then I understood. They were taking a surreptitious public bath—the most public that could possibly be imagined. Two of the boys wore tattered pantaloons, rolled up to the hips, but that was the total wardrobe, and they splashed around as happy as a school of young porpoises. I looked on and grinned, and my mind galloped back to the good old days when I used to play hookey from school and go swimming in the branch, and the more I thought about it the more I wanted to pull up my trousers and jump into the fountain.

"At the door of the Hennen building was a solemn old banker of my acquaintance, smiling quietly to himself. 'Like to go in?' I called. 'You bet!' he replied. Just then one of the sentinels came tearing down the alley. 'Cheese it, fellers!' he yelled; 'dere's a cop a-comin'.' The effect was magical. The four boys jumped out of the water, dragged on ragged shirts and pantaloons, stuck their caps on the backs of their heads and seized four bundles of newspapers. There was an air of exaggerated innocence about the crowd that clearly proclaimed some recent mischief, and the policeman smiled suspiciously as he passed. 'What have you kids been doin'?' he demanded. 'Nothin',' replied the biggest; 'have we, mister?' 'Not a thing,' said the banker, promptly. I think the recording angel handled that fib very gently."

PREVENTED ARREST.

A Young Man Shot and Killed By His Father-in-Law While Resisting Arrest.

Brooksville, Ky., July 7.—Robert Yates, a well-known young man, was shot and killed by his father-in-law, Thomas Kinney. For some time they have been enemies, and Yates had threatened to kill Kinney and also his son, George B. Kinney, who is a prominent young attorney of the Bracken Bar association.

About 10 o'clock at night Yates returned home, after a trip down town, [illegible] said, he had a quarrel with his wife and made some threats, which were overheard by some near-by neighbors. An officer was sent for, and Tom Kinney, who is city marshal, started with Mayor Bradford to make the arrest. It was a little after 10 o'clock when they arrived at the home of Yates. As soon as he saw Kinney and Bradford he drew his pistol and fired, but missed. He attempted to fire again, but by this time Kinney had fired the fatal shot. The ball penetrated Yates' heart. Kinney surrendered to County Judge Minor.

Mrs. Yates, the only daughter of Kinney and the wife of the murdered man, is almost prostrated with grief.

TRAGEDY OVER A TALE.

Two Kentucky Miners Fight, and Charles Hunter Is Shot to Death By Thomas Gossett.

Corbin, Ky., July 7.—Tale bearing and drink led to a tragedy at a little mining town near Corbin, called Gompers. The victim was Charles Hunter, while his slayer was a relative named Thomas Gossett. Some weeks ago Hunter circulated some ugly tales regarding Gossett's character, which, when the latter found them out, came near culminating in a tragedy, but friends parted them and kept them from each other as long as they could.

Thursday night Hunter went to Gossett's house and called him out. He was in an intoxicated condition. When Gossett came out Hunter began throwing stones at him. Gossett tried to get him to go away, but he would not. Gossett at length became angry and, drawing a revolver, started for Hunter. Hunter turned and fled, but as he reached the gate he turned back and Gossett fired. Hunter received a mortal wound, and died a few moments later. Gossett is an employe of one of the mining commissaries. His victim was a miner.

Fire at Frankfort.

Frankfort, Ky., July 6.—At 4 o'clock in the morning fire destroyed $50,000 worth of business property here, and the family of D. L. Hnly, a retired merchant, barely escaped death in the flames, being opportunely rescued. The buildings destroyed were four, located on the southwest corner of Broadway and St. Clair street, just in front of the state capitol grounds. The principal losers are Henry Ringold, merchant, $15,000, and M. A. Collins, hardware merchant, $10,000. The fire was caused by fireworks.

Shot the Man With His Wife.

West Liberty, Ky., July 6.—George Columbus, of this place, shot Bob Miller, of Walnut Grove, at this place. Miller and Columbus' wife were together when the shot was fired. Physicians say that Miller can not live. He is a merchant and well-to-do. The sympathy generally is with Columbus. Miller has been in the same kind of trouble before. Columbus was locked up to await the action of the grand jury, which is in session.

Judges Not Entitled to Fees.

Frankfort, Ky., July 5.—Auditor Coulter has been advised by Attorney General Breckinridge that city judges in cities of the second class are not entitled to fees for holding examining trials in felony cases. A claim of Judge Riley, of Lexington, for $970 was turned down. The ruling applies to Lexington, Covington and Newport.

Witnesses in the Powers Trial.

London, Ky., July 7.—Many subpoenas for witnesses in the cases against Caleb Powers and others, charged with complicity in the murder of Goebel, have been sent here. POLITICAL FEUD SETTLED.

Republicans and Democrats Both Made Concessions and Peace Prevails at Middlesboro, Ky.

Middlesboro, Ky., July 8.—A peace agreement was entered into here by the political factions, whereby it was agreed to stop hostilities. Recent outbreaks here have left the city in a turmoil at all times, and the condition was getting very alarming. Committees from each side met and an agreement was reached which was satisfactory to all.

R. C. Ford is to resign as mayor, [illegible] H. Turner is to get the [illegible] which the present council had declared vacant. Turner and City Judge Bosworth are to get their salary, which the city council had refused to pay. These were concessions made by the democrats, while the republicans agreed to have all the deputy sheriffs taken off and to stop the prosecution of ex-Chief of Police King, indicted for conspiracy to kill, and also to use their influence in having the indictments against the election offenders quashed. Both sides agree to use all their moral force to help preserve law and order.

McCHORD BILL ASSAILED.

Railroads Ask For an Injunction Against the State Board of Railroad Commissioners.

Louisville, Ky., July 7.—A suit to test and, if possible, break the McChord railroad law, which now controls all railroads in Kentucky, was filed in the federal court by the Louisville & Nashville, Southern Railroad of Kentucky, Louisville, Henderson & St. Louis and Chesapeake & Ohio.

They ask for a temporary injunction against the state board of railroad commissioners, composed of McChord, Dempsey and Wood, and ask that this be made perpetual on its hearing. They ask that the McChord bill be declared invalid, alleging it is contrary to that part of the federal constitution which gives congress sole control over interstate commerce. Subpoenas and date for hearing are also asked.

KENTUCKY'S TAX DUPLICATE.

The Assessed Value of Property Is $574,867,964—Income Will Be Less Than Last Year.

Frankfort, Ky., July 7.—The state board of equalization filed its report with the auditor. The grand total assessed value of all property subject to equalization is $574,867,964. While this is an increase of about $10,000,000 over the assessment of last year, the amount of tax to be realized will be $226,000 less than last year, owing to the decrease of the tax rate from 52½ to 47½ cents, besides which the assessment of shares of stock of national banks also falls short, knocking the state treasury out of about $100,000.

The report shows that there was raised in the state upward of 1,250,000 acres of corn last year.

Convict Becomes Insane.

Frankfort, Ky., July 7.—Floyd Rice, of Magoffin county, a convict in the state penitentiary here, was adjudged to be of unsound mind by a jury in the Franklin county court. Acting Gov. Carter at once respited him, and he will be taken to the Eastern Insane asylum at Lexington. Rice was sent here about 15 months ago for life for the murder of his brother-in-law.

Her Tip of No Avail.

A determined woman from the west visited Washington not long ago for the purpose of interviewing a member of the cabinet on a subject of interest to her. She called, as it happened, just at the time when the frauds in the Cuban postal department were made public, and the majority of the president's advisers, absorbed in considering the matter, had given instructions that they were not to be disturbed.

"So you refuse to take my card to the secretary?" asked the determined lady of the messenger.

"It would be against my orders, and I don't dare to," replied the messenger, politely.

The visitor turned away in high dudgeon, but a happy thought occurred to her and she retraced her steps. "Here my man," she said, insinuatingly, "here is 50 cents. Now will you take my card in?"

"I'm paid a bigger salary than that to keep your card out, madam," responded the darky, shaking his head.—N. Y. Tribune.

DANDY CRISTO!

will make the season of 1900 at my stable near Big Bone church, and will be permitted to attend 15 or 20 approved mares at $12 50 to insure a colt to stand up and suck.

DESCRIPTION AND PEDIGREE:

Dandy Cristo is a dark bay, 3 yrs-old, 16 hands high, heavy mane and tail, and weighs 1,050 lbs.

Dandy Cristo by Black Cristo; he by Monte Cristo, 59; first dam by Black Squirrel, 58; 2d dam by Mambrino Time; 3d dam by Blue Bull.

Monte Cristo by Montrose; he by Diamond Denmark, he by Black Denmark, he by Denmark, thoroughbred; the great 4 mile race horse, he by Imported Hedgeford. Monte Cristo's 1st dam by Black Williams, she by Brown's Highlander; 2p dam by Whips' thoroughbred.

Dandy Cristo's dam by Virginia Morgan and Spark's Cren Berry. Grand dam, by Black Squirrel, grand-grand dam, Highlander and Blades' famous saddle horse, Regenor, from Bracken county.

This breeding has produced the best saddle and harness horses ever in the Blue Grass section, and it is to be hoped that the breeders in this section will take advantage of it and raise a higher grade of horses, when it can be done so cheap.

Remember that a fancy saddle horse commands as high price as ever, whilst common horses are too cheap to give away.

Dandy Cristo took first premium in general purpose ring at Florence Fair in 1899; has made two shows and took first each time.

In either driving or handling hogs, have them reasonably empty, thereby saving much labor and risk. You will also put more pounds on the scales and have them in much better condition for the buyer, than if full when leaving the pen. If a hog is heated when the stomach is full it affects its appetite for several days; hence there will be a heavy loss to the shipper.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JULY 18, 1900. NO. 39

Now, you boys at Lexington, pick a winner.

THE Boers are like the Filipinos in this—they wont stay whipped.

BRYAN and Stevenson make as strong a combination as the Democrats could present.

MR. BRYAN will sound the keynote of his campaign at Indianapolis early next month.

Too much infernal internal dissention in the Democratic party in this State for the party to prosper.

Reeent experience with the Chinese show that they are well equipped with fire-arms and know how to use them.

THE trial of Caleb Powers, charged with being an accessory to the murder of Gov. Goebel, is in progress at Georgetown. The jury was obtained in a few days after the case was called.

IN the matter of instructed votes Gov. Beckham has very much the advantage of the other candidates, only lacking seventy-three of having enough to nominate him on the first ballot.

THE sending of troops from the Philippines to China was discontinued because they could not be spared from duty in the islands, which this country has been told repeatedly were conquered.

The Republicans chose a good man for their candidate for State Senator when they selected Atty. J. G. Tomlin, of Walton. There is nothing wrong with Mr. Tomlin except his politics, and he has a perfect right to his political opinions.

HARMONY with a big H is what the Democrats want at their convention at Lexington to-morrow, but of recent years it looks like wherever two or three are gathered together in Kentucky in the name of the Democratic party, there is bound to be a scrap.

IN his speech accepting the chairmanship of the convention, last Monday, Judge Stephens, made some timely remarks in regard to party harmony. He also said he intends to stand by the Goebel Election Law until something better is offered, which has not been done by any of its opponents up to this time.

THE effort of the Republican press to draw attention from the anti-trust and anti-imperialist planks in the Democratic national platform shows that they are regarded by that party as dangerous issues to advocate before the country, and it is its policy to attempt to stear clear of them, but Mr. Bryan will call the g. o. p. to a strict account for its action in support of trusts and imperialism.

THE Democratic Congressional convention in the seventh district held at Paris, last week, split and nominated two candidates—South Trimble, of Frankfort, and W. B. Moody, of Shelby county. Owen county sent two delegations to the convention, and the row over Owen's vote caused the split. That the trouble may be adjusted Trimble has proposed to pay the cost of a primary election in Owen county to decide whether or not he was entitled to her vote in the Paris convention. Trimble's opponents, if they are disposed to do the fair thing, will accept the proposition without delay.

THE Democratic candidates for the Gubernatorial nomination, have a splendid opportunity to do a great deal, to-morrow, in the direction of party harmony. The action of the county conventions on last Monday was so emphatically infavor of Governor Beckham that his name is the only one that should be presented to the convention. It matters not how the contests from Campbell and Kenton counties are decided, it does not change the fact that Mr. Beckham has shown that he is decidedly the strongest candidate with his party, and in the interest of party his nomination should be by acclaim. The shorter the work of the convention and the quicker it is done the better it will be for the party.

Reply to "Committee of Louisville Citizens."

Gentlemen, I have received your circular, calling upon the people of the State for their support in an effort to be made for the repeal of the "Goebel Election Law." You admit that "none of your committee has any thing to do with either party," or anyother organization. You claim to be "only private citizens." Then you say, "most of us are Democrats." I fail to see how you can be a Democrat, and yet have nothing to do with either party. I also fail to see anything undemocratic in the Goebel Law, so far as I understand that law. You say it (the law) has brought great trouble upon our people. I deny the charge, and affirm that a certain class, who conspired to "kill off a sufficient number of Democrats, to leave a Republican majority in our State Legislature, last winter," are the cause of all our late troubles, which you would saddle upon the Goebel Law. Let us see. Our Legislature is of the best blood and intelligence of our old State. To this body is delegated the duty of appointing a State Board of Election Officers, whose duty it is to appoint County Boards of like officers for the whole State, and those County Boards appoint precinct officers for their respective counties. Could there be anything more fair? The majority of the Legislature rules in the choice of the State Board. Is that not democratic? This Board removes from the power of one partisan man (County Judge) the selecting of the precinct officers, and places it in the hands of three citizens. Is this not fair? (and I believe the law requires a mixed commission.) How can the State Board not be responsible to the people, when they hold, only, by the appointment of the people's representatives? In declaring who shall have the offices, and who shall not, in all contests, what right have you to say, "their decision will be unjust?" I believe you, gentlemen, when you say you are not "partisan Democrats," but, at the same time, clammor for, and prefer the "old way," when it is generally known that many of those counties from whence the assassins of our State officers and people, "rolled up" larger returns for the Republican ticket in '96 than the whole voting population of many of the counties. I believe in fair elections and honest counts, but I much prefer the Goebel Law to the "old way" of '96. I have voted for Democratic officers straight, since 1864, and never voted but once at each election, and I do not desire to be unfair in any election, and, at the same time I am very much in favor of not allowing the "other fellows" to be unfair. In 1876, I remember, Democrats were "counted out" in enough States to defeat our Democratic President, Samuel J. Tilden, and one Hays "counted in" by the "other fellows." And I also know that our State was "counted out" of her electoral votes in '96, by the large majorities rolled up in our assassin counties by the "other fellows;" and, now, to be plain with your committee, gentlemen, I believe you are of the "other fellows," and are the last people in the State, who really desire honest elections.

As to the Blackburn amendment, I know not what it is. It may be as you say. In that case, I say: let the Goebel Law stand. You say, "if the State Board wants fraud, it has only to appoint men on the County Boards, who are willing to do its bidding." What right have to suppose that the State Board wants fraud? Men, who, like Judge Pryor, or either of the others, whom I know, were selected for their standing, as the "pendulum of Americanism," vibrating no further one way than the other. I deny that the election in every county of the State, or in any county of the State, is subject to the "arbitrary decision of the State Board." They are delegated the same kind of power of the Supreme Courts, and what right have you to say they decide unfairly, although our said court did decide the Income Tax Law unconstitutional? If our State Board is necessarily dishonest, to what power could be entrusted the supervision of our returns of elections? "Provided they are not afraid to do it." You stoop to the ridiculous in your "circular." In your evasion of the facts you design to cloud the whole truth. This Board is subject to and can be removed by the people, through their Legislature, and the people do elect this Board. The Legislature of Kentucky is the people of Kentucky. You claim to make no appeal as "party men, but we recognize the crimes, &c., of all parties." But you fail to notice the crime of assassination of the best men of the State, by members of that party, who, with you, are crying, "down with Goebel Law!" Men chosen by the leaders of a party to "kill off enough Democrats, in daylight, right in the halls of legislation to leave a majority of Republicans." And you gentlemen align yourselves with such company, and aspire to teach Democrats as to what they ought to do. Preposterous! If the Goebel Law must be repealed, then give us the old "viva voce" election law. In fact I never felt my Americanism stronger than when I could walk up to the polls and nullify the vote of some tory—some imperialist—some carpetbagger, if he were a yankee, or a negro.

I am satisfied that if there are any real defects, or dishonest technicalities in the Goebel Law, our State Legislature will see that they be righted by amendments, but to keep all the restrictions on the "other fellows," that will prevent their "rolling up" such preposterous returns as they did in '96.

I am yours, gentlemen, for majority rule, according to law.

TRY THIS FOR HOT WEATHER.

Somebody has said that if you would keep your mind on cooling things the oppressive weather would not seem half so hot.

Yesterday we tried it, and it's all right.

In our mind.

We ran out in the deep snow barefoot and knocked icicles off the dripping eaves, and slipped them down the back of our neck.

We tried to button our clothes with numbed fingers.

We kicked the ice-balls off our shoe heels after wrestling with the snow man.

We dug in the frozen ground and got our hands covered with cold, freezing mud while getting frozen potatoes out of the 'tater-holes.

We raked coal from under the snow without a shovel, and shucked corn with bare hands on a frosty morning.

We forced our mind to rest on such things until the beads of perspiration that trickled from our brow and elsewhere froze into little ice balls as they fell and rattled on the floor like pouring shot into a bread pan.

Oh, it's great—if you can only get your mind right.

White Man Turned Yellow.

Great consternation was felt by the friends of M. A. Hogarty, of Lexington, Ky., when they saw he was turning yellow. His skin slowly changed color, also his eyes, and he suffered terribly. His malady was Yellow Jaundice. He was treated by the best doctors, but without benefit. Then he was advised to try Electric Bitters, the wonderful Stomach and Liver remedy, and he writes: "After taking two bottles I was wholly cured." A trial proves its matchless merit for all Stomach, Liver and Kidney troubles. Only 50c. Sold by W. F. McKim, Burlington; J. G. Oelsner, Florence; M. J. Crouch, Union.

PROGRESS FOR FARMERS.

[From the Farmers Home Journal.]

Farmers as a class are the least progressive people in our country. The manufacturer, the mine operator, the merchant, the railroad owner and nearly all other business men are constantly on the alert for new and improved machinery and methods in conducting their business, the application and use of which, though often very expensive, will increase the volumn of business or decrease the amount of expense to a point which will not only meet the extra expense but will yield an additional profit.

Progress is forced on the farmer to a certain extent, for without it he could not hope to survive; but a great many of our American farmers refuse to progress further than is absolutely necessary. A farmer of to day who uses the crude and obsolete methods of tilling the soil with home-made farming implements can no more hope to compete with his progressive neighbor who uses up-to-date planting, cultivating and harvesting machinery than the colonial stage coach can command the passenger trafic of our country against the fast and progressive railway.

Too many farmers adhere to the methods and traditions of generations gone by, and seem to think that their sphere is to raise everything they eat, wear the commonest clothes they can buy, send the children to the district school during the winter months and remain as they are. This idea is an erroneous one. The farmer is the mainstay of the nation; he is the foundation on which we build, and he is entitled to all of the comforts luxusies and pleasures that the age is able to give. Yet he can only obtain them by making the effort. Every step forward requires an effort, and without this effort there is nothing better in store for the farmer than he is receiving today. Modern farming is a business—a science—and the farmer who studies and prosecutes his business, who studies the science of his business and who adopts progressive methods of farming is the farmer who will make a success. Instead of spending much time on the streets of his nearest village discussing the probable result of the next election, it were better that he was at home studying the merits of some improved farming implement, or considering the adoption of some new method of farming whereby he could produce more for less. When we think of some of our own bluegrass farmers, or our Ohio valley farmers or our Western farmers, who look after their business and farm for profit, who live in homes that overshadow the average city home in point of elegance, and who sell the products of their farm for a less price than the old time farmers can produce for, we see the possibilities of farming.

Farmers, awake, study, your business, prosecute your business, educate yourselves in your business, adopt new and improved methods, progress, keep up with the procession and in a few years you will command an influence that will be powerful and immortal.

LOOKING FOR CAMPBELLITES.

A minister of the denomination known as Christians in some localities and as Campbellites in others was traveling in a backwoods region of Arkansas, and called at a house to rest and learn something about the country.

"Are there any Campbellites in this country?" he inquired of the mistress of the house.

"Camelites! Camelites! I don't know, I'm shore. My man keeps a pack of hounds, and does a mighty sight of huntin'. He put the skins of the animiles on the back side of the house to dry, and you kin go out there and see if thar is any Camelite skins among 'em. I wouldn't know a Camelite if I seed one. Never hearn tell of that animile afore, shore's yer born!"

On entering the house he discovered that he had left the check with the rest of the mail on the fence. He hastily went back and arrived on the scene just in time to see the old cow swallow the check with the other mail.—West Union Defender.

THE CONCENTRATION OF WEALTH.

One per cent of the population of this country own more than one-half of the wealth of the nation.

Three families in New York city have in their possession wealth enough to build a line of cottages costing $1,000 each around the world.

The New York Tribune published a list of 4,097 millionaries with over ten billions of wealth in 1896. They own to day not less than $12,000,000,000 or one-sixth of the total wealth of the nation.

We produce in a year no less than twenty to twenty-five billions of dollars in wealth. One-fifth of this goes to the wealth producers, two-fifths to capital and two-fifths to idle capitalists.

In 1899 the Carnegie Steel Company with a capital paid in of $20,000,000 made a net profit of $21,000,000 or over 100 per cent. And the profit for this year is estimated to be $40,000,000. The present value of the company is over $200,000,000.

The capital stock of the Standard Oil Company is a little over $97,000,000. A short time ago the regular quarterly dividend was paid and also a special cash dividend of $17,000,000. The stock of this great trust is quoted at $583 per share or at a valuation of more than $575,000,000.

Seventy families of this country have an average wealth of $40,000,000.

Six men in New York city absolutely control 60,000 miles of railroads.

The plutocratic class numbering according to Mr. Thomas G. Sherman 192,000 families, has an average wealth of $238,000 and a total wealth of $43,367,000,000.

TRUE TO THE PEOPLE.

Stirring Laudation of Democracy by Governor Thomas.

Chief Executive of Colorado Makes a Telling Speech on Party Precepts at the Kansas City Convention.

In his address to the democratic national convention at Kansas City, July 4, Temporary Chairman Gov. Thomas, of Colorado, said:

"We meet under most auspicious influences. On the national birthday, in a great central city of the republic, at the close and opening of a century, we come together to reaffirm our allegiance to the principles of Thomas Jefferson and our loyalty to their preeminent living exponent. We have been selected by the farmer and the artisan, the miner and the mechanic, the producers of wealth in every state and territory of this republic, and each region, as decree they have already determined, to proclaim a candidate they already chosen. We come with the pomp and circumstance of consolidated wealth, but as the delegates of the plain people who believe that all men were created equal, and that all governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed. We are not here as the representatives of the vast interests which dominate every industrial life, but as the champions of the individual citizen who stands helpless in their presence. We speak not for those who wield the finances of the world upon a single metal, supplementing its inadequacy by a paper currency issued by a private monopoly at the expense of the people, but for the millions who believe in the money of the constitution and in the ability of their countrymen to legislate for themselves without the previous permission of foreign parliaments, potentates or princes.

"We are in very truth the party of the people. Our declaration of faith and purpose given to the world four years ago has been strengthened by the passage of years and is enshrined to-day in our hearts and hopes. It marked an epoch in political history and symbolized the regeneration of the party whose birth was coeval with the birth of the union, whose death that union cannot long survive. It crystallized into an undying creed the precepts of our founders and confirmed the objects of democratic organization and proclaimed democracy to be no longer a name, but 'a great spirit and a living force.'

Evils Due to Republicanism.

"The close of President Harrison's administration found the country face to face with conditions of the greatest moment. A deficiency in the public revenues through the reckless legislation and profligate extravagance of the Fifty-first congress had become apparent in the preceding October. A bond issue prepared in February was postponed as a legacy to the incoming administration. Trade and industry, long stimulated by unequal tariff laws, were staggering toward a crisis. Monetary conditions disturbed and uncertain threatened early disaster. The storm came in June, when the elements long gathering and long accumulating burst in fury upon the continent. It shook the foundations of our commercial fabric, overwhelmed every branch of trade and industry and spread bankruptcy and desolation everywhere. Its subsidence was the work of years. The misery and ruin it wrought are fresh in the minds and hearts of this people. The country slowly emerged from the receding flood, the stricken nation struggled to its feet and painfully began the work of economic reconstruction, while statesmen discussed the causes of our calamity. In the agony of our suffering they clearly perceived and fearlessly acknowledged its primal source, a vicious and indefensible monetary system. Men differed as to the method of its reformation, not as to the necessity of its change. They wrangled over the merits of standards, but united in condemning an unsound and artificial financial system, the logical outcome of and whose operation was inevitable disaster.

Money Question Paramount.

"The line of division between political forces became, therefore, sharply defined in 1896 upon what we called the money question. That question involved, as we then asserted, and as we now know, every other economic problem. It embraced within its wide limits the interests of labor and capital, of combination and competition, of production, transportation and distribution. It was predicted that the defeat of bimetallism would be followed by the retirement of all forms of government currency, by the dedication of the power of note issue to the holders of idle capital, by the practical consolidation of all lines of transportation and the consequent domination of every commercial pursuit by a score of colossal monopolies. These predictions have in general been verified.

"Democratic defeat had scarcely been recorded when the march of consolidation was resumed. Every pursuit that engages the attention of man has been exploited, capitalized and appropriated. The earth and the waters roundabout it have been explored for subjects of monopoly and those who have thundered against unsound money have used the printing press and the engraver's art to turn out thousands of millions of fictitious values, to whose profit the toilers and consumers pay constant tribute.

"Every avenue is closed to the competitive efforts of the citizen; has been listed on the stock exchange and rises and falls with the turn of the gambler's card. Consolidations succeed consolidations, and as they lessen in number they grow large in the volume of their real and fictitious accumulations and their more despotic sway over all material and political interests. These evils, startling in their magnitude and inevitable in their consequences, must either culminate in one immense aggregation, all-powerful and all-absorbing, to be arrested and dissolved by the forces of an aroused public opinion finding expression at the polls in support of the nominees of this convention.

"The party in power carried the last election by and through the support of the influences which we criticise. Having purchased the right to pursue their various objects, the government has been at all times their powerful ally. Hence the onward march of organized wealth to absolute power and the exaltation of the dollar above the rights and the welfare of the multitude. Hence the crisis in our commercial affairs, whose issue, presented in acute form to the voters of 1900, is that of industrial despotism as against the liberty of the citizen.

No War Against Wealth.

"Democracy wages no war against wealth. Under her beneficent rule its creation and amassment have ever been among the most worthy objects of human effort. The desire for material comfort and well-being is the very mainspring of progress. The wealth that comes as the reward of honest industry and thrift commands and must receive the encouragement and protection to all. But the wealth that comes through partnership with the government, which usurps its prerogatives and perverts its agencies, which absorbs the very means and blasts the opportunities of the individual, crushes competition, levies tribute on the producer and corrupts and poisons all branches of official life and reduces the citizen to dependence upon its will excites our just apprehensions. Free institutions must languish without a community of wealth. Political integrity cannot survive its temptations.

"Against its continued prevalence the conscience of the nation must be quickened and aroused if its baneful influences are to be destroyed. Modern monopoly is the offspring of the republican party. It is the genius of organized commerce without conscience, sentiment nor patriotism. It knows neither justice nor morality. Its inspiration is greed and its purpose accumulation. Corruption is its necessary instrument. No public service is too high, none too low to escape its influences. Its hand is on the throat and in the pocket of every human being in the nation. It sneers at the rights of man and defies the sovereignty of states. It regulates wages and the prices of life's necessities. It divides the territory of the union into commercial provinces, punishes integrity and rewards the unscrupulous.

"It gives or refuses employment at its pleasure. It blacklists the workingman and sets him adrift to starve in the midst of plenty. It marches its battalions of employes to the polls, places in every ballot in their hands and coerces their support for its favorite instrument. It is enthroned in the councils of the nation and the states, sits on the bench and makes and expounds the law. It gives millions to its political protector to debauch the consciences of freemen and receives tenfold return therefor in the legislation that it secures. It is marching to despotism under the canopy of the republic. It is the enemy of democracy, which has accepted its gage of battle.

Trust or Government Must Go.

"Either the trust or the government must disappear. At the demand of the so-called financial interests the present congress has enacted a new currency law. By its terms the government has presented to the national banks $25,000,000, given them control of our circulation, provided for the payment in cash of the premium values of the greater part of its bonds and created a perpetual national debt. It has declared for the payment of all obligations in gold, stricken from its contracts the reserved right of the government to use its own money for the payment of debts and delegated to private interests the power to supply current all deficiencies in the circulating medium by the paper money whose volume they shall regulate and which the people are taxed to support. The government's treasury note are retired, an inert mass of $150,000,000 in gold is to be kept in the treasury by the issue of bonds whenever necessary, the currency must shrink and recessary, the currency must shrink and as well as the judgment of selfishness shall dictate, and the pretended menace of bimetallism against 'sound money' and the national honor has been evaded.

"This law, commended by the money changer and the holder of idle capital seeking investment where taxation can be avoided, is the culmination of a series of enactments beginning with the measure of 1869 to strengthen the public credit, by which the financial affairs of the union have been placed wholly within the control of a select few and the burden of debt is constantly increased by the sacrifice of property values. It is the logical sequence of that sinister conspiracy which has fettered for all time introduced changes in the public obligation whereby every covenant in the public interest has disappeared. It contains within itself a Pandora's box of evils which in time will surely open. Those who now applaud will live to curse it; its beneficiaries will repudiate it when the wrath of an outraged people shall be aroused by the experiences of its operation. The skies are smiling now and the hills are green, but the storm cloud already gathers over those who have bartered the dearest interests of the people to the organized greed of a power whose avarice cannot be satiated with the universe.

Want Money of Exploitation.

"Against this iniquitous scheme of finance democracy protests. We will have no money system founded upon the public debt and dictated by those who hold it. We will have the gold and silver of the constitution. For a paper currency founded upon them and issued by the government as the embodiment of the people's credit. We would not have the people for the maintenance of a private money system. We would pay and not perpetuate our public debt. We will dig our metals from its bowels and open our mints to their coinage. We will pay no tribute to Caesar for that which is our own. We will secure the money changers from the temple of our treasury and reconsecrate it to the service and welfare of the common people.

"Those who assert that the money question is settled are given but little heed to the lessons of experience. It can never die until it shall receive the righteous solution. If it be true that our monetary circulation is the lifeblood of our commercial system it must follow that upon its wholesome quantity depends our continued well being. Nostrums administered in time of stress may postpone but cannot defeat the demand for complete and thorough renovation of a vicious and destructive policy. The democratic party will accept nothing short of this. No substitute for the bimetallic principle upon which substantial and enduring prosperity must be founded. Through all vicissitudes of political life the needle of its compass points to that as the magnetic star of sound national policy.

"The phenomenal increase in the annual output of gold has materially added to the general stock of primary money and relieves some part of the stress of contraction which succeeded the closure of the Indian mints to silver in 1894. The consequent improvement in business and industrial conditions may be traced directly to this fact, although the failure of crops in various portions of the world and the waging of a great offensive war with its accompanying expenditure of treasure have contributed to the general result. The enlargement of the sum of our metallic money has cheapened its value, stimulated prices and set the wheels of industry in motion.

Gold Supply Not Ample.

"No more signal demonstration of the bimetallist contention was ever witnessed. Had the concurrent coinage and circulation of silver with gold been uninterrupted they would have kept the quantity of our money of redemption in harmony with our national growth and our development pace with the increase of wealth and population. The terrible crises of the past quarter of a century with their attendant miseries and bankruptcy would have been avoided and prosperity would have remained with us unbroken and enduring. The false pleas of 1896, that the monetary volume was sufficient and the world supply of gold ample for its needs, is now transparent. Its error is admitted in the boast of our opponents that they have increased our per capita circulation. The vast quantities yielded by the mines are rudely absorbed by the ceaseless demand for its use and its multiplied increase is earnestly hoped for. No voice is raised against its continued production. No fear is expressed that we can be embarrassed by its abundance, yet its annual output exceeds that of gold and silver in the years when the latter was denounced because of its threatened inundation. Our opponents stand confounded by the irresistible operation of a law they have denied. Industry breathes with more content because there is more money for her purposes, and her votaries in the presence of its increasing units with democracy in proclaiming the great truth that civilization gains and humanity advances with every addition to the world's stock of gold and silver. But the production of gold and silver oscillates, one or the other always preponderating. The pendulum will again swing to the other extreme. Gathering and knowing this, knows also that the crisis returns if man shall reject the offering nature presents for our continued prosperity. Look backward and forward as we may to the coming years, we ask this great nation to provide against recurrence of disaster by adhering to the system of finance which the fathers crystallized in the constitution and base its future policy on more secure foundation.

Sympathy for the Oppressed.

"The prevailing sentiment of democratic sympathy for the people struggling for the blessings of liberty compelled the administration two years ago to interfere with the despotic tyranny of Spain in Cuba backward and forward as the coming years, we ask this great nation to provide against recurrence of disaster by adhering to the system of finance which the fathers crystallized in the constitution and base its future policy on more secure foundation.

Sympathy for the Oppressed.

"The prevailing sentiment of democratic sympathy for the people struggling for the blessings of liberty compelled the administration two years ago to interfere with the despotic tyranny of Spain in Cuba and to speak for the oppressed people of that island the right of self-government. Our ultimatum delivered, we solemnly and officially declared them to be free and independent and disclaimed to the world any disposition or intention to exercise sovereignty, jurisdiction or control over the island, except for the pacification thereof. We asserted our determination when that was accomplished to leave the government and control of the island to its people.

"The conditions of the ensuing war sent Admiral Dewey to the distant Philippines, where another people engaged in the same struggle with the same oppressor appealed to the same impulses of our nature. There he broke the power of Spain, which, suing for peace, submitted to the liberation of Cuba and the cession of Porto Rico. Our government disdained the spirit of its manifesto of April and become the purchaser of the Philippines in January. Since then we have given to the benefit of our civic institutions by governing her through the war department. We have kept faith with Porto Rico by substituting the suzerainty for the sovereignty of Spain, and confirmed the Philippine estimate of the white man by prolonging the Spaniards' method of colonial government in those islands as long as we could.

Colonial Systems Scored.

"The national sympathy for all who seek self-government has been made the instrument by which cupidity and greed hold a relentless dominion. The right of purchase is invoked to justify the adoption of a so-called colonial policy by the great western republic, and her glorious institutions are tortured to be for home consumption, with prohibitive duties against their exportation. The constitution is bounded by the domain of the administration and it creates and has absolute jurisdiction over all that lies beyond them. The bill of rights has become a bill of platitudes, the military government established in the war departments are the agencies of benevolent assimilation wherever the flag floats beyond the confines of the ocean. Imperialism has become a new word in the national vocabulary. Destiny is the name of its fateful brother. Trade expansion is the mystic verbal tie that binds them. All are parts of the system that has for its cause for every sin against the organic law of our fathers, while clamorous appeals to a so-called patriotism drown the solemn warnings of the statesmen against the certain tendencies of the new dispensation. The saivs of unavoidable necessity is applied to the national calamities entailed in the war and by the incantations of trade statistics compiled in the interests of monopolies which purchase their pathway of conquest and dominion through the graves of the children of the eventful years, unmindful of the decay of our institutions and unperturbed by the ebb and flow of the surging tides of public passion that soon shall overwhelm all who have used the machinery of the republic for the extinction of a commonwealth.

"We have cheerfully submitted to a burdensome taxation that Cuba might be free; that Porto Rico might enjoy the heritage of our constitution. We have contributed our money to the cause of liberty and sent them freely forth to extinguish the last vestige of despotism in our hemisphere. We protest against the perpetuation of the doctrine of life to the cause of empire.

Entangling Alliances Opposed.

"We will emulate monarchy neither in conquest nor in government. We would abandon the imperialistic doctrine and realize with Jefferson that its first and fundamental maxim is never to entangle ourselves in the broils of the old world. We need not fear that we may not be able to war if we may trade with them. We realize that a standing army is the attendant of imperialism. We would avoid the latter, because we believe it is inconsistent with our free institutions. We would avoid it because its adoption must lead to other wars and other conquests, to the shedding of innocent blood, to burdensome taxation, to a hopeless national debt, to forcible annexation of other lands, to constant entanglement with the affairs of other nations—in short, to all the evils foreseen by the father of his country and depicted in that immortal address, whose solemn warnings are forgotten or disregarded by our rulers.

"We would have no colonial system. Its pestilent brood has already hatched in the Havana post office and has grown apace for months in distant Manila. It is the fruitful mother of oppression and maladministration. It has no place in the domain of a republic. It cannot live in the atmosphere of freedom. It is an asylum of dishonesty and incompetency. It breeds corruption and scandal. It makes a tyrant of the ruler, a rebel of the ruled. It deceives and beguiles the home government. It robs and plunders the subject people. It is an instrument of despotism and the antagonist of democracy. It requires for its successful operation a permanent military establishment. Our administration has a standing force in every state that forms the union, a star for every commonwealth of the sisterhood. It has neither place nor emblem for subject colonial systems.

Imperialism Is Denounced.

"We believe in that expansion which under democratic rule brought half the continent as a galaxy of commonwealths into the union. We denounce that expansion which by contract overcomes the people of a hemisphere under the pretext of giving them liberty, which governs them by force, which denies to them the rights of citizens, which subjects the American workman to the competition of hordes of orientals from the so-called American provinces to take his place at the forge, in the field and in the factory.

"The stretch of 33 peaceful years from the close of the rebellion to the opening of the war for Cuban independence has wrought no change in the valor or self-denial of the American soldier. Inspired by the loftiest patriotism, the highest devotion to country, he has again testified his readiness and ability to wage her battles and win her victories. On land and sea, under burning tropic suns, he is the same invincible fighter whose fathers at Yorktown, at New Orleans, at San Jacinto and at Gettysburg established, maintained and perpetuated the republic. To them, all of them, soldier and sailor, the nation's gratitude extends. Its debt should be requited to their widows and their orphans, to those stricken by bullet and pestilence, to the helpless and the living. To care for the maimed in the strife and for the loved ones of those who fall in conflict for the nation is the most sacred of our obligations, and it shall be our constant care to enforce its just and full observance.

"The sentiment which animates the American volunteer and makes him the citizen soldier finds its inspiration in popular government, in the identification of the citizen with the republic. The same spirit impels the American sympathy wherever democracy battles for existence or struggles for establishment. Wherever freedom makes a stand or liberty utters protest they find response in the blood of the heroes of our people. Love of independence is confined to no land or latitude. In sunny France, in the South American republics, in the boundless veldts of South Africa it has given strength to arms that fight and courage to hearts that beat for home and liberty. It has been baptized in the red blood of martyred heroes every where. Battled oft, it never dies, and we who have for a century bathed in the sunlight of its blessed presence pay instinctive homage to its defenders in other climes. May the day never come when a free people, struggling against the dismemberment or destruction of their country, shall look in vain for sympathy and consolation to us as their exemplars.

Favors a Fortified Canal.

"We would build the Nicaragua canal as an American enterprise for the American people. We would operate it in times of peace and control it in times of war. We would forthwith, if not withstanding the protests or the objections of trans-Atlantic powers. We would share the benefits and responsibilities of its management with no associate. We would concede its advantages in times of peace to other nations under terms and conditions of our own prescription and deny to them and to all of them any other identification with its affairs.

"We would form political alliances with no countries whatever. We neither need nor desire them. For century and a quarter we have survived the envies and the enmities of Europe. We have flourished notwithstanding the civil and foreign conflicts of that eventful period. When we were weak, confronted with the embarrassments of distracting international dissensions, with a government of limited authority, with undeveloped resources and a sparse population, our friendship was never solicited, our strength despised. To-day we are courted by the powers which would utilize our strength and profit by our association. We are reminded of the difference between blood and water, of the identity of mere appearance, of the tremendous advantages that must accrue to us through an alliance with kin beyond the sea. We are told that the growing needs of commerce, the widening area of trade, identity of interests and institutions, the bond of a common destiny demand a better understanding with the motherland. These and other considerations continually suggested and favorably received justify our protest against any bond of international union. It is as true now as ever that it is folly in one nation to look for disinterested favors from another, that it must pay with a portion of its independence for whatever it may get under that character. There can be no greater error than to expect or calculate upon real favors from nation to nation. It is an illusion which experience must cure, which a just pride ought to discard.'

Fearless Man for President.

"We would have for our chief magistrate a man sprung from the loins of the people, a man nurtured in its traditions, controlled by the admonitions of his conscience. A man of lofty ideals and steadfast courage. A man to whom the constitution appears as a living and sacred reality. A man who exalts the duties, the rights and the welfare of his fellow citizens above the sinister and corrupting influences of centralized commercialism. A man whose ear is untuned to the pulsations of the pocketbook, but responsive to the beatings of the masses. A man with no Warwick behind his chair, with policies that are his own. A man with strong opinions and a strong will but one who will carefully weigh the sentiments of his country's dignity and power, of its capacity to cope with all conditions. A man who measures the greatness of his office by the protection it gives to the humblest citizen. A man whose clear vision perceives the causes and whose steady judgment determines the remedy for the public ills. A man who will lay a strong hand of authority upon the vast interests dominating the moral, industrial and political life of the nation and protect the citizen against the institutions against all their designs and encroachments. A man who recognizes no dignity greater than that of an American citizen, no right more sacred than that which secures to him the full enjoyment of every opportunity that a land like ours affords. A man whose opinions and policies spring his approval of policies are not fashioned from day to day by extraneous influences, whose 'plain duty' consists not in surrendering the republication of his own counsels.

"We want a man of nonplastic mold, conforming his opinions to passing impressions of popular prejudice, but to settle their abandonment as in their advocacy. We want a man to whom right is greater than expediency, who postpones no duty to the demands of passage, who is loved by the multitude, respected by the world and feared only by those who distrust the people.

"The republican party boasts of almost unbroken rule for nearly 40 years. Its mission was to defeat the extension of slavery and destroy that institution. It appealed to the moral forces of the republic and founded its organization upon the principles of the declaration of independence. It was triumant. Under its rule was wrought its administration effaced slavery from the land and forever determined the integrity of the union. Since then it has undergone complete and marvelous change. It once declared its opposition to 'all combinations of capital.' It has become the exponent and defender of capital in all its forms, the protector of every political evil that has arisen since the war to assail or menace the welfare of the citizen. The emancipator of the negro, it has fostered those commercial conditions which are fast establishing a system of industrial slavery. Once solemnly declaring the maintenance of the principles of the declaration of independence and embodied in the federal constitution to be essential to the preservation of our republican institutions, it now maintains the right to govern subject peoples by the sword.

"It is a far cry from the ringing tocsin of 1856 to the buccaneering utterances of 1900, yet it well typifies the shameful transfiguration. If to its alliterative attraction we add monopoly and militarism with trusts and taxation and place the mark above them on its waving banners, the world will gaze upon the composite picture of its last official declaration.

"Against the continuance of this party in power we enter protest. With the man exalted above the dollar, the constitution, against the combination, the equality of all before the law, with solemn promises to correct the abuses of administration and to enforce those fundamentals of government which secure exact justice to all, we shall not appeal in vain to the wisdom, the intelligence and the patriotism of the American people."

BOUTWELL PREDICTS DEFEAT.

Venerable Ex-Governor Believes That the Laboring Classes Are Opposed to McKinley.

Ex-Gov. Boutwell is as firm as ever that President McKinley should be defeated, and he is also confident that he will be. Mr. Boutwell has been a sturdy opponent of imperialism from the first, and he has the courage of his convictions and opposes not only the re-election of President McKinley, but he opposes every congressional candidate who favors imperialism. He does not believe in it at all, and he regards it as dangerous to the welfare of the country. This life-long republican and stout party man has squarely broken with the republican party and is willing to see it go down to defeat partly for its own good and still more for the good of the country. Mr. Boutwell is quoted in New York as follows:

"I believe McKinley and Roosevelt will be defeated. There is a strong sentiment against the republican party among the masses. McKinley will carry Massachusetts, but will lose New York. The laboring men and the colored men are against McKinley. The labor element does not like his use of troops, the Germans have many grievances, and the colored people will resent the administration's neglect to punish the murders of colored men in the south. This feeling against the administration is not confined to any one locality, it will be found in all parts of the United States. The trouble with the republican party is that it has too few Roosevelts and too few Lodges to stand up and say to him or that policy is right. The Philadelphia ticket will be beaten."

Ex-Speaker Thomas B. Reed is another republican whose attitude towards McKinley is giving the party some concern. Not only does he say nothing about it favorably, but his sharp criticisms in the legal and other circles in which he moves have an influence, and many of his friends are said to be turning against the ticket that they would otherwise have supported. One man who gave $10,000 to the republican campaign fund four years ago it is said will do nothing now, and this change is attributed to Reed's influence. When such reports as these were shown to the ex-speaker he simply remarked that he supposed that every man had a right to his opinion. It is not probable now that Mr. Reed will support Bryan openly, but he is not likely to do much in favor of McKinley. He does not believe in the administration policy at all, he is not an admirer of Hanna, and he has no particular love for the president. He is practically opposed to the whole administration and many of its friends, and he does not hesitate to let it be known. Senator Hoar will, of course, give a perfunctory support to the republican ticket because he is a candidate for reelection at the hands of the next legislature, but the logic of his position puts him outside of his party, and his own influence will be counted against himself. There will be thousands of men who have heretofore acted with the republican party and who will be against it this year. Some of them will not hasten to let it be known, but the facts will come out gradually. Meantime the rank and file of the republican party who are not in accord with the administration's policy will show their disposition to oppose it and to oppose all congressional candidates who favor imperialism. There is to be a new alignment this year, and it is going to be an alignment of quite uncommon interest.—Lawrence (Kan.) Daily News.

A WEAK PLATFORM.

Views of Some Prominent Journals on the Philadelphia Production.

It is the least moving and weakest platform ever submitted by the republican party of the United States.—Springfield Republican (Ind.).

The taxpayers of the United States pay a little more than $100,000,000 a year to compensate 70,000 American soldiers in the Philippines for adding $1,000,000 annually to our export trade. It ought to be possible to make a better business arrangement than this.—Baltimore Sun.

Under the fair promises of this platform is disguised the worst spirit of imperialism. The people of this country would need to have an amazing degree of confidence in the authors of these specious generalities to take the platform builders at their word in presence of the Porto Rican act—the first measure in which they have defined their unconstitutional and dangerous policy.—Philadelphia Record.

It looks very much like what it probably is—the product of McKinley's mind—dribbling through Postmaster General Smith's pen, and then ripped up the back by Foraker; "chewed on" by Rosewater, Quigg, Gallinger and others, and finally patched together by Fairbanks and Davis. It is the one awkward, clumsy product of a convention organized with great system and carried out according to that system with a great deal of skill. Mr. McKinley ought to have made the platform himself or intrusted it to one man.—Waterbury American (Ind.).

It will be seen that the leaders of the republican party organization have resolved to make their appeal to the general conservative sentiment by emphasizing the importance of financial security and subordinating all perplexing issues of the present as far as possible to this. There is none of the defiant proclamation of commercial expansion that was expected by many, and the difficult problems of industrial combinations and the relations of capital and labor are treated with no more force or precision than has been usual in party deliverances.—Philadelphia Times.

—Some time ago Roosevelt was credited with having made the statement that McKinley's backbone was made of "chocolate eclair." Teddy will probably tell them now he never said it, and if he did he was "only foolin'."—Kalamazoo (Mich.) News.

EVIL OF THE TRUSTS.

A Menace to Our National Life—The Product of Unhealthy Political Conditions.

Whatever merit there may be in the claim made by the defenders of the trust, that the trust is the natural product of our industrial evolution, inasmuch as it economizes human energy and cheapens the product, it is apparent that the evils so outweigh the good that the question naturally arises which can be the best, dispense with the trust or the republic?

Of what avail is it, if to save human energy, we are compelled to sacrifice the independence of our people, thereby sapping the very vitals of our republic? It is not many years ago, when any young man of thrift and energy could look forward to becoming his own master. The opportunity was open to him of carving his own destiny. How different to-day. The young man of to-day can expect nothing better than to be the hireling of some corporation, the slave of some trust, with great ability he may in return for the surrender of every vestige of his independence obtain a most liberal salary.

If of mediocre ability he will be compelled to work for starvation wages. The door of opportunity being closed to him, he becomes an industrial dependent, a servile, abject one; being industrially dependent, it follows as a matter of course that he is politically dependent. It was this feeling of dependence, this fear of coercion of their masters, that made thousands of corporations and trust employes vote for McKinley instead of Bryan in 1896.

Of what avail is our free ballot or our free institutions, if through fear of starvation the thousands of these dependents will be found willing to barter such freedom, wherein lies the future of the republic?

The dangers that confront this nation to-day are not from without, but from within. We need the bravery of the citizen who dares to cast a free ballot, more than we do the bravery of the soldier who stands defiant amid the smoke of battle. We need heroes of peace more than heroes of war. We will never flinched before overwhelming odds on the battlefield are with craven mien surrendering to the trust barons every day. A ten-line notice on the factory door will create a greater stampede than a battery of rapid-fire guns. The trusts have already weakened the moral stamina of the nation, otherwise every state would inaugurate a stricter quarantine against them than they would against Asiatic cholera.

The trust in private hands saves human energy. Yes, but for whose benefit? It displaces the energy of hope by the energy of fear. It robs the young man of manly independent hope. The trust is a moral leper. It injects its soulless creed into our political life. Ethics give way to materialism; altruism to egotism; the brotherhood of man to the divine right of kings. The reign of the trusts is but a resurrection of the feudal system. The power of the feudal barons of the middle ages was a mere bagatelle compared to the power of the industrial barons of to-day. The retainer of the olden time who felt that he was abused could betake himself to the forest and green sward, and live a jolly, if not a virtuous life. With a good, faithful long bow and hound he need not starve. The retainer of to-day in the person of the factory slave, the bankrupt small dealer, the ex-traveling man and the clerk in the department store, the teacher or the preacher are quickly starved into subjection.

It is no more criminal to control the supply of coal than it is the supply of sunshine. It is just as necessary for society to control the supply of ice as it is the supply of sewers.

We can just as logically claim that the plague is the outcome of our industrial evolution as to claim that the trust is. The trust is a disease, the product of a diseased political and economic system. It was born and fostered by unnatural parents. It was sired by special privilege and damned by transportation discrimination. Its godfather was a contracted currency. Nothing can be natural that is the offspring of the unnatural. Nothing can be politically healthy that was bred by political disease.—S. J. Kent, in Nonconformist.

AS SEEN BY LINCOLN.

Specious Plea of Imperialism Exposed by Ftrst Republican President.

The republican national platform promises to the people of the Philippines "the largest measure of self-government consistent with their welfare and our duties."

Abraham Lincoln disposed of this specious plea, used in his time, as it has been in every time, by the apologists of government without the consent of the governed. In the course of one of his famous series of speeches replying to Douglas the first republican president said:

"These arguments that are made, that the inferior race are to be treated with as much allowance as they are capable of enjoying; that as much is to be done for them as their condition will allow—what are those arguments? They are the arguments that kings have made for enslaving the people in all ages of the world. You will find that all the arguments in favor of kingcraft were of this class; that they always bestrode the necks of the people, not that they wanted to do it, but because the people were better off for being ridden. Turn it whatever way you will, whether it come from the mouth of a king, an excuse for enslaving the people of the country, or from the mouth of men of one race for enslaving the men of another, it is all the same old serpent."

Thus clearly and emphatically has Abraham Lincoln bequeathed to us his judgment on the Philippine policy of William McKinley.—N. Y. World.

EDITORIAL OPINION.

What Democratic Journalists Think About the Presidential Candidates.

——In this great conflict William J. Bryan goes forth to battle as the champion of the people. We believe he will triumph.—Pittsburgh Post.

——Bryan and Stevenson—anti-imperialism and anti-trusts—compose a combination that will start Mark Hanna to walking the floor.—Louisville Times.

——Whatever may be thought of Bryan's views on the money question, he believes in advocating them. He has the courage of his convictions.—Indianapolis Press (Ind.).

——Undoubtedly the ticket as it stands has a better outlook for success than had the Cleveland ticket when it was nominated in 1892. — Louisville Courier-Journal.

——Bryan's nomination will occasion a deep and earnest feeling of joy and satisfaction—an enthusiasm which will run higher and higher until election day.—Denver News.

——Mr. McKinley should not insert anything about "our plain duty" in his letter of acceptance that the politicians and the trusts are likely to reverse three months later.—Rochester Herald.

——Bryan and Stevenson have the appearance of a winning team. They are both strong men physically and mentally. They are both excellent speakers and both are fighters of the first class.—N. O. Times-Democrat.

——The good man for vice president has been found. Mr. Stevenson is in thorough line with democratic principles, originally and present. He is sound in faith. He is with the people on all questions.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

——The platform is a strong appeal to the intelligence and patriotism of the American people. And with a candidate such as Mr. Bryan the democracy has every reason to confidently look forward to the judgment of the people. —Milwaukee News.

——The ticket will be hailed with acclamation by lovers of freedom everywhere. The one the young tribune of the people, the other a veteran from scenes where democracy had to be tested. With such a ticket Illinois and Indiana will be democratic.—Atlanta Constitution.

——The platform is admirable in its anti-imperial and anti-trust declarations, but sadly, perhaps fatally, defective in its advocacy of free silver coinage at 16 to 1. If Mr. Bryan is defeated in November he will be held responsible for the disaster to his party. —Baltimore Sun.

——There is complete agreement between the candidate and the platform. Both are plainly and convincingly honest and sincere. It is this element of fearless straightforwardness that will tend to attract the independent, unmuzzled vote of the country to the democratic ticket this year.—Washington Times.

——There are thousands of men who voted against Mr. Bryan before who now feel that the country has departed from right principles. As vice president Mr. Stevenson was an ideal officer. Many persons outside the democratic party will be glad to see so fit a man chosen for the high office.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

——The two-day platform struggle at Kansas City is at least unique. The practice of "fooling the people" in party declaration dates from the dawn of politics. It was essayed from the Areopagus of Athens and in the Forum of Rome. But to human knowledge it was never done in public before.—N. Y. Press (Rep.).

——The democratic convention at Kansas City did a good work by adopting a platform broad enough and strong enough to give firm footing to every democrat in the United States. It added to and completed the good work by putting upon the platform an exceptionally strong democratic ticket.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

——Upon their platform, notwithstanding its many serious faults and weaknesses, it is not to be doubted the democrats can make a strong campaign. Events that have carried the republican administration into a wide departure from cherished American traditions have raised opposition where none existed before. — Philadelphia Times (Ind. Rep.).

——Mr. Bryan has received from the democratic party a personal tribute which has no parallel in our political history. No one can doubt that Mr. Bryan has an opportunity to make a more formidable campaign, here and in the eastern states at any rate, than in 1896, when his personality was unknown and grossly misconceived, and when even his patriotism was challenged.—Boston Globe (Ind. Dem.).

——We believe no stronger nomination for second place could have been made, and under existing circumstances it is to be preferred to that of either ex-Gov. Hill or Mr. Towne. It was not necessary to heal any convention sores. It represents no factional defeat or triumph. It stands for no machine or political work. It was a spontaneous tribute to the worth of the man, his services for the democratic party and his eminent fitness for all the duties and possibilities of the office—Pittsburgh Post.

——Upon all phases of all the questions involved in the issue of imperialism the democratic platform is clear, straightforward, admirable. There is no evasion, no juggling. Upon the other great issue, monopoly, the platform is again clear, straightforward, admirable. These comments cover at least 90 per cent. of the platform. But in the remaining ten per cent. lies the rotten spot. And the fact that it has been removed from the surface to a point near the center does not make it less rotten. Deep down through the soundness and sanity lies the free silver plank.—N. Y. World.

THE BALL BEARING.

How a Southern Lad Missed Making a Fortune Nearly a Quarter of a Century Ago.

"Apropos of inventions," said a New Orleans lawyer who, relates the Times-Democrat, does a good deal of patent office business, "I'll tell you a curious little story which is absolutely true and has never seen print. Nearly a quarter of a century ago a 12-year-old boy was watching the moving of a heavy piece of furniture at his home in this city, when it occurred to him that the castors upon which it rolled were very clumsy contrivances and might be improved. He was a bright boy, with a taste for mechanics and drawing, and turning the matter over in his mind he hit on the scheme of using a metal ball, instead of a wheel. The ball, he argued, could turn in any direction in a socket and would be a great improvement over the old-fashioned castor. So he proceeded to make a drawing of the device and showed it to his father, who thought so well of it that he went to see a lawyer with a view of having it patented. The lawyer was an eminent man in his profession and an advocate of great ability, but he knew nothing whatever of mechanics, and when he looked at the drawing the thing struck him as being impracticable. 'Why, this will never work in the world,' he said. 'The pressure on top of the ball would keep it from turning.' If he had stopped to think he might have realized that the same argument could be applied to the axle of a wheel, but his offhand opinion nipped the patent in the bud, and the father told his son that the plan wasn't feasible. That ended it, and four or five years later some fellow in New England patented exactly the same idea and proceeded to make a huge fortune. The device which the boy originally thought out is known as the 'ball bearing' and is unquestionably one of the greatest and most useful mechanical inventions of the age. It is employed in everything, from bicycles to 12-inch gun mounts. The lawyer who said it wouldn't work is now dead and the boy himself is a clerk at perhaps $1,200 a year. He still has the drawing and showed it to me only the other day."

TRAINING OF CIRCUS BOYS.

All Are Ambitious to Become Clowns When They Are Grown to Manhood.

The average boy cannot help thinking that to travel with a circus must be the grandest life in the world, but to be the clown as well would be the very height of bliss. Even the children who travel with the show envy the clown and want to learn his business. With one of the big shows out this year is a "circus rider" only eight years old. His father and mother are riders, and in the states where the law allows it he takes part with them in their act. In spangled white he rides a white horse bareback, leaps through hoops, is hoisted to the shoulder of his father and is carried at a swift pace around the ring. This is all fun for him—but what he really wants is to be a clown, says the Detroit Free Press.

All his spare time he can be found turning "flipflaps" and handsprings and practicing on the parallel bars. For a clown, as everybody knows, must be more skillful at everything than everybody else. Then, too, when he does a clever acrobatic trick, it comes as a surprise, and he gets twice as much applause as anybody else.

There are half a dozen or more children with every large circus, and they have small chance of getting an education, except in the winter time, and very few of them attend school then. Nearly always, however, there is some man with the circus who is well educated and who cares enough for the children to teach them what he knows, and school is kept on the empty benches in the big tent after the afternoon show. Nearly always the teacher is a clown, for, strange to say, these makers of fun really are often good-natured and good-hearted fellows who are well educated as well. These volunteer teachers get nothing extra for their work as teachers, but they do not expect anything. The idea that they are helping these bright youngsters on in the world is pay enough.

Linoleum.

Linoleum is an admirable floor covering for bathrooms, where there should also, of course, be one or two mats. Linoleum is a little cold looking for halls, but, however, it is often used there with success. It is useful, again, as a surround to a carpet, for which purpose the parquet pattern is perhaps the most effective. In choosing linoleum it is well to select a length that is not absolutely fresh from the manufacturer's hands. The colors, if allowed to harden before the linoleum is used, will wear very much better than if brought into use soon after they have been laid on. For a bathroom the blue and white "diamond" linoleums and a tile paper look well. Linoleum should never be scrubbed. To preserve it in good condition wash it with luke warm water and a soft cloth, and when dry polish it.—Washington Star.

The Codex Sinaiticus.

The most famous treasure of the great St. Petersburg library is the Codex Sinaiticus, which is not only priceless, but is practically unique. The imperial library takes the greatest care of it and guards it jealously, not even the highest officials being allowed to remove it from its case without a special order.—N. Y. Sun.

The Exceptions.

Lubra—All men are liars.

Kitty—Except when their flattery is pleasing to us, dear.—Philadelphia North American.

The Trust Problem.

To a thoughtful mind, the trust problem is one of serious import. It must be firmly grappled with, for it creeps upon society before you are aware of its existence, in this respect much resembling the various disorders which attack the stomach, such as constipation, indigestion, dyspepsia, biliousness, liver and kidney troubles. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the one reliable remedy for all such ailments. Be sure to give it a trial.

McSwatters and McSwitters had sworn off smoking for three months. One day, about four weeks after the bargain had been made, the two met. Each was dying for a good cigar. "Say, John," said McSwitters, "keep your end of the bargain?" "You bet!" sighed McSwitters. "I can't afford to lose ten dollars." "Neither can I. But look here, I must have a smoke. Tell you what I'll do; I'll give you two dollars if you will call the deal off." "Done!" said McSwitters. He took the two and placed them in his vest pocket. "I'll buy," he said. Half an hour later he was on his way home, chuckling softly. McSwitters was the twelfth man who had bought him off on the cigar deal.—Syracuse Herald.

What Hurts.

"The other side," observed the candidate, in much apprehension, "are putting some damaging reports in circulation."

"But no money to speak of," rejoined the chairman of the campaign committee, complacently.—Detroit Journal.

Mrs. P. T. Fall has returned to her home at Alexander, Indiana, after a pleasant visit of two weeks with her sister, Mrs. S. S. Smith, and other relatives.

Some time early in September, 1899, a few friends held a chicken soup on Mrs. Mary Carpenter's farm, and during the evening planned to have a fish fry three or four weeks later. The fry was held and proved so pleasant to all concerned that another was planned for this year, and on Saturday, July 7th, some 65 people gathered at the grove and near the same spring to have what has proved the nicest of all. About 10:30, 200 pounds of nice fish had been prepared and a corps of expert cooks began frying them. At 12:30 the tables were prepared and a little later groaned under the weight of fish and all sorts of delicious eatables—all had abundance. After dinner music was furnished by the Afterkirk Bros., that was highly appreciated and enjoyed by all. As the shades of evening gathered and the shadows lengthened all returned to their homes, believing that as a genuine, old fashioned way of promoting neighborly kindness and building up the bonds of friendship and love among relatives and friends, a fish fry can not be beaten. Next year another will be held at same place, for J. W. Conner was elected as treasurer and expected to look after the funds necessary for holding another.

For thirty years Supt. Voshell has been a leading educator in Kentucky and Indiana. During all these years he has had many experiences as a teacher that were exceedingly delightful to remember and treasure up for future reference. In the winter of 1871, the Professor taught a school of some 30 pupils at Big Bone church, that has been regarded by him as an exceptionally hard working and interesting one to himself and all concerned. This school was taught 29 years ago, and as the tide of life and its affairs have rolled on the Professor has rolled on too—so have the 30 pupils—they too have grown into the estate of manhood and womanhood—launched their boats upon the rolling tide of affairs as farmers, merchants, mothers, grandmothers and all sorts of good people. In those winter days of '71, John Garrison was a little fellow (baby of the school) to be trotted on the larger boys knee, now he is a 200 pounder and the best old fellow going. Twenty-nine years ago seem far into the past, yet with one exception, the pupils of that school are living and enjoying excellent health. Wednesday, July 4th, 1900, brought to the Professor's mind all the particulars of this particular school, for on that eventful day, Mrs. Mary J. Oesman, Mrs. Fannie Adams, Mrs. Ella Utz, Mrs. Mattie Rouse, J. B. Allen, R. L. Huey, M. L. Utz, J. J. Garrison, E. E. Utz, G. V. Rouse, T. J. Judge—eleven pupils of that school of '71, came with their wives, their husbands, their friends and invited guests to celebrate the day in honor of their teacher and his family. To say the Professor was surprised, delighted and overjoyed, is simply wasting words, for in fact, he was just tickled to death from head to foot. The pupils came with well filled baskets of good things to eat, that the entire day might be given to social pleasure. After the 11 pupils had offered their congratulations they presented Mrs. Elizabeth Huey, Mrs. Sallie Huey, Mrs. Sallie Adams and daughter, Rose, Miss Marietta Riley, Mrs. Susie Garrison, Mrs. Josie Allen, Mrs. E. E. Utz, Mr. B. W. Adams and Mr. Geo. Oesman as invited guests, who were anxious also to congratulate, wish him well and do him honor as a friend and educator. At 12 o'clock dinner was served and as the tables were loaded with food prepared by cooks that are among the best in Boone county, it is useless to say it was unique. Ices from the frigid zone, fruits from the tropics, with Kentucky angel food to put poetical touches on the feast. After dinner, speeches consisted of a talk by the teacher and a very spicy and interesting paper by Mrs. Geo. Oesman for the pupils. The evening was spent in reminiscent talk and other social pleasures that were so delightful and satisfying as to lead the Professor into making a speech. I have never known but one happier day and that was my wedding day.

Beaver.

Mr. Editor, please tell the boys when the fourth of July expires, for they are still celebrating it here.

Albert Underhill has been neglecting his crop this week on account of his best girl visiting in the neighborhood.

Chas. Lancaster, who has been sick with typhoid fever, is better, and Dr. Ryle deserves much credit for the success he has had in fever in this neighborhood.

Miss Katie Green, of Big Bone, has been visiting her sister here and taking lessons on the bycicle, but since she ran into C. C. Sieet's barbed wire fence she thinks it an unprofitable business.

Richwood.

The farmers are busy having their thrashing done.

Mr. Stanley Stevenson, of New York, is visiting his sister, Mrs. Geo. Ranson.

Miss Kate Lord, of Covington, was visiting at Mr. Dan'l. Bedinger's, last week.

The next meeting of the Club will be at the residence of Mr. Lee Gaines, near Walton.

Miss Annie Rice, of Covington, was visiting her cousin, Miss Sallie Belle Hicks, Sunday.

Miss Elizabeth Cleek, of Big Bone, and Mr. John Delahunty were at church, Sunday night.

Mr. John Crews, of Walton, and Miss Nelle Cleek, of Beaver, were at preaching, Sunday night.

Misses Celia and Matilda Sandford, of Covington, have been visiting Misses Norvell and Elizabeth Bedinger.

Miss Elizabeth S. Tanner, of Ross, Ohio, returned home Wednesday, after a visit to her cousin, Miss Bessie Bedinger.

There is a certain young lady in this neighborhood, who wants to know if Mr. Frank Walton has put up all of his hay.

Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Tanner and little daughter, Cecil, of Gunpowder, were visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Wolfe, last Sunday.

Mr. Jas. Delahunty raised 13,950 lbs. of tobacco on six acres of land, and sold it to Mr. Glasscock, of Walton, at $8 25 per hundred. Who can beat it? Adams Bros. also sold their crop of 4,900 lbs., raised on the same farm at $8 25.

Walton.

Miss Carrie Watson had a very nice visit to Verona.

Mrs. C. L. Senour, of Cincinnati, O., is visiting her sister, Mrs. J. R. Craven.

Mrs. J. C. Bolton and little daughter are on a visit to Mrs. Bolton's mother, Mrs. Ruth Hind.

Miss Mamie Stephens, of Covington, came out last week and visited her cousin, Miss Holder. She is out here to spend a few months with her aunt, Mrs. Brinly, at Anocrage. It is almost superfluous to note that Mr. Chas. Miller drove out from Covington, hot as it was to take dinner with her at Mr. Holder's.

The Walton base ball nine were at trouble to arrange a meeting with the Erlanger club on the Walton's ground. The Erlanger's were on time and 7 innings had been played. The score stood Waltons 16, Erlangers, 10, Fullilove in the box. Wishing to be generous to their visitors they took "Fuller" as everybody calls him, out of the box. The Erlangers batted the new man all over the field and in the end won by a single score.

Last week the house of Mr. Edward Taylor, corner of Main street and the Verona road, was entered and a gold watch and some change stolen. The same night the residence of Mott Rouse was enteren and Mrs. Rouse relieved of her pocket book and $2 45. The night before Mr. Taylor had $230 or $240 in the house, having been paid for some stock on Monday at too late an hour to deposit it.

Three Walton boys, Willie Percival John M. Crowe and K. Watson Dyke, returned, last week, from a delightful trip through Northern Michigan. It was a free excursion given in accordance with the custom of Bartlett's College to all of their pupils, who have been faithful in their studies, regular in attendance and noted for their good behavior during the term. Well done, boys. I greet you. I was a pupil of the founder of the school myself in the early forties.

The masonic picnic at Arnold's grove promises to be a recherche affair. Letters of acceptance from various lodges lead to the impression that there will be a large attendance, not only from Kentucky but from Ohio and Indiana. Come and see how the brethren can enjoy themselves. There is a feeling here that the presence of the editor of the Recorder is needed on that occasion, and the but the echo of their wishes may be said that all will gladly welcome Bro. Riddell to the inviting shade of Arnold's Grove and its festivities.

It was noted in a previous issue of the Recorder that Noah Glasscock was prising and would place the Ferrell crop of tobacco on the market. The tobacco trust being placed in the hands of a receiver, Glasscock shipped the two crops to the Kentucky Tobacco Warehouse, Claypool, Larimore & Co., Louisville, and they were sold last week at figures far higher than they expected to receive, Ed Ferrell's crop averaging $12 90, his mother's bringing $10 11. It was mentioned that Glasscock and his manager, Chas. Mattox, are experts in preparing the article for market. The Ferrells were delighted with the Kentucky House, and are noising it around that growers receive better treatment there than they ever had anywhere in Cincinnati. Mr. Jas. Delehanty delivered, last week 20,000 pounds of tobacco, which he sold to Glasscock at $8 25 around. It goes to Louisville to morrow. As 14,300 pounds of it was raised on 6 acres of ground and is very fine tobacco, Glasscock may not have as close a shave as he had on Stephen's crop, which paid him either $1 40 or $2 for the purchase. A little incident occurred while Ed Ferrell's crop was on sale. Glasscock told Ed that it would average $12, when, he (Ed), said he would sell it to him at $11. Noah told him that it was not business, that it was like taking $50 out of his pocket. It would have been as the sale turned out, just $95 66.

In estimating the importance of Cincinnati as a manufacturing center, one must not overlook the new and elegant factories of the Harvard Piano Co. This industry was located at Boston, Mass., until the summer of 1899, at which time the popularity of the piano has reached the point that compelled the Company to seek larger quarters. The great natural advantages of Cincinnati induced the locating of the factory near that point, and it is now in full operation, turning out at the rate of 4,000 pianos annually, and still further additions to the plant will increase the output to between 7,000 and 8,000. The Harvard ranks easily among the most popular instruments of the market, being a great favorite with many of the best musicians everywhere. Cincinnati is to be congratulated on winning the concern.

UNION, - - - - - - - - - KENTUCKY.

Meeting of the Kentucky Medical Association.

On the 12th day of July, in the year of our Lord, 1900, in the grand old county of Boone, near the noted stream of Big Bone, adjacent to the mother of churches of the same name, at the spacious residence of Gen. Wallace Garrison, where hospitality flaws as freely as Big Bone water, assembled by special invitation, the Doctorate of the North Kentucky Medical Society. A goodly number of members were in attendance, together with some distinguished lights of Aesculapian School from Cincinnati, as well as friends in the immediate neighborhood. The regular program was shortened to give place to a Memorial Service of one of the most active and efficient members of the Society in life, the late lamented Dr. J. D. Violet, of Williamstown, Ky., brother of the hostess. A good paper was read by Dr. C. W. McCollum, of Erlanger, on Dyspepsia, and ably discussed by a number of M. D.'s present. The essayist as well as the discussionists emphasized moderation in the diet and dwelt especially, upon the best modes of cookery, but as the menu was being dispensed, the Doctors either lost their bearings, or were so completely overwhelmed with the elaborative and carefully prepared viands, that they ate as though they believed everything on the table was peptonized—each one vieing with the other, and to all indications, were mentally saying, "Lay on McDuff an I d—d be he who first cries hold! enough!"

In the afternoon the memorial service of our deceased brother, Dr. Violet, was taken up by the society, and lovingly and touchingly entered into by nearly every one of the participants. His moral worth, his integrity of purpose, his energy and anxiety to relieve suffering humanity, together with his christian deportment, and valiantly at all, times upholding the ethics and fraternal relations of the profession he so much loved and adorned, was ably and feelingly descanted. The society enjoyed, finally, the sociality and edification of our esteemed visitors, Drs. Bonnifield and Gillespy, of Cincinnati, and Dr. Johnson, a suburban, late of Danville, Ky., but now occupying the old home of ex-Gov. Hoadly, of Ohio, which he has remodeled and converted into a private hospital.

In conclusion let us say, may the genial and hospitable shadows of our host and hostess never grow less, while I boldly affirm, that not a Pill Driver arose from that sumptuous, recherche spread minus a plethoric stomach, who will not asseverate so long as life is in him—that his memory shall rot in oblivion ere he forget the genuine Kentucky hospitality, with the abundant rationage dispensed to the North Ky. Medical Society upon this God blessed occasion. W. H. B.

During last May an infant child of our neighbor was suffering with cholera infantum. The doctors had given up all hopes of recovery. I took a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy to the house, telling I felt sure it would do good if used according to directions. In two days time the child had fully recovered. The child is now vigorous and healthy. I have recommended this remedy frequently and have never known it to fail.—Mrs. Curtis Baker, Bookwalter, Ohio. Sold by W. F. McKim, Burlington; Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg; C. S. Baisly, Builttsville, O. N. Grant, Bellevue.

The barn belonging to T. D. Goodridge, two miles out on the Bellevue pike, was struck by lightning and burnt last night. The fire was discovered about 9:30 o'clock, and had enveloped the building. The barn contained several tons of hay, a corn drill, wheat drill, and all the harness and saddles on the place. The loss is about $500. The barn was insured in the Boone county company, but for what amount we were unable to learn. Other buildings were close to the barn, but the wind carried the fire and heat from them.

George Bancroft, the historian, was born at Worcester, Mass., October 3, 1800, and a movement is on foot to commemorate the hundredth anniversary in suitable fashion.

The Adirondack mountains embrace an area of over two million eight hundred thousand acres, and in this great area fully 300 mountain peaks rise to altitudes ranging from 1,200 to 5,000 feet.

The strongest men of the three manliest races in the present world are nonflesh-eating — the Turanian mountaineers, the Mandingo tribes of Senegambia and the Schleswig-Holstein Buiern, who furnish the heaviest soldiers for the German army and the oldest seamen for the Hamburg navy.

The German historian and novelist, Gustav Freytag, decided shortly before his death that the trouble with Germany was that through the death of Kaiser Frederich the generation that had grown up with him was deprived of the realization of its ideas in favor of the younger generation represented by the present emperor.

The bulk of the toy balloons seen in this country are imported. Americans have proved successful manufacturers of india rubber tires and belts, of blankets, druggists' goods and the more important articles of the trade, and yet all efforts to make the toy balloon profitably have failed. One factory is just getting on its feet and supplying a limited quantity.

According to Persident Jordan, of Leland Stanford, jr., university, the endownment of that institution is greater than that of Harvard and Columbia universities combined. At the recent commencement the doctor's degree was conferred upon two students; the A. M. degree was won by twenty-one students, while the number of graduating class to receive the A. B. degree was 142.

Until the discovery of deposits of lime in the Calico mountains borax had been a product of the marsh and of methods the simplest, admitting no improvement in mechanical appliances. An entirely new era opened with the discovery of borate of lime in stratified rock formation. Thenceforward the industry was transformed into a proposition akin to that of quartz mining.

Richard Croker's neighbors in his English home in Berkshire have a genuine liking for him and are disgusted at the attacks made upon him recently by a London newspaper. To them he is a very quiet, unassuming man, friendly, hospitable and charitable, and so lacking in obtrusiveness that they have to seek his companionship. They say that they know and care nothing for his political relations in this country.

Among the graduates from Yale this year was Miss Seiichi Yamaguchi, of Tokio, Japan, who won the degree of bachelor of arts. The dark little woman received her diploma bareheaded and in her native costume, her black hair lying smooth and shiny, fastened by a colossal stickpin, while her shawl and broad sash, flung gracefully about her plump little figure, made her look like some small "Yum Yum" just out of school.

Belgium's census was taken on the last day of last year and the general results as regards population have just been made public. The population of the kingdom is 6,744,532, consisting of 3,365,436 males and 3,381,096 females. Officially Antwerp is the most populous town, with 282,018 inhabitants; Brussels follows with 210,065, but if the eight contiguous suburbs are counted, which practically are a part of Brussels, the population rises to 570,884.

British statisticians are reckoning up what Great Britain owes to the scourge of influenza. There have been two serious epidemics of influenza there in the past ten years, one in the winter of 1891-92, when the amount of property paying death duties advanced $150,000,000 above the average, and again in the past winter, when the increase was about $140,000,000 over the previous year. The fact that influenza was almost the sole cause of the increase is shown in elaborate statistical tables.

King Menelik's palace, known as the "Ghebe," occupies no inconsiderable space in Adis Abeba, the capital. Capt. Harringaon describes it as an enclosure of nearly two miles in circumference, divided into a number of compounds, containing the chapel, audience halls and private apartments. One of the most characteristic sights is the "ghibir," or bi-weekly banquet given in the throne room every Sunday and Thursday to the soldiers at the capital.

Viscount Doneraile, grand senior warden of the English free masons, is the lineal descendant of the only lady who was ever made a free mason. His ancestress, Elizabeth St. Leger, the wife of Col. Richard Aldworth and the mother of the first Viscount Doneraile, who assumed the name of St. Leger, hid in a recess in a room in Doneraile court, County Cork, during the holding in that room of a meeting of a masonic lodge years ago. She was discovered and immediately initiated into the masonic mysteries.

CALEB POWERS' TRIAL

The Bullet That is Supposed to Have Killed Goebel Exhibited in Court.

Witnesses Testify to the Supposed Course of the Deadly Missile—Eph Lillard on the Stand.

Georgetown, Ky., July 13.—When the court adjourned eight jurors in the Powers case had been finally accepted by both sides, leaving four more to be selected. The commonwealth has one more peremptory challenge to its credit, while the defense has four.

Georgetown, Ky., July 14.—When the formation of a jury to try the Powers case was resumed Friday morning there were eight accepted jurors in the box and three seated subject to challenge.

The jury was completed by the acceptance of Harris Musselman, a farmer, also considered a Goebel supporter. Ford is said to be doubtful, some of his friends claiming him to be a Brown democrat. The jury was then sworn in.

The completed jury stands W. O. Tinder, farmer, Brown; A. W. Craig, merchant, Goebel; W. P. Munson, farmer, Goebel; W. H. Oldham, merchant, Goebel; George Murphy, farmer, Goebel; J. C. Porter, farmer, republican; Alonzo Kemper, farmer, Brown; B. E. Ford, farmer, Goebel (doubtful); J. P. Crosswaite, carpenter, Goebel; J. T. Mulberry, blacksmith, Goebel; Harris Musselman, farmer, Goebel.

Col. Campbell stated the case for the prosecution. He reviewed the political events of last fall, and especially the events following the election and the instituting of contests by the democratic candidates for state offices. He said that Caleb Powers was most aggressive among those who sought to settle the contest by violence, and that to him largely was due the importation of mountain "feudists" to Frankfort. Of the band of mountain men, 175 remained in Frankfort regularly. He charged that a majority of them had killed from one to several men each. He claimed it will be put in evidence that on January 28 Mr. Powers made use of a statement that "Goebel has not as many days to live as I have fingers on my hand." He reviewed the facts in connection with the assassination and claimed that the state house yard had been cleared in furtherance of the conspiracy, cited the closing of the executive building against the police officers, the calling out of troops and other matters which have already come out in the examining trials.

During Surveyor Woodson's testimony he produced the chip cut from the hackberry tree in the state house yard. The chip contains the steel bullet which is supposed to have passed through the body of Mr. Goebel. Mr. Woodson had not completed his testimony when court adjourned.

Georgetown, Ky., July 15.—Saturday, Mead Woodson, county surveyor of Franklin county, and the civil engineer who made the measurements was on the stand for over two hours. He had with him profile drawings, diagrams and a block of wood taken from a tree in the state house yard, which was supposed to contain the fatal bullet. The defense undertook to show that the surveyor had not been sufficiently accurate in his measurement from the supposed point of entrance of bullet into the tree to prove that the shot was fired from the window of the secretary of state's office. He left the stand at 11:15.

At the request of the prosecution, Mr. Woodson, after leaving the stand, removed the bullet from the block of wood when it had lain undisturbed for six months, and after marking it for identification, passed the bit of lead about the bar. Judge, jurors and lawyers all examined it with interest. Apparently the prisoner and Arthur Goebel, the brother of William Goebel, paid less attention to the ball than some of the attorneys.

Clothes that Goebel wore on the fatal day was brought in at 9:30 by two colored porters and placed in the anteroom adjoining the main courtroom.

Warden Eph Lillard, of Frankfort prison, a close friend of deceased, was next called. He accompanied Mr. Goebel to the state house on the morning of murder and left him just before the shot was fired.
